Pursuant to Pretrial Order No. 31 and this Court's Orders [DE 2512, 2513, 2515, 2532, 2716 and 2720], Plaintiffs file this Consolidated Amended Consumer Economic Loss Class Action Complaint on behalf of themselves and all others similarly situated against the defendants named herein (collectively, "Defendants"), and seek damages and equitable relief to remedy the economic losses resulting from Defendants' design, manufacture, marketing, packaging, labeling, handling, distribution, storage, and/or sale of over-the-counter ("OTC") and prescription ranitidine-containing medications, including those sold under the brand-name Zantac (collectively, "Ranitidine-Containing Products"). Plaintiffs' allegations are based upon personal knowledge as to Plaintiffs' own conduct, investigation of counsel based on publicly-available information, and the limited discovery conducted to date.

I. INTRODUCTION

Zantac is the branded name for ranitidine, a drug that was touted and sold for nearly four decades as a safe and effective heartburn and indigestion drug. Zantac and other Ranitidine-Containing Products were among the most popular heartburn drugs purchased by U.S. consumers. Indeed, Zantac was the first-ever "blockbuster" drug to reach $1 billion in sales.

This unprecedented sales volume, and the additional billions of dollars generated through sales of Zantac and other Ranitidine-Containing Products for nearly 40 years, were made possible because of a deceptive and unlawful scheme by Defendants to defraud consumers regarding the purported safety of Zantac and other Ranitidine-Containing Products, and by concealing from consumers the known dangers and risks associated with use of this drug.

But, recent scientific studies confirmed what Defendants knew or should have known all along: ranitidine transforms over time and under natural conditions into high levels of N-Nitrosodimethylamine ("NDMA"), a carcinogen that is potent and dangerous. The U.S. Food &

Drug Administration ("FDA") recognizes NDMA as "a probable human carcinogen"[1] and the World Health Organization ("WHO") has described it as "clearly carcinogenic."[2] Its only use is to induce cancerous tumors in animals in laboratory research and experiments; it has no medicinal purpose.

In 2019, an analytical pharmacy ran tests on Zantac and discovered the link between ranitidine and NDMA and that ranitidine itself is unstable and can break down into NDMA, particularly in the environment of the stomach. On September 13, 2019, the analytical pharmacy filed a citizen petition asking the FDA to recall all products that contain ranitidine. In early October 2019, the FDA ordered testing on Zantac and other Ranitidine-Containing Products and specified the protocols for such testing. Within days of the FDA's announcement, certain Defendants recalled Zantac and Ranitidine-Containing Products in the United States and internationally. On November 1, 2019, the FDA announced that its recent testing showed "unacceptable levels" of NDMA in Zantac and other Ranitidine-Containing Products, and requested that all manufacturers recall Zantac and other Ranitidine-Containing Products. Ultimately, on April 1, 2020, the FDA called for a withdrawal of Zantac and all other Ranitidine-Containing Products in the United States, citing unacceptable levels of NDMA in those drugs.

Over the nearly 40 years that Zantac and other Ranitidine-Containing Products were marketed and touted as safe and effective, Defendants uniformly deceived millions of U.S. consumers into purchasing a defective, misbranded, adulterated, and harmful drug. Defendants engaged in a national, pervasive, and decades-long campaign to conceal the inherent dangers and risks associated with ranitidine use and to mislead consumers into believing that Zantac and other Ranitidine-Containing Products were safe for human consumption. Through product labels and packaging; print, television, radio, and online advertising; Internet websites; and social media, Defendants uniformly represented that Zantac and other Ranitidine-Containing Products were safe, e.g., so safe that they could be used frequently, for chronic conditions, and for fast relief with nitrite- and nitrate-rich foods (i.e. foods that induce heartburn).

These representations were false, deceptive, and misleading when made, and they omitted material facts known to Defendants regarding the true risks of Zantac and other Ranitidine-Containing Products. Defendants knew or should have known that ranitidine is an unstable molecule that breaks down under normal conditions into dangerous NDMA, and that this breakdown process is made worse when Zantac and/or other Ranitidine-Containing Products are used in the manner directed or when exposed to routine heat or humidity.

These material facts were known to, or should have been known by, each Defendant, which was duty-bound to investigate the potential dangers and risks associated with Zantac and other Ranitidine-Containing Products to ensure that its drug was safe for human consumption.

Despite Defendants' knowledge of, or duty to know, these material facts, Defendants did not disclose that Zantac and other Ranitidine-Containing Products were unsafe; that the ranitidine molecule breaks down into carcinogenic NDMA at levels that exceed the maximum daily limit; that Zantac and other Ranitidine-Containing Products should not be used for long-term periods; or that Zantac and other Ranitidine-Containing Products should not be consumed with nitrite- and nitrate-rich foods.

As a direct and proximate result of Defendants' actions and omissions, Plaintiffs and the Classes suffered economic losses through their purchase of a drug that was unsafe at the point of sale. Hence, Plaintiffs and the Classes suffered economic losses.

Defendants violated Federal and/or State laws and common law by designing, manufacturing, distributing, packaging, labeling, marketing, and/or selling Zantac and other Ranitidine-Containing Products without adequate testing or labels and warnings; by failing to ensure the proper conditions for the manufacture, transportation, handling, and storage of Zantac and other Ranitidine-Containing Products; and by misrepresenting and/or not disclosing material facts regarding the safety of Zantac and other Ranitidine-Containing Products and the dangers and risks associated with their intended use. Plaintiffs and the Classes seek redress to compensate for their economic losses and to deter the type of misconduct that caused the economic losses they sustained.

This Consolidated Amended Consumer Economic Loss Class Action Complaint is drafted and organized based on the Court's recent Orders. Plaintiffs, on behalf of the RICO Class, first assert claims against the Brand Manufacturers of OTC Zantac for violations of the Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act ("RICO"), 18 U.S.C. §1962(c)-(d). Plaintiffs, on behalf of their respective State Classes, then assert separate state law claims against each Defendant, under the laws of the state in which each Plaintiff resided at the time of purchase, for violations of state consumer protection laws, breach of implied warranties, and unjust enrichment. Plaintiffs' state law claims are organized by Defendant group, then by Defendant, and finally by the state in which each Plaintiff purchased the applicable Zantac and/or other Ranitidine-Containing Products, as follows:

(a) Brand Prescription Manufacturer GSK for: (i) intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for prescription Zantac including that it was inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for its intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered it unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer; and (ii) printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the product remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed;

(b) Brand OTC Manufacturers GSK, Pfizer, BI, and Sanofi for knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for OTC Zantac including by: (i) omitting that it was inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for its intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered it unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer; (ii) printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the product remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed; and (iii) packaging quantities of tablets in bottles greater than could be used completely and stored properly by the expiration date, particularly when the expiration date on the label was extended beyond a safe and appropriate date;

(c) Generic Prescription Manufacturers Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva for printing expiration dates on the labels for their generic prescription Ranitidine-Containing Products that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed;

(d) Store Brand Defendants CVS, Rite-Aid, Walgreens, and Walmart for, directly or through their agents, knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for their store-brand OTC Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by: (i) packaging quantities of tablets in bottles greater than could be used completely and stored properly by the expiration date, particularly when the expiration date on the label was extended beyond a safe and appropriate date; and (ii) printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed; and

(e) Store Brand Manufacturers Apotex, Dr. Reddy's, Perrigo, and Strides for knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for the store-brand OTC Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by: (i) packaging quantities of tablets in bottles greater than could be used completely and stored properly by the expiration date, particularly when the expiration date on the label was extended beyond a safe and appropriate date; and (ii) printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

B. Plaintiffs

91. The following Plaintiffs bring claims against the corresponding Defendants as set forth below.

Alabama

92. Anthony McGhee (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Alabama. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Alabama from approximately 2010 to 2020. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included: (a) over the counter ("OTC") 150 mg Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2010 to 2013, manufactured by BI; and (b) prescription 15 mg/ml generic ranitidine syrup from approximately 2013 to 2020. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 15 mg/ml ranitidine syrup from approximately 2013 to 2020 manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal and Teva. Thus, BI, Amneal, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

93. Plaintiff Daffeney Austin (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Alabama. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Alabama from approximately 2016 to November 2019. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2016 to November 2019 (manufactured by Amneal). Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased additional prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2016 to November 2019 manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Teva, and Strides. Thus, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Teva, and Strides are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

94. Plaintiff Lashonnah Gaitor (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Alabama. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Alabama from approximately 2015 to 2019. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included: (a) prescription generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2015 to 2019; and (b) prescription 15 mg/ml generic ranitidine syrup from approximately 2015 to 2019 (manufactured by Teva). Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased additional prescription generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva, and additional prescription 15 mg/ml generic ranitidine syrup manufactured by the following defendant: Amneal. Thus, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

Arkansas

95. Plaintiff Andy Green Jr. (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Arkansas. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Arkansas and Tennessee from approximately 1983 to 2019. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included: (a) prescription Zantac tablets and capsules in Arkansas while a citizen of Arkansas from approximately 1983 to 1997 (manufactured by GSK) and in Tennessee while a citizen of Tennessee from approximately 1987 to 1988 (manufactured by GSK); (b) prescription ranitidine tablets and capsules in Arkansas while a citizen of Arkansas in approximately 1997; and (c) OTC Zantac tablets and capsules in Arkansas while a citizen of Arkansas from approximately 1995 to 2019 (manufactured by GSK, Pfizer, BI, and Sanofi). Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased additional prescription generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by Sandoz. Thus, GSK, Pfizer, BI, Sanofi, and Sandoz are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims for purchases in Arkansas while a citizen of Arkansas, and GSK is a "Defendant" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims for purchases in Tennessee while a citizen of Tennessee, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

96. Plaintiff Tina Culclager (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Arkansas. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Arkansas from approximately 2015 to 2019. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included: (a) 300 mg prescription generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2015 to 2019; and (b) OTC Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2015 to 2019 (manufactured by BI and Sanofi). Plaintiff also purchased OTC Walmart-branded and Walgreens-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules from Walmart and Walgreens, respectively, in Arkansas from approximately 2015 to 2019 but, based on the limited available sources of information and discovery conducted to date, does not yet know the specific manufacturer(s) of the store-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules. During the time period in question, Perrigo, Dr. Reddy's Strides, and Apotex manufactured both OTC Walmart-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules for Walmart, and OTC Walgreens-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules for Walgreens, and, therefore, Perrigo, Dr. Reddy's, Strides, and Apotex are named as Defendants until adequate information is produced to identify the specific entity(ies) that manufactured the store-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules purchased by Plaintiff. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 300 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva. Thus, Walmart, Walgreens, BI, Sanofi, Perrigo, Dr. Reddy's, Apotex, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

Arizona

97. Plaintiff Armando Tapia (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff"), is a citizen of Arizona. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Arizona from approximately 2007 to August 2019. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2007 to August 2019 (manufactured by Glenmark, Sandoz, Dr. Reddy's, and Amneal). Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased additional prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following defendants: Strides and Teva. Thus, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

98. Plaintiff Tangie Sims (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff"), is a citizen of Arizona. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Arizona from approximately 2007 to 2020. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included OTC 150 mg Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2007 to 2020 manufactured by BI and Sanofi. Plaintiff also purchased OTC Walmart-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules and OTC Walgreens-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules from Walmart and Walgreens, respectively, but, based on the limited available sources of information and discovery conducted to date, does not yet know the additional manufacturer(s) of the store-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules. During that time period in question, Dr. Reddy's, Apotex, Strides, and Perrigo manufactured both OTC Walmart-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules for Walmart and OTC Walgreens-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules for Walgreens, and, therefore, Dr. Reddy's, Apotex, Strides, and Perrigo are named as Defendants until adequate information is produced to identify the specific entity(ies) that manufactured the store-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules purchased by Plaintiff. Thus, Walmart, Walgreens, BI, Sanofi, Dr. Reddy's, Apotex, Strides, and Perrigo are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

99. Plaintiff Monica Costello (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Arizona. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Arizona and Nevada from approximately 2008 to November 2018. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included: (a) prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2008 to 2016 in Nevada while a citizen of Nevada; and (b) prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets from approximately 2016 to 2018 in Arizona while a citizen of Arizona. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following defendants: Amneal, Sandoz, Teva, Dr. Reddy's, Strides, and Glenmark with respect to purchases in Arizona while a citizen of Arizona, and Amneal, Sandoz, Teva, Dr. Reddy's, Strides, and Glenmark with respect to purchases in Nevada while a citizen of Nevada. Thus, Amneal, Sandoz, Teva, Dr. Reddy's, Strides, and Glenmark are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims for purchases in both Arizona and Nevada while a citizen of Arizona and Nevada, respectively, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

100. Plaintiff Jennifer Fox (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Tennessee. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Arizona while a citizen of Arizona from approximately March 2019 to 2020. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately March 2019 to 2020 in Arizona while a citizen of Arizona (manufactured by Strides). Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased additional prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, and Sandoz. Thus, Strides, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, and Sandoz are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

California

101. Plaintiff Golbenaz Bakhtiar (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of California. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in California from approximately 2000 to December 2019. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included: (a) OTC Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2000 to 2019 (manufactured by Pfizer, BI, and Sanofi); (b) prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2005 to 2019; and (c) prescription Zantac tablets and capsules beginning in approximately 2000 (manufactured by GSK). Plaintiff also purchased OTC 150 mg Walgreens-branded and Rite-Aid-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules from Walgreens and Rite-Aid, respectively, from approximately 2005 to 2019, but based on the limited available sources of information and discovery conducted to date, does not yet know the specific manufacturer(s) of the store-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules. During the time period in question, Dr. Reddy's Perrigo, Strides, and Apotex manufactured OTC 150 mg Walgreens-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules for Walgreens, and Perrigo, Strides, and Apotex manufactured OTC 150 mg Rite-Aid-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules for Rite-Aid, and, therefore, Dr. Reddy's, Perrigo, Strides, and Apotex are named as Defendants until adequate information is produced to identify the specific entity(ies) that manufactured the store-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules purchased by Plaintiff. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides and Teva. Thus, Walgreens, Rite-Aid, GSK, Pfizer, BI, Sanofi, Dr. Reddy's, Perrigo, Apotex, Amneal, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct respectively, until approximately November 2019, but based on the limited available sources of information and discovery conducted to date, does not yet know the specific manufacturer(s) of the store-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules. During the time period in question, Dr. Reddy's, Strides, and Perrigo manufactured OTC 150 mg CVS-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules for CVS, and Strides, Perrigo, and Apotex manufactured 150 mg Rite-Aid-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules for Rite-Aid, and, therefore, Strides, Dr. Reddy's, Perrigo, and Apotex are named as Defendants until adequate information is produced to identify the specific entity(ies) that manufactured the store-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules purchased by Plaintiff. Thus, CVS, GSK, Pfizer, BI, Sanofi, Dr. Reddy's, Strides, Perrigo, and Apotex are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

103. Plaintiff Royal Handy (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of California. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in California from approximately 2015 to December 2019. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included prescription generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2015 to December 2019 manufactured by Glenmark. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased additional prescription generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Sandoz, Teva, and Strides. Thus, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Teva, and Strides are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

104. Plaintiff Virginia Aragon (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of California. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in California from approximately 2006 to 2020. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included: (a) OTC Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2006 to 2020 (manufactured by Pfizer, BI, and Sanofi); and (b) prescription 300 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2006 to 2020 (manufactured by Amneal). Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 300 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva. Thus, Pfizer, BI, Sanofi, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

Colorado

105. Plaintiff Jeffrey Pisano (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Colorado. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Colorado from approximately 1998 to February 2020. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included: (a) OTC Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 1998 to 2020 (manufactured by GSK, Pfizer, BI, and Sanofi); (b) prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 1998 to 2003; and (c) prescription 150 mg Zantac tablets and capsules in approximately this same time frame (manufactured by GSK). Plaintiff also purchased OTC 150 mg Walmart-branded and Walgreens-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules from Walmart and Walgreens, respectively, until approximately 2020, but based on the limited available sources of information and discovery conducted to date, does not yet know the specific manufacturer(s) of the store-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules. During the time period in question, Perrigo, Dr. Reddy's, Strides, and Apotex manufactured OTC 150 mg Walmart-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules for Walmart, and Walgreens-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules for Walgreens, respectively, and, therefore, Perrigo, Dr. Reddy's, Strides, and Apotex are named as Defendants until adequate information is produced to identify the specific entity(ies) that manufactured the store-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules purchased by Plaintiff. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Sandoz and Teva. Thus, Sandoz and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. Thus, Walmart, Walgreens, GSK, Pfizer, BI, Sanofi, Perrigo, Dr. Reddy's, Sandoz, Strides, Teva, and Apotex are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

106. Plaintiff Ronald Ragan (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Colorado. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Colorado from approximately 2012 to 2019. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included

OTC 150 mg Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2012 to 2019 (manufactured by BI and Sanofi). Plaintiff also purchased OTC 150 mg Walmart-branded and Walgreens-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules from Walmart and Walgreens, respectively, from approximately 2012 to 2019, but based on the limited available sources of information and discovery conducted to date, does not yet know the specific manufacturer(s) of the store-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules. During the time period in question, Perrigo, Dr. Reddy's, Strides, and Apotex manufactured both OTC 150 mg Walmart-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules for Walmart, and Walgreens-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules for Walgreens, and, therefore, Perrigo, Dr. Reddy's, Strides, and Apotex are named as Defendants until adequate information is produced to identify the specific entity(ies) that manufactured the store-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules purchased by Plaintiff. Thus, Walmart, Walgreens, BI, Sanofi, Perrigo, Dr. Reddy's, Strides, and Apotex are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

Connecticut

107. Plaintiff Angel Cordero (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Connecticut. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Connecticut from approximately 2005 to 2019. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included: (a) OTC Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2005 to 2019 (manufactured by Pfizer, BI, and Sanofi); (b) prescription 300 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2018 to 2019 (manufactured by Strides); and (c) prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules in approximately 2015, and from approximately 2017 to 2018 (manufactured by Sandoz). Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased additional prescription generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, and Glenmark. Thus, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Pfizer, BI, Sanofi, Sandoz, Strides, and Glenmark are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

108. Plaintiff Angel Vega (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Montana. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Connecticut and Montana from approximately 2011 to 2016. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included: (a) OTC Zantac tablets and capsules in approximately 2011, in Connecticut and while a citizen of Connecticut, manufactured by BI, and from approximately 2015 to 2016, in Montana and while a citizen of Montana, manufactured by BI; and (b) prescription generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2011 to 2014 in Connecticut and while a citizen of Connecticut. Plaintiff also purchased OTC Walgreens-branded and CVS-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules from Walgreens and CVS, respectively, in Connecticut while a citizen of Connecticut, but based on the limited available sources of information and discovery conducted to date, does not yet know the specific manufacturer(s) of the store-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules. During the time period in question, Dr. Reddy's, Perrigo, and Strides manufactured OTC Walgreens-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules for Walgreens; and Dr. Reddy's, Strides, and Perrigo manufactured OTC CVS-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules for CVS and, therefore, Perrigo, Dr. Reddy's, and Strides are named as Defendants until adequate information is produced to identify the specific entity(ies) that manufactured the store-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules purchased by Plaintiff. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, and Teva. Thus, Amneal, CVS, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Perrigo, Sandoz, Strides, Teva, Walgreens, and BI are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims for purchases in Connecticut while a citizen of Connecticut, and BI is a "Defendant" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims for purchases in Montana while a citizen of Montana, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

District of Columbia

109. Plaintiff Kevin Nelson (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of the District of Columbia. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Maryland from approximately May 2018 to December 2018. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules in or around approximately 2018, in Maryland while a citizen of Maryland. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, and Strides. Thus, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, and Strides are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

Florida

110. Plaintiff Ana Pereira (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Florida. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Florida from approximately May 2017 to 2020. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2017 to 2020 manufactured by Glenmark. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Sandoz, and Strides. Thus, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, and Strides are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

111. Plaintiff Clifton McKinnon (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Florida. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Florida from approximately 2008 to 2020. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased additional prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Sandoz, and Strides. Thus, BI, Glenmark, Strides, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Sandoz, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

112. Plaintiff Daniel Taylor (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff"), is a citizen of Florida. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Florida from approximately May 2015 to 2020. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately May 2015 to 2020 (manufactured by Glenmark). Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased additional prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva. Thus, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

113. Plaintiff Gustavo Velasquez (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff"), is a citizen of Florida. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Florida from

The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included OTC 75 mg and 150 mg Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2000 to 2020 (manufactured by Pfizer, BI, and Sanofi). Thus, Pfizer, BI, and Sanofi are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

114. Plaintiff Hattie Kelley (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Florida. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Florida from approximately 2012 to 2018. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2012 to 2018 (manufactured by Teva and Glenmark). Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased additional prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Sandoz, and Strides. Thus, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Teva, Glenmark, Strides, and Sandoz are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

115. Plaintiff Irma Arcaya (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Florida. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Florida from approximately 2014 to 2020. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2014 to 2020. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva. Thus, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

116. Plaintiff Jeannie Black (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Florida. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Florida from approximately 2015 to 2020. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included: (a) OTC Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2015 to 2018 (manufactured by BI and Sanofi); and (b) prescription 300 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2018 to 2020 (manufactured by Glenmark and Strides). Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased additional prescription 300 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Dr. Reddy's and Sandoz. Thus, BI, Sanofi, Glenmark, Strides, Dr. Reddy's, and Sandoz are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

117. Plaintiff Joshua Winans (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Florida. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Florida from approximately 2000 to 2019. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included OTC 75 and 150 mg Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2000 to 2019 (manufactured by Pfizer, BI, and Sanofi). Thus, Pfizer, BI, and Sanofi are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

118. Plaintiff Joyce Taylor (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Florida. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Florida from approximately 2010 to February 2020. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2010 to 2020. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva. Thus, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

119. Plaintiff Kristen Monger, as power of attorney and on behalf of, Alexander Monger (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff"), is a citizen of Florida. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Florida from approximately 1999 to 2020. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included: (a) prescription generic ranitidine syrup from approximately 1999 to 2020 (manufactured by Amneal); and (b) prescription Zantac syrup (manufactured by GSK). Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased additional prescription generic ranitidine syrup (manufactured by Teva). Thus, Amneal, GSK, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

120. Plaintiff Kristen Monger, as power of attorney and on behalf of, Laura Monger (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Florida. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Florida from approximately 1997 to 2020. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included: (a) prescription generic ranitidine syrup from approximately 1997 to 2020; and (b) prescription Zantac syrup (manufactured by GSK). Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription generic ranitidine syrup manufactured by Amneal and Teva. Thus, Amneal and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased

Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

121. Plaintiff Marva Mccall (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Florida. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Florida from approximately 2007 to December 2019. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included: (a) OTC Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2007 to 2015, manufactured by BI; and (b) prescription 300 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2015 to 2019 (manufactured by Strides and Glenmark). Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 300 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Dr. Reddy's, Sandoz, and Teva. Thus, BI, Strides, Glenmark, Dr. Reddy's, Sandoz, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

122. Plaintiff Michael Fesser (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Florida. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Florida from approximately 2010 to December 2019. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2010 to 2019 (manufactured by Amneal). Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva. Thus, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

123. Plaintiff Michael Tomlinson (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Florida. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Florida from approximately 2000 to November 2019. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included: (a) OTC 150 mg Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2014 to 2019 (manufactured by BI and Sanofi); (b) prescription 150 mg and 300 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2006 to 2019 (manufactured by Amneal); and (c) prescription 150 mg Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2000 to 2002 (manufactured by GSK). Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva. Plaintiff also purchased OTC Walmart-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules from Walmart from approximately 2014 to 2019 but, based on the limited available sources of information and discovery conducted to date, does not yet know the specific manufacturer(s) of the store-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules. During the time period in question, Perrigo, Dr. Reddy's, Strides, and Apotex manufactured OTC Walmart-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules for Walmart, and, therefore, Perrigo, Dr. Reddy's, Strides, and Apotex are named as Defendants until adequate information is produced to identify the specific entity(ies) that manufactured the store-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules purchased by Plaintiff. Thus, Walmart, BI, Sanofi, Amneal, GSK, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, Teva, Perrigo, and Apotex are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

124. Plaintiff Ricardo Moròn (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Florida. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Florida from approximately 1995 to 2020. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included OTC Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 1995 to 2020 manufactured by GSK, Pfizer, BI, and Sanofi. Thus, GSK, Pfizer, BI, and Sanofi are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

125. Plaintiff Roy Armstrong (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Florida. Plaintiff purchased and used Ranitidine-Containing Products from approximately 2004 to 2008 in Minnesota, 2008 to 2012 in Georgia, 2011 in Alaska, 2012 to 2013 in New York, 2012 to 2017 in Florida, and 2017 to 2019 in Michigan. The Ranitidine-Containing Products Plaintiff purchased specifically included: (a) prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2010 to 2011 in Georgia, while a citizen of Georgia; (b) prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2012 to 2013 in New York, while a citizen of New York (manufactured by Amneal); (c) prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2013 to 2014 in Florida, while a citizen of Florida (manufactured by Sandoz and Teva); (d) OTC Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2005 to 2008 in Minnesota, while a citizen of Minnesota (manufactured by Pfizer and BI); (e) OTC extra strength Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2008 to 2011 in Georgia, while a citizen of Georgia, manufactured by BI; (f) OTC Zantac tablets and capsules in or around 2011 in Alaska, while a resident of Alaska, manufactured by BI; (g) OTC Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2012 to 2013 in New York, while a citizen of New York, manufactured by BI; (h) OTC Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2013 to 2017 in Florida, while a citizen of Florida (manufactured by BI and Sanofi); and (i) OTC Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2017 to 2019 in Michigan, while a citizen of Michigan (manufactured by Sanofi). Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, and Teva. Thus, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, and Teva are "Defendants" with respect to purchases made in Georgia while a citizen of Georgia, unless otherwise specified; Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, and Teva are "Defendants" with respect to purchases made in Florida while a citizen of Florida, unless otherwise specified; Pfizer is a "Defendant" with respect to purchases made in Minnesota while a citizen of Minnesota; BI is a "Defendant" with respect to purchases made in Georgia, Minnesota, Alaska, New York, and Florida while a citizen of each respective state, unless otherwise specified; and Sanofi is a "Defendant" with respect to purchases made in Florida and Michigan while a citizen of each respective state, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

126. Plaintiff Sharon Tweg (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Florida. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Florida from approximately 2010 to June 2018. The Ranitidine-Containing Products specifically included OTC 150 mg Zantac tablets and capsules in approximately 2010 to 2018 (manufactured by BI and Sanofi). Thus, BI, and Sanofi are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

127. Plaintiff Sonia Diaz (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Florida. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Florida from approximately 2017 to 2020 while a resident of Florida, and in Puerto Rico from approximately 2004 to 2017 while a resident of Puerto Rico. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included: (a) prescription 150 mg and 300 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2004 to 2017 in Puerto Rico; (b) prescription 150 mg and 300 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2017 to 2020 in Florida (manufactured by Amneal); (c) OTC Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2004 to 2017 in Puerto Rico (manufactured by Pfizer and BI); and (d) OTC Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2017 to 2020 in Florida (manufactured by Sanofi). Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff also purchased prescription 150 mg and 300 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2004 to 2017 manufactured by Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva in Puerto Rico while a citizen of Puerto Rico, and Plaintiff purchased additional prescription 150 mg and 300 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2017 to 2020 manufactured by Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, and Strides in Florida while a citizen of Florida. Thus, Pfizer, BI, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims for purchases in Puerto Rico while a citizen of Puerto Rico, and Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, Sanofi and Amneal are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims for purchases in Florida while a citizen of Florida, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

Georgia

128. Plaintiff Kathy Jeffries (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Georgia. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products from approximately 1998 to 2002 while a citizen of Florida, and from approximately 2002 to 2019 while a citizen of Georgia. The Ranitidine-Containing Products specifically included: (a) OTC Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 1998 to 2002 in Florida while a citizen of Florida (manufactured by Pfizer); (b) OTC Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2002 to 2019 in Georgia while a citizen of Georgia (manufactured by Pfizer, BI, and Sanofi); (c) prescription generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 1998 to 2002 in Florida while a citizen of Florida (manufactured by Sandoz and Teva) (d) prescription generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2002 to 2019 in Georgia while a citizen of Georgia (manufactured by Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Teva, and Strides); (e) prescription Zantac tablets and capsules beginning in approximately 1998 in Florida while a citizen of Florida (manufactured by GSK); and (f) prescription Zantac tablets and capsules beginning in approximately 2002 in Georgia while a citizen of Georgia (manufactured by GSK). Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased additional prescription generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva. Plaintiff also purchased OTC Walmart-branded and CVS-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules from Walmart and CVS, respectively, in Georgia while a citizen of Georgia, but based on the limited available sources of information and discovery conducted to date, does not yet know the specific manufacturer(s) of the store-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules. During the time period in question, Perrigo, Dr. Reddy's, Strides, and Apotex manufactured OTC Walmart-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules for Walmart; and Dr. Reddy's, Strides, and Perrigo manufactured OTC CVS-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules for CVS and, therefore, Strides, Perrigo, Dr. Reddy's, and Apotex are named as Defendants until adequate information is produced to identify the specific entity(ies) that manufactured the store-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules purchased by Plaintiff. Thus, Sandoz, Teva, GSK and Pfizer are "Defendants" with respect to purchases made in Florida while a citizen of Florida, unless otherwise specified; and Pfizer, BI, Sanofi, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, Teva, GSK, Walmart, CVS, Perrigo, and Apotex are "Defendants" with respect to purchases made in Georgia while a citizen of Georgia, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased

Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

129. Plaintiff Cynthia Starr (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Georgia. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products from approximately 2018 to 2020 in Georgia. The Ranitidine-Containing Products Plaintiff purchased specifically included prescription generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2018 to 2020 manufactured by Amneal and Strides. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, and Sandoz. Thus, Amneal, Strides, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, and Strides are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

130. Plaintiff Leon Greene (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Georgia. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products from approximately 2016 to 2020 in Georgia. The Ranitidine-Containing Products Plaintiff purchased specifically included prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2016 to 2020. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva. Thus, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

131. Plaintiff Paula Shells (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Georgia. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products from approximately 2016 to November 2019 in Georgia. The Ranitidine-Containing Products Plaintiff purchased specifically included prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2016 to November 2019, manufactured by Strides. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased additional prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, and Teva. Thus, Strides, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

132. Plaintiff Tyrone Houston (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Georgia. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products from approximately 2015 to 2020 in Georgia. The Ranitidine-Containing Products Plaintiff purchased specifically included prescription generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2015 to 2020; and OTC Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2015 to 2020, manufactured by BI and Sanofi.

Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva. Thus, BI, Sanofi, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

133. Plaintiff Earlene Green (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Georgia. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products from approximately 1995 to 2011 in Washington, and from approximately 2011 to February 2020 in Georgia. The Ranitidine-Containing Products Plaintiff purchased specifically included: (a) OTC Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 1995 to 2011 in Washington, while a citizen of Washington (manufactured by GSK, Pfizer, and BI); and (b) prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2011 to February 2020, in Georgia and while a citizen of Georgia (manufactured by Strides). Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, and Teva. Thus, GSK, Pfizer, and BI are "Defendants" with respect to purchases made in Washington while a citizen of Washington, and Strides, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, and Teva are "Defendants" with respect to purchases made in Georgia while a citizen of Georgia, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

134. Plaintiff Charlotte Sanders (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Georgia. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products from approximately 2014 to 2020 in Georgia. The Ranitidine-Containing Products Plaintiff purchased specifically included prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2014 to 2020, in Georgia while a citizen of Georgia, manufactured by Strides. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, and Teva. Thus, Strides, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

Illinois

135. Plaintiff Denise Guy (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Illinois Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products from approximately 2015 to November 2019 in Illinois. The Ranitidine-Containing Products Plaintiff purchased specifically included OTC 150 mg Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2015 to November 2019, manufactured by BI and Sanofi. Thus, BI and Sanofi are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

136. Plaintiff Heather Re (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Illinois. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products from approximately 2013 to January 2020 in Illinois. The Ranitidine-Containing Products Plaintiff purchased specifically included prescription generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2017 to 2020, manufactured by Teva and Glenmark; and OTC 75 mg and 150 mg Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2013 to 2017, manufactured by BI and Sanofi. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Sandoz, and Strides. Thus Teva, Glenmark, BI, Sanofi, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Sandoz, and Strides are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

137. Plaintiff Renee Chatman (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Illinois. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products from approximately 2014 to 2019 in Illinois. The Ranitidine-Containing Products Plaintiff purchased specifically included OTC 150 mg Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2014 to January 2019, manufactured by BI and Sanofi. Plaintiff also purchased OTC 150 mg Walgreens-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules from Walgreens from approximately 2014 to 2019 but, based on the limited available sources of information and discovery conducted to date, does not yet know the specific manufacturer(s) of the store-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules. During the time period in question, Dr. Reddy's, Apotex, Strides, and Perrigo manufactured OTC 150 mg Walgreens-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules for Walgreens, and, therefore, Dr. Reddy's, Apotex, Strides, and Perrigo are named as Defendants until adequate information is produced to identify the specific entity(ies) that manufactured the store-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules purchased by Plaintiff. Thus, BI, Sanofi, Dr. Reddy's, Apotex, Walgreens, Strides, and Perrigo are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

138. Plaintiff Vickie Anderson (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Illinois. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products from approximately 2012 to 2015 in Illinois. The Ranitidine-Containing Products Plaintiff purchased specifically included OTC Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2012 to 2015, manufactured by BI, and prescription generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from 2007 to 2015. Plaintiff also purchased OTC 150 mg Walmart-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules from Walmart from approximately 2012 to 2015 but, based on the limited available sources of information and discovery conducted to date, does not yet know the specific manufacturer(s) of the store-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules. During the time period in question, Dr. Reddy's, Strides, and Perrigo manufactured OTC 150 mg Walmart-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules for Walmart, and, therefore, Dr. Reddy's, Strides, and Perrigo are named as Defendants until adequate information is produced to identify the specific entity(ies) that manufactured the store-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules purchased by Plaintiff. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, and Teva. Thus, BI, Dr. Reddy's, Perrigo, Amneal, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, Walmart, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

139. Plaintiff Carol Harkins (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Illinois. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products from approximately 2005 to 2020 in Illinois. The Ranitidine-Containing Products Plaintiff purchased specifically included: OTC Zantac tablets and capsules in or around 2005, manufactured by Pfizer. Plaintiff also purchased OTC 150 mg Walmart-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules from Walmart, from approximately 2005 to 2020 but, based on the limited available sources of information and discovery conducted to date, does not yet know the specific manufacturer(s) of the store-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules. During the time period in question, Dr. Reddy's, Apotex, Strides, and Perrigo manufactured OTC 150 mg Walmart-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules for Walmart, and, therefore, Dr. Reddy's, Perrigo, Strides, and Apotex are named as Defendants until adequate information is produced to identify the specific entity(ies) that manufactured the store-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules purchased by Plaintiff. Thus, Pfizer, Dr. Reddy's, Apotex, Walmart, Strides, and Perrigo are referred to as "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

Indiana

140. Plaintiff Alyson Humphrey (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Indiana. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Indiana from approximately 2014 to February 2020. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included: (a) prescription 150 mg Zantac tablets and capsules (manufactured by GSK); (b) prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately September 2019 to February 2020 (manufactured by Strides); and (c) OTC Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2014 to 2019 (manufactured by BI and Sanofi). Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, and Sandoz. Thus GSK, Strides, Apotex, BI, Sanofi, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, and Sandoz are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

141. Plaintiff Rebecca Sizemore (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Indiana. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products from approximately 2015 to February 2020 in Indiana. The Ranitidine-Containing Products Plaintiff purchased specifically included OTC 75 mg Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2015 to February 2020, manufactured by BI and Sanofi; and prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2015 to February 2020, manufactured by Sandoz, Strides, and Teva. Plaintiff also purchased OTC 75 mg CVS Health-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules from CVS from approximately 2015 to 2020 but, based on the limited available sources of information and discovery conducted to date, does not yet know the specific manufacturer(s) of the store-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules. During the time period in question, Dr. Reddy's, Strides, and Perrigo manufactured OTC 75 mg CVS Health-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules for CVS, therefore, Dr. Reddy's, Strides, and Perrigo are named as Defendants until adequate information is produced to identify the specific entity(ies) that manufactured the store-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules purchased by Plaintiff. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, and Glenmark. Thus, BI, Sanofi, Sandoz, Strides, Teva, Perrigo, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, CVS and Glenmark are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

142. Plaintiff Teresa Dowler (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Indiana. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products from approximately 2011 to December 2019 in Indiana. The Ranitidine-Containing Products Plaintiff purchased specifically included: (a) OTC 150 mg Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2012 to 2019

(manufactured by BI and Sanofi); (b) prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2017 to December 2019 (manufactured by Strides): (c) and prescription 150 mg Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2011 to 2013 (manufactured by GSK). Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, and Sandoz. Thus, BI, Sanofi, Strides, GSK, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, and Sandoz are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

143. Plaintiff Timberly Goble (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Indiana. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products from approximately 2010 to 2013 while a citizen of Texas, in or around 2014 while a citizen of Missouri, from approximately 2013 to 2019 while a citizen of Indiana, and from approximately 2019 to 2020 while a citizen of Kentucky. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included the following: (a) prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately March 2010 to August 2013 in Texas while a citizen of Texas; (b) prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules in or around 2014 in Missouri while a citizen of Missouri; (c) prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2013 to 2019 in Indiana while a citizen of Indiana (manufactured by Strides and Glenmark); and (d) prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2019 to 2020 in Kentucky while a citizen of Kentucky (manufactured by Glenmark). Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Sandoz, Strides, Glenmark, and Teva. Thus, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Sandoz, Glenmark, and Teva are "Defendants" for purchases made in Texas while a citizen of Texas, unless otherwise specified; Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, and Teva are "Defendants" for purchases made in Missouri while a citizen of Missouri, unless otherwise specified; Glenmark, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva are "Defendants" for purchases made in Indiana while a citizen of Indiana, unless otherwise specified; and Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Strides, and Sandoz are "Defendants" for purchases made in Kentucky while a citizen of Kentucky, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

144. Plaintiff Tracy Wells (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff"), is a citizen of Indiana. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products from approximately 2013 to 2019 in Indiana. The Ranitidine-Containing Products Plaintiff purchased specifically included the following: (a) OTC 150 mg Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2013 to 2019, manufactured by BI and Sanofi; and (b) prescription 300 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2013 to 2019. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 300 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following defendants: Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva. Thus, BI, Sanofi, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

Iowa

145. Plaintiff Brian Nervig (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Iowa. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products from approximately 2010 to 2020 in Iowa. The Ranitidine-Containing Products Plaintiff purchased specifically included prescription Zantac tablets and capsules beginning in approximately 2010, manufactured by GSK. Plaintiff also purchased OTC 75 mg and 150 mg Walgreens-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules from Walgreens from approximately 2015 to 2020 but, based on the limited available sources of information and discovery conducted to date, does not yet know the specific manufacturer(s) of the store-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules. During the time period in question, Dr. Reddy's, Apotex, Strides, and Perrigo manufactured OTC 75 mg and 150 mg Walgreens-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules for Walgreens, and, therefore, Dr. Reddy's, Apotex, Strides, and Perrigo are named as Defendants until adequate information is produced to identify the specific entity(ies) that manufactured the store-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules purchased by Plaintiff. Thus, GSK, Dr. Reddy's, Apotex, Walgreens, Strides, and Perrigo are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

146. Plaintiff Tracy Losee (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Iowa. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products from approximately 2017 to February 2020 in Iowa. The Ranitidine-Containing Products Plaintiff purchased specifically included prescription 300 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2017 to February 2020, manufactured by Dr. Reddy's. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 300 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Glenmark, Sandoz, and Strides. Thus, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, and Strides are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

147. Plaintiff Charles Longfield (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Nebraska. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products from approximately 1995 to 1996 while a citizen of Maryland, approximately 1997 to 2010 while a citizen of Wyoming, approximately 2011 while a citizen of Maryland, and approximately 2012 to 2019 while a citizen of Iowa. The Ranitidine-Containing Products Plaintiff purchased specifically included: (a) OTC Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 1995 to 1996 while a citizen of Maryland (manufactured by GSK and Pfizer); (b) OTC Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 1997 to 2010 while a citizen of Wyoming (manufactured by GSK, Pfizer, and BI); (c) OTC Zantac tablets and capsules in or about 2011 while a citizen of Maryland, manufactured by BI; (d) OTC Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2012 to 2019 while a citizen of Iowa (manufactured by BI and Sanofi); and (e) prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2015 to November 2019 in Iowa while a citizen of Iowa. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva. Thus, GSK, Pfizer, and BI are "Defendants" with respect to purchases made in Maryland while a citizen of Maryland, unless otherwise specified; GSK, Pfizer, and BI are "Defendants" with respect to purchases made in Wyoming while a citizen of Wyoming, unless otherwise specified; and BI, Sanofi, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva are "Defendants" with respect to purchases made in Iowa while a citizen of Iowa, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

Kentucky

148. Plaintiff Janet Asbury (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Kentucky. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products from approximately 2003 to 2013 in Kentucky. The Ranitidine-Containing Products Plaintiff purchased specifically included: (a) prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2003 to November 2013; and (b) OTC Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2003 to 2013 (manufactured by Pfizer and BI). Plaintiff also purchased OTC 150 mg Rite Aid-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules from Rite Aid from approximately 2011 to 2013 but, based on the limited available sources of information and discovery conducted to date, does not yet know the specific manufacturer(s) of the store-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules. During the time period in question, Perrigo and Strides manufactured OTC 150 mg Rite-Aid branded ranitidine tablets and capsules for Rite Aid, and, therefore, Perrigo and Strides are named as Defendants until adequate information is produced to identify the specific entity(ies) that manufactured the store-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules purchased by Plaintiff. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, and Teva. Thus, GSK, Pfizer, BI, Perrigo, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Rite Aid, Strides, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

Louisiana

149. Plaintiff Jamie Mckay (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Louisiana. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products from approximately 2018 to December 2019 in Louisiana. The Ranitidine-Containing Products Plaintiff purchased specifically included OTC 75 mg Zantac tablets and capsules in or around 2018, manufactured by Sanofi; and prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2018 to December 2019. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Strides, and Sandoz. Thus, Sanofi, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Strides, and Sandoz are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

150. Plaintiff Randy Jones (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Louisiana. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products from approximately 1995 to 2020 in Louisiana. The Ranitidine-Containing Products Plaintiff purchased specifically included: (a) prescription 300 mg generic ranitidine from approximately 2002 to 2020 (manufactured by Glenmark); (b) prescription 150 mg Zantac tablets and capsules (manufactured by GSK); and (c) OTC Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 1995 to 1997 and 2018 to 2020 (manufactured by Sanofi, GSK, Pfizer, and BI). Plaintiff also purchased OTC 150 mg Walmart-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules from Walmart from approximately 2018 to 2020 but, based on the limited available sources of information and discovery conducted to date, does not yet know the specific manufacturer(s) of the store-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules. During the time period in question, Perrigo, Dr. Reddy's, Strides, and Apotex manufactured OTC 150 mg Walmart-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules for Walmart, and, therefore, Perrigo, Dr. Reddy's, Strides, and Apotex are named as Defendants until adequate information is produced to identify the specific entity(ies) that manufactured the store-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules purchased by Plaintiff. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased additional prescription 300 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Dr. Reddy's, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva. Thus, GSK, Sanofi, BI, Pfizer, Glenmark, Perrigo, Dr. Reddy's, Apotex, Dr. Reddy's, Sandoz, Strides, Walmart, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

Maryland

151. Plaintiff Alberta Griffin (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Maryland. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Maryland from approximately 2000 to 2020. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included: (a) prescription Zantac tablets and capsules beginning in approximately 2000 (manufactured by GSK); (b) prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2013 to 2020 (manufactured by Strides and Glenmark); and (c) OTC Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2000 to 2020 (manufactured by Pfizer, BI, and Sanofi). Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Sandoz, and Teva. Thus, GSK, Strides, Glenmark, Pfizer, BI, Sanofi, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Sandoz, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

152. Plaintiff Darlene Whittington-Coates (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Maryland. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products from approximately 2017 to October 2019 in Maryland. The Ranitidine-Containing Products Plaintiff purchased specifically included prescription 300 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2017 to October 2019, manufactured by Amneal. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 300 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, and Strides. Thus, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, and Strides are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

153. Plaintiff Ida Adams (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Maryland. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products from approximately 2000 to 2005 and 2012 as a citizen of West Virginia, and from approximately 2005 to 2017 as a citizen of Maryland. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included the following: (a) OTC Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2005 to 2017 in Maryland while a citizen of Maryland (manufactured by Pfizer, BI and Sanofi); and (b) OTC Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2000 to 2005 and 2012 in West Virginia while a citizen of West Virginia (manufactured by Pfizer and BI). Thus, Pfizer, BI and Sanofi are "Defendants" with respect to purchases made in Maryland while a citizen of Maryland, unless otherwise specified; and Pfizer and BI are "Defendants" with respect to purchases made in West Virginia while a citizen of West Virginia, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

Massachusetts

154. Plaintiff Ana Guzman (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff"), is a citizen of Massachusetts. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Massachusetts from approximately 1997 to February 2020. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included: (a) prescription 150 mg Zantac tablets and capsules beginning in approximately 1997, manufactured by GSK; and (b) prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2006 to February 2020, manufactured by Glenmark, Strides, Amneal, and Teva. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Dr. Reddy's and Sandoz. Thus, GSK, Glenmark, Strides, Amneal, Teva, Dr. Reddy's, and Sandoz are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

155. Plaintiff Jose Amado (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Massachusetts. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products from approximately 2015 to 2018 in Massachusetts. The Ranitidine-Containing Products Plaintiff purchased specifically included and prescription generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2015 to 2018. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva. Thus, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

156. Plaintiff Michelle Smith (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff"), is a citizen of Massachusetts. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products from approximately 2015 to November 2019 in Massachusetts. The Ranitidine-Containing Products Plaintiff purchased specifically included: (a) OTC 150 mg Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2015 to November 2019, manufactured by BI and Sanofi; and (b) prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2015 to November 2019. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva. Thus, BI, Sanofi, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

157. Plaintiff Jennifer Bond (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Massachusetts. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products from approximately 2010 to September 2019 in Massachusetts and New Hampshire. The Ranitidine-Containing Products Plaintiff purchased specifically included: (a) OTC 75 mg and 150 mg Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2010 to 2013 and 2017 to September 2019 while a citizen of Massachusetts (manufactured by BI and Sanofi); and (b) OTC 75 mg and 150 mg Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2013 to 2017 while a citizen of New Hampshire, manufactured by BI. Plaintiff also purchased OTC Walmart-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules from Walmart in Massachusetts while a citizen of Massachusetts, but, based on the limited available sources of information and discovery conducted to date, does not yet know the specific manufacturer(s) of the store-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules. During the time period in question, Perrigo, Dr. Reddy's, Strides, and Apotex manufactured OTC Walmart-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules for Walmart, and, therefore, Perrigo, Dr. Reddy's, Strides, and Apotex are named as Defendants until adequate information is produced to identify the specific entity(ies) that manufactured the store-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules purchased by Plaintiff. Thus, BI, Sanofi, Walmart, Perrigo, Dr. Reddy's, Strides, and Apotex are "Defendants" with respect to purchases made in Massachusetts while a citizen of Massachusetts, unless otherwise specified, and BI is a "Defendant" with respect to purchases made in New Hampshire while a citizen of New Hampshire, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

158. Plaintiff Rafael Bermudez (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of New Hampshire. Plaintiff purchased and used Ranitidine-Containing Products from approximately 2009 to February 2020 in Massachusetts and New Hampshire. The Ranitidine-Containing Products Plaintiff purchased specifically included: (a) OTC 150 mg Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2009 to 2016 while a citizen of Massachusetts, manufactured by BI; (b) OTC 150 mg Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2016 to February 2020 while a citizen of New Hampshire (manufactured by BI and Sanofi); (c) prescription generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2014 to 2016 while a citizen of Massachusetts; and (d) prescription generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2016 to February 2020 while a citizen of New Hampshire. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva. Thus, BI, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva are "Defendants" with respect to purchases made in Massachusetts while a citizen of Massachusetts, unless otherwise specified, and BI, Sanofi, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva are "Defendants" with respect to purchases made in New Hampshire while a citizen of New Hampshire, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

Michigan

159. Plaintiff Arthur Gamble (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff"), is a citizen of Michigan. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products from approximately 2017 to May 2018 in Michigan. The Ranitidine-Containing Products Plaintiff purchased specifically included; (a) prescription generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2017 to May 2018; and (b) OTC 75 mg and 150 mg Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2017 to May 2018, manufactured by Sanofi. Plaintiff also purchased OTC 75 mg and 150 mg CVS Health-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules from CVS from approximately 2017 to May 2018 but, based on the limited available sources of information and discovery conducted to date, does not yet know the specific manufacturer of the store-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules. During the time period in question, Strides, Dr. Reddy's, and Perrigo manufactured OTC 75 mg and 150 mg CVS-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules for CVS, and, therefore, Strides, Dr. Reddy's, and Perrigo are named as Defendants until adequate information is produced to identify the specific entity(ies) that manufactured the store-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules purchased by Plaintiff. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, and Strides. Thus, Sanofi, CVS, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Perrigo, Sandoz, and Strides are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

160. Plaintiff Benny Cope (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Michigan. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products from approximately 2016 to December 2019 in Michigan. The Ranitidine-Containing Products Plaintiff purchased specifically included prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2016 to December 2019, manufactured by Amneal. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva.

Thus, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

161. Plaintiff Jerry Hunt (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Michigan. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products from approximately 1989 to December 2019 in Michigan. The Ranitidine-Containing Products Plaintiff purchased specifically included: (a) prescription Zantac tablets and capsules beginning in approximately 1989 (manufactured by GSK); (b) prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 1997 to 2020 (manufactured by Glenmark and Sandoz); and (c) OTC Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 1995 until 2020 (manufactured by GSK, Pfizer, BI, and Sanofi). Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, BI, Strides, and Teva. Thus, GSK, Glenmark, Sandoz, Pfizer, BI, Sanofi, Dr. Reddy's, Amneal, Strides, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

162. Plaintiff Jody Beal (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Michigan. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products from approximately 2008 to January 2020 in Michigan. The Ranitidine-Containing Products Plaintiff purchased specifically included: (a) prescription 150 mg and 300 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2010 to January 2020 (manufactured by Amneal and Glenmark); and (b) OTC Zantac tablets and capsules from 2010 to January 2020 (manufactured by BI and Sanofi). Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased additional prescription generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Dr. Reddy's, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva. Thus, Amneal, BI, Sanofi, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

163. Plaintiff Judy Wilmot (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Michigan. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products from approximately 2019 to 2020 in Michigan. The Ranitidine-Containing Products Plaintiff purchased specifically included prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2019 to 2020, manufactured by Glenmark. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Sandoz, and Strides. Thus, Glenmark, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Sandoz, and Strides are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

164. Plaintiff Lakisha Wilson (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Michigan. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products from approximately 1997 to 2017 in Michigan. The Ranitidine-Containing Products Plaintiff purchased specifically included prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 1997 to 2017, manufactured by Amneal; and OTC Zantac tablets and capsules on or around 1997 and from approximately 2010 to 2011, manufactured by GSK, Pfizer, and BI. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, BI, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva. Thus, Amneal, GSK, Pfizer, BI, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, BI, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

165. Plaintiff Myra Allen (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Michigan. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Michigan from approximately 2010 to 2020. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2010 to 2020. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva. Thus, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

Minnesota

166. Plaintiff Brad Hoag (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Minnesota. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Minnesota from approximately 2010 to 2019. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included OTC 150 mg Zantac tablets and capsules manufactured by BI and Sanofi from approximately 2010 to 2019. Plaintiff also purchased OTC 150 mg CVS-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules from CVS from approximately 2010 to 2019 but, based on the limited available sources of information and discovery conducted to date, does not yet know the specific manufacturer(s) of the store-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules. During the time period in question, Dr. Reddy's, Strides, and Perrigo manufactured OTC 150 mg CVS-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules for CVS, and, therefore, Dr. Reddy's, Strides, and Perrigo are named as Defendants until adequate information is produced to identify the specific entity(ies) that manufactured the store-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules purchased by Plaintiff. Thus, Dr. Reddy's Perrigo, Strides, CVS, BI and Sanofi are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

167. Plaintiff Donald Northrup (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff"), is a citizen of Minnesota. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Minnesota from approximately 2000 to 2019. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included (a) OTC 75 mg Zantac tablets and capsules, manufactured by Pfizer, BI, and Sanofi from approximately 2000 to 2019; (b) prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2000 to 2019; and (c) prescription 150 mg Zantac tablets and capsules, manufactured by GSK during the same time period. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva. Thus, GSK, Pfizer, BI, Sanofi, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

168. Plaintiff Sandra Erickson-Brown (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Minnesota. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Minnesota from approximately 1983 to 2018. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included: (a) prescription Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 1983 to 1996 (manufactured by GSK); and (b) prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2003 to 2016 (manufactured by Glenmark). Plaintiff also purchased OTC 75 mg and 150 mg Walmart-branded and Walgreens-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules from Walmart and Walgreens, respectively, until approximately 2018, but, based on the limited available sources of information and discovery conducted to date, does not yet know the specific manufacturer(s) of the store-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules. During the time period in question, Perrigo, Dr. Reddy's, Strides, and Apotex manufactured OTC 75 and 150 mg Walmart-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules for Walmart, and Dr. Reddy's, Strides, Perrigo, and Apotex manufactured OTC 75 mg and 150 mg Walgreens-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules for Walgreens, and, therefore, Dr. Reddy's, Perrigo, Strides, and Apotex are named as Defendants until adequate information is produced to identify the specific entity(ies) that manufactured the store-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules purchased by Plaintiff. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva. Thus, GSK, Glenmark, Dr. Reddy', Amneal, Sandoz, Strides, Teva, Perrigo, Apotex, Walgreens, and Walmart are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

169. Plaintiff John Scholl (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Minnesota. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in approximately 2005 in North Dakota, and from approximately 2005 to 2016 in Minnesota. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included: (a) OTC 75 mg Zantac tablets and capsules in North Dakota in approximately 2005, manufactured by Pfizer; and (b) OTC 75 mg Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2005 to 2016 in Minnesota (manufactured by Pfizer and BI). Thus, Pfizer and BI are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims with respect to purchases made in Minnesota while a citizen of Minnesota, and Pfizer is a "Defendant" for the purposes of Plaintiffs' claims with respect to purchases made in North Dakota while a citizen of North Dakota, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

Mississippi

170. Plaintiff Beverly Crosby (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Mississippi. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Mississippi from approximately 2000 to 2020. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included: (a) prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2014 to 2020 (manufactured by Strides and Amneal); and (b) OTC Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2000 to 2014 (manufactured by Pfizer and BI). Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff also purchased prescription generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, and Teva. Thus, Amneal, BI, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Pfizer, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

171. Plaintiff David Weatherly (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Mississippi. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products from approximately 2017 to 2019 in Mississippi. The Ranitidine-Containing Products Plaintiff purchased specifically included prescription 300 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2017 to 2019. Based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, and Strides. Thus Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, and Strides are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

172. Plaintiff Dorothy King (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Mississippi. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Mississippi from approximately 2019 to 2020. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included prescription 300 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2019 to 2020 manufactured by Strides and Glenmark. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff also purchased prescription generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Dr. Reddy's, and Sandoz. Thus, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, and Strides are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

173. Plaintiff John Rachal (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Mississippi. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Mississippi from approximately 2000 to October 2019. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included OTC 75 mg and 150 mg Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2000 to 2019 (manufactured by Pfizer, BI, and Sanofi). Thus, Pfizer, BI, and Sanofi are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

174. Plaintiff Korcis McMillian (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Mississippi. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products from approximately 2013 to 2020 in Mississippi. The Ranitidine-Containing Products Plaintiff purchased specifically included prescription 150 mg and 300 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2013 to 2020, manufactured by Strides, Glenmark, and Amneal. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased additional prescription generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Dr. Reddy's, Sandoz, and Teva. Thus, Strides, Glenmark, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Sandoz, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

175. Plaintiff Lora Mauffray (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Mississippi. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Mississippi from approximately 2015 to October 2019. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2015 to 2019. Plaintiff also purchased OTC 150 mg Walmart-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules from Walmart, from approximately 2015-2019, but, based on the limited available sources of information and discovery conducted to date, does not yet know the specific manufacturer(s) of the store-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules. During the time period in question, Dr. Reddy's, Perrigo, Strides, and Apotex manufactured OTC 150 mg Walmart-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules for Walmart, and, therefore, Dr. Reddy's Perrigo, Strides, and Apotex are named as Defendants until adequate information is produced to identify the specific entity(ies) that manufactured the store-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules purchased by Plaintiff. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva. Thus, Dr. Reddy's Perrigo, Apotex, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, Teva, and Walmart are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

176. Plaintiff Martha Summers (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Mississippi. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Arkansas, Missouri, and Mississippi from approximately 2006 to 2020. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included: (a) prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules in Arkansas from approximately 2006 to 2007 and 2012-2020 (manufactured by Glenmark); (b) prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules in Mississippi in 2017-019 (manufactured by Glenmark); and (c) prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules in Missouri from 2007 to 2012 (manufactured by Glenmark). Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased additional prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva in Arkansas; Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Sandoz and Strides while residing in Mississippi; and Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Sandoz, and Teva while residing in Missouri. Thus, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims for purchases in Arkansas while residing in Arkansas; Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, and Strides are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims for purchases in Mississippi while residing in Mississippi; and Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, and Teva are "Defendants" for purposes of Plaintiff's claims for purchases in Missouri while residing in Missouri, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

177. Plaintiff Michelle Tinker (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Mississippi. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Mississippi from approximately 2014 to 2020. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included prescription generic 150 mg ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2014 to 2020 in Mississippi manufactured by Amneal, Glenmark and Strides. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff also purchased prescription generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Dr. Reddy's, Sandoz, and Teva. Thus Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

178. Plaintiff Shirley Magee (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff"), is a citizen of Mississippi. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Mississippi from approximately 1984 to 2020. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included: (a) prescription Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 1984 to 1997 (manufactured by GSK); and (b) OTC 150 mg ranitidine tablets and capsules from Wal-Mart until approximately 2020 (manufactured by Perrigo). Plaintiff also purchased additional OTC 150 mg Walmart-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules from Walmart, until approximately 2020, but, based on the limited available sources of information and discovery conducted to date, does not yet know the specific manufacturer(s) of the store-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules. During the time period in question, Dr. Reddy's, Strides, and Apotex also manufactured OTC 150 mg Walmart-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules for Walmart, and, therefore, Dr. Reddy's, Strides, and Apotex are also named as Defendants until adequate information is produced to identify the specific entity(ies) that manufactured the store-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules purchased by Plaintiff. Thus, GSK, Walmart, Dr. Reddy's, Perrigo, Strides, and Apotex are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

Missouri

179. Plaintiff Antrenise Campbell (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Missouri. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Missouri from approximately 1998 to 2013. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included: (a) prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 1998 to 2008; and (b) OTC 150 mg Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2008 to 2013, manufactured by BI. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Dr. Reddy's, Sandoz, and Teva. Thus, BI, Dr. Reddy's, Sandoz, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

180. Plaintiff Brenda Newcomb (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Missouri. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Missouri from approximately 2016 to 2020. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2016 to 2020 manufactured by Strides. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, and Teva. Thus, Strides, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

181. Plaintiff Cynthia Gibbs (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Missouri. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Missouri from approximately 2005 to 2019. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included prescription 150 mg and 300 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2005 to 2019. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides and Teva. Thus, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

182. Plaintiff Elaine Aaron (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Missouri. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Missouri from approximately 2009 to 2020. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2009 to 2020 manufactured by Sandoz and Glenmark. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased additional prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Strides, and Teva. Thus, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

183. Plaintiff Lisa Deckard (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Missouri. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Missouri from approximately 2013 to 2019. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2013 to 2019. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva. Thus, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

184. Plaintiff Lorie Kendall-Songer (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Missouri. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products from approximately 2016 to 2020. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included OTC 150 mg Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2016 to 2020 (manufactured by BI and Sanofi). Thus, BI and Sanofi are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

Nebraska

185. Plaintiff Gaylord Stauffer (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Nebraska. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Nebraska from 1997 to 2010 and 2013 to 2019 while a citizen of Nebraska. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included OTC 75 mg and 150 mg Zantac tablets and capsules from Nebraska from 1997 to 2010 and 2013 to 2019 while a citizen of Nebraska (manufactured by GSK, Pfizer, BI, and Sanofi). Thus, GSK, Pfizer, BI, and Sanofi are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

Nevada

186. Plaintiff Cesar Pinon (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Nevada. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Nevada from approximately 2009 to 2020. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included OTC 75 mg and 150 mg Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2009 to 2015 manufactured by BI. Thus, BI is a "Defendant" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendant's breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendant's wrongful conduct.

New Hampshire

187. Plaintiff David Rice (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of New Hampshire. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in New Hampshire from approximately 2005 to November 2019. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2005 to 2019 manufactured by Strides. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, and Teva. Thus, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva are

"Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

New Jersey

188. Plaintiff James Adamo (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff"), is a citizen of New Jersey. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in New Jersey from approximately 2008 to 2020. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included: (a) prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules in or around approximately 2008; and (b) OTC 75 mg and 150 mg Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2008 to 2020 manufactured by BI and Sanofi. Plaintiff also purchased OTC 75 mg and 150 Walmart-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules, purchased from Walmart, from approximately 2011 to 2018 but, based on the limited available sources of information and discovery conducted to date, does not yet know the specific manufacturer(s) of the store-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules. During the time period in question, Dr. Reddy's Perrigo, Strides, and Apotex manufactured OTC 75 mg and 150 mg Walmart-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules for Walmart, and, therefore, Dr. Reddy's, Perrigo, Strides, and Apotex are named as Defendants until adequate information is produced to identify the specific entity(ies) that manufactured the store-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules purchased by Plaintiff. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, and Teva. Thus, BI, Sanofi, Amneal, Apotex, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Perrigo, Sandoz, Strides, Teva, and Walmart are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

189. Plaintiff Lynn White (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff"), is a citizen of New Jersey. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in New Jersey from approximately 1987 to October 2019. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included: (a) prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules in and around approximately 1997 and November 2019 (manufactured by Glenmark); (b) OTC 150 mg Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2015 (manufactured by BI); and (c) prescription 150 mg and 300 mg Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 1987 to 2019 (manufactured by GSK). Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Sandoz, and Strides. Thus, GSK, BI, Walgreens, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz and Strides are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

190. Plaintiff Mary McMillan (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff"), is a citizen of New Jersey. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in New Jersey from approximately 2012 to September 2019. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included: (a) prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2012 to 2019; and (b) OTC 150 mg Zantac tablets and capsules from 2012 to 2019 manufactured by BI and Sanofi. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva. Thus, BI, Sanofi, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

191. Plaintiff Mary Moronski (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff"), is a citizen of New Jersey. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in New Jersey from approximately 2011 to 2019. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included: (a) prescription generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2012 to 2019 manufactured by Amneal, Glenmark, and Dr. Reddy's; and (b) OTC 150 mg Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2011 to 2019 (manufactured by BI and Sanofi). Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased additional prescription generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Sandoz, Strides, and Teva. Thus, BI, Sanofi, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

192. Plaintiff Sayed Eldomiaty (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff"), is a citizen of New Jersey. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in New Jersey from approximately 2009 to 2020. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included: (a) prescription 300 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2012 to 2020 manufactured by Glenmark; and (b) OTC 150 mg Zantac tablets and capsules from 2009 to 2012 manufactured by BI. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 300 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants Dr. Reddy's, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva. Thus, BI, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

New Mexico

193. Plaintiff Carrie Martinez (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of New Mexico. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in New Mexico from approximately 2008 to 2016. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2008 to 2016 manufactured by Glenmark. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff also purchased OTC 75 mg and 150 Walmart-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules from Walmart, from approximately 2011 to 2016, but, based on the limited available sources of information and discovery conducted to date, does not yet know the specific manufacturer(s) of the store-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules. During the time period in question, Dr. Reddy's Perrigo, and Strides manufactured OTC 75 mg and 150 mg Walmart-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules for Walmart, and, therefore, Dr. Reddy's, Perrigo, and Strides are named as Defendants until adequate information is produced to identify the specific entity(ies) that manufactured the store-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules purchased by Plaintiff. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva. Thus, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, Walmart, Teva, and Perrigo are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

194. Plaintiff Ernesto Sanchez (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff"), is a citizen of New Mexico. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in New Mexico from approximately 2012 to 2020. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included: (a) prescription 300 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2012 to 2020 manufactured by Glenmark; and (b) OTC 150 mg Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2012 to 2020 manufactured by BI and Sanofi. Plaintiff also purchased OTC CVS-branded, Walgreens-branded, and Walmart-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules from CVS, Walgreens, and Walmart, respectively, in the same time frame as above, but, based on the limited available sources of information and discovery conducted to date, does not yet know the specific manufacturer(s) of the store-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules. During the time period in question, Dr. Reddy's, Strides, and Perrigo manufactured OTC CVS-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules for CVS; Dr. Reddy's Perrigo, Strides, and Apotex manufactured OTC Walgreens-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules for Walgreens; and Dr. Reddy's Perrigo, Strides and Apotex manufactured OTC Walmart-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules for Walmart, therefore, Dr. Reddy's Perrigo, Strides, and Apotex are named as Defendants until adequate information is produced to identify the specific entity(ies) that manufactured the store-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules purchased by Plaintiff. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 300 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Dr. Reddy's, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva. Thus, BI, Sanofi, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, Teva, CVS, Walgreens, Walmart, Perrigo, and Apotex are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

195. Plaintiff George Tapia (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff"), is a citizen of New Mexico. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in New Mexico from approximately 2012 to February 2020. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included: (a) prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2013 to 2020 manufactured by Strides; and (b) OTC Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2013 to 2020 manufactured by BI and Sanofi. Plaintiff also purchased OTC Walmart-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules from Walmart from approximately 2012 to 2014 but, based on the limited available sources of information and discovery conducted to date, does not yet know the specific manufacturer(s) of the store-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules. During the time period in question, Dr. Reddy's Perrigo, and Strides manufactured OTC Walmart-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules for Walmart, and, therefore, Dr. Reddy's, Perrigo, and Strides are named as Defendants until adequate information is produced to identify the specific entity(ies) that manufactured the store-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules purchased by Plaintiff. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased additional prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, and Teva. Thus, BI, Sanofi, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Perrigo, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, Walmart, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

196. Plaintiff Inez Mazon (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of New Mexico. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in New Mexico from approximately July 2018 to November 2019. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included prescription 300 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2018 to 2019 manufactured by Strides. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 300 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, and Sandoz. Thus, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, and Strides are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

197. Plaintiff Josefina Griego (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of New Mexico. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in New Mexico from approximately 2018 to November 2019. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2018 to 2019. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Sandoz, and Strides. Thus, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, and Strides are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

198. Plaintiff Phyllis Gallegos (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of New Mexico. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products from approximately 2018 to February 2020 in New Mexico. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included prescription 300 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2018 to 2020. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 300 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, and Strides. Thus, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, and Strides are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

New York

199. Plaintiff Aida Carlo (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of New York. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in New York from approximately April 2019 to July 2019. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by Strides. Thus, Strides is a "Defendant" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendant's breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendant's wrongful conduct.

200. Plaintiff Benny Fazio (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff"), is a citizen of New York. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in New York from approximately May 2000 to November 2019. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included: (a) prescription 150 mg Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2000 to 2004 manufactured by GSK; (b) prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2004 to November 2019 manufactured by Sandoz and Strides; and (c) OTC Zantac tablets and capsules from 2000 to November 2019 manufactured by Pfizer, BI, and Sanofi. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 150 mg ranitidine manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, and Teva. Thus, GSK, Pfizer, BI, Sanofi, Sandoz, Strides, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

201. Plaintiff Francis Neary (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of New York. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in New York from approximately 2014 through February 2019. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included OTC Zantac tablets and capsules manufactured by BI and Sanofi. Thus, BI and Sanofi are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

202. Plaintiff Glorimar Rodriguez (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff"), is a citizen of New York. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in New York from approximately 2009 until October 2019. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included the following: (a) 150 mg prescription ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2009 to 2019; and (b) OTC Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2009 to 2019 manufactured by BI and Sanofi. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription generic ranitidine in tablets and manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva. Thus, BI, Sanofi, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

203. Plaintiff Joseph Mcpheter (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff"), is a citizen of New York. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in New York from approximately November 2011 to September 2019. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included: (a) OTC Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately November 2011 to June 2015 manufactured by BI; and (b) prescription 150 mg and 300 mg ranitidine tablets and capsules from June 2015 to September 2019. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 150 mg and 300 ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva. Thus, BI, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

204. Plaintiff Mary Lou Wagner (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of New York. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in New York from approximately 2009 to 2019. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included prescription 300 mg ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by Amneal. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 300 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva. Thus, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

205. Plaintiff Mary McCullen (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of New York. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in New York from approximately 1998 to February 2020. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included (a) OTC Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 1998 to 2019 (manufactured by Pfizer, BI, and Sanofi); and (b) prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by Amneal. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff also purchased prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva. Thus, Pfizer, BI, Sanofi, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

206. Plaintiff Migdalia Kinney (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff"), is a citizen of New York. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products from approximately 2012 to 2019 in New York. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included: (a) OTC 150 mg Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2012 through 2015 and 2016 to 2019 manufactured by BI and Sanofi; and (b) prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2015 to 2016 manufactured by Sandoz and Amneal. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Strides, and Teva. Thus, BI, Sanofi, Sandoz, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Strides, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

207. Plaintiff Nereida Cordero (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of New York. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products from approximately 2015 to 2018. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included prescription 150 mg ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by Strides. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff also purchased prescription 150 mg ranitidine tablets manufactured by one of the following Defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, and Teva. Thus, Strides, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

208. Plaintiff Phyllis Spuler (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of New York. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in New York from approximately March 2018 to July 2019. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by Dr. Reddy's and Strides. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff also purchased prescription 150 mg generic tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, Glenmark, and Sandoz. Thus, Dr. Reddy's, Strides, Amneal, Glenmark, and Sandoz are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

209. Plaintiff Richard Froehlich (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff"), is a citizen of New York. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in New York from approximately 2016 to 2019. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included OTC 150 mg Zantac tablets and capsules manufactured by BI and Sanofi. Plaintiff also purchased 150 mg CVS-branded, Rite Aid-branded, and Walmart-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules from CVS, Rite-Aid, and Walmart, respectively, from approximately 2016 to 2019 but, based on the limited available sources of information and discovery conducted to date, does not yet know the specific manufacturer(s) of the store-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules. During the time period in question, Dr. Reddy's, Strides, and Perrigo manufactured 150 mg CVS-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules for CVS; Apotex, Strides, and Perrigo manufactured 150 mg Rite Aid-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules for Rite Aid; and Dr. Reddy's, Apotex, Strides, and Perrigo manufactured 150 mg Walmart-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules for Walmart, and, therefore, Dr. Reddy's, Apotex, Strides, and Perrigo are named as Defendants until adequate information is produced to identify the specific entity(ies) that manufactured the store-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules purchased by Plaintiff. Thus, CVS, Rite Aid, Walmart, BI, Sanofi, Dr. Reddy's, Apotex, Strides, and Perrigo are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

210. Plaintiff Silomie Clarke (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff"), is a citizen of New York. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in New York in approximately 2007, 2015, and from approximately 2018 to 2020. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included: (a) prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules in 2007 and 2015, and 300 mg prescription generic ranitidine tablets and capsules in approximately 2018 to 2020, manufactured by Glenmark; and (b) OTC Zantac tablets and capsules on a periodic basis from approximately 2018 to 2020 manufactured by Sanofi. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff also purchased prescription 150 mg and 300 mg generic tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva. Thus, Sanofi, Amneal, Glenmark, Dr. Reddy's, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

211. Plaintiff Steven Murdock (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of New York. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in New York from approximately February 2019 to 2020. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules. Plaintiff purchased 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by Glenmark. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff also purchased prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, and Strides. Thus, Glenmark, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, and Strides are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

212. Plaintiff Yesenia Melillo (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff"), is a citizen of New York. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in New York from approximately November 2018 to May 2019. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included OTC 150 mg Zantac tablets and capsules manufactured by Sanofi. Thus, Sanofi is a "Defendant" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendant's breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

North Carolina

213. Plaintiff Acia D'amore (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of North Carolina. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in North Carolina from approximately July 2018 to November 2019. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2018 to 2019. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, and Strides. Thus, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, and Strides are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

214. Plaintiff Dennis Robbins (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff"), is a citizen of North Carolina. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in North Carolina from approximately 1985 to October 2019. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included (a) prescription 150 mg Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 1985 to 1997 (manufactured by GSK); (b) OTC Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 1995 to 2019 (manufactured by GSK, Pfizer, BI, and Sanofi); and (c) prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 1997 to 2019 (manufactured by Amneal). Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff also purchased 150 mg prescription generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva. Thus, GSK, Pfizer, BI, Sanofi, Amneal, BI, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

215. Plaintiff Julie Turner (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff"), is a citizen of North Carolina. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in North Carolina from approximately 2013 to January 2018. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included: (a) prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2013 to 2018 manufactured by Teva and Amneal; and (b) prescription 150 mg Zantac tablets in or around this time manufactured by GSK. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff also purchased prescription generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following defendants: Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, and Strides. Thus, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, GSK, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

216. Plaintiff Patricia Frazier (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff"), is a citizen of North Carolina. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in North Carolina from approximately 2008 to May 2015. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included: (a) prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2008 to 2015; and (b) OTC 150 mg Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2008 to 2015 manufactured by BI. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, and Teva. Thus, BI, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

217. Plaintiff Sharon Parks (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff"), is a citizen of North Carolina. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in North Carolina from approximately 2016 to September 2019. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included; (a) prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2016 to 2019 (manufactured by Amneal); and (b) OTC 150 mg Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2016 to 2019 (manufactured by BI and Sanofi). Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following defendants: Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva. Thus, BI, Sanofi, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

218. Plaintiff Teresa Lee (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of North Carolina. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in North Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2020 in North Carolina. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included prescription 150 mg and 300 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2016 to 2020 manufactured by Strides; and OTC 150 mg Zantac tablets and capsules in or around approximately 2016 manufactured by BI. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 150 mg and 300 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, and Teva. Thus, BI, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

Ohio

219. Plaintiff Chris Troyan (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Ohio. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Ohio from approximately 2002 to 2020. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included OTC Zantac tablets and capsules manufactured by Pfizer, BI, and Sanofi. Plaintiff also purchased OTC 75 mg and 150 mg CVS-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules from CVS from approximately 2011 to 2020 but, based on the limited available sources of information and discovery conducted to date, does not yet know the specific manufacturer(s) of the store-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules. During the time period in question, Dr. Reddy's, Strides, and Perrigo manufactured OTC CVS-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules for CVS; and therefore, Dr. Reddy's, Perrigo, and Strides are named as Defendants until adequate information is produced to identify the specific entity(ies) that manufactured the store-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules purchased by Plaintiff. Thus, CVS, Pfizer, BI, Sanofi, Dr. Reddy's, Perrigo, and Strides are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

220. Plaintiff Michael Galloway (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Ohio. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Florida from approximately 1997 through 1999 while a resident of Florida, and in Ohio from approximately 1999 through October 2019 while a resident of Ohio. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included: (a) prescription 150 mg Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 1997 through 1999 in Florida while a citizen of Florida (manufactured by GSK); (b) prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 1997 through 1999 in Florida while a citizen of Florida; (c) OTC Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 1997 through 1999 in Florida while a citizen of Florida (manufactured by GSK and Pfizer); (d) prescription 150 mg Zantac tablets and capsules beginning in approximately 1999 in Ohio while a citizen of Ohio (manufactured by GSK); (e) prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 1999 through October 2019 in Ohio while a citizen of Ohio (manufactured by Teva); and (f) OTC Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 1999 through October 2019 in Ohio while a citizen of Ohio (manufactured by Pfizer, BI, and Sanofi). Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva. Thus, GSK, Pfizer, Sandoz, and Teva are "Defendants" with respect to purchases made in Florida while a citizen of Florida unless otherwise specified; and GSK, Pfizer, BI, Sanofi, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva are "Defendants" with respect to purchases made in Ohio while a citizen of Ohio unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

221. Plaintiff Patricia Hess (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff"), is a citizen of Ohio. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Ohio from approximately 2010 to January 2019. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included the following: (a) prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by Dr. Reddy's, Strides, and Sandoz; and (b) OTC Zantac tablets and capsules manufactured by BI. Plaintiff also purchased OTC CVS-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules from CVS from approximately 2010 to January 2019 but, based on the limited available sources of information and discovery conducted to date, does not yet know the specific manufacturer(s) of the store-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules. During the time period in question, Dr. Reddy's, Strides, and Perrigo manufactured OTC CVS-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules for CVS, and, therefore, Dr. Reddy's, Strides, and Perrigo are named as Defendants until adequate information is produced to identify the specific entity(ies) that manufactured the store-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules purchased by Plaintiff. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased additional prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, Glenmark, and Teva. Thus, CVS, BI, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, Teva, and Perrigo are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

Oklahoma

222. Plaintiff Billy Naab (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Oklahoma. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Oklahoma from approximately 2000 to 2014 and 2017 while residing in Oklahoma, in approximately 2015 while a citizen of Washington, and in approximately 2016 while a citizen of Idaho. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included: (a) OTC Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2000 to 2014 and 2017 in Oklahoma while a citizen of Oklahoma (manufactured by Pfizer, BI, and Sanofi); (b) prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules in 2017 in Oklahoma while a citizen of Oklahoma; (c) OTC Zantac tablets and capsules in 2015 in Washington while a citizen of Washington, manufactured by BI; (d) prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules in 2015 in Washington while a citizen of Washington; (e) OTC Zantac tablets and capsules in 2016 in Idaho while a citizen of Idaho, manufactured by BI; and (f) prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules in 2016 in Idaho while a citizen of Idaho. Based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Sandoz, Strides, and Teva. Thus, Pfizer, BI, Sanofi, Sandoz, Strides and Teva are "Defendants" with respect to purchases made in Oklahoma while a citizen of Oklahoma, unless otherwise specified; BI, Sandoz, and Teva are "Defendants" with respect to purchases made in Washington while a citizen of Washington, unless otherwise specified; and BI, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva are "Defendants" with respect to purchases made in Idaho while a citizen of Idaho, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

223. Plaintiff Demarco Grayson (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff"), is a citizen of Oklahoma. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Oklahoma from approximately 2011 to 2020. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included: (a) prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules in the same approximate time frame (manufactured by Amneal); and (b) OTC 150 mg Zantac tablets and capsules in the same approximate time frame as well (manufactured by BI and Sanofi). Based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following defendants: Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva. Thus, BI, Sanofi, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

Oregon

224. Plaintiff Kristi Ledbetter (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff"), is a citizen of Oregon. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Oregon from approximately 2011 to 2020. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included: (a) OTC Zantac 150 mg tablets and capsules from approximately 2011 to 2016 manufactured by BI; and (b) prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by Glenmark and Amneal from approximately 2011 to 2020. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff also purchased prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Dr. Reddy's, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva. Thus, BI, Glenmark, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

Pennsylvania

225. Plaintiff Carol Loggins (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Pennsylvania. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Pennsylvania from approximately 2013 to 2020. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included prescription 15 mg/ml generic ranitidine syrup from approximately 2013 to 2020. Based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 15 mg/ml generic ranitidine syrup manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal and Teva. Thus, Amneal and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

226. Plaintiff Elmer Cook (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Pennsylvania. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Pennsylvania from approximately March 2019 to February 2020. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by Amneal from 2019 to 2020. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, and Strides. Thus, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, and Strides are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

227. Plaintiff Felicia Ball (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff"), is a citizen of Pennsylvania. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Pennsylvania from approximately 2000 to 2020. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included: (a) prescription Zantac manufactured by GSK; and (b) prescription 150 mg and 300 generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately manufactured by Strides and Amneal. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, and Teva; and prescription 300 mg generic tablets and capsules by one or more of the following Defendants: Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, and Teva. Thus, GSK, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Strides, Sandoz, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

228. Plaintiff Nicholas Hazlett (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Pennsylvania. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Maryland from approximately 2005 to 2007 while a resident of Maryland and in Pennsylvania from approximately 2007 to 2020 while a resident of Pennsylvania. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included: (a) prescription 15 mg/ml Zantac syrup from approximately 2005 to 2007 in Maryland while a resident of Maryland (manufactured by GSK); (b) prescription 15 mg/ml generic ranitidine syrup from approximately 2005 to 2007 in Maryland while a resident of Maryland; (c) prescription Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2005 to 2007 in Maryland a resident of Maryland (manufactured by GSK); (d) prescription 150 mg and 300 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2005 to 2017 in Maryland while a resident of Maryland; (e) OTC Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2005 to 2007 in Maryland while a resident of Maryland (manufactured by Pfizer and BI); (f) prescription 15 mg/ml Zantac syrup beginning in approximately 2007 in Pennsylvania while a resident of Pennsylvania (manufactured by GSK); (g) prescription 15 mg/ml generic ranitidine syrup from approximately 2007 to 2013 in Pennsylvania while a resident of Pennsylvania; (h) prescription Zantac tablets and capsules beginning in approximately 2007 in Pennsylvania while a resident of Pennsylvania (manufactured by GSK); (i) prescription 150 mg and 300 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2007 to 2013 in Pennsylvania while a resident of Pennsylvania; and (j) OTC Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2007 to 2020 in Pennsylvania while a resident of Pennsylvania (manufactured by BI and Sanofi). Based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased 15 mg/ml prescription generic ranitidine syrup manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal and Teva; and prescription 150 mg and 300 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva. Thus, GSK, Pfizer, BI, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva are "Defendants" with respect to purchased made in Maryland while a citizen of Maryland unless otherwise specified, and GSK, Pfizer, BI, Sanofi, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva are "Defendants" with respect to purchased made in Pennsylvania while a citizen of Pennsylvania, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

Puerto Rico

229. Plaintiff Gloria Colon (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff"), is a citizen of Puerto Rico. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Puerto Rico from approximately 1989 to May 2019. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included: (a) prescription Zantac tablets and capsules manufactured by GSK; (b) OTC Zantac tablets and capsules manufactured by GSK, Pfizer, BI, and Sanofi; and (c) prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff also purchased prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides and Teva. Plaintiff also purchased OTC Walgreens-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules from Walgreens from approximately 2011 through May 2019 but, based on the limited available sources of information and discovery conducted to date, does not yet know the specific manufacturer(s) of the store-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules. During the time period in question, Dr. Reddy's, Apotex, Strides, and Perrigo manufactured OTC 150 mg Walgreens-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules for Walgreens, and, therefore, Dr. Reddy's, Apotex, Strides, and Perrigo are named as Defendants until adequate information is produced to identify the specific entity(ies) that manufactured the store-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules purchased by Plaintiff. Thus, Walgreens, GSK, Pfizer, BI, Sanofi, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, Teva, Apotex, and Perrigo are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

South Carolina

230. Plaintiff Annie Johnson (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of South Carolina. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in South Carolina from approximately 2013 to December 2018. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by Strides. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased additional prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, and Teva. Thus, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

231. Plaintiff Jeffery Gunwall (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff"), is a citizen of South Carolina. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in South Carolina from approximately 1990 to June 2019. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included: (a) prescription 300 mg Zantac tablets and capsules manufactured by GSK beginning in approximately 1990; and (b) prescription 300 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by Strides and Glenmark from approximately 1997 to June 2019. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased additional prescription 300 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Dr. Reddy's, Sandoz, and Teva. Thus, GSK, Strides, Glenmark, Dr. Reddy's, Sandoz, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

232. Plaintiff Michael Futrell (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff"), is a citizen of South Carolina. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in South Carolina from approximately 2015 to 2020 while a resident of South Carolina. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included: (a) prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by Glenmark and Strides; and (b) OTC 150 mg Zantac tablets and capsules manufactured by BI and Sanofi. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Sandoz, and Teva. Thus, BI, Sanofi, Glenmark, Strides, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Sandoz, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

233. Plaintiff Sharon Mclellan (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of South Carolina. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in South Carolina from approximately 2005 to 2020. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included prescription 300 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, and Teva. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff also purchased prescription 300 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by Strides. Thus, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Teva, and Strides are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

Tennessee

234. Plaintiff Billie Walker (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Tennessee. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Tennessee from approximately 2008 to December 2019. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules. Based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiffs purchased prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva. Thus, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

235. Plaintiff Dale Hunter (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff"), is a citizen of Tennessee. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Tennessee from approximately 1995 to October 2019. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included the following: (a) OTC 75 mg Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2004 or 2005 to 2019 manufactured by Pfizer, BI, and Sanofi; and (b) prescription 150 mg Zantac tablets and capsules in or around this time, manufactured by GSK. Thus, GSK, Pfizer, BI, and Sanofi are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

236. Plaintiff Eva Broughton (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff"), is a citizen of Tennessee. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Tennessee from approximately 2002 to 2015. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included the following: (a) OTC Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2005 to 2015 manufactured by Pfizer and BI; and (b) prescription generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2002 to 2005. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, and Teva. Thus, Pfizer, BI, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

237. Plaintiff Jeffrey Garrett (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Tennessee. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Tennessee from approximately 2015 to 2019. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included OTC 150 mg Walmart-branded tablets and capsules from approximately 2015 to 2019 manufactured by Perrigo. Plaintiff purchased additional OTC 150 mg Walmart-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules from Walmart, from approximately 2015 to 2019, but based on the limited available sources of information and discovery conducted to date, does not yet know the specific manufacturer(s) of the Walmart-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules. During the time period in question, Strides, Dr. Reddy's, and Apotex also manufactured OTC 150 mg Walmart-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules for Walmart, and, therefore, Strides, Dr. Reddy's and Apotex are named as Defendants until adequate information is produced to identify the specific entity(ies) that manufactured the store-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules purchased by Plaintiff. Thus, Walmart, Perrigo, Dr. Reddy's, Strides, and Apotex are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

238. Plaintiff Lisa Lyle (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff"), is a citizen of Tennessee. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Tennessee from approximately March 2006 to February 2020. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included the following: (a) prescription Zantac tablets and capsules in approximately 2006 manufactured by GSK; and (b) prescription 15 mg generic ranitidine syrup from approximately March 2006 to February 2020. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 15 mg generic ranitidine syrup manufactured by one or more of the following defendants: Amneal and Teva. Thus, GSK, Amneal, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

239. Plaintiff Pam Turner (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Tennessee. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Tennessee from approximately 2017 to February 2020. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included the following: prescription 300 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2017 to February 2020, manufactured by Glenmark and Amneal. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 300 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Dr. Reddy's, Sandoz, and Strides. Thus, Glenmark, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Sandoz, and Strides are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

240. Plaintiff Rebecca Howard (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff"), is a citizen of Tennessee. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Tennessee from approximately 2010 to 2019. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included the following: (a) prescription generic ranitidine 150 mg tablets and capsules from approximately 2010 through 2019; and (b) OTC Walmart-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules in or around 2010. Plaintiff purchased OTC Walmart-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules from Walmart in or around 2010, but based on the limited available sources of information and discovery conducted to date, does not yet know the specific manufacturer(s) of the Walmart-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules. During the time period in question, Dr. Reddy's manufactured OTC Walmart-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules for Walmart, and, therefore, Dr. Reddy's is named as a Defendant until adequate information is produced to identify the specific entity(ies) that manufactured the Walmart-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules purchased by Plaintiff. Additionally, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva.

Thus, Walmart, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

241. Plaintiff Angela Taylor (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff"), is a citizen of Georgia. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products from approximately 2006 to 2012 while a citizen of Tennessee, and approximately 2012 to 2020 while a citizen of Georgia. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included the following: (a) prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2006 to 2012 in Tennessee while a citizen of Tennessee; and (b) prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2012 to 2020 in Georgia while a citizen of Georgia (manufactured by Dr. Reddy's). Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva. Thus, Dr. Reddy's, Amneal, Glenmark, Sandoz, and Teva are "Defendants" with respect to purchases made in Tennessee while a citizen of Tennessee, unless otherwise specified; and Dr. Reddy's, Amneal, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva are "Defendants" with respect to purchases made in Georgia while a citizen of Georgia, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

242. Plaintiff Kenneth Hix (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Tennessee. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products from approximately 2015 to 2016 while a citizen of Tennessee, and from approximately 2000 to 2015 while a citizen of Michigan. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included the following: (a) prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2000 to 2015 in Michigan while a citizen of Michigan; (b) prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2015 to 2016 in Tennessee while a citizen of Tennessee; (c) OTC 75 mg Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2000 to 2015 in Michigan while a citizen of Michigan (manufactured by Pfizer and BI); and (d) OTC 75 mg Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2015 to 2016 in Tennessee while a citizen of Tennessee, manufactured by BI. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, and Teva. Thus, Pfizer, BI, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, and Teva are "Defendants" with respect to purchases made in Michigan while a citizen of Michigan, unless otherwise specified; and BI, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, and Teva are "Defendants" with respect to purchases made in Tennessee while a citizen of Tennessee, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

243. Rodriguez Hampton Sr., both in his personal capacity and as a guardian for Rodriquze Hampton Jr. (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Minnesota. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products from approximately 2008 to 2019 while a citizen of Tennessee, and from approximately 2019 to 2020 while a citizen of Minnesota. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included the following: (a) prescription Zantac syrup in or around 2008 to 2015 in Tennessee while a citizen of Tennessee (manufactured by GSK); (b) prescription generic ranitidine syrup from approximately 2015 to 2019 Tennessee while a citizen of Tennessee (manufactured by Amneal); and (c) prescription generic ranitidine syrup from approximately 2019 to 2020 in Minnesota while a citizen of Minnesota (manufactured by Amneal). Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription generic ranitidine syrup manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Teva. Thus, GSK, Amneal, and Teva are "Defendants" with respect to purchases made in Tennessee while a citizen of Tennessee, unless otherwise specified; and Amneal and Teva are "Defendants" with respect to purchases made in Minnesota while a citizen of Minnesota, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

Texas

244. Plaintiff Agapito It Aleman (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Texas. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Texas from approximately from 2015 to 2017. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included the following OTC Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2015 to 2017 manufactured by BI and Sanofi. Thus, BI and Sanofi are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

245. Plaintiff Christopher Johnson (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Texas. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2020. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included: prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2015 to 2020 manufactured by Strides. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, and Teva. Thus, Strides, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

246. Plaintiff Gina Martinez (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff"), is a citizen of Texas. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Texas from approximately 2012 to 2020. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included the following: (a) prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2012 to 2020 manufactured by Glenmark and Strides; and (b) OTC 150 mg Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2014 to 2020, manufactured by BI and Sanofi. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Sandoz, and Teva. Thus, BI, Sanofi, Glenmark, Strides, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Sandoz, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

247. Plaintiff Gregory Alan Wayland (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Texas. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Texas from approximately 1993 to 2019. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included the following: prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 1997 to 2019, OTC 75 mg and 150 mg CVS-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules in or around 2009 to approximately 2019 manufactured by Perrigo, and prescription Zantac 150 mg tablets and capsules from approximately 1993 to 1996 manufactured by GSK. Plaintiff purchased additional OTC 75 mg and 150 mg CVS-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules from CVS, in or around 2009 to approximately 2019, but based on the limited available sources of information and discovery conducted to date, does not yet know the specific manufacturer(s) of the CVS-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules. During the time period in question, Dr. Reddy's and Strides also manufactured OTC 75 mg and 150 mg CVS-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules for CVS, and, therefore, Dr. Reddy's and Strides are named as Defendants until adequate information is produced to identify the specific entity(ies) that manufactured the additional CVS-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules purchased by Plaintiff. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva. Thus, Perrigo, GSK, CVS, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

248. Plaintiff Lilian Del Valle (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Texas. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Texas from approximately 2016 to November 2019. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included the following: OTC 150 mg Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2016 to 2019 manufactured by BI and Sanofi. Thus, BI and Sanofi are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

249. Plaintiff Maria Eames (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Texas. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Texas from approximately March 2012 to December 2019. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included the following: prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2012 to 2019 manufactured by Dr. Reddy's and Glenmark and OTC 75 mg Zantac tablets and capsules in or about 2012 manufactured by BI. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva. Thus, BI, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Amneal, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

250. Plaintiff Marilyn Abraham (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Texas. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Texas from approximately July 2017 to November 2019. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included the following: prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2017 to 2019 manufactured by Dr. Reddy's and Glenmark, OTC 150 mg Walmart-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2017 to 2019, and OTC 150 mg Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2017 to 2019 manufactured by Sanofi. Plaintiff purchased OTC 150 mg Walmart-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules from Walmart, from approximately 2017 to 2019 but, based on the limited available sources of information and discovery conducted to date, does not yet know the specific manufacturer(s) of the Walmart-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules. During the time period in question, Perrigo, Dr. Reddy's, Strides, and Apotex manufactured OTC 150 mg Walmart-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules for Walmart, and, therefore, Perrigo, Dr. Reddy's, Strides, and Apotex are named as Defendants until adequate information is produced to identify the specific entity(ies) that manufactured the store-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules purchased by Plaintiff. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, Sandoz, and Strides. Thus, Sanofi, GSK, Glenmark, Dr. Reddy's, Walmart, Perrigo, Apotex, Amneal, Sandoz, and Strides are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

251. Plaintiff Sylvia Yoshida (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Texas. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Texas from approximately 2006 to 2017. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included the following: prescription generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2006 to 2017, and OTC Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2006 to 2017 manufactured by Pfizer, BI, and Sanofi. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva. Thus, Pfizer, BI, Sanofi, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and, Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

252. Plaintiff Tina Howard (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Texas. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Texas from approximately July 2010 to 2015. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included the following: prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2010 to 2015. Based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, and Teva. Thus, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

253. Plaintiff Tonya Overstreet (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Texas. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Texas from approximately 2010 to 2020. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included the following: prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2010 to 2020 manufactured by Amneal. Based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides and Teva. Thus, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

254. Plaintiff Tammy Smith (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Alaska. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products from approximately 1991 to 1993 while a citizen of Colorado, from approximately 1994 to 1995 while a citizen of Arizona, from approximately 1995 to 1996 while a citizen of Texas, from approximately 1996 to 1997 while a citizen of Louisiana, from approximately 1993 to 1994 and 1997-1998 while a citizen of Missouri, and from approximately 1998 to 1999 and 2002 to 2019 while a citizen of Alaska. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included the following: (a) prescription Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 1991 to 1993 while a citizen of Colorado (manufactured by GSK); (b) prescription Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 1993 to 1994 while a citizen of Missouri (manufactured by GSK); (c) prescription Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 1994 to 1995 while a citizen of Arizona (manufactured by GSK); (d) prescription Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 1990 to 1991 and 1995 to 1996 while a citizen of Texas (manufactured by GSK); (e) prescription Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 1996 to 1997 while a citizen of Louisiana (manufactured by GSK); (f) prescription Zantac tablets and capsules in approximately 1999 while a citizen of Alaska (manufactured by GSK); (g) prescription generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 1997 to 1998 while a citizen of Missouri; (h) prescription generic ranitidine tablet and capsules from approximately 1998 to 1999 and 2002 to 2019 while a citizen of Alaska (manufactured by Amneal); (i) OTC 75 mg Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 1995 to 1996 while a citizen of Texas (manufactured by GSK and Pfizer); (j) OTC 75 mg Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 1996 to 1997 while a citizen of Louisiana (manufactured by GSK and Pfizer); and (k) OTC 75 mg Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 1997 to 1998 while a citizen of Missouri (manufactured by GSK and Pfizer). Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased additional prescription generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: BI, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva. Thus, GSK is a "Defendant" with respect to purchases made in Colorado while a citizen of Colorado, unless otherwise specified; GSK is a "Defendant" with respect to purchases made in Arizona while a citizen of Arizona, unless otherwise specified; GSK and Pfizer are "Defendants" with respect to purchases made in Texas while a citizen of Texas, unless otherwise specified; GSK and Pfizer are "Defendants" with respect to purchases made in Louisiana while a citizen of Louisiana, unless otherwise specified; GSK, Pfizer, BI, Sandoz, and Teva are "Defendants" with respect to purchases made in Missouri while a citizen of Missouri, unless otherwise specified; and GSK, Amneal, BI, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva are "Defendants" with respect to purchases made in Alaska while a citizen of Alaska, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

255. Plaintiff Ronda Lockett (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Texas. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Oklahoma from approximately 1982 to 1990 and 2001 to 2004 while a citizen of Oklahoma, in Missouri from approximately 1990 to 2001 while a citizen of Missouri, and in Texas from approximately 2001 to 2020 while a resident of Texas. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included: (a) prescription Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 1983 to 1990 in Oklahoma while a citizen of Oklahoma (manufactured by GSK); (b) prescription Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 1990 to 1995 in Missouri while a citizen of Missouri (manufactured by GSK); c) OTC Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 1995 to 2000 in Missouri while a citizen of Missouri (manufactured by GSK and Pfizer); and (d) OTC Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2000 to 2020 in Texas while a citizen of Texas (manufactured by Pfizer, BI, and Sanofi). Thus, GSK is a "Defendant" with respect to purchases made in Oklahoma while a citizen of Oklahoma, unless otherwise specified; GSK and Pfizer are "Defendant" with respect to purchases made in Missouri while a citizen of Missouri, unless otherwise specified; and Pfizer, BI, and Sanofi are "Defendants" with respect to purchases made in Texas while a citizen of Texas, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

256. Plaintiff Marianella Villanueva (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Texas. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products from approximately 2005 to 2020 while a citizen of Texas, and in or about 2010 while a citizen of South Carolina. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included the following: (a) prescription Zantac tablets and capsules beginning in approximately 2005 in Texas while a citizen of Texas (manufactured by GSK); (b) 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2005 to 2020 in Texas while a citizen of Texas (manufactured by Amneal, Glenmark, Dr. Reddy's, and Strides); (c) prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules in or about 2010 in South Carolina while a citizen of South Carolina (manufactured by Amneal, Glenmark, and Dr. Reddy's); (d) OTC 75 mg and 150 mg Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2005 2020 in Texas while a citizen of Texas (manufactured by GSK, Pfizer, BI, and Sanofi); (e) OTC 75 mg and 150 mg Zantac tablets and capsules in or about 2010 in South Carolina while a citizen of South Carolina, manufactured by BI; (f) OTC 75 mg and 150 mg Walgreens-branded ranitidine tablets and from approximately 2011 to 2020 capsules in Texas while a citizen of Texas; (g) OTC 75 mg and 150 mg CVS-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2009 to 2020 in Texas while a citizen of Texas; (h) OTC 75 mg and 150 mg Walmart-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2010 to 2020 in Texas while a citizen of Texas; and (i) OTC 75 mg and 150 mg Walmart-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules in or about 2010 in South Carolina while a citizen of Carolina. While a citizen of Texas, Plaintiff purchased OTC 75 mg and 150 mg Walgreens-branded, CVS-branded, and Walmart-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules from Walgreens, CVS, and Walmart, respectively, in Texas from approximately 2009 to 2020, and while a citizen of South Carolina, Plaintiff purchased OTC 75 mg and 150 mg Walmart-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules from Walmart in South Carolina in or about 2010, but based on the limited available sources of information and discovery conducted to date, does not yet know the specific manufacturer(s) of the store-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules. During the time period in question, Dr. Reddy's, Apotex, Strides, and Perrigo manufactured OTC 75 mg and 150 mg Walgreens-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules for Walgreens, Dr. Reddy's, Strides, and Perrigo manufactured OTC 75 mg and 150 mg CVS-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules for CVS, and Dr. Reddy's, Apotex, Strides, and Perrigo manufactured OTC 75 mg and 150 mg Walmart-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules for Walmart, and, therefore, Dr. Reddy's, Apotex, Strides, and Perrigo are named as Defendants until adequate information is produced to identify the specific entity(ies) that manufactured the store-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules purchased by Plaintiff. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Strides Sandoz, and Teva. Thus, GSK, Pfizer, BI, Sanofi, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Strides, Walgreens, CVS, Walmart, Apotex, Perrigo, BI, Sandoz, and Teva are "Defendants" with respect to purchases made in Texas while a citizen of Texas, unless otherwise specified; and Amneal, Glenmark, Dr. Reddy's, BI, Walmart, Sandoz, and Teva are "Defendants" with respect to purchases made in South Carolina while a citizen of South Carolina, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

Utah

257. Plaintiff Teresa Waters (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Utah. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Utah from approximately 2017 to 2020. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included the following: prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2017 to 2020, and OTC 150 mg Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2017 to 2020 manufactured by BI and Sanofi. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, and Strides. Thus, BI, Sanofi, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, and Strides are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

Virginia

258. Plaintiff Cheryl Banks (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Virginia. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Virginia from approximately 2010 to December 2019. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included the following: prescription 300 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2010 to 2019 manufactured by Amneal and Strides, and OTC Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2010 to 2019 manufactured by BI and Sanofi. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 300 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, and Teva. Thus, Amneal, Strides, BI, Sanofi, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

259. Plaintiff Lynn Costley (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Virginia. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Virginia from approximately 2013 to September 2019. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included the following: prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2013 to 2019 manufactured by Strides. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, and Teva. Thus, Strides, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

260. Plaintiff Karen Foster (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Virginia. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products from approximately June 2017 to 2020 while a citizen of Virginia, and approximately 2013 to 2017 while a citizen of Florida. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included the following: (a) prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2013 to 2017 in Florida while a citizen of Florida (manufactured by Glenmark); (b) prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2017 to 2020 in Virginia while a citizen of Virginia (manufactured by Amneal and Sandoz); and (c) OTC 150 mg Zantac tablets and capsules in or around 2013 in Florida while a citizen of Florida, manufactured by BI. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Sandoz, Glenmark, Strides, and Teva. Thus, Amneal, Glenmark, Sandoz, Dr. Reddy's, and Strides are "Defendants" with respect to purchases made in Virginia while a citizen of Virginia, unless otherwise specified; and BI, Amneal, Glenmark, Sandoz, Dr. Reddy's, Strides, and Teva are "Defendants" with respect to purchases made in Florida while a citizen of Florida, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

261. Plaintiff Dan Zhovtis (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Virginia. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products from approximately 2000 to 2016 New York while a resident of New York; and from 2016 to September of 2019 in Virginia while a resident of Virginia. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included: (a) OTC Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2000 to 2016 in New York while a resident of New York (manufactured by Pfizer and BI); (b) OTC 150 mg Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2016 to September 2019 in Virginia while a resident of Virginia (manufactured by BI and Sanofi); and (c) OTC 150 mg Walmart-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules from Walmart from approximately 2016 to September 2019 in Virginia while a resident of Virginia. Based on the limited available sources of information and discovery conducted to date, Plaintiff does not yet know the specific manufacturer(s) of the store-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules. During the time period in question, Dr. Reddy's, Perrigo, Strides, and Apotex manufactured OTC 150 mg Walmart-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules for Walmart, and, therefore, Dr. Reddy's, Perrigo, Strides, and Apotex are named as Defendants until adequate information is produced to identify the specific entity(ies) that manufactured the store-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules purchased by Plaintiff. Thus, Pfizer and BI, are "Defendants" with respect to purchased made in New York while a citizen of New York, unless otherwise specified; and Walmart, BI, Sanofi, Dr. Reddy's, Perrigo, Strides, and Apotex are "Defendants" with respect to purchased made in Virginia while a citizen of Virginia, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

Vermont

262. Plaintiff Eric Ragis (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Vermont. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Vermont from approximately 2010 to 2020. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included the following: prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2010 to 2020 manufactured by Strides, Glenmark, and Amneal. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Dr. Reddy's, Sandoz, and Teva. Thus, Strides, Glenmark, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Sandoz, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

263. Plaintiff Lisa Ragis (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Vermont. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Vermont from approximately February 2010 to September 2019. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included the following: prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2010 to 2019 manufactured by Strides and Amneal. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, and Teva. Thus, Strides, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

264. Plaintiff Renee Clark (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Vermont. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Vermont from approximately 2011 to 2020. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included the following: prescription 150 mg and 300 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2011 to 2020 manufactured by Amneal. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 150 mg and 300 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva. Thus, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

265. Plaintiff Ronald Ragis (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Vermont and Florida. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products from approximately 1998 to 2016 as a citizen of Vermont, and approximately 1998 to 2016 as a citizen of Florida. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included the following: (a) OTC 75 mg and 150 mg Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 1998 to 2016 in Vermont as a citizen of Vermont (manufactured by GSK, Pfizer, and BI); (b) OTC 75 mg and 150 mg Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 1998 to 2016 in Florida as a citizen of Florida (manufactured by GSK, Pfizer, and BI); and (c) OTC 75 mg and 150 mg Walgreens-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2011 to 2016 in Florida as a citizen of Florida. Plaintiff purchased additional OTC 75 mg and 150 mg Walgreens-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules from Walgreens in Florida from approximately 2011 to 2016, but based on the limited available sources of information and discovery conducted to date, does not yet know the specific manufacturer(s) of the Walgreens-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules. During the time period in question, Dr. Reddy's, Strides, Perrigo, and Apotex manufactured OTC 75 mg and 150 mg Walgreens-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules for Walgreens, and, therefore, Dr. Reddy's, Strides, Perrigo, and Apotex are named as Defendants until adequate information is produced to identify the specific entity(ies) that manufactured the store-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules purchased by Plaintiff. Thus, GSK, Pfizer, BI, Walgreens, Apotex, Strides, Perrigo, and Dr. Reddy's are "Defendants" with respect to purchases made in Florida while a citizen of Florida, unless otherwise specified; and GSK, Pfizer, and BI are "Defendants" with respect to purchases made in Vermont while a citizen of Vermont, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

Washington

266. Plaintiff Bridget Peck (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Washington. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Washington from approximately 2012 to 2020. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included the following: prescription 150 mg and 300 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2012 to 2020 manufactured by Strides, Sandoz, and Teva. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 150 mg and 300 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, and Glenmark. Thus, Strides, Sandoz, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

267. Plaintiff Dave Garber (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Washington. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Washington from approximately 1997 to June 2019. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included the following: prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 1997 to June 2019 manufactured by Strides, and OTC Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2014 to 2019 manufactured by BI and Sanofi. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 150 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, BI, Dr.

Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, and Teva. Thus, Strides, BI, Sanofi, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

268. Plaintiff Jonathan Ferguson (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Washington. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Oregon from approximately 1995 to 1996 and 1999 to 2003 while a citizen of Oregon; in Nevada from approximately 1996 to 1999 while a citizen of Nevada; and in Washington from approximately 2003 to 2007 and 2012 to July 2018 while a citizen of Washington. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included: (a) OTC Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 1995 to 1996 and 1999 to 2003 in Oregon while a citizen of Oregon (manufactured by GSK and Pfizer); (b) OTC Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 1996 to 1999 in Nevada while a citizen of Nevada (manufactured by GSK and Pfizer); (c) OTC Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2003 to 2007 and 2012 to July 2018 in Washington while a citizen of Washington (manufactured by Pfizer, BI, and Sanofi); and (d) OTC Walmart-branded ranitidine tablets from Walmart, and Walgreens-branded ranitidine tablets from Walgreens, from approximately from 2012 to July 2018 in Washington while a citizen of Washington. Based on the limited available sources of information and discovery conducted to date, Plaintiff does not yet know the specific manufacturer(s) of the store-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules. During the time period in question, Dr. Reddy's, Perrigo, Apotex, and Strides manufactured OTC ranitidine tablets and capsules for Walmart, and Dr. Reddy's, Apotex, Strides,and Perrigo manufactured OTC ranitidine tablets and capsules for Walgreens, and, therefore, Dr. Reddy's, Apotex, Strides, and Perrigo are named as Defendants until adequate information is produced to identify the specific entity(ies) that manufactured the store-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules purchased by Plaintiff. Thus, GSK and Pfizer are "Defendants" with respect to purchases made in Oregon while a citizen of Oregon, unless otherwise specified; GSK and Pfizer are "Defendants" with respect to purchases made in Nevada while a citizen of Nevada, unless otherwise specified;; and Pfizer, BI, Sanofi, Walmart, Walgreens, Dr. Reddy's, Strides, Perrigo, and Apotex are "Defendants" with respect to purchases made in Washington while a citizen of Washington, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

269. Steve Fischer (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Washington. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Washington from approximately 2006 to 2019. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included the following: prescription 150 mg and 300 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2007 to 2019 manufactured by Amneal, and OTC 150 mg Zantac tablets and capsules in or around 2006 manufactured by Pfizer. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 150 mg and 300 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva. Thus, Pfizer, Amneal, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

270. Robert Dewitt (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Washington. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in both Washington and Oregon from approximately 2003 to 2020. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included the following: OTC 75 mg and 150 mg Zantac tablets and capsules in Washington from approximately 2003 to 2020 (manufactured by Pfizer, BI, and Sanofi); and OTC 75 mg and 150 mg Walmart-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by Perrigo in Washington from approximately 2010 to 2020. Plaintiff purchased additional OTC 75 mg and 150 mg Walmart-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules from Walmart in Washington from approximately 2010 to 2020, but based on the limited available sources of information and discovery conducted to date, does not yet know the specific additional manufacturer(s) of the store-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules. During the time period in question, Dr. Reddy's, Strides, and Apotex OTC 75 mg and 150 mg Walmart-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules for Walmart, and, therefore, Dr. Reddy's, Strides, and Apotex are named as Defendants until adequate information is produced to identify the specific entity(ies) that manufactured the store-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules purchased by Plaintiff. Thus, Pfizer, BI, Sanofi, Walmart, Perrigo, Dr. Reddy's, Strides, and Apotex are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

Wisconsin

271. Plaintiff Wendy Quezaire (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of Wisconsin. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products in Wisconsin from approximately 2005 to 2020. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included the following: prescription 300 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2010 to 2020 manufactured by Strides, OTC Zantac tablets and capsules from approximately 2005 to 2010 manufactured Pfizer and BI, and prescription Zantac tablets and capsules in or about this time manufactured by GSK. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription 300 mg generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, and Teva. Thus, Strides, Pfizer, BI, GSK, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, and Teva are "Defendants" for the purposes of Plaintiff's claims, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

West Virginia

272. Plaintiff Mynetta Hastings (for the purpose of this paragraph, "Plaintiff") is a citizen of West Virginia. Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products from approximately 2003 to December 2019 as a citizen of West Virginia. The Ranitidine-Containing Products purchased by Plaintiff specifically included the following: (a) prescription generic ranitidine tablets and capsules from approximately 2003 to 2019 in West Virginia as a citizen of West Virginia (manufactured by Dr. Reddy's, Strides, and Teva); (b) OTC CVS-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules in or about 2019 in West Virginia as a citizen of Virginia. Plaintiff purchased OTC CVS-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules in West Virginia from CVS in or about 2019, but based on the limited available sources of information and discovery conducted to date, does not yet know the specific manufacturer(s) of the store-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules. During the time period in question, Perrigo, Strides, and Dr. Reddy's manufactured OTC CVS-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules for CVS, and, therefore, Perrigo, Dr. Reddy's, and Strides are named as Defendants until adequate information is produced to identify the specific entity(ies) that manufactured the store-branded ranitidine tablets and capsules purchased by Plaintiff. Further, based on the limited discovery obtained to date, Plaintiff purchased prescription generic ranitidine tablets and capsules manufactured by one or more of the following Defendants: Amneal, Glenmark, and Sandoz. Thus, Dr. Reddy's, Strides, Teva, CVS, Perrigo, Amneal, Glenmark, and Sandoz are "Defendants" with respect to purchases made in West Virginia while a citizen of West Virginia, unless otherwise specified. As a result of Defendants' breaches of warranties, wrongful acts, and misrepresentations and omissions, Plaintiff purchased Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe for human ingestion and, therefore, were worthless at the time of purchase. Thus, Plaintiff has suffered concrete injury in the form of economic damages as a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct.

III. JURISDICTION & VENUE

273. This Court has original subject-matter jurisdiction under 28 U.S.C. §1331 (federal question) and 18 U.S.C. §1964 (civil remedies). This Court also has subject matter jurisdiction over this action pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §1332, as amended by the Class Action Fairness Act of 2005 28 U.S.C. §1332(d)(2), because: (a) there are at least 100 class members; (b) the matter in controversy exceeds $5 million, exclusive of interests and costs; and (c) at least one Plaintiff is a citizen of a different state than at least one Defendant. In addition, this Court has supplemental jurisdiction over Plaintiffs' state law claims under 28 U.S.C. §1367.

274. This Court has personal jurisdiction over Defendants under Fla. Stat. Ann. §48.193 and 18 U.S.C. §1965(b) and (d). This Court also has pendent personal jurisdiction over Defendants.

275. In addition and/or in the alternative, Defendants and/or their agents or alter egos each have significant contacts with each of the states and territories of the United States because they designed, manufactured, tested, marketed, labeled, packaged, distributed, stored, and/or sold Ranitidine-Containing Products within each of the states and territories of the United States, and/or they derived revenue from the sale of their Ranitidine-Containing Products in each of the states and territories of the United States, through the purposeful direction of their activities to the states and territories of the United States and purposeful availment of the protections of the laws of the states and territories of the United States, such that personal jurisdiction would be proper in those states and territories under traditional notions of fair play and substantial justice.

276. In addition and/or in the alternative, the district to which each Plaintiff's action may be remanded upon conclusion of these pretrial proceedings pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §1407(a) will have personal jurisdiction over Defendants who themselves or through an agent or alter ego are incorporated within that district, have a principal place of business in that district, or conduct a substantial amount of business in that district, such that they are essentially at home in that district and, thus, that personal jurisdiction would be proper in that district under traditional notions of fair play and substantial justice.

277. Venue is proper in this District under 28 U.S.C. §1391(a) because a substantial part of the events or omissions giving rise to Plaintiffs' claims occurred in this District. Defendants designed, manufactured, tested, marketed, labeled, packaged, handled, distributed, stored, and/or sold Ranitidine-Containing Products, and otherwise conducted extensive business, within this District. In addition and/or in the alternative, venue is proper under 28 U.S.C. §1407(a) and the Conditional Transfer Orders of the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation.

IV. BACKGROUND FACTS

A. The Science

1. The Creation of Ranitidine-Containing Products and Their Introduction to the Market

278. Defendants designed, manufactured, tested, marketed, labeled, packaged, handled, distributed, stored, and/or sold ranitidine under the brand name Zantac or a generic equivalent by either prescription or OTC.

a. GSK Develops Zantac Through a Flurry of Aggressive Marketing Maneuvers

279. Ranitidine belongs to a class of medications called histamine H_2-receptor antagonists (or H_2 blockers), which decrease the amount of acid produced by cells in the lining of the stomach. Other drugs within this class include cimetidine (branded Tagamet), famotidine (Pepcid), and nizatidine (Axid).

280. GSK-predecessor Smith, Kline & French discovered and developed Tagamet, the first H_2 blocker and the prototypical histamine H_2 receptor antagonist from which the later members of the class were developed.

281. GSK[19] developed Zantac specifically in response to the success of cimetidine. Recognizing the extraordinary potential of having its own H_2 blocker in the burgeoning anti-ulcer market, GSK was all too willing to ensure its drug succeeded at all costs.

282. In 1976, scientist John Bradshaw, on behalf of GSK-predecessor Allen & Hanburys Ltd. synthesized and discovered ranitidine.

283. Allen & Hanburys Ltd., a then-subsidiary of Glaxo Laboratories Ltd., is credited with developing ranitidine and was awarded Patent No. 4,128,658 by the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office in December 1978, which covered the ranitidine molecule.

284. In 1983, the FDA granted approval to Glaxo to sell Zantac, pursuant to the New Drug Application ("NDA") No. 18-703, and it quickly became GSK's most successful product – a "blockbuster." Indeed, Zantac became the first prescription drug in history to reach $1 billion in sales.

285. To accomplish this feat, GSK entered into a joint promotion agreement with Hoffmann-LaRoche, Inc., [redacted].[20] More salespersons drove more sales and blockbuster profits for GSK.

286. In June 1986, the FDA approved Zantac for maintenance therapy of duodenal ulcers and for treatment of patients with gastroesophageal reflux disease ("GERD").

287. In December 1993, GSK (through Glaxo Wellcome plc) entered into a partnership agreement with Pfizer-predecessor company Warner-Lambert Co. to develop and market an OTC version of Zantac.[21] In 1995, the FDA approved OTC Zantac 75 mg tablets through NDA 20-520. In 1998, the FDA approved OTC Zantac 75 mg effervescent tablets through NDA 20-745.

[19] GSK, as it is known today, was created through a series of mergers and acquisitions: In 1989, Smith, Kline & French merged with the Beecham Group to form SmithKline Beecham plc. In 1995, Glaxo merged with the Wellcome Foundation to become Glaxo Wellcome plc. In 2000, Glaxo Wellcome plc merged with SmithKline Beecham plc to form GlaxoSmithKline plc and GlaxoSmithKline LLC.

288. In 1998, GSK (Glaxo Wellcome plc) and Warner-Lambert Co. ended their partnership. As part of the separation, Warner-Lambert Co. retained control over the OTC NDA for Zantac and the Zantac trademark in the United States and Canada but was required to obtain approval from GSK prior to making any product or trademark improvements or changes. GSK retained rights to sell OTC Zantac outside of the United States and Canada,[22] and retained control over the Zantac trademark internationally.[23]

289. In 2000, Pfizer acquired Warner-Lambert Co. Pfizer controlled the Zantac OTC NDAs until December 2006.

290. In October 2000, GSK sold to Pfizer the full rights to OTC Zantac in the United States and Canada pursuant to a divestiture and transfer agreement. As part of that agreement, GSK divested all domestic Zantac OTC assets to Pfizer, including all trademark rights. The agreement removed the restrictions on Pfizer's ability to seek product line extensions or the approval for higher doses of OTC Zantac. GSK retained the right to exclusive use of the Zantac name for any prescription Ranitidine-Containing Product in the United States.

291. In October 2003, Pfizer submitted NDA 21-698 for approval to market OTC Zantac 150 mg. The FDA approved NDA 21-698 on August 31, 2004.

292. During the time that Pfizer owned the rights to OTC Zantac, GSK continued to manufacture the product.

[22] GSK also still held the right to sell prescription Zantac in the United States.

[23] PFI00245109.

293. In 2006, pursuant to a Stock and Asset Purchase Agreement, Pfizer sold and divested its entire consumer health division (including employees and documents) to Johnson & Johnson ("J&J").[24] Because of antitrust issues, however, Zantac was transferred to Boehringer Ingelheim.

294. Pfizer, through a divestiture agreement, transferred all assets pertaining to its Zantac OTC line of products, including the rights to sell and market all formulations of OTC Zantac in the United States and Canada, as well as all intellectual property, R&D, and customer and supply contracts to Boehringer Ingelheim. As part of that deal, Boehringer Ingelheim obtained control and responsibility over all of the Zantac OTC NDAs.

295. GSK continued marketing prescription Zantac in the United States until 2017 and still holds the NDAs for several prescription formulations of Zantac. GSK continued to maintain manufacturing and supply agreements relating to various formulations of both prescription and OTC Zantac. According to its recent annual report, GSK claims to have "discontinued making and selling prescription Zantac tablets in 2017 . . . in the U.S."[25]

296. Boehringer Ingelheim owned and controlled the NDA for OTC Zantac between December 2006 and January 2017, and manufactured, marketed, and distributed the drug in the United States during that period.[26]

297. In 2017, Boehringer Ingelheim sold the rights of OTC Zantac to Sanofi pursuant to an asset swap agreement. As part of that deal, Sanofi obtained control and responsibility over Boehringer Ingelheim's entire consumer healthcare business, including the OTC Zantac NDAs.

[26] Boehringer Ingelheim also owned and controlled ANDA 074662.

As part of this agreement, Boehringer Ingelheim and Sanofi entered into a manufacturing agreement wherein Boehringer continued to manufacture OTC Zantac for Sanofi.

298. Sanofi has controlled the OTC Zantac NDAs and marketed, sold, and distributed Zantac in the United States from January 2017 until 2019 when it issued a global recall and ceased marketing, selling, and distributing OTC Zantac. In addition, Sanofi has marketed, sold, and distributed ranitidine globally since 1983.[27]

299. Throughout the time that Sanofi controlled the OTC Zantac NDAs, Boehringer Ingelheim Promeco, S.A. de C.V. and Patheon Manufacturing Services LLC manufactured the finished drug product.

300. Sanofi voluntarily recalled all brand OTC Zantac and ranitidine on October 18, 2019.

301. Pfizer and Boehringer Ingelheim have made demands for indemnification per the Stock and Asset Purchase Agreement against J&J for legal claims related to OTC Zantac products.

302. Sanofi has made a demand for indemnification against J&J pursuant to a 2016 Asset Purchase Agreement between J&J and Sanofi.

303. The times during which each Brand Manufacturer Defendant manufactured and sold branded Zantac are alleged below:

b. Patents Expire, Allowing Prescription and Later, OTC Generics (and Store Brands) to Enter the Market

304. In 1997, GSK's patent on the original prescription Zantac product expired, allowing generic manufacturers to sell prescription ranitidine.

305. When GSK and Pfizer's patent on the original OTC Zantac product expired, generic manufacturers and store-brand retailers were allowed to sell OTC ranitidine.

306. The FDA approved numerous generic and store-brand manufacturers for the sale of prescription and OTC ranitidine through the ANDA process. Those manufacturers who are named as Defendants in this economic loss complaint are:

307. "An abbreviated new drug application (ANDA) contains data which is submitted to FDA for the review and potential approval of a generic drug product. Once approved, an applicant may manufacture and market the generic drug product to provide a safe, effective, lower cost alternative to the brand-name drug it references."[28]

308. Generic (and store-brand) drugs must be comparable to the branded drug in dosage form, strength, route of administration, quality, performance characteristics, and intended use.[29]

[29] Id.

309. ANDA applicants generally do not need to establish safety and effectiveness. Instead, applicants must scientifically demonstrate that their product performs in the same manner as the innovator drug, known as "bioequivalence."

310. Once a manufacturer's ANDA is approved, that manufacturer is subject to post-market obligations. These obligations include submitting annual reports to the FDA, tracking and reporting adverse events, and tracking and reporting relevant medical literature, among other things.

311. These ANDA approvals allowed the Generic and Store-Brand Defendants to sell their ranitidine products throughout the country. And they did so.

312. All Defendants who have the power of labeling and listing drugs within the United States must obtain a National Drug Code ("NDC"). All NDC holders are required to register all drugs and list them with the FDA.

313. All Defendants who have registered establishments with the FDA must provide "[c]omplete, accurate and up-to-date establishment registration and drug listing information [which] is essential to promote patient safety. FDA relies on establishment registration and drug listing information for several key programs, including:

- Drug establishment inspections
- Post market surveillance
- Counterterrorism
- Recalls
- Drug quality reports
- Adverse event reports
- Monitoring of drug shortages and availability
- Supply chain security
- Drug import and export

- Identification of products that are marketed without an approved application[30]

314. In registering with the FDA to manufacture, label, distribute, and sell Ranitidine-Containing Products within all states and territories of the United States, all Defendants holding an ANDA, NDC Code, or which registered an establishment, had an obligation to comply with federal law.

315. Based upon the information provided by Defendants to date, the following Generic Prescription and Store-Brand Manufacturer Defendants manufactured Ranitidine-Containing Products during the following date ranges. Upon information and belief, each Defendant began researching Ranitidine-Containing Products at least one year prior to the date they commenced selling the product and, therefore, knew or should have known of all risks associated with Ranitidine-Containing Products discussed herein from that date onward:

2. NDMA Is a Carcinogen Whose Dangerous Properties Are Well Established

317. According to the Environmental Protection Agency ("EPA"), "[N-Nitrosodimethylamine ("NDMA")] is a semivolatile organic chemical that forms in both industrial and natural processes."[31] It is one of the simplest members of a class of N-nitrosamines, a family of potent carcinogens. Scientists have long recognized the dangers that NDMA poses to human health. A 1979 news article noted that "NDMA has caused cancer in nearly every laboratory animal tested so far."[32] NDMA is no longer produced or commercially used in the United States except for research. Its only use today is to cause cancer in laboratory animals.

318. Both the EPA and the International Agency for Research on Cancer ("IARC") classify NDMA as a probable human carcinogen.[33]

319. The IARC classification is based upon data that demonstrates NDMA "is carcinogenic in all animal species tested: mice, rats, Syrian gold, Chinese and European hamsters, guinea-pigs, rabbits, ducks, mastomys, various fish, newts and frogs. It induces benign and malignant tumors following its administration by various routes, including ingestion and inhalation, in various organs in various species." Further, in 1978, IARC stated that NDMA "should be regarded for practical purposes as if it were carcinogenic to humans."[34]

320. The American Conference of Governmental Industrial Hygienists classifies NDMA as a confirmed animal carcinogen.[35]

321. The Department of Health and Human Services ("DHHS") states that NDMA is reasonably anticipated to be a human carcinogen.[36] This classification is based upon DHHS's findings that NDMA caused tumors in numerous species of experimental animals, at several different tissue sites, and by several routes of exposure, with tumors occurring primarily in the liver, respiratory tract, kidney, and blood vessels.[37]

322. The FDA considers NDMA a carcinogenic impurity[38] and chemical that "could cause cancer" in humans.[39] The FDA recognizes that NDMA is "known to be toxic."[40]

323. The World Health Organization states that there is "conclusive evidence that NDMA is a potent carcinogen" and that there is "clear evidence of carcinogenicity."[41] NDMA belongs to the so-called "cohort of concern" which is a group of highly potent mutagenic carcinogens that have been classified as probable human carcinogens.[42]

324. NDMA is among the chemicals known to the state of California to cause cancer (Title 27, California Code of Regulations, Section 27001), pursuant to California's Safe Drinking Water and Toxic Enforcement Act of 1986 (Proposition 65).

325. The European Medicines Agency ("EMA") has referred to NDMA as "highly carcinogenic." It recommended that "primary attention with respect to risk for patients should be on these highly carcinogenic N-nitrosamines" (including NDMA), and categorized NDMA as "of highest concern with respect to mutagenic and carcinogenic potential."[43]

326. In 1989, the Agency for Toxic Substances and Disease Registry (ATSDR) stated that it is "reasonable to expect that exposure to NDMA by eating, drinking or breathing could cause cancer in humans" and that the "carcinogenicity of orally-administered NDMA has been demonstrated unequivocally in acute, intermediate and chronic durations studies" in animals and "it is important to recognize that this evidence also indicates that oral exposures of acute and intermediate duration are sufficient to induce cancer." The International Register of Potentially Toxic Chemicals (IRPTC 1988) lists regulations imposed by 13 countries for NDMA for occupational exposure, packing, storing and transport, disposal, and warns of its probable human carcinogenicity and its high level of toxicity by ingestion or inhalation.

328. The Occupational Safety and Health Administration classifies NDMA as "a carcinogen" that requires special and significant precautions along with specific hazard warnings.[45]

329. A review of Defendants' own internal documents reveals that there is simply no question of material fact that it has been widely known within the medical and scientific community for over 40 years that NDMA is toxic and a known carcinogen.

339. Most recently, beginning in the summer of 2018, there have been recalls of several generic drugs used to treat high blood pressure and heart failure – Valsartan, Losartan, and Irbesartan – because the medications contained nitrosamine impurities that do not meet the FDA's safety standards. Some of the manufacturers of those contaminated medications also are parties to this case. They include Sandoz and Teva.

340. This continued in 2020 when the FDA required recalls of numerous generic manufacturers' metformin, including metformin made by Apotex, Amneal, and Teva.[62]

341. NDMA is a genotoxin which interacts with DNA and may subsequently induce mutations. Genotoxins are not considered to have a safe threshold or dose due to their ability to alter DNA.

342. The FDA has set an acceptable daily intake ("ADI") level for NDMA at 96 ng. That means that consumption of 96 ng of NDMA a day would increase the risk of developing cancer by 0.001% over the course of a lifetime. That risk increases as the level of NDMA exposure increases. However, any level above 96 ng is considered unacceptable.[63]

343. In studies examining carcinogenicity through oral administration, mice exposed to NDMA developed cancer in the kidney, bladder, liver, and lung. In comparable rat studies, cancers were observed in the liver, kidney, pancreas, and lung. In comparable hamster studies, cancers were observed in the liver, pancreas, and stomach. In comparable guinea-pig studies, cancers were observed in the liver and lung. In comparable rabbit studies, cancers were observed in the liver and lung.

344. In other long-term animal studies in mice and rats utilizing different routes of exposures – inhalation, subcutaneous injection, and intraperitoneal (abdomen injection) – cancer was observed in the lung, liver, kidney, nasal cavity, and stomach.

345. Prior to the withdrawal of ranitidine, it was considered a category B drug for birth defects, meaning it was considered safe to take during pregnancy. Yet animals exposed to NDMA during pregnancy birthed offspring with elevated rates of cancer in the liver and kidneys.

346. NDMA is a very small molecule. That allows it to pass through the blood-brain and placental barrier. This is particularly concerning as ranitidine has been marketed for pregnant women and young children for years.

347. Exposure to high levels of NDMA has been linked to liver damage in humans.[64]

348. Numerous in vitro studies confirm that NDMA is a mutagen – causing genetic mutations in human and animal cells.

349. Overall, the animal data demonstrates that NDMA is carcinogenic in all animal species tested: mice; rats; Syrian golden, Chinese and European hamsters; guinea pigs; rabbits; ducks; mastomys; fish; newts; and frogs.

350. The EPA classified NDMA as a probable human carcinogen "based on the induction of tumors at multiple sites in different mammal species exposed to NDMA by various routes."[65]

351. Pursuant to EPA cancer guidelines, "tumors observed in animals are generally assumed to indicate that an agent may produce tumors in humans."[66]

352. In addition to the overwhelming animal data linking NDMA to cancer, there are numerous human epidemiological studies exploring the effects of dietary exposure to various cancers. These studies consistently show increased risks of various cancers.

353. In a 1995 epidemiological case-control study looking at NDMA dietary exposure with 220 cases, researchers observed a statistically significant 700% increased risk of gastric cancer in persons exposed to more than 0.51 micrograms/day.[67]

354. In a 1995 epidemiological case-control study looking at NDMA dietary exposure with 746 cases, researchers observed statistically significant elevated rates of gastric cancer in persons exposed to more than 0.191 micrograms/day.[68]

355. In another 1995 epidemiological case-control study looking at, in part, the effects of dietary consumption on cancer, researchers observed a statistically significant elevated risk of developing aerodigestive cancer after being exposed to NDMA at 0.179 micrograms/day.[69]

356. In a 1999 epidemiological cohort study looking at NDMA dietary exposure with 189 cases and a follow up of 24 years, researchers noted that "N-nitroso compounds are potent

carcinogens" and that dietary exposure to NDMA more than doubled the risk of developing colorectal cancer.[70]

357. In a 2000 epidemiological cohort study looking at occupational exposure of workers in the rubber industry, researchers observed significant increased risks for NDMA exposure for esophagus, oral cavity, and pharynx cancer.[71]

358. In a 2011 epidemiological cohort study looking at NDMA dietary exposure with 3,268 cases and a follow up of 11.4 years, researchers concluded that "[d]ietary NDMA intake was significantly associated with increased cancer risk in men and women" for all cancers, and that "NDMA was associated with increased risk of gastrointestinal cancers" including rectal cancers.[72]

359. In a 2014 epidemiological case-control study looking at NDMA dietary exposure with 1,760 cases, researchers found a statistically significant elevated association between NDMA exposure and rectal cancer.[73]

360. NDMA is also known to be genotoxic – meaning, it can cause DNA damage in human cells. Indeed, multiple studies demonstrate that NDMA is genotoxic both in vivo and in vitro. However, recent studies have shown that the ability of NDMA to cause mutations in cells is affected by the presence of enzymes typically found in living humans, suggesting that "humans may be especially sensitive to the carcinogenicity of NDMA."[74]

361. In addition to studies demonstrating that NDMA directly causes cancer, research shows that exposure to NDMA: (a) can exacerbate existing but dormant (i.e. not malignant) tumor cells; (b) promote otherwise "initiated cancer cells" to develop into cancerous tumors; and (c) reduce the ability of the body to combat cancer as NDMA is immunosuppressive. Thus, in addition to NDMA being a direct cause of cancer itself, NDMA can also be a contributing factor to a cancer injury caused by some other source.

3. NDMA Is Discovered In Ranitidine-Containing Products, Leading To Market Withdrawal

362. On September 9, 2019, pharmacy and testing laboratory Valisure LLC and ValisureRX LLC (collectively, "Valisure") filed a Citizen Petition calling for the recall of all Ranitidine-Containing Products due to detecting exceedingly high levels of NDMA when testing ranitidine pills using gas chromatography-mass spectrometry. FDA and European regulators started reviewing the safety of ranitidine with specific focus on the presence of NDMA.[75] This set off a cascade of recalls by Defendants.

363. On September 13, 2019, the FDA's Director for Drug Evaluation and Research, Dr. Janet Woodcock, issued a statement warning that some ranitidine medicines may contain NDMA.[76]

364. On September 24, 2019, Defendant Sandoz voluntarily recalled all of its Ranitidine-Containing Products due to concerns of a "nitrosamine impurity, N-nitrosodimethylamine (NDMA), which was found in the recalled medicine."[77]

365. On September 26, 2019, Defendants Apotex, Walgreens, Walmart, and Rite Aid voluntarily recalled all ranitidine products and removed them from shelves.[78] Apotex issued a statement, noting that "Apotex has learned from the U.S. Food and Drug Administration and other Global regulators that some ranitidine medicines including brand and generic formulations of ranitidine regardless of the manufacturer, contain a nitrosamine impurity called N-nitrosodimethylamine (NDMA)."[79]

366. On September 28, 2019, Defendant CVS stated that it would stop selling Zantac and its CVS Store-Brand ranitidine out of concern that it might contain a carcinogen.

367. On October 2, 2019, the FDA ordered manufacturers of ranitidine to test their products and recommended using a liquid chromatography with high resolution mass spectrometer ("LC-HRMS") testing protocol, which "does not use elevated temperatures."[80]

368. On October 8, 2019, Defendant GSK voluntarily recalled all Ranitidine-Containing Products internationally.[81] As part of the recall, GSK publicly acknowledged that unacceptable levels of NDMA were discovered in Zantac and noted that "GSK is continuing with investigations into the potential source of the NDMA."[82]

369. On October 18 and 23, 2019, Defendants Sanofi and Dr. Reddy's voluntarily recalled all of their Ranitidine-Containing Products.[83]

370. On October 28, 2019, Defendant Perrigo voluntarily recalled all its Ranitidine-Containing Products .[84]

371. In its recall notice, Perrigo stated, "[a]fter regulatory bodies announced that ranitidine may potentially contain NDMA, Perrigo promptly began testing of its externally sourced ranitidine API (active pharmaceutical ingredient) and ranitidine-based products. On October 8, 2019, Perrigo halted shipments of the product based upon preliminary results. Based on the totality of data gathered to date, Perrigo has made the decision to conduct this voluntary recall."[85]

372. On November 1, 2019, the FDA announced the results of recent testing, finding unacceptable levels of NDMA in Ranitidine-Containing Products , and requested that drug makers begin to voluntarily recall their Ranitidine-Containing Products if the FDA or manufacturers discovered NDMA levels above the acceptable limits.[86]

373. On December 4, 2019, the FDA issued a statement notifying consumers who wished to continue taking ranitidine to consider limiting their intake of nitrite-containing foods, e.g., processed meats and preservatives like sodium nitrite.[87] This advice mirrored an admonition issued by Italian scientists in 1981 after finding that ranitidine reacted with nitrites in vitro to form toxic and mutagenic effects in bacteria. The prudent advice of Dr. de Flora published in October 1981 in The Lancet was to "avoid nitrosation as far as possible by, for example, suggesting a diet low in nitrates and nitrites, by asking patients not to take these at times close to (or with) meals or by giving inhibitors of nitrosation such as ascorbic acid."[88]

374. If GSK had only heeded Dr. de Flora's advice in 1981, millions of people might have avoided exposure to NDMA formed as a result of ranitidine's interaction with the human digestive system.

375. Between November 1, 2019 and February 27, 2020, Defendants Amneal and Glenmark recalled their products from the market, citing NDMA concerns.[89]

376. On January 2, 2020, research laboratory, Emery Pharma, submitted a Citizen Petition to the FDA, showing that the ranitidine molecule is heat-liable and under certain temperatures progressively accumulates NDMA.

377. Emery's Citizen Petition outlined its substantial concern that ranitidine is a time- and temperature-sensitive pharmaceutical product that develops NDMA when exposed to heat, a common occurrence during shipping, handling, and storage. Emery requested that the FDA issue a directive to manufacturers to clearly label ranitidine with a warning that "by-products that are probable carcinogens can be generated if exposed to heat." In addition to warning about this condition, Emery requested agency directives to manufacturers and distributors to ship ranitidine products in temperature-controlled vehicles.[90]

378. In response,[91] on April 1, 2020, the FDA recounted that a recall is an "effective methods[sic] of removing or correcting defective FDA-regulated products . . . particularly when those products present a danger to health."[92] The FDA sought the voluntary consent of manufacturers to accept the recall "to protect the public health from products that present a risk of injury."[93] The FDA found that the recall of all Ranitidine-Containing Products and a public warning of the recall was necessary because the "product being recalled presents a serious health risk."[94] The FDA therefore sent Information Requests to all applicants and pending applicants of Ranitidine-Containing Products "requesting a market withdrawal."[95]

379. The FDA found its stability testing raised concerns that NDMA levels in some Ranitidine-Containing Products stored at room temperature can increase with time to unacceptable levels. In the same vein, FDA testing revealed that higher NDMA levels were found as the products approached their expiration dates. The FDA's testing eroded the agency's confidence that any Ranitidine-Containing Product would remain stable through its labeled expiration date. Consequently, the FDA requested a market withdrawal of all ranitidine products. The FDA also announced to the public that the Agency's laboratory tests indicate that temperature and time contribute to an increase in NDMA levels in some ranitidine products. The FDA's decision to withdraw the drug rendered moot Emery's request for temperature-controlled shipping conditions.

380. The FDA's reaction was consistent with comparable regulatory action throughout the world. Before the FDA acted, over 43 different countries and jurisdictions restricted or banned Ranitidine-Containing Products.[96]

381. The European Medicines Agency ("EMA"), the European Union's equivalent to the FDA, through an Article 31 Referral, determined the sale of all Ranitidine-Containing Products should be suspended on September 19, 2019. On April 30, 2020, the Human Medicines Committee of the EMA "has recommended the suspension of all ranitidine medicines in the EU due to the presence of low levels of an impurity called N-nitrosodimethylamine (NDMA)." The EMA recognizes NDMA as a probable human carcinogen and issued a "precautionary suspension of these medicines in the EU" because "NDMA has been found in several ranitidine medicines above levels considered acceptable, and there are unresolved questions about the source of the impurities."[97]

382. On September 17, 2020, after a ranitidine manufacturer requested that the EMA re-examine its decision and permit ranitidine to be marketed again in the EU, the EMA confirmed its prior recommendation to suspend all ranitidine medicines in the EU due to the presence of NDMA, noting that it is a probable human carcinogen and that there is evidence that NDMA forms from the degradation of ranitidine itself with increasing levels seen over shelf life.[98]

4. How Ranitidine Transforms Into NDMA

384. The degradation occurs independently in two parts of the ranitidine molecule, with the products of the degradation combining to produce NDMA.

385. The formation of NDMA by the reaction of DMA and a nitroso source (such as a nitrite) is well characterized in the scientific literature and has been identified as a concern for contamination of the U.S. water supply.[99] Indeed, in 2003, alarming levels of NDMA in drinking water processed by wastewater-treatment plants were specifically linked to the presence of ranitidine.[100]

386. The high levels of NDMA observed in Ranitidine-Containing Products are a function of various factors. The ranitidine molecule internally degrades to form NDMA. The degradation of ranitidine can increase over time under normal storage conditions, but more so with exposure to heat and/or humidity. Once in the body, ranitidine continues to degrade and can yield increasing levels of NDMA in the human digestive system, and when it interacts with nitrogenous products.

a. Early Understandings as to Formation of NDMA in the Environment of the Human Stomach

387. When the ranitidine molecule is exposed to the acidic environment of the stomach, particularly when accompanied by nitrites (a chemical commonly found in heartburn-inducing foods), the Nitroso molecule (0=N) and the DMA molecule (H_3C-N-CH_3) break off and reform as NDMA.

388. In 1981, Dr. Silvio de Flora, an Italian researcher from the University of Genoa, published the results of experiments he conducted on ranitidine in the well-known journal, The Lancet. When ranitidine was exposed to human gastric fluid in combination with nitrites, his experiment showed "toxic and mutagenic effects."[101] Dr. de Flora hypothesized that these mutagenic effects could have been caused by the "formation of more than one nitroso derivative [which includes NDMA] under our experimental conditions." Id. Dr. de Flora cautioned that, in the context of ranitidine ingestion, "it would seem prudent to … suggest[] a diet low in nitrates and nitrites, by asking patients not to take these at times close to (or with) meals."[102] Id.

389. GSK knew of Dr. de Flora's publication because, two weeks later, GSK responded in The Lancet,[103] claiming that the levels of nitrite needed to induce the production of nitroso derivatives (i.e., NDMA) were not likely to be experienced by people in the real world.[104]

[102] This admonition came two years before the FDA approved Zantac in 1983. Notwithstanding, in 1998 GSK applied for and obtained an indication for OTC Zantac "[f]or the prevention of meal-induced heartburn at a dose of 75 mg taken 30 to 60 minutes prior to a meal." See Ctr. for Drug Eval. & Research, Approval Package (June 8, 1998), https://www.accessdata.fda.gov/drugsatfda_docs/nda/98/20520s1_Zantac.pdf. So GSK specifically invited patients to take Zantac shortly before eating heartburn-inducing food.

[104] This response reflects GSK's reputation for "adopting the most combative, scorched-earth positions in defense of its brands." Jim Edwards, GSK's Alleged Coverup of Bad Avandia Data: A Snapshot of Its Poisonous Corporate Culture, Moneywatch (July 13, 2010) https://www.cbsnews.com/news/gsks-alleged-coverup-of-bad-avandia-data-a-snapshot-of-its-poisonous-corporate-culture/. GSK has no compunction against distorting objective science to maintain lucrative monopoly franchises. Its egregious conduct surrounding Zantac is no isolated incident. GSK endangered patient health while reaping billions of dollars in profits from Paxil, Wellbutrin, and Avandia. It was involved in covering up scientific data, offering illegal kickbacks to prescribing physicians, intimidating witnesses, and defrauding Medicare to profit from these medicines. After Congressional hearings into this outrageous misbehavior, GSK's actions resulted in a criminal investigation and the then-largest guilty plea by a pharmaceutical company for fraud and failure to report safety data in the country's history. Staff Report on GlaxoSmithKline and the Diabetes Drug Avandia, Senate Comm. on Finance, 111th Cong.2d Sess. 1 (Comm. There is currently an open investigation of GSK and Sanofi being conducted by the Department of Justice relating to the failure to disclose to the federal government

390. GSK attended an FDA Advisory Committee in May 1982 where its representative testified and presented evidence relating to the safety of Zantac, including the potential for ranitidine to form nitrosamines. However, GSK failed to disclose its new evidence relating to ranitidine and the formation of a nitrosamine, specifically the formation of NDMA.[105]

391. One month later, in June 1982, GSK submitted its draft Summary Basis of Approval and labeling for Zantac. Again, GSK failed to submit or otherwise disclose its new evidence relating to ranitidine and the formation of NDMA.[106]

392. In its submission to the FDA, GSK discussed its findings from internal studies performed in 1980 that ranitidine formed a different nitrosamine, n-nitroso-nitrolic acid, a potent mutagen, but explained that these results had no "practical clinical significance"[107]:

> Although N-nitroso-nitrolic acid was a potent mutagen, it is not likely to be formed in the stomach of a patient ingesting ranitidine, as an unrealistically large amount of nitrite needs to be present to form and maintain the nitrosamine. For this reason, and also because ranitidine was not carcinogenic in life-span studies in rodents, the in vitro nitrosation of ranitidine to a mutagenic nitrosamine does not seem to have practical clinical significance.

393. In 1980 – before Zantac was approved by the FDA – GSK conducted another study to examine, among other things, how long-term use of ranitidine could affect the levels of nitrite in the human stomach.[108] Remarkably, GSK admitted that ranitidine use caused the proliferation of bacteria in the human stomach that are known to convert nitrates to nitrites, which leads to elevated levels of nitrite in the stomach environment. GSK acknowledged this could increase the risk of forming nitrosamines and, in turn, cancer, but then dismissed this risk because people were allegedly only expected to use Ranitidine-Containing Products for a short-term period:

> The importance of this finding is not clear. High levels of nitrite could react with certain organic compounds to form nitrosamines, which are known carcinogens. To date, however, neither ranitidine nor cimetidine have been carcinogenic in rodents, so the level of human risk cannot be estimated from animal studies. Ranitidine is recommended only for short-term use and carcinogenic risk, if any, should thus be minimized.

394. GSK knew – and indeed specifically admitted – that ranitidine could react with nitrite in the human stomach to form nitrosamines and, at the same time, that long-term use of ranitidine could lead to elevated levels of nitrite in the human stomach. GSK also knew but did not disclose that it had new evidence showing that NDMA was generated by ranitidine under certain conditions.

395. In response to Dr. de Flora's findings, in 1982, GSK conducted a clinical study specifically investigating gastric contents in human patients.[109] The study, in part, specifically measured the levels of N-Nitroso compounds in human gastric fluid. GSK indicated that there were no elevated levels, and even published the results of this study five years later, in 1987. The study, however, was flawed. It did not use gold-standard mass spectrometry to test for NDMA, but instead, used a process that could not measure N-nitrosamines efficiently. And worse, in the testing it did do, GSK refused to test gastric samples that contained ranitidine in them out of concern that samples with ranitidine would contain "high concentrations of N-nitroso compounds being recorded."[110] In other words, GSK intentionally engineered the study to exclude the very samples most likely to contain a dangerous carcinogen.

396. Given the above information that was disclosed relating to the nitrosation potential and formation of nitrosamines, it is shocking that GSK conducted an internal study to assess the formation of NDMA and found that ranitidine, when exposed to sodium nitrite, formed hundreds of thousands of nanograms of NDMA. The GSK study was never published or disclosed to the public.

397. In 1983, the same year GSK started marketing Zantac in the United States, seven researchers from the University of Genoa published a study discussing ranitidine and its genotoxic effects (ability to harm DNA).[111] The researchers concluded "it appears that reaction of ranitidine with excess sodium nitrite under acid conditions gives rise to a nitroso-derivative (or derivatives) [like NDMA] capable of inducing DNA damage in mammalian cells." Id.

398. Then, again in 1983, Dr. de Flora, along with four other researchers, published their complete findings.[112] The results "confirm our preliminary findings on the formation of genotoxic derivatives from nitrite and ranitidine." Again, the authors noted that, "the widespread clinical use [of ranitidine] and the possibility of a long-term maintenance therapy suggest the prudent adoption of some simple measures, such as a diet low in nitrates and nitrites or the prescription of these anti-ulcer drugs at a suitable interval from meals." This admonition carries weight considering GSK's studies indicate that long-term ranitidine consumption, itself, leads to elevated levels of nitrites in the human gut.

402. The high instability of the ranitidine molecule was elucidated in scientific studies investigating ranitidine as a source of NDMA in drinking water and specific mechanisms for the breakdown of ranitidine were proposed.[117] These studies underscore the instability of the NDMA group on the ranitidine molecule and its ability to form NDMA in the environment of water-treatment plants that supply many U.S. cities with water.

403. In 2002, researchers conducted a controlled study to evaluate the concentration of nitrosamines, including NDMA, in the gastric fluid and urine in children with gastritis before and after four to six weeks of treatment with ranitidine.[118] The study reported statistically significant increases in the nitrosamine concentration, including NDMA, in the gastric juice and urine in 93.3% of children after taking ranitidine for only four weeks. The researchers noted that nitrosamines belong to the most potent known carcinogens and no organisms have been found that would be resistant to the harmful effects, that neoplastic lesions induced by nitroso compounds may develop in any organ, and that nitrosamines induced a wide spectrum of tumors in studies using animal models.[119] In addition, the authors noted specifically that NDMA induced similar symptoms of acute poisoning in humans and animals. They advised that prophylactic measures to avoid nitrosamine formation include a diet high in fruits and inclusion of ascorbic acid as well as limiting intake of processed meat. The conclusion was that ranitidine should only be recommended in children after careful consideration.[120]

404. Despite the direct evidence that children taking ranitidine were being exposed to dangerously high levels of carcinogenic nitrosamines including NDMA, which each Defendant knew or should have known, Defendants recklessly continued to market and promote Zantac and/or ranitidine as safe and effective for children.

405. Similarly, in 2016, researchers at Stanford University conducted an experiment on healthy adult volunteers.[121] They measured the NDMA in urine of healthy individuals over the course of 24 hours, administered one dose of ranitidine, and then measured the NDMA in the urine of the same individuals for another 24 hours. The study reported that on average, the level of NDMA increased by 400 times, to approximately 47,000 ng. The only change during that 24-hour period was the consumption of ranitidine. In the study, the scientists further explained that previous studies have indicated a high metabolic conversion rate of NDMA, meaning it will be processed by the human body. This study showed that ranitidine generates NDMA in the human body.

406. Valisure is an online pharmacy that also runs an analytical laboratory that is ISO 17025 accredited by the International Organization for Standardization ("ISO") – an accreditation recognizing the laboratories technical competence for regulatory purposes. Valisure's mission is to help ensure the safety, quality, and consistency of medications and supplements in the market. In response to rising concerns about counterfeit medications, generics, and overseas manufacturing, Valisure developed proprietary analytical technologies that it uses in addition to FDA standard assays to test every batch of every medication it dispenses. Valisure tested ranitidine first by subjecting it to higher temperature and also tested it in conditions simulating the stomach.

407. In its September 9, 2019 Citizen's Petition to the FDA,[122] Valisure disclosed as part of its testing of Ranitidine-Containing Products that in every lot tested there were exceedingly high levels of NDMA. Valisure's ISO 17025 accredited laboratory used FDA recommended GC/MS headspace analysis method FY19-005-DPA for the determination of NDMA levels. As per the FDA protocol, this method was validated to a lower limit of detection of 25 ng.[123] The results of Valisure's testing show levels of NDMA well above 2 million ng per 150 mg Zantac tablet, shown below:

408. This testing by GC-MS demonstrates the instability of the ranitidine molecule and its propensity to break down under higher temperatures.

409. Valisure was concerned that the extremely high levels of NDMA observed in its testing were a product of the modest oven heating parameter of 130 °C in the FDA recommended GC/MS protocol. So Valisure developed a low temperature GC/MS method that could still detect NDMA but would only subject samples to 37 °C, the average temperature of the human body. This method was validated to a lower limit of detection of 100 ng.

410. Valisure tested ranitidine tablets by themselves and in conditions simulating the human stomach. Industry standard "Simulated Gastric Fluid" ("SGF": 50 mM potassium chloride, 85 mM hydrochloric acid adjusted to pH 1.2 with 1.25 g pepsin per liter) and "Simulated Intestinal Fluid" ("SIF": 50 mM potassium chloride, 50 mM potassium phosphate monobasic adjusted to pH 6.8 with hydrochloric acid and sodium hydroxide) were used alone and in combination with various concentrations of nitrite, which is commonly ingested in foods like processed meats and is elevated in the stomach by antacid drugs. The inclusion of nitrite in gastric fluid testing is commonplace and helps simulate the environment of a human stomach.

411. Indeed, Ranitidine-Containing Products were specifically advertised to be used when consuming foods containing high levels of nitrates, such as tacos or pizza.[124]

412. The results of Valisure's tests on ranitidine tablets in biologically relevant conditions demonstrate significant NDMA formation under simulated gastric conditions with nitrite present shown below:

Table 2 – Valisure Biologically Relevant Tests for NDMA Formation

Ranitidine Tablet Studies	NDMA (ng/mL)	NDMA per tablet (ng)

SGF with 50 mM Sodium Nitrite	3,045	304,500

413. Under biologically relevant conditions, when nitrites are present, high levels of NDMA are found in one dose of 150 mg ranitidine, ranging between 245 and 3,100 times above the FDA-allowable limit. One would need to smoke over 500 cigarettes to achieve the same levels of NDMA found in one dose of 150 mg ranitidine at the 25 nanogram level (over 7,000 for the 50 nanogram level).

414. Following the release of Valisure Citizen's Petition, the FDA conducted additional laboratory tests, which showed NDMA levels in all ranitidine samples it tested, including API and the finished drug, both tablets and syrup. The FDA developed SGF and SIF models to use with the LC-MS testing method to estimate the biological significance of in vitro findings. These models are intended to detect the formation of NDMA in systems that approximate the stomach and intestine.

415. When the scientific data is assessed overall, the literature demonstrates that the ingestion of ranitidine already containing NDMA combined with the presence of human-relevant levels of nitrite in the stomach – a substance that is commonly found in foods that induce heartburn and that is known to be elevated in people taking ranitidine for longer than a month – the ranitidine molecule transforms into more NDMA which would dramatically increase a person's risk of developing cancer.

b. Formation of NDMA in Other Organs of the Human Body

416. In addition to the gastric fluid mechanisms investigated in the scientific literature, Valisure identified a possible enzymatic mechanism for the liberation of ranitidine's DMA group via the human enzyme dimethylarginine dimethylaminohydrolase ("DDAH"), which can occur in other tissues and organs separate from the stomach.

417. Valisure explained that liberated DMA can lead to the formation of NDMA when exposed to nitrite present on the ranitidine molecule, nitrite freely circulating in the body, or other potential pathways, particularly in weak acidic conditions such as that in the kidney or bladder. The original scientific paper detailing the discovery of the DDAH enzyme in 1989 specifically comments on the propensity of DMA to form NDMA: "This report also provides a useful knowledge for an understanding of the endogenous source of dimethylamine as a precursor of a potent carcinogen, dimethylnitrosamine [NDMA]."[125]

	Predicted Affinity (kcal/mol)
ADMA	-5.9 ± 0.2
Ranitidine	-6.1 ± 0.1

419. Valisure reported that these results suggest that the enzyme DDAH-1 increases formation of NDMA in the human body when ranitidine is present; therefore, the expression of the DDAH-1 gene is useful for identifying organs most susceptible to this action.

420. Figure 3 below, derived from the National Center for Biotechnology Information, illustrates the expression of the DDAH-1 gene in various tissues in the human body.

421. DDAH-1 is most strongly expressed in the kidneys but also broadly distributed throughout the body, such as in the brain, colon, liver, small intestine, stomach, bladder, and prostate. Valisure noted that this offers both a general mechanism for NDMA formation in the human body from ranitidine and specifically raises concern for the effects of NDMA on numerous organs.

422. The possible enzymatic reaction of ranitidine to DDAH-1, or other enzymes, suggests that high levels of NDMA can form throughout the human body. Indeed, ranitidine metabolizes and circulates throughout the human body, crossing the placental and blood-brain barrier, within 1-2 hours. When ranitidine interacts with the DDAH-1 enzyme in various organs throughout the body, it breaks down into NDMA. This observation is validated by the Stanford study, discussed above.

c. Formation of NDMA by Exposure to Heat, Moisture, and/or Time

423. The risk of creating NDMA by exposing ranitidine to heat has been well-known and documented. Early studies, including the one conducted by GSK in the early 1980s, demonstrated that nitrosamines were formed when ranitidine was exposed to heat. This point was underscored in the Valisure petition, which initially used a high-heat testing method.

424. In response to Valisure, on October 2, 2019, the FDA recommended that researchers use the LC-HRMS protocol for detecting NDMA in ranitidine because the "testing method does not use elevated temperatures" and has been proven capable of detecting NDMA.

425. On January 2, 2020, Emery, an FDA-certified pharmaceutical testing laboratory, conducted a series of tests on ranitidine. The researchers exposed ranitidine to 70 ˚C for varying periods of time. The results showed that increasing levels of NDMA formed based on exposure to heat. As reported by Emery, the following diagram reveals how NDMA accumulates over time when exposed to 70 ˚C:

426. The researchers cautioned:

> NDMA accumulates in ranitidine-containing drug products on exposure to elevated temperatures, which would be routinely reached during shipment and during storage. More importantly, these conditions occur post-lot release by the manufacturer. Hence, while NDMA levels in ranitidine may be acceptable at the source, they may not be so when the drug is purchased and subsequently at the time of consumption by the consumer.[126]

427. The results of this data demonstrate that in normal transport and storage, and especially when exposed to heat or humidity, the ranitidine molecule systematically breaks down into NDMA, accumulating over time in the finished product. Considering Ranitidine-Containing Products have an approved shelf life of 36 months, the possibility of the drug accumulating dangerously high levels of NDMA prior to consumption is very real – a point underscored by the FDA's swift removal of the product from the market.

428. In fact, the FDA acknowledged that testing revealed that NDMA levels in ranitidine products stored at room temperature can increase with time to unacceptable levels.[127]

429. In 2019, the findings by Valisure unleashed an avalanche of regulatory authorities throughout the world demanding that the manufacturers of Zantac and/or ranitidine conduct testing of their products for the presence of NDMA as well as investigate the root cause as to how NDMA was being generated. In April 2020, the FDA requested that manufacturers immediately remove all Ranitidine-Containing Products from the market.

430. In the interim between the Valisure findings being released to the public and the FDA announcement requesting recall of all ranitidine products in April 2020, the manufacturers were investigating the root cause of NDMA in their products.

431. After undertaking an investigation, GSK concluded that "the presence of NDMA in ranitidine drug substance is due to a slow degradation reaction occurring primarily in the solid state. The two constituent parts of NDMA, the nitroso group and the dimethylamino group, are both derived from internal degradation reactions which occur at slow rates with the ranitidine molecule."[128] Unsurprisingly, GSK [redacted][129] In addition, GSK's testing revealed [redacted].[130]

434. Defendants could independently dictate the conditions under which API was transported to them. The labeling requirements do not apply to transporting API, in part because the finished product and API are packaged differently and may degrade under different conditions.

5. Evidence Directly Links Ranitidine Exposure to Cancer

436. In addition to numerous epidemiology studies examining how NDMA causes cancer in humans, researchers have also specifically looked at ranitidine and found an association with cancer.

437. One epidemiology study, published in 2004, showed that men taking either ranitidine or cimetidine (Tagamet) had increased risks of bladder cancer.[134]

438. In another epidemiology study, published in 2008, specifically designed to look at breast cancer, ranitidine was shown to more than double the risk, an effect that was even more pronounced in those with specific gene mutations.[135]

439. Another epidemiological study, published in 2000, looking at various cancer risks and histamine H_2-receptor antagonists (or H_2 blockers), including ranitidine, the data showed that ranitidine consumption increased the risk of prostate, lung, esophageal, pancreatic, and kidney cancer.[136] Of particular note, the study indicated that people under the age of 60 who took ranitidine were five times more likely to develop prostate cancer. In addition, there was more than a doubling of the risk of pancreatic cancer with ranitidine use.

440. A study published in 2018, demonstrated an increased risk of liver cancer associated with use of ranitidine in comparison with other H_2 blockers in the class. The purpose of the study was to determine whether there was an increased risk of liver cancer associated with proton pump inhibitors, a different class of medications indicated for the treatment of GERD. This finding is particularly notable as the authors adjusted for variables.[137]

441. In 2018, a study found an increased risk in hepatocellular carcinoma associated with use of H_2 blockers.[138] The authors were evaluating the risk of cancer in association with proton pump inhibitors and looked at H_2 blockers as a confounder. The study only considered use of H_2 blockers within one year of cancer diagnosis and still found an increased odds ratio associated with use of H_2 blockers and hepatocellular carcinoma, a type of liver cancer.

442. A number of other studies have been published over the years showing an increased risk of various cancers associated with use of ranitidine and/or H_2 blockers.[139] These cancers include breast, gastric, pancreatic, and stomach cancer. Additional research reports that ranitidine use was associated with a significant increase in the risk of bladder, breast, colorectal/intestinal, esophageal, gastric, kidney, liver, lung, pancreatic, and prostate cancer.[140]

B. Defendants' Knowledge of the NDMA Risk

443. NDMA has been known to be a probable human carcinogen since the 1970s.[141]

444. In 1980, GSK, the originator of the ranitidine molecule, studied how the long term use of ranitidine could affect and elevate the levels of nitrates in the human stomach thus increasing risk of forming nitrosamines and turn into cancer. See supra ¶¶392-93.

445. As early as 1981, two years before Zantac entered the market, research showed elevated rates of NDMA, when properly tested.[142] This was known to GSK and should have been known by each Defendant prior to their manufacturing, marketing, labeling, packaging, handling, distribution, and/or sale of ranitidine as the information was available in medical literature.

446. In 1981, GSK published a study focusing on the metabolites of ranitidine in urine using liquid chromatography.[143] Many metabolites were listed, though there is no indication that the study looked for NDMA.

447. Indeed, also in 1981, Dr. de Flora published a note discussing the results of his experiments showing that ranitidine was turning into mutagenic N-nitroso compounds, of which NDMA is one, in human gastric fluid when accompanied by nitrites—a substance commonly found in food and in the body.[144] GSK was aware of this study because GSK specifically responded to the note and attempted to discredit it. 452. By 1987, after numerous studies raised concerns over ranitidine and cancerous nitroso compounds, GSK published a clinical study specifically investigating gastric contents in human patients and N-nitroso compounds.[146] That study specifically indicated that there were no elevated levels of N-nitroso compounds (of which NDMA is one). But the study was flawed. It used an analytical system called a "nitrogen oxide assay" for the determination of N-nitrosamines, which was developed for analyzing food and is a detection method that indirectly and non-specifically measures N-nitrosamines. Not only is that approach not accurate, but GSK also removed all gastric samples that contained ranitidine out of concern that samples with ranitidine would contain "high concentrations of N-nitroso compounds being recorded." Without the chemical being present in any sample, any degradation into NDMA could not, by design, be observed. The inadequacy of that test was knowable in light of its scientific publication in 1987.

453. All of this was known or available to Defendants before 2000 when Pfizer acquired Warner-Lambert and took over control of the NDA for Zantac in the United States.

454. All Defendants either knew or should have known about the inadequacy of GSK's studies, the impact and cautionary instructions of independent studies, and should have, through due diligence and/or their own independent testing, investigated the issue properly and/or took action to protect consumers from the NDMA risks in their products. None did.

[146] Thomas et al., supra n.109.

C. The Federal Regulatory Landscape

455. Plaintiffs reference federal law herein not in any attempt to enforce it, but only to demonstrate that their state-law claims do not impose any additional obligations on Defendants, beyond what is already required of them under federal law.

1. Generic Drugs

456. According to the FDA, "[a] generic drug is a medication created to be the same as an already marketed brand-name drug in dosage form, safety, strength, route of administration, quality, performance characteristics, and intended use. These similarities help to demonstrate bioequivalence, which means that a generic medicine works in the same way and provides the same clinical benefit as its brand-name version. In other words, you can take a generic medicine as an equal substitute for its brand-name counterpart."[147]

457. While brand medications undergo a more rigorous review before being approved, generic manufacturers are permitted to submit an ANDA. As the first "A" in ANDA denotes, the generic approval process is "abbreviated" to serve Congress's intent to expeditiously offer consumers lower-cost, previously approved medicines. But the abbreviated NDA process does not absolve generic manufacturers of their obligations to ensure that their drugs are safe and effective. To obtain FDA approval, an ANDA applicant must demonstrate that the generic medicine is the same as the brand version in the following ways:

[147] U.S. Food & Drug Admin., Generic Drugs: Questions & Answers U.S. Food and Drug Administration, https://www.fda.gov/drugs/questions-answers/generic-drugs-questions-answers (current as of June 1, 2018)

(a) The active ingredient in the generic medicine is the same as in the brand drug/innovator drug.

(b) The generic medicine has the same strength, use indications, form (such as a tablet or an injectable), and route of administration (such as oral or topical).

(c) The inactive ingredients of the generic medicine are acceptable.

(d) The generic medicine is manufactured under the same strict standards as the brand medicine.

(e) The container in which the medicine will be shipped and sold is appropriate.[148]

458. Because the brand manufacturer previously demonstrated clinical safety and efficacy when the NDA was approved, an ANDA applicant does not need to do so if it can show bioequivalence to the branded, reference listed drug ("RLD"). Bioequivalence is the "absence of a significant difference" in the pharmacokinetic profiles of two pharmaceutical products.[149]

459. Though an ANDA applicant's drug must be bioequivalent to the RLD, no two manufacturers' drugs will be exactly the same. For that reason, generic manufacturers are responsible for conducting their own, independent stability testing, which must be "designed to assess the stability characteristics of drug products."[150]

460. Because a generic manufacturer's drug must be bioequivalent to the RLD, a compliant generic label should be "the same as the labeling of the reference listed drug" in many respects.[151] But because a generic drug may not be exactly the same as the RLD, the generic label "may include differences in expiration date, formulation, bioavailability, or pharmacokinetics,

[151] Id. §314.94(a)(8)(iii).

labeling revisions made to comply with current FDA labeling guidelines or other guidance."[152] This regulation by its terms does not apply to non-label elements of a generic drug, including the container and number of units.

461. Pursuant to this regulation, it is common for a generic drug's label to differ from the RLD by setting a different expiration date, requiring the drug to be shipped and stored under different temperature conditions, and/or requiring the drug to receive different (or no) exposure to light. Several of the Generic Prescription Manufacturer Defendants relied on 21 C.F.R. §314.94(a)(8)(iv) and their independent stability studies to sell approved, generic ranitidine with labels that differed from the RLD label.

2. Federal Law Required the Manufacturer Defendants To Notify the FDA About the Presence of NDMA In Ranitidine-Containing Products

462. During the time that any Defendants manufactured and sold Ranitidine-Containing Products in the United States, the weight of scientific evidence showed that ranitidine exposed users to unsafe levels of NDMA. Defendants failed to report these risks to the FDA.

463. Defendants concealed the ranitidine–NDMA link from ordinary consumers in part by not reporting it to the FDA, which relies on drug manufacturers (or others, such as those who submit citizen petitions) to bring new information about an approved drug like ranitidine to the agency's attention.

464. Manufacturers (brand and generic) of an approved drug are required by regulation to submit an annual report to the FDA containing, among other things, new information regarding the drug's safety pursuant to 21 C.F.R. §314.81(b)(2):

> The report is required to contain . . . [a] brief summary of significant new information from the previous year that might affect the safety, effectiveness, or > labeling of the drug product. The report is also required to contain a brief description of actions the applicant has taken or intends to take as a result of this new information, for example, submit a labeling supplement, add a warning to the labeling, or initiate a new study.

465. 21 C.F.R. §314.81(b)(2)(v) provides that the manufacturer's annual report must also contain:

> Copies of unpublished reports and summaries of published reports of new toxicological findings in animal studies and in vitro studies (e.g., mutagenicity) conducted by, or otherwise obtained by, the [manufacturer] concerning the ingredients in the drug product.

466. Manufacturer Defendants ignored these regulations and, disregarding the scientific evidence available to them regarding the presence of NDMA in their products and the risks associated with NDMA, did not report to the FDA significant new information affecting the safety or labeling of Ranitidine-Containing Products.

467. Knowledge regarding the risk of NDMA in ranitidine was sufficiently available in the publicly available scientific literature such that any manufacturer, consistent with its heightened obligations to ensure the safety of its products, also should have known about the potential NDMA risks associated with ranitidine consumption.

468. Manufacturer Defendants never conducted or provided the relevant studies to the FDA, nor did they present the FDA with a proposed disclosure noting the various ways that ranitidine transforms into NDMA. Accordingly, because Manufacturer Defendants never properly disclosed the risks to the FDA, they never proposed any labeling or storage / transportation guidelines that would have addressed this risk. Thus, the FDA was never able to reject any proposed warning or proposal for storage/transport.

469. When the FDA eventually learned about the NDMA risks posed by Ranitidine-Containing Products, it ordered manufacturers to voluntarily remove the products from the market.

Thus, had any Manufacturer Defendant alerted the FDA to the risks of NDMA, the FDA would have required the manufacturers to remove Ranitidine-Containing Products from the market.

3. Good Manufacturing Practices

470. Under federal law, a manufacturer must manufacture, store, warehouse, and distribute pharmaceutical drugs in accordance with "Current Good Manufacturing Practices" ("CGMPs") to ensure they meet safety, quality, purity, identity, and strength standards.[153]

471. 21 C.F.R. §210.1(a) states that the CGMPs establish "minimum current good manufacturing practice for methods to be used in, and the facilities or controls to be used for, the manufacture, processing, packing, or holding of a drug to assure that such drug meets the requirements of the act as to safety, and has the identity and strength and meets the quality and purity characteristics that it purports or is represented to possess." Entities at all phases of the design, manufacture, and distribution chain are bound by these requirements.

472. Pursuant to 21 C.F.R. §211.142(b), the warehousing of drug products shall provide for "[s]torage of drug products under appropriate conditions of temperature, humidity, and light so that the identity, strength, quality, and purity of the drug products are not affected." In other words, Defendants had a duty and were obligated to properly store, handle, and warehouse ranitidine.

473. Testing conducted by the FDA confirms that under accelerated conditions the elevated temperatures can lead to the presence of NDMA in the drug product.[154] FDA has also concluded that NDMA can increase in ranitidine under storage conditions allowed by the labels, and NDMA has been found to increase significantly in samples stored at higher temperatures, including temperatures the product may be exposed to during normal distribution and handling. FDA's testing also showed that the level of NDMA in Ranitidine-Containing Products increases with time. And while Emery's Citizen Petition sought to obtain a directive regarding temperature-controlled shipping of ranitidine, which was necessary given the time and temperature sensitivity of the drug, that request was deemed moot by the FDA because the agency sought to withdraw Ranitidine-Containing Products altogether.

474. Nothing prevented any Defendant from, on their own, taking actions to prevent accumulation of NDMA in Ranitidine-Containing Products by ensuring that ranitidine was not exposed to heat or moisture over long periods.

V. EQUITABLE TOLLING OF APPLICABLE STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS

A. Discovery-Rule Tolling

475. Within the period of any applicable statutes of limitation, Plaintiffs and members of the proposed Classes could not have discovered through the exercise of reasonable diligence that Defendants were not disclosing the high levels of the carcinogen, NDMA, in Ranitidine-Containing Products, including Zantac.

476. Plaintiffs and the other Class members did not discover, and did not know of, facts that would have caused a reasonable person to suspect that Defendants did not disclose the high levels of NDMA in Ranitidine-Containing Products, including Zantac. The information linking ranitidine to NDMA was contained exclusively in articles published in scientific journals and intended for the scientific audience. Plaintiffs and Class members did not have access to these scientific articles because they were behind a paywall. And even if the articles had been more widely available, the significance of the information in these highly technical articles would not have been apparent to Plaintiffs or Class members.

477. Plaintiffs and Class members could not have reasonably discovered the true extent of Defendants' deception with regard to the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products until Valisure filed its citizen petition disclosing the extremely high levels of NDMA in Ranitidine-Containing Products, including Zantac.

478. For these reasons, all applicable statutes of limitation have been tolled by operation of the discovery rule.

B. Fraudulent-Concealment Tolling

479. All applicable statutes of limitation have also been tolled by Defendants' fraudulent concealment of the fact that the ranitidine in Ranitidine-Containing Products, including Zantac, produces high levels of the carcinogen NDMA when ingested.

480. Instead of disclosing the link between ranitidine and the carcinogen, NDMA, Defendants continued to manufacture and sell Ranitidine-Containing Products without disclosing this information on the drug's label or anywhere else.

C. Estoppel

481. Defendants were under a continuous duty to disclose to Plaintiffs and the other Class members the risk of NDMA exposure associated with Ranitidine-Containing Products, including Zantac.

482. Defendants knowingly, affirmatively, and actively concealed or recklessly disregarded the true risks of NDMA exposure associated with Ranitidine-Containing Products, including Zantac, and never updated the drug's label to disclose this risk.

483. Based on the foregoing, Defendants are estopped from relying on any statutes of limitations in defense of this action.

VI. THE RICO CLAIM

484. Plaintiffs incorporate by reference paragraphs 273 through 277 above, regarding this Court's jurisdiction and venue, as though fully set forth herein.

A. Parties

1. The RICO Defendants

485. Plaintiffs incorporate by reference paragraphs 1 through 22 above as though fully set forth herein. For the purposes of this claim, Defendants GSK, Pfizer, BI, and Sanofi are collectively referred to as "RICO Defendant(s)."

486. The RICO Defendants designed, manufactured, tested, marketed, labeled, packaged, and/or sold ranitidine under the brand name Zantac, and in some cases a generic equivalent, by either prescription or OTC.

2. The RICO Plaintiffs

487. For the purposes of this claim, the Plaintiffs identified in the table below are collectively referred to as "RICO Plaintiff(s)." Each RICO Plaintiff incorporates by reference the allegations specific to them from Section II.B., supra. Each RICO Plaintiff purchased OTC Zantac manufactured and/or sold by one or more of the RICO Defendants, as indicated in the chart below:

B. Factual Allegations

1. The RICO Defendants Worked Together to Develop, Manufacture, and Sell Zantac, Catapulting It to Continuing Market Success

488. Ranitidine belongs to a class of medications called histamine H_2-receptor antagonists (or H_2 blockers), which decrease the amount of acid produced by cells in the lining of the stomach. Other drugs within this class include cimetidine (branded Tagamet), famotidine (Pepcid), and nizatidine (Axid).

489. GSK-predecessor Smith, Kline & French discovered and developed Tagamet, the first H_2 blocker and the prototypical histamine H_2 receptor antagonist from which the later members of the class were developed.

490. GSK[155] developed Zantac specifically in response to the success of cimetidine. Recognizing the extraordinary potential of having its own H_2 blocker in the burgeoning anti-ulcer market, GSK was all too willing to ensure its drug succeeded at all costs.

[155] GSK, as it is known today, was created through a series of mergers and acquisitions: In 1989, Smith, Kline & French merged with the Beecham Group to form SmithKline Beecham plc. In 1995, Glaxo merged with the Wellcome Foundation to become Glaxo Wellcome plc. In 2000,

491. In 1976, scientist John Bradshaw, on behalf of GSK-predecessor Allen & Hanburys Ltd., synthesized and discovered ranitidine.

492. Allen & Hanburys Ltd., a then-subsidiary of Glaxo Laboratories Ltd., is credited with developing ranitidine and was awarded Patent No. 4,128,658 by the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office in December 1978, which covered the ranitidine molecule.

493. In 1983, the FDA granted approval to Glaxo to manufacture and sell prescription Zantac in the United States, pursuant to the New Drug Application ("NDA") No. 18-703.

494. In 1995, as the result of a joint effort between Glaxo and Warner-Lambert,[156] the FDA approved OTC Zantac 75 mg tablets through NDA 20-520. In 1998, the FDA approved OTC Zantac 75 mg effervescent tablets through NDA 20-745.

495. On August 31, 2004, the FDA approved Pfizer's NDA 21-698 to market and sell OTC Zantac 150 mg.

496. Prescription and OTC Zantac (and their generic equivalents) were available for sale in the United States until October 18 and 23, 2019, when GSK and Sanofi, respectively, voluntarily recalled their products. Thereafter, on April 1, 2020, the FDA requested withdrawal of Zantac and all other Ranitidine-Containing Products from the market.

497. As fully detailed below, the rights to manufacture and/or sell Zantac changed hands throughout the years (1983-2019) from Glaxo (turned GSK) to Warner-Lambert (turned Pfizer) to Boehringer Ingelheim to Sanofi.

Glaxo Wellcome plc merged with SmithKline Beecham plc to form GlaxoSmithKline plc and GlaxoSmithKline LLC.

[156] Pfizer acquired Warner-Lambert in 2000.

498. The times during which each RICO Defendant manufactured and/or sold Zantac and other Ranitidine-Containing Products globally are alleged below:

Manufacturer	Product	Prescription or Over the Counter	Sale Start Date Year	Sale End Date Year
GSK	Pills, Syrup, and Injection	Prescription/OTC	1983	2019
Pfizer	Pills	OTC	1995	2006
BI	Pills	OTC	1997 2006	1998 2019
Sanofi	Pills	Prescription/OTC	1983	2019

499. Throughout this long and continuous period of sale, the RICO Defendants entered into numerous mutually beneficial agreements with each other and other co-conspirators regarding the development, marketing, manufacture, and/or sale of Zantac. For instance, Glaxo joined with Hoffman-LaRoche to sell prescription Zantac and then with Warner-Lambert to secure FDA approval for OTC Zantac sales. GSK continued to maintain manufacturing and supply agreements relating to various formulations of OTC Zantac, even while Pfizer owned the rights to sell it. And BI continued to manufacture OTC Zantac for Sanofi even after an asset swap granting Sanofi exclusive rights to sell the product in the United States.

500. Despite the inevitable OTC generic entry into the market, the RICO Defendants were wildly successful in their marketing and sale of OTC Zantac through its sudden market withdrawal in October 2019. As recently as 2018, Zantac was one of the top ten antacid tablets in the United States, with sales of OTC Zantac 150 totaling $128.9 million – a 3.1% increase from the previous year.

501. All the while, the RICO Defendants knew or recklessly disregarded contemporaneous red flags showing that Zantac posed material safety risks: the active ingredient in their Ranitidine-Containing Products – ranitidine – was unstable and degraded to form a dangerous known carcinogen – NDMA – rendering those products dangerous to consumers. And for decades, they uniformly omitted the material safety risks from their statements to consumers and the public.

2. NDMA Is Discovered in Ranitidine-Containing Products, Leading to Market Withdrawal

502. On September 9, 2019, pharmacy and testing laboratory Valisure LLC and ValisureRX LLC (collectively, "Valisure") filed a Citizen Petition calling for the recall of all Ranitidine-Containing Products due to detecting exceedingly high levels of NDMA when testing ranitidine pills using gas chromatography-mass spectrometry. FDA and European regulators started reviewing the safety of ranitidine with specific focus on the presence of NDMA.[157] This set off a cascade of recalls by the RICO Defendants and others.

503. In its Citizen's Petition to the FDA,[158] Valisure disclosed as part of its testing of Ranitidine-Containing Products that in every lot tested there were exceedingly high levels of NDMA. Valisure's ISO 17025 accredited laboratory used FDA recommended GC/MS headspace analysis method FY19-005-DPA for the determination of NDMA levels. As per the FDA protocol, this method was validated to a lower limit of detection of 25 ng.[159] The results of Valisure's testing show levels of NDMA well above 2 million ng per 150 mg Zantac tablet, shown below in Table 1.

Table 1 – Ranitidine Samples Tested by Valisure Laboratory Using GC/MS Protocol

Ranitidine, Strides	77024060A	2,951,649

504. This testing by GC/MS demonstrates the instability of the ranitidine molecule and its propensity to break down under higher temperatures.

505. Valisure was concerned that the extremely high levels of NDMA observed in its testing were a product of the modest oven heating parameter of 130°C in the FDA recommended GC/MS protocol. So Valisure developed a low temperature GC/MS method that could still detect NDMA but would only subject samples to 37°C, the average temperature of the human body. This method was validated to a lower limit of detection of 100 ng.

506. Valisure tested ranitidine tablets by themselves and in conditions simulating the human stomach. Industry standard "Simulated Gastric Fluid" ("SGF": 50 mM potassium chloride, 85 mM hydrochloric acid adjusted to pH 1.2 with 1.25 g pepsin per liter) and "Simulated Intestinal Fluid" ("SIF": 50 mM potassium chloride, 50 mM potassium phosphate monobasic adjusted to pH 6.8 with hydrochloric acid and sodium hydroxide) were used alone and in combination with various concentrations of nitrite, which is commonly ingested in foods like processed meats and is elevated in the stomach by antacid drugs. The inclusion of nitrite in gastric fluid testing is commonplace and helps simulate the environment of a human stomach.

507. The results of Valisure's tests on ranitidine tablets in biologically relevant conditions demonstrate significant NDMA formation under simulated gastric conditions with nitrite present (see Table 2).

Table 2 – Valisure Biologically Relevant Tests for NDMA Formation

Ranitidine Tablet Studies	NDMA (ng/mL)	NDMA per tablet (ng)
Tablet without Solvent	Not Detected	Not Detected
Tablet	Not Detected	Not Detected
Simulated Gastric Fluid	Not Detected	Not Detected
Simulated Intestinal Fluid	Not Detected	Not Detected
SGF with 10 mM Sodium Nitrite	Not Detected	Not Detected
SGF with 50 mM Sodium Nitrite	3,045	304,500

508. Under biologically relevant conditions when nitrites are present, high levels of NDMA are found in one dose of 150 mg ranitidine, ranging between 245 and 3,100 times above the FDA-allowable limit. One would need to smoke over 500 cigarettes to achieve the same levels of NDMA found in one dose of 150 mg ranitidine at the 25 nanogram level (over 7,000 for the 50 nanogram level).

509. On September 13, 2019, the FDA's Director for Drug Evaluation and Research, Dr. Janet Woodcock, issued a statement warning that some ranitidine medicines may contain NDMA.[160]

[160] FDA Statement, Woodcock, supra n.39.

510. On October 2, 2019, the FDA ordered manufacturers of ranitidine to test their products and recommended using a liquid chromatography with high resolution mass spectrometer ("LC-HRMS") testing protocol, which "does not use elevated temperatures."[161]

511. On October 8, 2019, GSK recalled all of its Ranitidine-Containing Products internationally.[162] As part of the recall, GSK publicly acknowledged that unacceptable levels of NDMA were discovered in Zantac and noted that "GSK is continuing with investigations into the potential source of the NDMA[.]"[163]

512. On October 18 and 23, 2019, Sanofi recalled all of its Ranitidine-Containing Products.[164]

513. Following the release of Valisure Citizen's Petition, the FDA conducted additional laboratory tests, which showed NDMA levels in all ranitidine samples it tested, including API and the finished drug, both tablets and syrup. The FDA developed SGF and SIF models to use with the LC-HRMS testing method to estimate the biological significance of in vitro findings. These models are intended to detect the formation of NDMA in systems that approximate the stomach and intestine.

514. On November 1, 2019, the FDA announced the results of recent testing, finding unacceptable levels of NDMA in Ranitidine-Containing Products, and requested that drug makers begin to recall their Ranitidine-Containing Products if the FDA or manufacturers discovered NDMA levels above the acceptable limits.[165]

515. On December 4, 2019, the FDA issued a statement notifying consumers who wished to continue taking ranitidine to consider limiting their intake of nitrite-containing foods, e.g., processed meats and preservatives like sodium nitrite.[166]

516. On January 2, 2020, research laboratory Emery Pharma submitted a Citizen Petition to the FDA showing that the ranitidine molecule is heat-labile and under certain temperatures progressively accumulates NDMA.

517. Emery's Citizen Petition outlined its substantial concern that ranitidine is a time- and temperature-sensitive pharmaceutical product that develops NDMA when exposed to heat, a common occurrence during shipping, handling, and storage. Emery requested that the FDA issue a directive to manufacturers to clearly label ranitidine with a warning that "by-products that are probable carcinogens can be generated if exposed to heat." In addition to warning about this condition, Emery requested agency directives to manufacturers and distributors to ship ranitidine products in temperature-controlled vehicles.[167]

518. In response,[168] on April 1, 2020, the FDA recounted that a recall is an "effective methods [sic] of removing or correcting defective FDA-regulated products . . . particularly when those products present a danger to health."[169] The FDA sought the voluntary consent of manufacturers to accept the recall "to protect the public health from products that present a risk of injury."[170]

519. The FDA found that the recall of all Ranitidine-Containing Products and a public warning of the recall was necessary because the "product being recalled presents a serious health risk."[171]

520. The FDA therefore sent Information Requests to all applicants and pending applicants of Ranitidine-Containing Products "requesting a market withdrawal."[172]

521. The FDA's stability testing raised concerns that NDMA levels in some Ranitidine-Containing Products stored at room temperature can increase with time to unacceptable levels. In the same vein, the FDA's testing revealed that higher NDMA levels were found as the products approached their expiration dates. The FDA's testing eroded the agency's confidence that any Ranitidine-Containing Product would remain stable through its labeled expiration date. Consequently, the FDA requested a market withdrawal of all Ranitidine-Containing Products. The FDA also announced to the public that the Agency's laboratory tests indicated that temperature and time contribute to an increase in NDMA levels in some Ranitidine-Containing Products. The FDA's decision to withdraw the drug rendered moot Emery's request for temperature-controlled shipping conditions.

522. The FDA's reaction was consistent with comparable regulatory action throughout the world. Before the FDA acted, over 43 countries and jurisdictions restricted or banned Ranitidine-Containing Products.[173]

523. The European Medicines Agency ("EMA"), the European Union's equivalent to the FDA, through an Article 31 Referral, determined the sale of all Ranitidine-Containing Products should be suspended on September 19, 2019. On April 30, 2020, the Human Medicines Committee of the EMA "recommended the suspension of all ranitidine medicines in the EU due to the presence of low levels of an impurity called N-nitrosodimethylamine (NDMA)." The EMA recognized NDMA as a probable human carcinogen and issued a "precautionary suspension of these medicines in the EU" because "NDMA has been found in several ranitidine medicines above levels considered acceptable, and there are unresolved questions about the source of the impurities."[174]

524. On September 17, 2020, after a ranitidine manufacturer requested that the EMA re-examine its decision and permit ranitidine to be marketed again in the EU, the EMA confirmed its prior recommendation to suspend all ranitidine medicines in the EU due to the presence of NDMA, noting that it is a probable human carcinogen and that there is evidence that NDMA forms from the degradation of ranitidine itself with increasing levels seen over shelf life.[175]

525. The FDA's response was also consistent with its own previous actions. As early as 1980, consumer products containing unsafe levels of NDMA and other nitrosamines have been recalled by manufacturers, either voluntarily or at the direction of the FDA.

526. Most recently, beginning in the summer of 2018, several generic drugs used to treat high blood pressure and heart failure – Valsartan, Losartan, and Irbesartan – were recalled because the medications contained nitrosamine impurities that did not meet the FDA's safety standards.

527. This continued in 2020 when the FDA required recalls of numerous generic manufacturers' metformin.[176]

3. The RICO Defendants Knew of or Recklessly Disregarded Contemporaneous Red Flags Pointing to the Material Safety Risks Posed by Their Ranitidine-Containing Products

528. As much as it surprised consumers, including the RICO Plaintiffs, the knowledge that the RICO Defendants' Ranitidine-Containing Products broke down into NDMA was not a surprise to the RICO Defendants.

529. During the time that the RICO Defendants manufactured, marketed, and sold their Ranitidine-Containing Products in the United States, the weight of scientific evidence showed that ranitidine exposed users to unsafe levels of NDMA. Knowledge regarding the risk of NDMA in ranitidine was set forth in the scientific literature such that each RICO Defendant, consistent with its heightened obligations to ensure the safety of its products, knew about the potential NDMA risks associated with ranitidine consumption or recklessly disregarded contemporaneous red flags.

530. Numerous and exhaustive scientific studies and published articles, dating back to 1981, established the ranitidine-NDMA-cancer connection and material safety concerns with Ranitidine-Containing Products. RICO Defendants knew about or recklessly disregarded the material safety risks, and yet, they omitted from disclosure the material safety risks from their communications with consumers and the public, including the RICO Plaintiffs.

534. These studies were readily available in medical literature such that the RICO Defendants knew about or recklessly disregarded the material safety risks, and yet, they omitted from disclosure the material safety risks from their communications with consumers and the public, including RICO Plaintiffs.

535. Numerous studies that were easily available to RICO Defendants establish that ranitidine use is and has been directly associated with cancer. These studies included:

536. These studies were readily available in medical literature such that the RICO Defendants knew about or recklessly disregarded the material safety risks, and yet, they omitted from disclosure the material safety risks from their communications with consumers and the public, including RICO Plaintiffs.

537. Moreover, GSK/Glaxo conducted its own studies, some with results as early as 1981, confirming its actual knowledge of the material safety risks of Ranitidine-Containing Products, including:

- [redacted][178]
- [redacted][179]

[179] GSKZAN0000369313.

538. Other, published, studies conducted by GSK/Glaxo that purported to minimize the material safety risks were flawed or deliberately manipulated, including:

- Carey et al., Determination of Ranitidine and Its Metabolites in Human Urine by Reversed-phase Ion-pair High-performance Liquid Chromatography, 255 J. Chromatography B: Biomedical Sci. & Appl. 1, 161-68 (1981); and
- Thomas et al., Effects of One Year's Treatment with Ranitidine and of Truncal Vagotomy on Gastric Contents, 6 Gut. Vol. 28, 726-38 (1987).

539. All RICO Defendants either knew about the inadequacy of GSK's studies or recklessly disregarded the material safety risks, and yet they omitted such risks from their statements to consumers and the public. Defendants were sufficiently aware of red flags they had a duty to investigate and warn consumers from the NDMA risks in their products. None did.

540. Notwithstanding the wealth of available studies, including its own, GSK omitted and concealed the material safety risks with its Ranitidine-Containing Products from the public. As we now know from investigations of GSK's conduct with the drugs Paxil, Wellbutrin, and Avandia, the company has a history of covering up scientific data to maintain its profit from the sale of those drugs. In the wake of Congressional hearings into the company's outrageous misbehavior,[180] GSK's actions resulted in a criminal investigation and the then-largest guilty plea by a pharmaceutical company for fraud and failure to report safety data in the country's history.[181]

541. The Department of Justice's ("DOJ") 2012 criminal investigation and resolution of fraud and failure to report safety data allegations against GSK[182] included, inter alia, allegations that GSK failed to disclose unfavorable studies related to its marketing efforts; hired third-party contractors to write medical journal articles for selective favorable studies; influenced the content of studies through threats to withdraw research funding.

542. In 2010, the Senate Finance Committee released a 334-page report that found GSK failed to promptly alert the FDA about drug risks as far back as 2000.[183] Specifically, the Senate Finance Committee found that GSK attempted to "downplay scientific findings about the safety" of one of its popular drugs, Avandia.[184] In addition, the Committee found that GSK utilized a "ghostwriting campaign – a practice by which drug companies initiate authorship of articles, often through a medical education or communications company, that are then marketed to medical journals for publication under the names of doctors without public disclosure that the drug company sought the article in the first place."[185]

543. Because of the numerous and widespread violations identified by the DOJ, in 2012, GSK entered into a Corporate Integrity Agreement ("CIA") with the Office of Inspector General of the Department of Health and Human Services. The CIA applied to "all prescription pharmaceutical products" marketed or sold by GSK in the United States that are reimbursed by federal healthcare programs and required GSK to, inter alia, comply with dozens of provisions related to non-promotional activities including, but not limited to, disclosing and reporting all research-related activities, and disclosing and reporting all publication activities, including disclosure of any GSK financial support for the study and any financial relationship with GSK and disclosure of all authors or contributors (including professional writers) associated with a given publication. The CIA was in effect from June 2012 through December 31, 2017, during which time GSK was manufacturing, marketing, and selling Zantac in the United States and globally.

544. GSK had been engaging in the same behavior and tactics with Zantac and ranitidine for many years before, during, and after the 2012 Department of Justice criminal case. Rather than properly investigate its own findings showing ranitidine, and thus Ranitidine-Containing Products including Zantac, had material safety risks, and those of reputable scientists of which it was aware, GSK instead continued its long-standing pattern of deception and manipulation.

545. Two weeks following Dr. De Flora's 1981 publication showing that ranitidine broke down into NDMA in the human stomach, GSK responded in THE LANCET, claiming that the levels of nitrite needed to induce the production of nitroso derivatives (i.e., NDMA) were not likely to be experienced by people in the real world.[186]

546. Then, in response to Dr. De Flora's findings, in 1982, GSK conducted a clinical study specifically investigating gastric contents in human patients.[187] The study, in part, specifically measured the levels of N-Nitroso compounds in human gastric fluid. GSK indicated that there were no elevated levels, and published the results of this study in 1987. The study, however, was flawed. It did not use industry-standard mass spectrometry to test for NDMA but, instead, used a process that could not measure N-nitrosamines efficiently. And worse, in the testing it did conduct, GSK specifically refused to test gastric samples that contained ranitidine out of concern that samples with ranitidine would contain "high concentrations of N-nitroso compounds being recorded."[188] In other words, GSK intentionally engineered the study to exclude the very samples most likely to contain the dangerous carcinogen.

547. Notwithstanding the above information that was readily available to GSK relating to the nitrosation potential and formation of nitrosamines, GSK conducted an internal study to assess the formation of NDMA and found that ranitidine, when exposed to sodium nitrite, formed hundreds of thousands of nanograms of NDMA. Shockingly, this GSK study was never published or disclosed to the public.

568. There is currently an open investigation of both GSK and Sanofi being conducted by the DOJ relating to the failure to disclose to the federal government information about the potential presence of NDMA in Zantac.[215]

4. The RICO Defendants Conducted an Association-In Fact Enterprise

569. Having created an inherently unstable, unsafe, and worthless product, the RICO Defendants had to conceal the truth from consumers in order to continue to market and profit off the sale of OTC Zantac. To do so, each RICO Defendant was employed by or associated with, and conducted or participated in the affairs of, one or several RICO enterprises (the "Zantac OTC Enterprise"), as described below, with the common purpose of increasing sales of OTC Zantac,[216] while omitting the material safety risks posed by ranitidine, which rendered the RICO Defendants' OTC Zantac (and other Ranitidine-Containing Products) worthless.

570. The Zantac OTC Enterprise consisted of at least the following entities and individuals and likely others:

(a) Sanofi S.A. is a French multi-national pharmaceutical company headquartered in Paris and listed on the NASDAQ. As of June 8, 2020, it had a market capitalization of $63.7 billion. The other Sanofi Defendants are not publicly traded and thus have no SEC reporting obligations, but they have reporting obligations, protections, and responsibilities unique to their respective home states.

(b) BI is a German multi-national company and one of the world's largest pharmaceutical companies and the largest private one. BI operates with 146 affiliates and is owned by the Boehringer, Liebrecht, and von Baumbach families.

(c) Pfizer is an American multi-national pharmaceutical company headquartered in New York City and listed on the New York Stock Exchange. As of June 8, 2020, it had a market capitalization of $203 billion. Other Pfizer entities or divisions, such as Warner-Lambert Consumer Healthcare, are not publicly traded and thus have no SEC reporting obligations, but they have reporting obligations, protections, and responsibilities unique to their respective home states.

(d) GlaxoSmithKline plc is a British multinational pharmaceutical company headquartered in the United Kingdom and listed on the New York Stock Exchange. As of June 8, 2020, it had a market capitalization of $105 billion. The other GSK Defendants are not publicly traded and thus have no SEC reporting obligations, but they have reporting obligations, protections and responsibilities unique to their respective home states.

571. Through their contractual and personal relationships, the members of the Zantac OTC Enterprise had the opportunity to form and take actions in furtherance of this common purpose. Indeed, the RICO Defendants could only achieve their common purpose if they worked together. Had even one RICO Defendant chosen not to participate in the scheme – to tell the truth and conduct the studies necessary to confirm the presence of NDMA – the entire house of cards would have fallen. This point is evidenced by the fact that when the FDA learned the truth – that ranitidine transformed into a dangerous known carcinogen, NDMA – it ordered all Ranitidine-Containing Products to be immediately withdrawn.

572. In order to unlawfully increase the demand for OTC Zantac, the RICO Defendants devised and knowingly carried out a material scheme to defraud consumers and the public by concealing the material safety risks of Ranitidine-Containing Products, including OTC Zantac.

They devised a marketing campaign that was national in scope, spanned decades, and uniformly omitted that ranitidine transforms into NDMA – a known human carcinogen.

573. The RICO Defendants engaged in pervasive and decades-long campaign of omissions, along with co-conspirators, in messages to consumers and the public to conceal the existence of, and material safety risks posed by, NDMA in OTC Zantac.

574. The scheme devised, implemented, and conducted by the RICO Defendants was a common course of conduct designed to ensure that the RICO Defendants unlawfully increased their sales and profits through concealment about the dangerous nature of OTC Zantac. The RICO Defendants acted together for a common purpose and perpetuated the Zantac OTC Enterprise's scheme, including through uniform omissions of OTC Zantac's material safety risks from branded and unbranded marketing, labels, and statements and studies to the public, including a failure to warn consumers through the FDA.

575. There was regular communication between and among the RICO Defendants directly and through industry groups and key opinion leaders ("KOLs"), in which information was shared, omissions and concealment were coordinated, and payments were exchanged. Typically, the coordination, communication, and payment occurred through the repeated and continuing use of the wires and mail in which the RICO Defendants shared information. The RICO Defendants, and their unnamed co-conspirators, functioned as a continuing unit for the purpose of implementing the Zantac OTC Enterprise's scheme and common purpose, and each agreed and took actions to hide the scheme and continue its existence.

576. The RICO Defendants were willing participants in the Zantac OTC Enterprise, had a common purpose and interest in the object of the scheme, and functioned within a structure designed to effectuate the Enterprise's purpose.

577. Each participant in the Zantac OTC Enterprise had a systematic linkage to others through corporate ties, contractual relationships, financial ties, and continuing coordination of activities, including promotional activities, through KOLs, industry trade groups, journal articles, medical studies, and continuing medical education.

578. Following the FDA's 1983 approval for prescription Zantac, it quickly became GSK's most successful product – a "blockbuster." Indeed, Zantac became the first prescription drug in history to reach $1 billion in sales. To accomplish this feat, GSK entered into a joint promotion agreement with Hoffmann-LaRoche, Inc. in December 1982. [redacted].[217] More salespersons drove more sales and blockbuster profits for GSK.

579. In June 1986, the FDA approved Zantac for maintenance therapy of duodenal ulcers and for treatment of patients with GERD. [redacted].[218] and profits equally. Glaxo also was to receive a royalty on all OTC Zantac sales made by the joint venture. There was going to be a six-member management committee with three representatives from each company, while day-to-day management responsibilities were assigned to Warner-Lambert.[220]

581. At a July 28, 1993 securities analysts meeting in New York City, Warner-Lambert Consumer Products Sector President John Walsh ("Walsh") noted that OTC Zantac was currently entering Phase III trials and that Warner-Lambert was "just entering into a series of discussions with Glaxo relative to the development plans." Warner-Lambert, Walsh reported, "is excited by the prospects Zantac has as a next-generation OTC and we have the resources in place to take full advantage of such an opportunity."[221]

582. On December 19, 1995, Glaxo and Warner-Lambert's joint development garnered the FDA's approval of OTC Zantac 75 mg tablets, through NDA 20-520.

583. On December 20 1995, Glaxo Wellcome and Warner-Lambert signed a new agreement, wherein Glaxo Wellcome and Warner-Lambert created a new company, Warner Wellcome Consumer Healthcare. The terms of that deal related to Zantac stay largely the same: a 50/50 split on Zantac and on other Glaxo Rx products coming down the pipe to the OTC market.[222] The joint venture also appeared to include OTC versions of Zovirax and Beconase.[223]

584. In 1998, the FDA approved the OTC Zantac 75 mg effervescent tablets through NDA 20-745.

585. Having secured OTC Zantac approval and launched it to rapid success, Glaxo Wellcome and Warner-Lambert dissolved their joint development and shared OTC profits-partnership in December 1998. Of course, this did not spell the end of their ongoing relationship and financial ties, which continued on through GSK and Pfizer. As part of the dissolution, Warner-Lambert Co. retained control over the OTC NDA for Zantac and the Zantac trademark in the United States and Canada, but it was required to obtain approval from GSK prior to making any product or trademark improvements or changes. GSK retained rights to sell OTC Zantac outside of the United States and Canada[224] and retained control over the Zantac trademark internationally.[225] GSK continued to manufacture the product for many years, and many former GSK employees responsible for work on OTC Zantac moved with the product to Warner-Lambert to continue their work, [redacted]

586. In 2000, Pfizer acquired Warner-Lambert Co. Pfizer controlled the Zantac OTC NDAs until December 2006, and during the time that Pfizer owned the rights to OTC Zantac, GSK continued to manufacture the product.

587. In October 2000, GSK sold Pfizer the full rights to OTC Zantac in the United States and Canada pursuant to a divestiture and transfer agreement. As part of that agreement, GSK divested all domestic OTC Zantac assets to Pfizer, including all trademark rights. The agreement removed the restrictions on Pfizer's ability to seek product line extensions or the approval for higher doses of OTC Zantac. GSK retained the right to exclusive use of the Zantac name for any prescription Ranitidine-Containing Product in the United States.

588. GSK continued manufacturing and marketing prescription Zantac in the United States until 2017 and still holds the NDAs for several prescription formulations of Zantac. GSK continued to maintain manufacturing and supply agreements relating to various formulations of both prescription and OTC Zantac. According to its recent annual report, GSK claims to have "discontinued making and selling prescription Zantac tablets in 2017 . . . in the U.S."[226] that period.[228] Additionally, from 1997 through 1999, BI also manufactured generic prescription Ranitidine-Containing Products under the ANDA 24662.

593. In 2017, BI sold the rights of OTC Zantac to Sanofi pursuant to an asset swap agreement. As part of that deal, Sanofi obtained control of and responsibility for BI's entire consumer healthcare business, including the OTC Zantac NDAs. As part of this agreement, BI and Sanofi entered into a manufacturing agreement wherein BI continued to manufacture OTC Zantac for Sanofi. A number of BI's employees involved in the manufacture, marketing, sale and safety of OTC Zantac followed the product and went to work for Sanofi.

594. Sanofi controlled the OTC Zantac NDAs and marketed, sold, and distributed OTC Zantac in the United States from January 2017 until late 2019, when it issued a global recall and ceased marketing, selling, and distributing OTC Zantac. [redacted].[229]

595. Throughout the time that Sanofi controlled the OTC Zantac NDAs, Boehringer Ingelheim Promeco, S.A. de C.V. and Patheon Manufacturing Services LLC manufactured that finished drug product.

596. Additionally, the RICO Defendants participated together in, were members of, or funded industry groups where they communicated regularly about scientific studies and messaging related to, among other things, ranitidine, nitrosamines, and Zantac. Such groups included the Consumer Healthcare Products Association ("CHPA") f/k/a the NonPrescription Drug Manufacturers' Association, the Oklahoma Foundation for Digestive Research ("OFDR"), American College of Gastroenterology ("ACG"), and the Joint Pharmaceutical Analysis Group.

PRESCRIBING INFORMATION:
Indications Duodenal ulcer, benign gastric ulcer, ulcers associated with non-steroidal anti-inflammatory drugs (NSAIDs), prevention of NSAID-associated duodenal ulcer, oesophageal reflux disease, severe oesophagitis, long-term management of healed oesophagitis, chronic episodic dyspepsia. Dosage Adults: Duodenal ulceration and gastric ulceration: A single 300mg dose at bedtime or 150mg twice daily in the morning and evening for four weeks. In duodenal ulcers, 300mg twice daily produces higher healing rates at four weeks. Continued maintenance treatment of 150mg at bedtime is recommended for patients with a history of recurrent ulceration. Ulcers following non-steroidal anti-inflammatory drug therapy or associated with continued non-steroidal anti-inflammatory drugs: 150mg twice daily for up to eight weeks. Prevention of NSAID-associated duodenal ulcer: 150mg twice daily concomitantly with NSAID therapy. Chronic episodic dyspepsia: 150mg twice daily for six weeks, investigate early relapsers and non-responders. Oesophageal reflux disease: 300mg at bedtime or 150mg twice daily for up to eight weeks. Moderate to severe oesophagitis: 150mg four times daily for up to twelve weeks (see data sheet for full dosage instructions). Long-term treatment of healed oesophagitis: 150mg twice daily. Children: Oral dose for peptic ulcer: 2mg/kg to 4mg/kg, twice daily to a maximum of 300mg per day. Contra-indications Patients with known hypersensitivity to ranitidine. Precautions In patients in whom sodium restriction is indicated, care should be taken when administering sodium-containing Effervescent Tablets. Exclude the possibility of malignancy in gastric ulcer before instituting therapy, especially in middle-aged patients with new or recently changed dyspeptic symptoms. Regular supervision of patients taking NSAIDs concomitantly with Zantac is recommended, especially if elderly. Protects against NSAID-associated ulceration in duodenum and not in stomach. Reduce dosage in the presence of severe renal failure (see data sheet). Avoid in patients with history of porphyria. Effervescent Tablets contain aspartame, use with caution in patients with phenylketonuria. Like other drugs, use during pregnancy and lactation only if strictly necessary. Side effects Headache, dizziness, skin rash, occasional hepatitis, rarely arthralgia, myalgia. Rarely, reversible mental confusion states, usually in very ill or elderly patients. Rare cases of leucopenia and thrombocytopenia, usually reversible, agranulocytosis and pancytopenia. Hypersensitivity reactions, anaphylactic shock. Rare cases of breast symptoms in men. As with other H_2-receptor antagonists rare cases of bradycardia, A-V block and asystole (see data sheet). Presentations Zantac 150 Tablets each containing 150mg ranitidine HCl. (Product licence number 0049/0042, 60 tablets £27.89); Zantac 300 Tablets each containing 300mg ranitidine HCl (Product licence number 0049/0043, 30 tablets £27.43); Zantac Effervescent Tablets each containing 150mg ranitidine HCl and 34.5mEq sodium, (Product licence number 0004/0392, 60 tablets £27.89); Zantac Effervescent Tablets each containing 300mg ranitidine HCl and 20.8mEq sodium (Product licence number 0004/0393, 30 tablets £27.43). ZANTAC TAKING THE STING OUT OF NSAIDs.

NSAIDs claim around 3,000 lives a year in the UK alone.[1] Patients with a history of ulcer disease being at greatest risk of life-threatening complications.[2]

However, NSAIDs also keep a great many arthritis sufferers mobile.

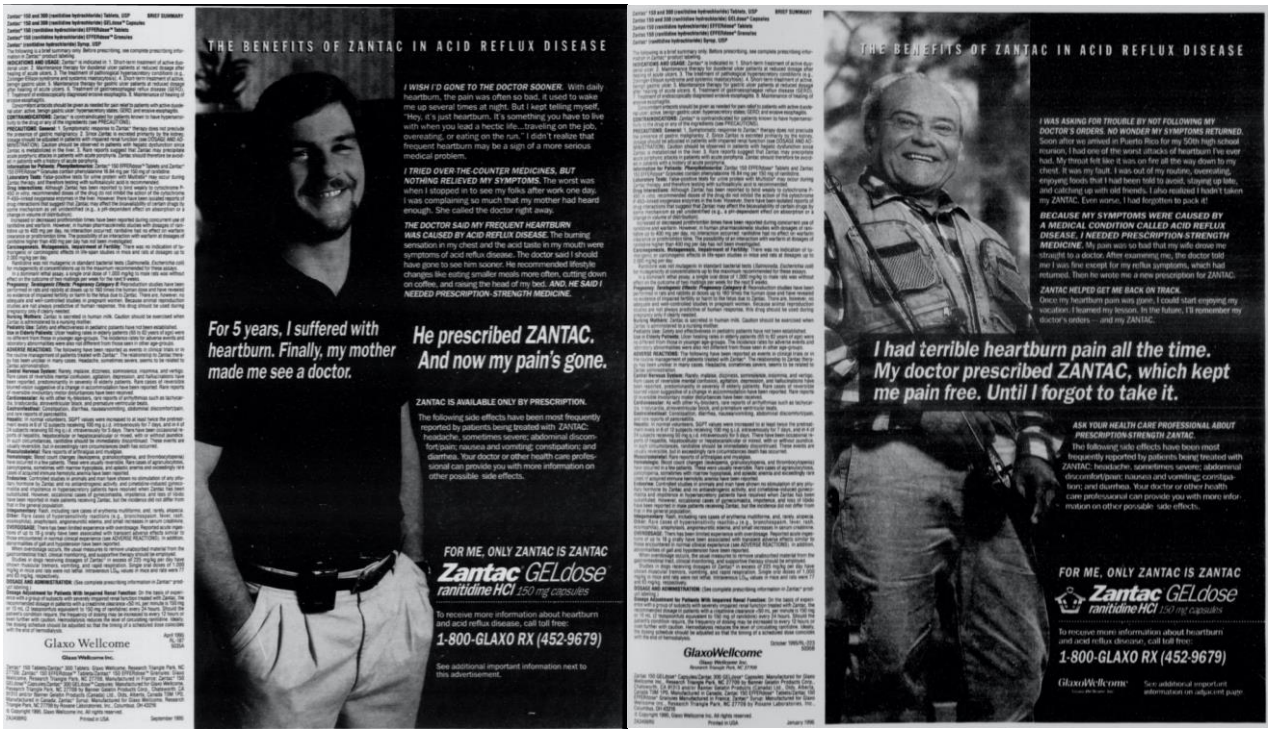
So, let Zantac help put an end to this sting in the tail. It's an effective treatment. Successfully healing both duodenal and gastric ulcers.[3] But, used as prophylaxis, Zantac can actually prevent NSAID-associated duodenal ulcers.[4] In fact it's the only H_2 licensed to do this.[5]

Give your high risk NSAID patients Zantac. And you can still give them the freedom of movement.

Zantac RANITIDINE HCl

617. And GSK ran the following newspaper ads in 1995 and 1996, which featured narrative accounts of patients suffering from Acid Reflux Disease visiting their doctors and being prescribed Zantac, which again did not disclose the material safety risks:[263]

[263] BLUEFIELD DAILY TELEGRAPH (Nov. 5, 1995), https://newspaperarchive.com/bluefield-daily-telegraph-nov-05-1995-p-56/ (publication located in Bluefield, WV); ALAMOGORDO DAILY NEWS, (Feb. 25, 1996), https://newspaperarchive.com/alamogordo-daily-news-feb-25-1996-p-40/ (publication located in Alamogordo, NM).



618. Glaxo's successful marketing of prescription Zantac, which failed to disclose the material safety risks, laid the groundwork for the Zantac OTC Enterprise's public relations and marketing campaign.

b. The RICO Defendants Launch OTC Zantac, Uniformly Omitting the Material Safety Risks from Consumer Marketing

619. In December 1993, Glaxo partnered with Warner-Lambert to develop and market OTC Zantac. Such prescription-to-OTC switches were big business at that time, touted by groups like the CHPA as cost-effective healthcare and a matter of patients' right to access. GSK followed on the footsteps of drugs like Nicorette and Rogaine.

620. The deal with Warner-Lambert was a huge and necessary boost to Glaxo's plans for a prescription-to-OTC Zantac switch. Indeed, the OTC market was Warner-Lambert's specialty and an area in which Glaxo itself had little previous experience.[264]

[264] Warner-Lambert in a Deal for Rights to 5 Top Drugs, supra n.222.

621. April 23, 1996 was "Z-Day." On that day, Glaxo and Warner-Lambert launched OTC Zantac for sale in the United States with a huge advertising blitz. The launch was a $100 million spend that lit up giant "Z's" on buildings in New York City.[265]

622. A reporter for THE NEW YORK TIMES wrote at that time, "Z-Day illustrates one of the hottest trends in consumer marketing, so-called Rx to O.T.C. switches, as drug makers rush out nonprescription versions of top-selling prescription drugs, then peddle them through advertising in mass media."[266]

623. Bob Casale, vice president for gastrointestinal marketing at Warner Wellcome said of the launch, "Zantac on the prescription side was really the product of choice so to speak in the last five years, with more prescriptions than its two competitors combined." He continued, "The market is primed for Zantac 75 . . . We expect to lead the market very quickly."[267]

624. By this time, GSK had already positioned Zantac as a safe and effective prescription medication, "trusted by doctors." Spring boarding on Zantac's safety message from its successful prescription days, Warner Wellcome launched an aggressive marketing campaign that touted the drug as safe and doctor-trusted. What the direct-to-consumer messaging uniformly concealed, omitted, or failed disclose to consumers is that Zantac carried with it material safety risks established by at least 15 years of scientific research at that time. That omission was knowing and/or made with reckless indifference to the truth.

625. The 1996 launch began with a national advertising blitz using the tag line: "Zantac 75: The Final Word in Acid Relief." Brian Dennehy appeared in advertisements for OTC Zantac 75, some of which are still available for view on Youtube. One such advertisement features Mr. Dennehy standing under the hot sun with a Zantac pill. He holds up the product and states: "The medicine in Zantac 75 is so trusted that over the last five years, doctors have made it the most prescribed acid-reducing medicine in the world. It's been a great day."[268]

626. After Pfizer obtained full rights to the NDAs to sell OTC Zantac in the United States – and while GSK continued to manufacture it – Pfizer continued to omit the material safety risks from its national marketing messages to consumers.

627. For example, in 2006, Pfizer ran a television advertisement in the United States that depicted a man and a woman standing outside a BBQ restaurant, with the man promising the woman that taking OTC Zantac before their meal would prevent her heartburn. This advertisement represented that OTC Zantac taken after a meal can provide fast-acting heartburn relief, but it omitted material safety risks in consuming Zantac OTC.

628. After BI obtained the rights to OTC Zantac NDAs in the United States, it continued to omit the material safety risks from its national marketing messages to consumers.

629. In 2009, BI ran a television advertisement depicting a woman drinking coffee and eating a burrito at work, with a voiceover saying: "Chug that coffee. Gulp that burrito. No matter what life throws at you, you can take the heat. Until it turns into heartburn. Good thing you've got what it takes to beat that heat too. Zantac – it's strong. Just one pill can knock out the burn."

630. In 2011, BI also ran a similar television advertisement that depicted a man drinking coffee and eating a hotdog, with a voiceover saying: "Chug that java. Down that dog. No matter what life throws at you, you can take the heat. Until it turns into heartburn. Good thing you've got what it takes to beat that heat too. Zantac – it's strong. Just one pill can knock out the burn."

631. From at least 2009-2015, BI represented in OTC Zantac advertisements that the active ingredient ranitidine had been "prescribed by doctors for years to treat millions of patients safely and effectively."[269]

632. In 2010, BI advertised its "Zantac Beat the Heat Sweepstakes," through both radio[270] and print advertisements. BI's newspaper advertisements included the slogan, "Zantac BEAT THAT HEARTBURN HEAT," and featured the host of the television program, Man v.

[269] See, e.g., Zantacotc.com (June 8, 2009), https://web.archive.org/web/20090608184215/http://www.zantacotc.com/products/zantac150cool.jsp; Zantacotc.com (May 13, 2013), https://web.archive.org/web/20130513180645/http://www.zantacotc.com/products/zantac150cool.jsp.

[270] BI advertised its "Zantac Beat the Heat Sweepstakes" via radio on at least two occasions: in the Cleveland, Ohio market on May 20, 2010, and in the Chicago, Illinois market on June 30, 2010.

Food, holding a box of OTC Zantac in front of a basket of buffalo chicken wings.[271] Another newspaper advertisement[272] placed in the same year showed a pizza with a frowning face and promised that Zantac products would provide "fast and long-lasting heartburn relief":

633. In each and every one of these advertisements, BI omitted the known safety risk with OTC Zantac or was recklessly indifferent in its representations to consumers.

[271] This advertisement was placed in a Cleveland, Ohio newspaper on May 23, 2010.

[272] This advertisement was placed in newspapers in Atlanta, Georgia and Dallas, Texas on November 10, 2010.

634. In 2013, BI announced the introduction of Captain Zantac, "the new face of [the] ZANTAC Brand."[273] Captain Zantac was a miniature animated fire captain who was used in television, radio, and print advertisements.

635. In discussing the introduction of Captain Zantac, the first animated character to appear in advertising for OTC heartburn medication, Ross Ullman, the Executive Director of Marketing for BI, stated the use of an "iconic" character serves as a "persuasive and memorable platform to cut through the heartburn advertising clutter and educate consumers on which heartburn solutions are really right for them."[274] That education omitted the material fact of OTC Zantac's safety risks.

636. In addition to a prolific presence on American television airways, Captain Zantac was also used and displayed in retail pharmacies to draw attention to Zantac:

637. BI and Sanofi also communicated to consumers via an ostensibly unbranded website without disclosing the instability of ranitidine – the active ingredient in Zantac.

638. On November 15, 2015, BI bought/registered the domain name rethinkppis.com, which transferred to Sanofi on February 24, 2017. The unbranded website included data connecting Proton Pump Inhibitors ("PPIs"), a different category of drugs in the antacid market, with increased cardiovascular risks, kidney disease, low magnesium, bone fractures, and gut bacteria, and noted that H_2 blockers were not proven to be associated with those same risks:

PPIs have other safety concerns H_2 blockers do not

- H_2 blockers like non-prescription Zantac® have no long-term safety concerns when used as directed or no known clinically significant interactions with other commonly prescribed drugs people may be taking, unlike PPIs such as Nexium®.
- Unlike PPIs, increased risk of fractures of the hip, wrist, and spine have not been reported in clinical studies with H_2 blockers.[275]

639. Neither BI nor Sanofi contemporaneously, or at any time, disclosed on the rethinkppis.com website the dangers of NDMA or that the active ingredient in Zantac – ranitidine – was unstable and broke down into cancer-causing NDMA.

640. From 2017-2019, Sanofi continued marketing and selling OTC Zantac without disclosing its material safety risks.

641. In furtherance of these marketing goals, Sanofi retained ownership of the Captain Zantac trademark[276] on or around February 2018 and continued to use Captain Zantac in national television, radio, and print advertisements.

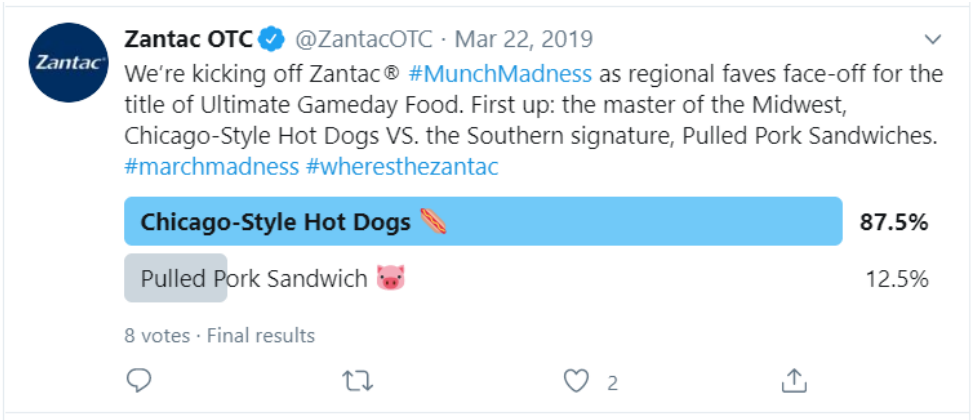
642. Captain Zantac (or "Cap Z" as he was colloquially referred to in materials created and used by Sanofi) also maintained an active social media presence, tweeting frequently[277] and inducing consumers to interact with the Twitter account through the use of free giveaways and sweepstakes.

[277] @ZantacOTC, TWITTER, https://twitter.com/.

643. Cap Z likewise encouraged consumers to purchase OTC Zantac through the use of social media engagement campaigns.



644. Captain Zantac was also integrated into Sanofi's other consumer marketing piece, a branded website called zantacotc.com, which also served to promote the sale of OTC Zantac without disclosing the material safety risks.

645. For example, Sanofi presented the following on zantacotc.com:[278]

646. Until at least October 8, 2019, Sanofi continued to post Captain Zantac advertisements on ZantacOTC.com and social media, including Twitter and Facebook, without any disclosure of OTC Zantac's material safety risks.

647. From at least 2018-2019, Sanofi ran a television advertising campaign that featured the slogan, "Eat your way. Treat your way." One of these television advertisements depicted a family enjoying "taco night" and a man suffering from heartburn after unexpectedly having pizza for lunch. Another television advertisement attached to this campaign showed a man and woman at a cookout both rubbing their stomachs in pain in front of a plate of hamburgers, while a voiceover said, "Zantac works in as little as 30 minutes. Eat your way. Treat your way." Neither of these advertisements disclosed the material safety risks with OTC Zantac.

648. In 2019, Sanofi made the familiar safety representation through its own advertising, which stated that OTC Zantac "has the active ingredient ranitidine, which doctors have prescribed for years to treat millions of patients safely and effectively,"[279] once again omitting the material safety risks.

649. Indeed, the RICO Defendants ran myriad television, print, radio, and internet ads for OTC Zantac, throughout the United States and to consumers, that uniformly omitted the material safety risks, including:

c. The RICO Defendants Omitted from Disclosure the Material Safety Risks on OTC Zantac Labeling

650. The RICO Defendants were required to give adequate directions for the use of OTC Zantac such that a "layman can use [the] drug safely and for the purposes for which it is intended,"[280] and conform to requirements governing the appearance of the label.[281]

651. "Labeling" encompasses all written, printed, or graphic material accompanying the drug or device,[282] and therefore it broadly encompasses nearly every form of promotional activity, including not only "package inserts" but also advertising.

652. "Most, if not all, labeling is advertising. The term 'labeling' is defined in the [FDCA] as including all printed matter accompanying any article. Congress did not, and we cannot, exclude from the definition printed matter which constitutes advertising."[283]

653. The RICO Defendants were also responsible for conducting stability testing, that must be "designed to assess the stability characteristics of drug products."[284] Manufacturers must adopt a written testing program that includes: "(1) Sample size and test intervals based on statistical criteria for each attribute examined to assure valid estimates of stability; (2) Storage conditions for samples retained for testing; (3) Reliable, meaningful, and specific test methods; (4) Testing of the drug product in the same container-closure system as that in which the drug product is marketed; (5) Testing of drug products for reconstitution at the time of dispensing (as directed in the labeling) as well as after they are reconstituted."[285]

654. The purpose of stability testing is, in part, to determine the "appropriate storage conditions and expiration dates."[286] And expiration dates, in turn, must be set to "assure that a drug product meets applicable standards of identity, strength, quality, and purity at the time of use."[287] An expiration date is "related to any storage conditions stated on the labeling, as determined by stability studies listed in § 211.166."[288]

655. Each RICO Defendant was required to conduct its own tests to determine and set accurate retest or expiration dates.

656. The FDA made clear when it first adopted the expiration-date provision that the regulation means what it says. The purpose of the expiration date is not merely to consider the "stability of a specific active ingredient." Instead, a compliant expiration date must account for multiple factors, including "the stability of the inactive ingredients, the interaction of active and inactive ingredients, the manufacturing process, the dosage form, the container closure system, the conditions under which the drug product is shipped, stored, and handled by wholesalers and retailers, and the length of time between initial manufacture and final use."[289]

657. The FDA expressly recognizes that an initial expiration date may not be the final expiration date: "Where data from accelerated studies are used to project a tentative expiration date that is beyond a date supported by actual shelf-life studies, there must be stability studies conducted . . . until the tentative expiration date is verified or the appropriate expiration date determined."[290]

658. After a drug is approved, a manufacturer (brand or generic) can make changes to its drug application. To do so, manufacturers must comply with the requirements of §§ 314.70 and 314.71.[291]

659. Some of the requirements in those regulations require a brand or generic manufacturer of an approved drug to obtain FDA approval before implementing a label change.[292]

660. But the FDA has long recognized a "changes being effected" ("CBE") supplement that permits a manufacturer to make immediate changes, subject to FDA's post-change review.[293]

661. A manufacturer of an approved drug can use the CBE supplement to immediately make an "[a]ddition to a specification or changes in the methods or controls to provide increased assurance that the drug substance or drug product will have the characteristics of identity, strength quality, purity, or potency that it purports or is represented to possess."[294] "A specification is defined as a list of tests, references to analytical procedures, and appropriate acceptance criteria that are numerical limits, ranges, or other criteria for the tests described."[295]

662. A manufacturer, therefore, need not seek FDA pre-approval to make changes to its stability studies to identify the appropriate expiration date – which must "assure that a drug product

meets applicable standards of identity, strength, quality, and purity at the time of use"[296] – or to ensure that the drug is shipped and stored under appropriate conditions.

663. A manufacturer of an approved drug can also use the CBE supplement to make changes "in the labeling to reflect newly acquired information" in order to "add or strengthen a contraindication, warning, precaution, or adverse reaction for which the evidence of a causal association satisfies the standard for inclusion in the labeling under § 201.57(c) of this chapter"; "add or strengthen an instruction about dosage and administration that is intended to increase the safe use of the drug product"; and "delete false, misleading, or unsupported indications for use or claims for effectiveness."[297]

664. A manufacturer of an approved drug may make minor changes to a label with no approval or notice, so long as that change is described in an annual report. The illustrative but non-exhaustive list of minor changes includes "[a] change in the labeling concerning the description of the drug product or in the information about how the drug product is supplied, that does not involve a change in the dosage strength or dosage form."[298]

665. A "minor change" further includes "[a]n extension of an expiration dating period based upon full shelf-life data on production batches obtained from a protocol approved in the NDA."[299]

666. At no time did any RICO Defendant seek to include a warning on the labels for OTC Zantac and other Ranitidine-Containing Products that disclosed to consumers the material safety risks. The FDA never rejected such warnings.

667. At no time did any RICO Defendant seek to change its label to delete a false or misleading expiration date, or to add a proper expiration date to ensure that OTC Zantac and other Ranitidine-Containing Products would not break down into NDMA prior to human consumption.

668. Based on the public scientific information, the RICO Defendants knew or recklessly disregarded that NDMA could form in ranitidine.

669. At no time did any RICO Defendant change its label to disclose the material safety risks by shortening the expiration date. The RICO Defendants had the ability to unilaterally make such label changes (for both prescription and OTC Zantac) without prior FDA approval pursuant to the CBE regulation. Had any RICO Defendant attempted such label changes, the FDA would not have rejected them.

670. Because they failed to include appropriate expiration dates on their products, the RICO Defendants knowingly made false statements in the labeling of their products and knowingly omitted the material safety risks, or made such statements and omissions with reckless disregard to their truth.

671. No RICO Defendant did so because to include the accurate expiration and thus disclose the material safety risks would have hit their bottom line and frustrated the common purpose of the Zantac OTC Enterprise.

672. Indeed, if just one of them had disclosed the material safety risks by altering the expiration date, the truth that ranitidine breaks down into NDMA would have quickly become known to consumers and the public. The RICO Defendants thus had to work in concert to conceal that risk.

673. Although ownership of the OTC Zantac NDA's changed hands between the RICO Defendants over the years 1995-2019, GSK continued to manufacture OTC Zantac and to sell prescription Zantac in the U.S. and Zantac OTC internationally, through 2017; GSK and Pfizer shared in profits from OTC Zantac sales for years and GSK continued to manufacture it even after Pfizer owned all the profits from U.S. sales; BI continued to manufacture the OTC Zantac from 2006-2019, both for its own sale and then for Sanofi's; and Sanofi – the last to sell Zantac OTC in the U.S. through 2019 – manufactured generic Ranitidine-Containing Products beginning in 1983, well before it obtained the rights to Zantac OTC.

674. Thus, at every point in this decades-long sale of OTC Zantac (and other Ranitidine-Containing Products), two or more RICO Defendants mutually profited from the continued and shared concealment of the material safety risks – a profit that would have been lost to all if the truth was disclosed.

d. The RICO Defendants Used KOLS and Industry Groups to Conceal and Omit from Disclosure to the Public the Material Safety Risks

675. As described in Section VI.B.3. above and further discussed below, the RICO Defendants controlled and influenced the narrative around the science of ranitidine to conceal the material safety risks. They designed, funded, and/or published studies, articles, conferences, and speaking engagements, including through KOLs and industry groups, that extolled the virtues of Ranitidine-Containing Products while omitting or recklessly disregarding the material safety risks posed the Ranitidine-Containing Products.

678. Similarly, on July 19, 2017, the CHPA opposed Citizen Petition #FDA-2017-P-2733, which sought to add a warning label on all OTC products labeled to relieve or prevent heartburn associated with reflux disease, acid indigestion, and sour stomach, that would inform consumers that the products do not eliminate the risk of esophageal cancer.[302] CHPA's opposition came several months after an article published in the Kidney International linked increased risk of

Dr. Robinson also participated in a study and co-authored a manuscript published in 2002 titled "Control of Nocturnal Gastric Acidity: A Role for Low Dose Bedtime Ranitidine to Supplement Daily Omeprazole," which concluded that "[a]lthough the heartburn patients in the present study had nocturnal gastric acidity without accompanying nocturnal esophageal acid reflux, other patients who do have nocturnal esophageal reflux might profit from addition of bedtime ranitidine[.]"[326]

6. Pattern of Racketeering Activity

697. The RICO Defendants' scheme described herein was perpetrated, in part, through multiple acts of mail fraud and wire fraud, constituting a pattern of racketeering activity as described herein.

698. The pattern of racketeering activity by the RICO Defendants and the Zantac OTC Enterprise likely involved thousands of separate instances of the use of the U.S. Mail or interstate wire facilities in furtherance of the unlawful Zantac OTC Enterprise, including materially uniform concealments and material omissions in statements to consumers and the public regarding the material safety risks of OTC Zantac, with the goal of profiting from increased sales of the OTC Zantac, induced by consumers and the RICO Plaintiffs' reliance on the RICO Defendants' omissions.

699. Each of these fraudulent mailings and interstate wire transmissions constitutes racketeering activity and collectively, these violations constitute a pattern of racketeering activity, through which the RICO Defendants defrauded and intended to defraud consumers and other intended victims.

700. The RICO Defendants devised and knowingly carried out an illegal scheme and artifice to defraud by means of materially false or fraudulent pretenses and omissions of material facts regarding the safety risks of OTC Zantac and other Ranitidine-Containing Products. The RICO Defendants and members of the Zantac OTC Enterprise knew that the weight of contemporaneous scientific evidence established the existence of the safety risk and that the risk was material to consumers. They acted with reckless disregard in their statements to consumers and the public, wherein they omitted the material safety risks. The RICO Defendants intended that that their common purpose and scheme to defraud would, and did, use the U.S. Mail and interstate wire facilities, intentionally and knowingly with the specific intent to advance, and for the purpose of executing, their illegal scheme.

701. By intentionally concealing the material risks regarding the safety of Zantac, to consumers and the public, including the RICO Plaintiffs, the RICO Defendants and co-conspirators engaged in a fraudulent and unlawful course of conduct constituting a pattern of racketeering activity.

702. The RICO Defendants' use of the U.S. Mail and interstate wire facilities to perpetrate the scheme involved thousands of communications, publications, representations, statements, electronic transmissions, payments, including, inter alia:

(a) Marketing materials about Zantac, and its risks and benefits, which the RICO Defendants transmitted through the internet and television, published, and transmitted to industry groups and KOLs located across the country;

(b) Written representations and telephone calls between the RICO Defendants and industry groups regarding the safety and claims about Zantac and/or agreeing to or implementing the marketing scheme;

(c) Written representations and telephone calls between the RICO Defendants and KOLs regarding the safety and claims about Zantac and/or agreeing to or implementing the marketing scheme;

(d) Written representations and telephone calls between the RICO Defendants and marketing firms regarding the marketing statements and claims about Zantac and/or agreeing to or implementing the marketing scheme;

(e) Communications between the RICO Defendants, KOLs, and industry groups regarding messaging around obstacles in scientific literature and emerging studies and the dissemination of the same as part of the Zantac OTC Enterprise;

(f) Written and oral communications directed to the FDA that concealed the safety risks of Zantac, thereby preventing the public and consumers from learning the truth; and

(g) Receipts of increased profits sent through the U.S. Mail and interstate wire facilities - the wrongful proceeds of the scheme.

703. In addition to the above-referenced predicate acts, it was intended by and foreseeable to the RICO Defendants that the industry groups and the KOLs would distribute publications about OTC Zantac and ranitidine through the U.S. Mail and by interstate wire facilities, and, in those publications, omit the material safety risks of Zantac and ranitidine.

704. To achieve the common goal and purpose of the Zantac OTC Enterprise, the RICO Defendants and members of the Zantac OTC Enterprise hid from consumers and the public, including the RICO Plaintiffs: (a) the fraudulent nature of the RICO Defendants' marketing scheme; (b) the fraudulent nature of omissions made by the RICO Defendants and by their co-conspirators and other third parties regarding the safety of OTC Zantac; and (c) the true nature of the relationship between the members of the Zantac OTC Enterprise.

705. The RICO Defendants, and each member of the Zantac OTC Enterprise agreed, with knowledge and intent, to the overall objective of the RICO Defendants' fraudulent scheme and participated in the common course of conduct.

706. Indeed, for the RICO Defendants' fraudulent scheme to work, each of them had to agree to implement similar tactics regarding fraudulent marketing of OTC Zantac. This conclusion is supported by the fact that the RICO Defendants each financed, supported, and worked through shared KOLs and industry groups, collaborated on and mutually supported the same publications, presentations, and studies, and disseminated promotional messages about OTC Zantac over the course of the Enterprise that omitted or concealed its material safety risks.

707. The RICO Defendants' predicate acts all had the purpose of generating billion-dollar revenue and profits for the RICO Defendants. The predicate acts were committed or caused to be committed by the RICO Defendants through their participation in the Zantac OTC Enterprise and in furtherance of its fraudulent scheme. The RICO Plaintiffs have been harmed in their business or property as a proximate cause of the Zantac OTC Enterprise and the RICO Defendants' actions taken in furtherance of the same.

C. Class Allegations

708. The RICO Plaintiffs bring this action in their individual capacity and on behalf of the following RICO Class pursuant to Federal Rules of Civil Procedure 23(a), 23(b)(2), 23(b)(3), and/or 23(c)(4):

> RICO Class: All individuals who purchased the RICO Defendants' OTC Zantac while a resident of the United States.

709. Excluded from the RICO Class are Defendants and any of their affiliates, parents, subsidiaries, officers, and directors; any entity in which Defendants have a controlling interest; all persons who make a timely election to be excluded from the class; governmental entities; and all judges assigned to hear any aspect of this litigation, including their immediate family members.

710. The RICO Plaintiffs reserve the right to modify or amend the definition of the RICO Class, including to add one or more subclasses, after having the opportunity to conduct discovery.

711. The RICO Class meets the requirements of Federal Rules of Civil Procedure 23(a), 23(b)(2), 23(b)(3) and/or 23(c)(4).

712. Numerosity. The members of the RICO Class are so numerous that joinder is impracticable. OTC Zantac has, for decades, been one of the most popular medications for relief of heartburn, acid reflux, and similar conditions and, thus, it is reasonable to infer that the RICO Class includes thousands if not millions of members who are geographically dispersed throughout the country and/or throughout each respective state.

713. Typicality. The RICO Plaintiffs' claims are typical of the claims of putative Class members in that the RICO Plaintiffs' claims arise out of the same common course of conduct that gives rise to the claims of the other Class members. Each RICO Plaintiff, like each RICO Class member, either took or paid money to purchase OTC Ranitidine-Containing Products, including OTC Zantac, manufactured by one or more of the RICO Defendants, which are not safe for human consumption and, thus, the RICO Plaintiffs, like each RICO Class member, suffered loss of the purchase price of OTC Zantac, money lost through overpayment for OTC Zantac, and out-of-pocket loss. The RICO Plaintiffs, like each Class member, were injured through the RICO Defendants' common course of misconduct, and the RICO Plaintiffs are advancing the same legal theories on behalf of themselves and the Class members.

714. Adequacy. The RICO Plaintiffs will fairly and adequately protect the interests of the Class members. The RICO Plaintiffs' interests and the interests of all other members of each respective Class are identical and not antagonistic. The RICO Plaintiffs intend to vigorously prosecute this case and will fairly and adequately protect the Class members' interests. The RICO Plaintiffs have retained counsel who are competent and experienced in litigating class actions, including litigation of this kind.

715. Commonality and Predominance. There are numerous questions of law and fact common to the Class, and these common questions predominate over any issues affecting only individual Class members. Questions common to the Class include, but are not limited to, the following:

(a) whether Ranitidine-Containing Products, including OTC Zantac, contain and continue to produce unacceptable levels of NDMA;

(b) whether the RICO Defendants knew or recklessly disregarded that Ranitidine-Containing Products, including OTC Zantac, pose material safety risks to consumers;

(c) whether the material safety risk posed by Ranitidine-Containing Products, including OTC Zantac, rendered the drugs worthless;

(d) whether the RICO Defendants' marketing, advertising, labels, or promotion of ranitidine, including OTC Zantac, omitted, concealed, or failed to disclose that Ranitidine-Containing Products, including OTC Zantac, posed material safety risks to consumers;

(e) whether the RICO Defendants' conduct was knowing;

(f) whether the RICO Defendants conducted an association-in-enterprise in violation of RICO, 18 U.S.C. §1961, et seq.;

(g) whether the RICO Defendants knowingly, willfully, and unlawfully conducted or participated, directly or indirectly, in the affairs of the enterprise through a pattern of racketeering activity within the meaning of 18 U.S.C. §§1961(1), 1961(5), and 1962(c);

(h) whether the racketeering activity was made possible by the regular and repeated use of the facilities, services, distribution channels, and employees of the enterprise;

(i) whether the racketeering acts were not isolated, but rather were related in that they had the same or similar purposes and results, participants, victims, and methods of commission;

(j) whether the RICO Defendants committed acts constituting indictable offenses under 18 U.S.C. §§1341 and 1343;

(k) whether the RICO Defendants used mail and interstate wire communications in furtherance of the enterprise;

(l) whether there was a common communication network by which the RICO Defendants shared information;

(m) whether the RICO Defendants engaged in, and its activities affected, interstate and foreign commerce in furtherance of the enterprise;

(n) whether the RICO Enterprise had an existence separate and distinct form each RICO Defendant;

(o) whether the RICO Defendants conducted illegitimate business through industry groups;

(p) whether the RICO Defendants conducted illegitimate business through key opinion leaders;

(q) whether the members of the RICO Enterprise associated together for the common purpose of concealing the dangers of ranitidine;

(r) whether the RICO Plaintiffs and the RICO Class members are entitled to recover damages and the appropriate measure of those damages;

(s) whether the RICO Plaintiffs and the RICO Class members are entitled to recover treble damages; and

(t) the type and format of injunctive relief that is appropriate.

716. Superiority. A class action is superior to any other available means for the fair and efficient adjudication of this controversy, and no unusual difficulties are likely to be encountered in the management of this class action. The quintessential purpose of the class action mechanism is to permit litigation against wrongdoers even when damages to an individual plaintiff may not be sufficient to justify individual litigation. Here, the damages suffered by the RICO Plaintiffs and the RICO Class are relatively small compared to the burden and expense required to individually litigate their claims against the RICO Defendants, and thus, individual litigation to redress the RICO Defendants' wrongful conduct would be impracticable. Individual litigation by each Class member would also strain the court system, create the potential for inconsistent or contradictory judgments, and increase the delay and expense to all parties and the court system. By contrast, the class action device presents far fewer management difficulties and provides the benefits of a single adjudication, economies of scale, and comprehensive supervision by a single court.

717. Injunctive and Declaratory Relief. Class certification is also appropriate under Rule 23(b)(2) because the RICO Defendants acted and refused to act on grounds generally applicable to the RICO Class as a whole, such that final injunctive relief is appropriate with respect to the Class as a whole.

718. Issue Class. Particular issues are appropriate for certification under Rule 23(c)(4) because the RICO claim presents particular, common issues, the determination of which would materially advance the resolution of this matter and the parties' interests therein. Such particular issues include, but are not limited to:

(a) whether the RICO Defendants knew or recklessly disregarded that Ranitidine-Containing Products, including Zantac, pose material safety risks to consumers;

(b) whether the RICO Defendants concealed the material safety risks posed by Ranitidine-Containing Products, including Zantac, in statements to consumers and the public;

(c) whether the RICO Defendants' marketing, advertising, labels, or promotion of ranitidine, including Zantac, omitted, concealed, or failed to disclose the material safety risks posed by Ranitidine-Containing Products, including Zantac;

(d) whether the members of the RICO Enterprise associated together for the common purpose of concealing the dangers of ranitidine; and

(e) Each RICO Defendant's role in creating and directing the enterprise.

D. The RICO Cause of Action

Violations of the Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act
(18 U.S.C. §1962(c)-(d))
(Against RICO Defendants)

719. The RICO Plaintiffs incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 484 through 718, as though fully set forth herein. The RICO Plaintiffs also incorporate by reference paragraphs 475 through 483 above, regarding equitable tolling of the statute of limitations, as though fully set forth herein.

720. The RICO Plaintiffs bring this Count on behalf of themselves and the RICO Class (for the purpose of this section, the "Class") against the RICO Defendants.

721. The RICO Plaintiffs and other Class Members are "persons" within the meaning of 18 U.S.C. §1961(3), and each is a "person injured in his [or her] business or property" by reason of the RICO Defendants' violation of RICO within the meaning of 18 U.S.C. §1964(c).

722. At all relevant times, each RICO Defendant has been a "person" within the meaning of 18 U.S.C. §1961(3) because each was capable of holding "a legal or beneficial interest in property."

723. The RICO Defendants conduct their business – both legitimate and illegitimate – by and through various affiliates and subsidiaries, each of which is a separate legal entity.

724. BI operates by and through Boehringer Ingelheim International GmbH, Boehringer Ingelheim Pharmaceuticals, Inc., Boehringer Ingelheim Corporation, and Boehringer Ingelheim USA Corporation, among others.

725. Sanofi operates by and through Sanofi S.A., Sanofi-Aventis U.S. LLC and Sanofi US Services Inc., and Chattem, Inc., among others.

726. GSK operates by and through GlaxoSmithKline plc, GlaxoSmithKline LLC, and GlaxoSmithKline (America) Inc., among others.

727. GSK, as it is known today, was created through a series of mergers and acquisitions. In 1989, Smith, Kline & French merged with the Beecham Group to form SmithKline Beecham plc. In 1995, Glaxo merged with the Wellcome Foundation to become Glaxo Wellcome plc. In 2000, Glaxo Wellcome plc merged with SmithKline Beecham plc to form GlaxoSmithKline plc and GlaxoSmithKline LLC. Thus, RICO Defendant GSK, as it is known today, is a continuation of Glaxo and retains all liabilities for the same.

728. Pfizer also operated by and through various affiliates and subsidiaries at all relevant times.

729. Pfizer acquired Warner-Lambert, Inc. in 2000 and assumed all assets and liabilities for the same.

730. The RICO Defendants have also formed joint ventures and other agreements between and among each other at various points in time during the scheme, as detailed herein.

1. The Zantac OTC Enterprise

731. Section 1962(c) makes it "unlawful for any person employed by or associated with any enterprise engaged in, or the activities of which affect, interstate or foreign commerce, to conduct or participate, directly or indirectly, in the conduct of such enterprise's affairs through a pattern of racketeering activity." 18 U.S.C. §1962(c).

732. Section 1962(d) makes it unlawful for "any person to conspire to violate" Section 1962(c), among other provisions. See 18 U.S.C. §1962(d).

733. Zantac, the trade name for ranitidine, was for years the world's top selling drug and the first to top $1 billion in annual sales. The unprecedented success of Zantac was not an accident. It was the direct result of an aggressive campaign by the RICO Defendants and others to market and sell Zantac to consumers while omitting material safety concerns. In their quest to reach ever new heights of sales and profits, the RICO Defendants recklessly continued to push Zantac as safe, even as or after they became aware of the NDMA risks associated with ranitidine consumption.

734. Instead of pulling Zantac from the shelves or warning the public about its safety risks, the RICO Defendants hid the truth. To do so, each Defendant was employed by or associated with, and conducted or participated in the affairs of, one or several RICO enterprises – the Zantac OTC Enterprise, whose purpose was to conceal or downplay the safety risks of Zantac. The motivation was simple: to increase the RICO Defendants' revenues and profits from OTC Zantac and minimize their losses from the manufacture and sale of all their Ranitidine-Containing Products. As a direct and proximate result of their fraudulent scheme and common course of conduct, the RICO Defendants were able to extract billions of dollars from the RICO Plaintiffs and the Class. It was not until recently that OTC Zantac remained on retail and pharmacy shelves in the United States. The RICO Defendants' scheme violated Sections 1962(c) and (d) of the RICO statute.

735. At all relevant times, the RICO Defendants, along with other individuals and entities, including unknown third parties involved in the formulation, manufacture, marketing, and sale of Zantac, operated an association-in-fact enterprise, which was formed for the purpose of selling OTC Zantac throughout the U.S. and through which enterprise(s) they conducted a pattern of racketeering activity under 18 U.S.C. §1961(4).

736. At all relevant times, the Zantac OTC Enterprise constituted a single "enterprise" or multiple enterprises within the meaning of 18 U.S.C. §1961(4), as legal entities, as well as individuals and legal entities associated-in-fact for the common purpose of engaging in the RICO Defendants' unlawful profit-making scheme.

737. The association-in-fact Zantac OTC Enterprise consisted of at least the following entities and individuals, and likely others:

(a) Sanofi S.A. is a French multinational pharmaceutical company headquartered in Paris and listed on the NASDAQ. As of June 8, 2020, it had a market capitalization of $63.7 billion. The other Sanofi Defendants are not publicly traded and thus have no SEC reporting obligations, but they do have reporting obligations, protections and responsibilities unique to their respective home states.

(b) BI is a German multinational company and one of the world's largest pharmaceutical companies and the largest private one. BI operates with 146 affiliates and is owned by the Boehringer, Liebrecht, and von Baumbach families.

(c) Pfizer is an American multinational pharmaceutical company headquartered in New York City and listed on the New York Stock Exchange. As of June 8, 2020, it had a market capitalization of $203 billion. Other Pfizer entities or divisions, such as Warner-Lambert Consumer Healthcare, are not publicly traded and thus have no SEC reporting obligations but do have reporting obligations, protections and responsibilities unique to their respective home states

(d) GlaxoSmithKline plc is a British multinational pharmaceutical company headquartered in the United Kingdom and listed on the New York Stock Exchange. As of June 8, 2020, it had a market capitalization of $105 billion. The other GSK Defendants are not publicly traded and thus have no SEC reporting obligations, but do have reporting obligations, protections and responsibilities unique to their respective home states.

738. At all relevant times, the Zantac OTC Enterprise: (a) had an existence separate and distinct from each RICO Defendant; (b) was separate and distinct from the pattern of racketeering in which the RICO Defendants engaged; and (c) was an ongoing and continuing organization consisting of legal entities, including the Sanofi Defendants, the BI Defendants, the GSK Defendants, Defendant Pfizer, and/or other entities and individuals associated for the common purpose of formulating, manufacturing, distributing, marketing, and selling OTC Zantac to the RICO Plaintiffs and the RICO Class by concealing safety risks and deriving profits and revenues therefrom.

739. Each member of the Zantac OTC Enterprise shared in the bounty generated by the enterprise, i.e., by sharing the benefit derived from increased sales revenue for OTC Zantac generated by the scheme to defraud Class members nationwide, while concealing the material safety risks that threatened sales of all the RICO Defendants' Ranitidine-Containing Products. If any member of the Zantac OTC Enterprise had publicly revealed the safety risks, all would lose their revenues and profits from OTC Zantac and their other Ranitidine-Containing Products.

740. At various points in time, the RICO Defendants entered into joint ventures and/or other agreements concerning the rights to Zantac including for, example, the partnership between GSK and Warner-Lambert resulting in Warner-Lambert Consumer Healthcare; Pfizer's acquisition of Warner-Lambert; BI's acquisition of the rights to OTC Zantac; and Sanofi's acquisition of the rights to OTC Zantac.

741. The Zantac OTC Enterprise functioned by selling pharmaceutical products. Many of the products were legitimate, including products that are not known to form NDMA when consumed. However, the RICO Defendants and their co-conspirators, through their illegal enterprise, engaged in a pattern of racketeering activity, which involves a fraudulent scheme to increase revenues and minimize losses for the RICO Defendants and the other entities and individuals associated-in-fact with the enterprise's activities through their fraudulent scheme.

742. The Zantac OTC Enterprise engaged in, and its activities affected, interstate and foreign commerce, because it involved commercial activities across both state and national boundaries, such as the marketing, promotion, advertisement, distribution, and sale of Zantac throughout the country and beyond, and the receipt of monies from the sale of the same.

743. Within the Zantac OTC Enterprise, there was a common communication network by which co-conspirators shared information on a regular basis. The enterprise used this common communication network for the purpose of formulating, manufacturing, marketing, distributing, and selling Zantac nationwide.

744. Each participant in the Zantac OTC Enterprise had a systematic linkage to others through corporate ties, contractual relationships, financial ties, and continuing coordination and funding of activities, including promotional activities through KOLs, industry groups, journal articles, medical studies, and continuing medical education programs. Through the Zantac OTC Enterprise, the RICO Defendants functioned as a continuing unit with the purpose of furthering the illegal scheme and their common purposes of increasing their profits and revenues, as well as minimizing their losses.

745. The RICO Defendants participated in the operation and management of the Zantac OTC Enterprise by directing its affairs, as described herein. While the RICO Defendants participated in, and are members of, the enterprise, they have a separate existence from the enterprise, including distinct legal statuses, different offices and roles, bank accounts, officers, directors, employees, individual personhood, reporting requirements, and financial statements.

746. Each RICO Defendant exerted substantial control over the Zantac OTC Enterprise, and participated in, operated and/or directed the enterprise, by:

(a) concealing or downplaying safety risks from the public;

(b) formulating, manufacturing, distributing, promoting, and/or selling Zantac;

(c) omitting safety risks (or causing such omissions to be made) in promotional materials, advertisements, and other documents;

(d) concealing or downplaying safety risks in or through scientific studies;

(e) omitting (or causing such omissions to be made) safety risks on communications with regulators, thereby depriving the public of the truth;

(f) introducing Zantac into the stream of U.S. commerce with concealed safety risks;

(g) entering into joint ventures or agreements concerning the rights to Zantac;

(h) persisting in the manufacturing, distribution, marketing, and sale of Zantac even after questions were raised about safety risks;

(i) collecting revenues and profits in connection with the sale of Zantac; and/or

(j) ensuring that the other RICO Defendants and unnamed co-conspirators complied with the scheme or common course of conduct.

747. Without the RICO Defendants' willing participation, the Zantac OTC Enterprise's years-long scheme and common course of conduct would have been unsuccessful.

748. The RICO Defendants directed and controlled the ongoing organization necessary to implement the scheme at meetings and through communications of which the RICO Plaintiffs cannot fully know at present, because such information lies in the RICO Defendants' and others' hands. Similarly, because the RICO Defendants often refer to themselves as a group (i.e., "Sanofi," "Boehringer Ingelheim," "GSK," etc.), the RICO Plaintiffs cannot fully know the full extent of each individual corporate entity's involvement in the wrongdoing prior to having access to sufficient discovery on this point.

2. Mail and Wire Fraud

749. To carry out, or attempt to carry out the scheme to defraud, the RICO Defendants, each of whom is a person associated-in-fact with the Zantac OTC Enterprise, did knowingly conduct or participate, directly or indirectly, in the conduct of the affairs of the Zantac OTC Enterprise through a pattern of racketeering activity within the meaning of 18 U.S.C. §§1961(1), 1961(5) and 1962(c), and which employed the use of the mail and wire facilities, in violation of 18 U.S.C. §1341 (mail fraud) and §1343 (wire fraud).

750. Specifically, as alleged herein, the RICO Defendants have committed, conspired to commit, and/or aided and abetted in the commission of, at least two predicate acts of racketeering activity (i.e., violations of 18 U.S.C. §§1341 and 1343). The multiple acts of racketeering activity that the RICO Defendants committed, or aided or abetted in the commission of, were related to each other, posed a threat of continued racketeering activity, and therefore constitute a "pattern of racketeering activity." The racketeering activity was made possible by the RICO Defendants' regular use of the facilities, services, distribution channels, and employees of the RICO Defendants in the Zantac OTC Enterprise. The RICO Defendants participated in the scheme to defraud by using e-mail, mail, telephone, facsimile, TV, radio, and the internet to transmit mailings and wires in interstate or foreign commerce.

751. The RICO Defendants used, directed the use of, and/or caused to be used, thousands of interstate mail and wire communications in service of their scheme through identical concealments and material omissions of the safety risk.

752. In devising and executing the illegal scheme, the RICO Defendants devised and knowingly carried out a material scheme and/or artifice to defraud the RICO Plaintiffs and the RICO Class or to obtain money from them by means of materially false or fraudulent pretenses and omissions of material facts. For the purpose of executing the illegal scheme, the RICO Defendants committed these racketeering acts, which number in the thousands, intentionally and knowingly with the specific intent to advance the illegal scheme.

753. The RICO Defendants' predicate acts of racketeering (18 U.S.C. §1961(1)) include, but are not limited to:

(a) Mail Fraud: The RICO Defendants violated 18 U.S.C. §1341 by sending or receiving, or by causing to be sent and/or received, materials via U.S. mail or commercial interstate carriers for the purpose of executing their unlawful scheme to manufacture, market, and sell Zantac by concealing or downplaying its safety risks.

(b) Wire Fraud: The RICO Defendants violated 18 U.S.C. §1343 by transmitting and/or receiving, or by causing to be transmitted and/or received, materials by wire for the purpose of executing the unlawful scheme to defraud and obtain money by concealing or downplaying the safety risks of Zantac.

754. The RICO Defendants' use of the mails and wires include, but are not limited to, the transmission, delivery, or shipment of the following, which were foreseeably caused to be sent as a result of the RICO Defendants' illegal scheme:

(a) Zantac tablets, capsules, injections, syrup, and/or granules;

(b) false or misleading websites containing content regarding ranitidine that omitted the material safety risks;

(c) false or misleading industry publications and/or studies about ranitidine that omitted the material safety risks;

(d) false or misleading sales and marketing materials, including websites, ads, and brochures that omitted Zantac's material safety risks, such as the multi-media "Captain Zantac" campaign;

(e) false or misleading product packaging and labels that concealed material safety risks;

(f) false or misleading communications that concealed Zantac's material safety risks from the public;

(g) documents and communications that facilitated the scheme, including but not limited to, invoices, shipping records, reports, and correspondence;

(h) millions of dollars in compensation to company executives;

(i) deposits of proceeds; and/or

(j) other documents and things.

755. The RICO Defendants (or their agents), for the purpose of executing the illegal scheme, transmitted (or caused to be transmitted) in interstate commerce by means of wire communications, certain writings, signs, signals and sounds, including the items described above and the following examples:

756. The RICO Defendants used the internet and other electronic facilities to carry out the scheme and conceal the ongoing fraudulent activities. Specifically, the RICO Defendants omitted the safety risk of Zantac on websites, YouTube, Facebook, Twitter, and other online advertising, all of which were intended to mislead the public and regulators.

Boehringer Ingelheim Pharmaceuticals, Inc., Ridgefield, Connecticut	ESPN Magazine, Bristol, Connecticut	March 2, 2015	Print Ad: "CAPTAIN Zantac IN HEARTBURN RESCUE: Stop! That heartburn pill can take 24 hours to work! Zantac is different! Zantac rushes relief in as little as 30 minutes. Zantac. No pill relieves heartburn faster!"
Pfizer Consumer Healthcare, Richmond, Virginia	Madison Wisconsin State Journal	November 2, 2003	Print Ad: "Zantac 75 relieves heartburn fast, right when you need it. Prilosec OTC doesn't."
Sanofi US, Bridgewater, New Jersey	ZantacOTC.com, Twitter, San Francisco, CA	October 8, 2019	Social media posts direct to ZantacOTC.com with Captain Zantac picture: "Get fast relief with Zantac! . . . long lasting heartburn relief."

757. The RICO Defendants also used the internet and other electronic facilities to carry out the scheme and conceal the ongoing fraudulent activities by sending communications between themselves and industry groups.

758. The RICO Defendants (or their agents), for the purpose of executing the illegal scheme, sent and/or received (or caused to be sent and/or received) by mail or by private or interstate carrier, shipments of Zantac drugs, and related documents by mail or a private carrier affecting interstate commerce, including the items described above and the following examples:

From	To	Date	Description
GlaxoSmithKline, Research Triangle Park, North Carolina	U.S. Food & Drug Administration, Silver Spring, Maryland	September 4, 2009	Zantac FDA Label
U.S. Patent & Trademark Office, Alexandria, Virginia	Warner-Lambert Company	February 2, 1996	Trademark statement of use processing complete
Pfizer, New York, New York	Boehringer Ingelheim Pharmaceuticals, Inc., Ridgefield, Connecticut	October 13, 2006	Agreements and related correspondence re: BI acquisition of OTC rights to Zantac from Pfizer
Glaxo Wellcome Inc.	U.S. Food & Drug Administration, Rockville, MD	February 18, 1997	Annual Report for Zantac, including adverse events

759. The RICO Defendants also communicated by U.S. mail, by interstate facsimile, and by interstate electronic mail with various other affiliates, regional offices, divisions, dealerships and other third-party entities in furtherance of the scheme.

760. The mail and wire transmissions described herein were made in furtherance of the RICO Defendants' scheme and common course of conduct to sell Zantac, which the RICO Defendants knew or recklessly disregarded as forming NDMA in the body.

761. Many of the precise dates of the fraudulent uses of the U.S. mail and interstate wire facilities have been deliberately hidden and cannot be alleged without access to Defendants' books and records. However, the RICO Plaintiffs have described the types of, and in some instances, occasions on which the predicate acts of mail and/or wire fraud occurred. They include thousands of communications to perpetuate and maintain the scheme, including the things and documents described in the preceding paragraphs.

762. The RICO Defendants have not undertaken the practices described herein in isolation, but as part of a common scheme and conspiracy. In violation of 18 U.S.C. §1962(d), the RICO Defendants conspired to violate 18 U.S.C. §1962(c), as described herein. Various other persons, firms and corporations, including third-party entities and individuals not currently named as defendants, have participated as co-conspirators with the RICO Defendants in these offenses and have performed acts in furtherance of the conspiracy to increase or maintain revenues, increase market share, and/or minimize losses for the RICO Defendants and their unnamed co-conspirators throughout the illegal scheme and common course of conduct.

763. The RICO Defendants had knowledge of the fraud and aided and abetted others in the violations of the above laws, thereby rendering them indictable as principals in the 18 U.S.C. §§1341 and 1343 offenses.

764. To achieve their common goals, the RICO Defendants hid or downplayed the dangers of Zantac and obfuscated its true nature even after regulators, scientists, and others raised concerns. The RICO Defendants suppressed and/or ignored warnings from third parties, whistleblowers, and governmental entities about the safety risks of Zantac.

765. The RICO Defendants and each member of the conspiracy, with knowledge and intent, have agreed to the overall objectives of the conspiracy and participated in the common course of conduct to commit acts of fraud in formulating, manufacturing, distributing, marketing, and/or selling Zantac.

766. Indeed, for the conspiracy to succeed each RICO Defendant and their co-conspirators had to agree to implement and use the similar devices and fraudulent tactics—specifically concealing or downplaying the safety risk of Zantac.

767. The RICO Defendants knew and intended that the public would rely on their material omissions. The RICO Defendants knew and intended that the RICO Plaintiffs and the RICO Class would incur costs as a result. In fact, the RICO Plaintiffs, along with the consuming public and others across the country, relied upon the concealment of material facts caused by them. The RICO Plaintiffs' reliance is made obvious by the fact that they bought drugs that were not safe for use and never should have been introduced into the U.S. stream of commerce as made plain by the fact that they have been recalled and pulled from the shelves.

768. Unbeknownst to the RICO Plaintiffs and the RICO Class, the RICO Defendants engaged in a pattern of related and continuous predicate acts for many years. The predicate acts constituted a variety of unlawful activities, each conducted with the common purpose of obtaining significant monies and revenues from the RICO Plaintiffs and Class members based on the concealment of the truth, while providing Zantac drugs that were worth significantly less than the purchase price paid. The predicate acts also had the same or similar results, participants, victims, and methods of commission. The predicate acts were related and not isolated events.

769. The predicate acts all had the purpose of generating significant revenue and profits for the RICO Defendants (and minimizing their losses) at the expense of the RICO Plaintiffs and Class members. The predicate acts were committed or caused to be committed by the RICO Defendants through their participation in the Zantac OTC Enterprise and in furtherance of the scheme, and were interrelated in that they involved obtaining the RICO Plaintiffs' and Class members' funds and avoiding the expenses and loss of revenues associated with recalling the worthless drugs.

770. During the formulation, manufacture, marketing, distribution, and sale of Zantac, the RICO Defendants came across and/or shared information about the material safety risks that ranitidine formed NDMA. Nevertheless, the RICO Defendants concealed or omitted the material safety risks in information it provided the public about Zantac and ranitidine.

3. The RICO Defendants' Conduct Damaged the RICO Plaintiffs and Class Members

771. By reason of, and as a result of the conduct of the RICO Defendants, and in particular, their pattern of racketeering activity, the RICO Plaintiffs and Class members have been injured in their business and/or property in multiple ways, including, but not limited to:

(a) the purchase price of Zantac;

(b) overpayment for Zantac; and/or

(c) other out-of-pocket expenses.

772. The RICO Defendants' violations of 18 U.S.C. §1962(c) and (d) have directly and proximately caused injuries and damages to the RICO Plaintiffs and Class members. The RICO Plaintiffs and Class members are entitled to bring this action for three times their actual damages, as well as injunctive/equitable relief, costs, and reasonable attorneys' fees pursuant to 18 U.S.C. §1964(c).

773. As a direct and proximate result of the RICO Defendants' concealment, omission, and failure to disclose material facts concerning the material safety risks of their OTC Zantac and Ranitidine-Containing Products generally, the RICO Plaintiffs and the Class members suffered damages through their purchase of OTC Zantac, which is unsafe for human consumption and therefore worthless.

774. The RICO Defendants uniformly omitted the material safety risks of Ranitidine-Containing Products, including their OTC Zantac, in messages to consumers and the public for over 25 years. Specifically, the RICO Defendants omitted the material safety risks of Ranitidine-Containing Products, including their OTC Zantac, in national marketing campaigns for OTC

Zantac, and on the product labels for OTC Zantac, to which every consumer who purchased the product was exposed.

775. As alleged herein, these material safety omissions were deceptive and misleading when made because the RICO OTC Zantac contained an inherently unstable ranitidine molecule that breaks down into unreasonably dangerous levels of NDMA.

776. As alleged herein, the RICO Defendants knew or recklessly disregarded that NDMA is a clearly carcinogenic chemical and that the ranitidine molecule in their Ranitidine-Containing Products is unstable and degrades into NDMA. Thus, the RICO Defendants knew or recklessly disregarded that their Ranitidine-Containing Products, including their OTC Zantac, posed material safety risks to consumers.

777. Despite having actual knowledge of the foregoing material facts, or recklessly disregarding them, Defendants concealed in their statements to consumers and the public that their OTC Zantac and other Ranitidine-Containing Products contained an unstable ranitidine molecule that breaks down into a carcinogen that made them unfit for human consumption and were, therefore, worthless.

778. These facts are material as they relate to the safety of a drug intended for human consumption and the propensity of the drug to cause cancer when used as directed. These facts would be considered important and material by any reasonable consumer. No reasonable consumer would have purchased the RICO Defendants' OTC Zantac had the RICO Defendants disclosed these material facts.

779. At the time they purchased the RICO Defendants' OTC Zantac, the RICO Plaintiffs and the Class members did not know, and could not have discovered through reasonable diligence, the material facts regarding the safety risks of Ranitidine-Containing Products that the RICO

Defendants concealed and/or failed to disclose in statements to consumers and the public. The RICO Plaintiffs and Class members reasonably and justifiably relied on the RICO Defendants' omissions, concealments, and/or failure to disclose materials facts about OTC Zantac. Had the RICO Defendants disclosed the true facts regarding the material safety risks of OTC Zantac and Ranitidine-Containing Products generally, the RICO Plaintiffs and Class members would not have purchased Defendants' OTC Zantac.

780. Thus, as a direct and proximate result of the RICO Defendants' unlawful conduct, the RICO Plaintiffs and Class members have suffered damages and out-of-pocket losses, paid for a worthless drug, and/or did not receive the benefit of their bargain in that they paid to purchase deceptively marketed and unreasonably dangerous drugs they otherwise would not have purchased. The RICO Plaintiff's injuries were directly and thus proximately caused by the RICO Defendants' racketeering activities because they were the logical, substantial, and foreseeable cause of the RICO Plaintiff's injuries. But for the RICO Defendants omission of material fact in statements to consumers and the public, the RICO Plaintiffs would not have lost money or property.

781. Thus, the RICO Plaintiffs and Class members have suffered a concrete and particularized harm that is actual and/or imminent, and that is fairly traceable to the RICO Defendants' unlawful conduct. A favorable decision by this Court is likely to redress the injuries suffered by the RICO Plaintiffs and the Class members. The RICO Plaintiffs are the most directly harmed individuals, and there are no other plaintiffs better suited to seek a remedy for their economic harms at issue here.

Plaintiff Name	State(s) of Residence
Golbenaz Bakhtiar	California
Richard Obrien	California
Janet Asbury	Kentucky
Richard Froehlich	New York

812. Excluded from the State Classes are Defendants and any of their affiliates, parents, subsidiaries, officers, and directors; any entity in which Defendants have a controlling interest; all persons who make a timely election to be excluded from the class; governmental entities; and all judges assigned to hear any aspect of this litigation, including their immediate family members.

813. Plaintiffs reserve the right to modify or amend the definitions of State Classes, including to add one or more subclasses, after having the opportunity to conduct discovery.

2. Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 23 Requirements

814. Each of the proposed State Classes meets the requirements of Federal Rules of Civil Procedure 23(a), (b)(2)-(3) and/or (c)(4).

815. Numerosity. The members of each class are so numerous that joinder is impracticable. Zantac and other Ranitidine-Containing Products haves for decades been one of the most popular medications for relief of heartburn, acid reflux, and similar conditions and, thus, it is reasonable to infer that each State Class includes thousands if not millions of members who are geographically dispersed throughout the country and/or throughout each respective State.

816. Typicality. Plaintiffs' claims are typical of the claims of putative Class members in that Plaintiffs' claims arise out of the same common course of conduct that gives rise to the claims of the other State Class members. Each Plaintiff, like each State Class member, paid money to purchase prescription and/or OTC Zantac or other Ranitidine-Containing Products, including Zantac, manufactured or sold by Defendants, which are not safe for human consumption and, thus,

Plaintiffs, like each Class member, suffered out-of-pocket losses. Plaintiffs, like each State Class member, were injured through Defendants' common course of misconduct, and Plaintiffs are advancing the same legal theories on behalf of themselves and the Class members.

817. Adequacy. Plaintiffs will fairly and adequately protect the interests of the State Class members. Plaintiffs' interests and the interests of all other members of each respective State Class are identical and not antagonistic. Plaintiffs intend to vigorously prosecute this case and will fairly and adequately protect the State Class members' interests. Plaintiffs have retained counsel who are competent and experienced in litigating class actions, including litigation of this kind.

818. Commonality and Predominance. There are numerous questions of law and fact common to the State Classes, and these common questions predominate over any issues affecting only individual State Class members. Questions common to the State Classes include, but are not limited to, the following:

(a) whether Zantac and other Ranitidine-Containing Products contain, or are likely to contain, unacceptable levels of NDMA;

(b) whether Defendants knew or should have known that Zantac and other Ranitidine-Containing Products contains, or are likely to contain, unacceptable levels of NDMA;

(c) whether Defendants knew or should have known that consumption of Zantac and other Ranitidine-Containing Products increases the risk of developing cancer;

(d) whether Defendants acted to conceal the fact that Zantac and other Ranitidine-Containing Products expose users to unacceptable quantities of NDMA;

(e) whether Defendants acted to conceal the fact that Zantac and other Ranitidine-Containing Products contain, or are likely to contain, unacceptable levels of NDMA and increase the risk of developing cancer;

(f) whether Defendants' labeling, packaging, marketing, advertising, or promotion of Zantac and other Ranitidine-Containing Products misrepresented or omitted the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products and/or Zantac, or failed to disclose that Zantac and other Ranitidine-

Containing Products contain and continue to produce high levels of the carcinogen NDMA;

(g) whether Defendants' labeling, packaging, marketing, advertising, or promotion of Zantac and other Ranitidine-Containing Products misrepresented or omitted the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products and/or Zantac, or failed to disclose that consumption of Ranitidine-Containing Products increases the risk of developing cancer;

(h) whether Defendants' labeling, packaging, marketing, advertising, or promotion of Zantac and other Ranitidine-Containing Products misrepresented or omitted the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products and/or Zantac, when used within the expiration dates;

(i) whether Defendants' labeling, packaging, marketing, advertising, or promotion of Zantac and other Ranitidine-Containing Products misrepresented or omitted the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products and/or Zantac, when used beyond the expiration dates;

(j) whether Defendants' conduct was knowing or willful;

(k) whether Defendants' conduct violated state consumer-protection statutes;

(l) whether Defendants breached implied warranties;

(m) whether Defendants have been unjustly enriched;

(n) whether Plaintiffs and the State Class members are entitled to recover damages and the appropriate measure of those damages;

(o) the appropriate measure of disgorgement; and

(p) the type and format of injunctive relief that is appropriate.

819. Superiority. A class action is superior to any other available means for the fair and efficient adjudication of this controversy, and no unusual difficulties are likely to be encountered in the management of this class action. The quintessential purpose of the class action mechanism is to permit litigation against wrongdoers even when damages to an individual plaintiff may not be sufficient to justify individual litigation. Here, the damages suffered by Plaintiffs and the State Class are relatively small compared to the burden and expense required to individually litigate their claims against Defendants, and thus, individual litigation to redress Defendants' wrongful conduct would be impracticable. Individual litigation by each State Class member would also strain the court system, create the potential for inconsistent or contradictory judgments, and increase the delay and expense to all parties and the court system. By contrast, the class action device presents far fewer management difficulties and provides the benefits of a single adjudication, economies of scale, and comprehensive supervision by a single court.

820. Injunctive and Declaratory Relief. Class certification is also appropriate under Rule 23(b)(2) because Defendants acted and refused to act on grounds generally applicable to the State Class as a whole, such that final injunctive relief is appropriate with respect to the State Class as a whole.

821. Plaintiffs reserve the right to seek certification under Rule 23(c)(4) of common questions related to Defendants' knowledge, conduct, products, and duties.

B. Additional Factual Allegations

1. Brand Name Prescription Manufacturer GSK's Misrepresentations or Omissions of Material Fact in the Labeling of Ranitidine-Containing Products

822. 21 U.S.C. §352(a)(1) provides, in pertinent part,

> A drug or device shall be deemed to be misbranded
> (a) FALSE OR MISLEADING LABEL

> (1) If its labeling is false or misleading in any particular. (emphasis in original).

823. A manufacturer is required to give adequate directions for the use of a pharmaceutical drug such that a "layman can use a drug safely and for the purposes for which it is intended,"[340] and conform to requirements governing the appearance of the label.[341]

824. "Labeling" encompasses all written, printed, or graphic material accompanying the drug or device,[342] and therefore broadly encompasses nearly every form of promotional activity, including not only "package inserts" but also advertising.

825. "Most, if not all, labeling is advertising. The term 'labeling' is defined in the FDCA as including all printed matter accompanying any article. Congress did not, and we cannot, exclude from the definition printed matter which constitutes advertising."[343]

826. GSK was responsible for conducting stability testing, which must be "designed to assess the stability characteristics of drug products."[344] Manufacturers must adopt a written testing program that includes: "(1) Sample size and test intervals based on statistical criteria for each attribute examined to assure valid estimates of stability; (2) Storage conditions for samples retained for testing; (3) Reliable, meaningful, and specific test methods; (4) Testing of the drug product in the same container-closure system as that in which the drug product is marketed; (5) Testing of drug products for reconstitution at the time of dispensing (as directed in the labeling) as well as after they are reconstituted."[345]

827. The purpose of stability testing is, in part, to determine the "appropriate storage conditions and expiration dates."[346] And expiration dates, in turn, must be set to "assure that a drug product meets applicable standards of identity, strength, quality, and purity at the time of use."[347] An expiration date is "related to any storage conditions stated on the labeling, as determined by stability studies listed in § 211.166."[348]

828. GSK was required to conduct its own tests to determine and set accurate retest or expiration dates.

829. The FDA made clear when it first adopted the expiration-date provision that the regulation means what it says. The purpose of the expiration date is not merely to consider the "stability of a specific active ingredient." Instead, a compliant expiration date must account for multiple factors, including "the stability of the inactive ingredients, the interaction of active and inactive ingredients, the manufacturing process, the dosage form, the container closure system, the conditions under which the drug product is shipped, stored, and handled by wholesalers and retailers, and the length of time between initial manufacture and final use."[349]

830. The FDA expressly recognizes that an initial expiration date may not be the final expiration date: "Where data from accelerated studies are used to project a tentative expiration date that is beyond a date supported by actual shelf life studies, there must be stability studies conducted . . . until the tentative expiration date is verified or the appropriate expiration date determined."[350]

831. After a drug is approved, a brand manufacturer can make changes to its drug application. To do so, manufacturers must comply with the requirements of §§ 314.70 and 314.71.[351]

832. Some of the requirements in those regulations require a brand manufacturer of an approved drug to obtain FDA approval before implementing a label change.[352]

833. But the FDA has long recognized a "changes being effected" ("CBE") supplement that permits a manufacturer to make immediate changes, subject to the FDA's post-change review.[353]

834. A manufacturer of an approved drug can use the CBE supplement to immediately make an "[a]ddition to a specification or changes in the methods or controls to provide increased assurance that the drug substance or drug product will have the characteristics of identity, strength quality, purity, or potency that it purports or is represented to possess."[354] "A specification is defined as a list of tests, references to analytical procedures, and appropriate acceptance criteria that are numerical limits, ranges, or other criteria for the tests described."[355]

835. A manufacturer, therefore, need not seek FDA pre-approval to make changes to its stability studies to identify the appropriate expiration date – which must "assure that a drug product meets applicable standards of identity, strength, quality, and purity at the time of use"[356] – or to ensure that the drug is shipped and stored under appropriate conditions.

836. A manufacturer of an approved drug can also use the CBE supplement to make changes "in the labeling to reflect newly acquired information" in order to "add or strengthen a contraindication, warning, precaution, or adverse reaction for which the evidence of a causal association satisfies the standard for inclusion in the labeling under §201.57(c) of this chapter"; "add or strengthen an instruction about dosage and administration that is intended to increase the safe use of the drug product"; and "delete false, misleading, or unsupported indications for use or claims for effectiveness."[357]

837. A manufacturer of an approved drug may make minor changes to a label with no approval or notice, so long as that change is described in an annual report. The illustrative but non-exhaustive list of minor changes includes "[a] change in the labeling concerning the description of the drug product or in the information about how the drug product is supplied, that does not involve a change in the dosage strength or dosage form."[358]

838. A "minor change" further includes "[a]n extension of an expiration dating period based upon full shelf life data on production batches obtained from a protocol approved in the NDA."[359]

839. At no time did GSK attempt to include a warning on the labels for ranitidine-containing products that consumers were at elevated risk of developing cancer if the products were: (a) exposed to excessive heat; (b) exposed to excessive moisture/humidity; (c) consumed with high-nitrite foods; or (d) consumed daily for a period of greater than a few months. The FDA never rejected such cancer warnings.

840. At no time did GSK attempt to change its label to delete a false or misleading expiration date, or to add a proper expiration date to ensure that ranitidine-containing products would not break down into NDMA prior to human consumption.

841. Based on the public scientific information, GSK knew or should have known that NDMA could form in ranitidine by exposure to heat, humidity, nitrites, the conditions of the human stomach, and/or over time in storage.

842. At no time did GSK change its label to shorten the expiration date. GSK had the ability to unilaterally make such label changes (for both prescription and OTC) without prior FDA approval pursuant to the CBE regulation. Had GSK attempted such label changes, the FDA would not have rejected them.

843. Because it failed to include appropriate expiration dates on their products, GSK made false statements in the labeling of its products.

844. Because it failed to include a warning on the labels for ranitidine-containing products that consumers were at elevated risk of developing cancer if the products were: (i) exposed to excessive heat; (ii) exposed to excessive moisture/humidity; (iii) consumed with high-nitrite foods; (iv) consumed daily for a period of greater than a few months, GSK made false statements in the labeling of its products.

2. Generic Prescription Manufacturer Defendants' Misrepresentations or Omissions of Material Fact in the Labeling of Prescription Ranitidine-Containing Products

845. The Generic Prescription Manufacturer Defendants are Amneal, Apotex, Dr. Reddy's, Glenmark, Sandoz, Strides and Teva.

846. 21 U.S.C. §352(a)(1) provides, in pertinent part,

> A drug or device shall be deemed to be misbranded –

847. A manufacturer is required to give adequate directions for the use of a pharmaceutical drug such that a "layman can use a drug safely and for the purposes for which it is intended,"[360] and conform to requirements governing the appearance of the label.[361]

852. Notably, while generic medications must have the same active ingredients as their branded counterparts, the inactive ingredients, or excipients, may not necessarily be identical. For this reason, the stability of each generic drug may differ from manufacturer to manufacturer, or even from manufacturing process to manufacturing process.

853. Each generic manufacturer must therefore conduct its own tests to determine and set accurate retest or expiration dates.

854. The FDA made clear when it first adopted the expiration-date provision that the regulation means what it says. The purpose of the expiration date is not merely to consider the "stability of a specific active ingredient." Instead, a compliant expiration date must account for multiple factors, including "the stability of the inactive ingredients, the interaction of active and inactive ingredients, the manufacturing process, the dosage form, the container closure system, the

3. Brand Name OTC Manufacturer Defendants' Misrepresentations or Omissions of Material Fact in the Labeling and Packaging of OTC Ranitidine-Containing Products

868. The Brand Name OTC Manufacturer Defendants are GSK, Pfizer, BI, and Sanofi.

869. Each of these Brand Name OTC Manufacturer Defendants increased OTC Ranitidine–Containing Product demand through a fundamental and uniform message, parlayed through a multi-media campaign that OTC Zantac is safe, it can be used frequently, long-term, with high-nitrate and -nitrite foods, and poses no serious health risks such as those associated with the consumption of NDMA—a known human carcinogen.

870. Examples of this campaign include a series of television, print, radio, and internet ads for OTC Zantac throughout the United States and to consumers that uniformly omitted the material safety risks that the products contained NDMA, that ranitidine was instable, that NDMA content could increase through the lapse of time and when exposed to heat or humidity, and that it should not be used in connection with high-nitrate or -nitrite foods.

871. At the point of sale, Brand Name OTC Manufacturer Defendants sold Zantac packaged and labeled with misleading information and material omissions.

The FDA never rejected such cancer warnings.

b. Misrepresentations or Omissions of Material Fact in Packaging

895. 21 U.S.C. §352(i)(1) provides, in pertinent part,

> A drug or device shall be deemed to be misbranded—
> (i) DRUG; MISLEADING CONTAINER; IMITATION; OFFER FOR SALE UNDER ANOTHER NAME

896. As alleged above, each Brand Name OTC Manufacturer Defendant was required to conduct stability testing, which was required to take the container into account.

897. As previously alleged, ranitidine degrades into NDMA more quickly at higher temperatures, at higher humidity levels, and under other poor storage or handling conditions.

898. The Brand Name OTC Manufacturer Defendants knew that ranitidine had an inherent risk of degrading into NDMA because it has both a nitroso (N) and dimethylamine (DMA), which are all the ingredients needed to form NDMA.

899. The ranitidine-containing products Plaintiffs consumed had excessive levels of NDMA in part because they were subjected to high levels of humidity and were stored for a long period of time (often in humid locations such as bathrooms).

900. A substantial factor in NDMA formation was the container system manufacturers chose. Pill bottles with large numbers of units of ranitidine are likely to be stored for long periods by consumers after the seal is broken. This exposes the remaining units to humidity over time, which produces NDMA.

901. A different container would have reduced the amount of NDMA Plaintiffs consumed in several ways:

(a) Placing each unit of ranitidine in a blister pack or similar individually packaged container would ensure humidity control until the consumer used each unit.

(b) Reducing the number of units of ranitidine in each bottle to a low number would ensure the unused units were subject to humidity for only a shorter time period, since consumers would purchase new bottles more frequently.

(c) Reinforcing compliance with any labeling instructions to stop use after 14 days.

902. Each Brand Name OTC Manufacturer Defendant could have unilaterally changed the container system it sold. FDA guidance specifically allows changing the number of units in a non-sterile drug under its Changes-Being Effected regulation. See FDA, Guidance for Industry, Changes to an Approved NDA or ANDA, Revision 1, at 21 (Apr. 2004), https://www.fda.gov/media/71846/download ("A change in the number of units (e.g., tablets, capsules) or labeled amount (e.g., grams, milliliters) of a nonsterile drug product in a unit-of-use container."). FDA guidance also would treat changing to a unit-dose container such as a blister-pack to be a moderate change that could be implemented through the Changes-Being Effected regulation. See id. at 20-21 (only requiring pre-approval for sterile drug products, when moving from unit dose containers to multiple dose containers, rather than non-sterile drug products moving to unit dose containers).

903. Brand Name OTC Manufacturer Defendants were not required to put their ranitidine in the same type of containers as the other OTC Zantac or OTC Ranitidine-Containing Products, because the duty of sameness does not apply to containers. It applies only to the drug label. See 21 C.F.R. §314.94(a)(8)(iv) ("Labeling (including the container label, package insert, and, if applicable, Medication Guide) proposed for the drug product must be the same as the labeling approved for the reference listed drug ….").

904. A reasonably prudent manufacturer would have changed the containers for ranitidine-containing products to protect the products from humidity and reduce the time between manufacture and consumption, both of which would reduce the amount of NDMA produced.

905. As examples only, beginning in or about December 2006, BI sold Zantac 75 mg under NDC 0597-0122-96 in a bottle containing 96 pills, under NDC 0597-0122-81 in a bottle containing 80 pills, and under NDC 0597-0122-61 in a container containing 100 pills in pouches.

906. As examples only, beginning in or about December 2006, BI sold Zantac Maximum Strength 150 Cool Mint under NDC 0597-0120-87 in a bottle containing 85 tablets, under NDC

0597-0120-82 in a container containing 80 tablets in pouches, and under NDC 0597-0120-78 in a bottle containing 78 tablets.

907. An example of a BI label for a package of 80 tablets follows:

908. As examples only, beginning in or about April 2018, Sanofi sold Zantac 150 mg under NDC 41167-0310-6 in a bottle containing 90 tablets, under NDC 41167-0310-9 in a bottle containing 78 pills, and under 41167-0310-8 in two bottles packaged in one carton with each bottle containing 60 tablets (for a 120-tablet package).

910. Because they failed to package their products in appropriate container sizes, Brand Name OTC Manufacturer Defendants made false statements in the packaging of their products.

911. Brand Name OTC Manufacturer Defendants' conduct, as described above, was reckless. Defendants regularly risked the lives of consumers and users of their products, including Plaintiffs, with full knowledge of the dangers of their products. Brand Name OTC Manufacturer Defendants have made conscious decisions not to change the containers for their ranitidine-containing products. Brand Name OTC Manufacturer Defendants' reckless conduct therefore warrants an award of punitive damages.

4. Store-Brand Retailer Defendants' Misrepresentations or Omissions of Material Fact in the Labeling and Packaging of OTC Ranitidine-Containing Products

912. The Store-Brand Retailer Defendants (known as Private-Label Distributors "PLD") are Walmart, Walgreens, CVS, and Rite-Aid.

913. The FDA considers a firm that does not manufacture or process the drug but instead markets and distributes it under its own trade name, and labels a drug product made by someone else, a PLD.[400]

914. While a PLD contracts with a contract manufacturing organization (CMO) to manufacture and process a drug, the FDA holds the PLD responsible for ensuring that all of its products comply with CGMPs, are not adulterated for failure to comply with CGMPs, and are not misbranded.

915. Delegating manufacturing or testing operations for a store-branded product to other companies does not exonerate the PLD from complying with its regulatory and state law requirements.

916. Thus, a PLD that contracts out some or all of its operations must establish a system of production and process controls to ensure its private-label product is not adulterated or misbranded prior to distribution or sale.

a. Walmart's Misrepresentations or Omissions of Material Fact in the Labeling and Packaging of OTC Ranitidine-Containing Products

(i) Walmart is a Private Label Distributor for the Private Label Product Equate Ranitidine

917. Walmart offers store brands, which are low-priced alternatives to name-brand products. Walmart has numerous store brands, each catering to a different consumer need.

918. Almost all products offered under Walmart store-brands are private label products, meaning Walmart produces them through subsidized contracts awarded to the lowest bidder.

919. Equate is Walmart's store brand, or private label, for consumable pharmacy and health and beauty items, including OTC medications.

920. Walmart contracts with a third-party manufacturer to manufacture its Equate OTC medications.

921. With respect to OTC medications, Walmart is considered a PLD. As a PLD, Walmart is responsible for ensuring that all of its products comply with cGMPs and are not adulterated for failure to comply with CGMPs and are not misbranded.

922. Walmart requires all suppliers that provide prescription pharmaceutical products to its Pharmacy Distribution Centers, either directly or indirectly, to abide by its Responsible Sourcing Standards for Suppliers.[401]

923. Walmart publishes "Supplier Requirements for Over-the-Counter Drugs, Vitamins, and Dietary & Nutritional Supplements" ("Supplier Requirements").[402]

924. Walmart's Supplier Requirements demonstrate its knowledge that it is ultimately responsible for ensuring that all of its products comply with cGMPs and are not adulterated for failure to comply with CGMPs and are not misbranded.

925. The Supplier Requirements mandate that all suppliers must provide "transparency" about the facilities used to produce any materials sold in Walmart stores.[403]

926. Walmart claims that the transparency "allows Walmart to assess supply chain risk, monitor for compliance…and deploy resources in a risk-based manner."[404]

927. In order to ship any pharmaceutical product into any of Walmart's Pharmacy Distribution Centers, Walmart claims that the supplier must meet or exceed all applicable laws and requirements, as well as adhere to any additional requirements stated in the agreement.[405]

928. Walmart also claims that "Facility disclosure is essential to achieving true supply chain transparency." To this end, Walmart requires that each facility that engages in the manufacture, preparation, propagation, compounding, processing, packaging, labeling, storage, and distribution of sourced product must be disclosed to Walmart's "Health & Wellness Product Safety" department.[406]

929. Pursuant to FDA requirements that the PLD is responsible for the manufacture and distribution of its private-label products, Walmart requires its suppliers to provide:

> a third party certification and audit showing conformance with current FDA Good Manufacturing Practices (cGMP) specific for the type of products manufactured, prepared, propagated, compounded, processed, stored, packaged, or labeled in each respective facility or operation. This means that each facility disclosed as outlined under the Factory & Facility Disclosure section must provide cGMP certification and cGMP conformance audit documentation by a Walmart approved third party auditing body annually to Health & Wellness Product Safety. Third party cGMP audits and certifications are in addition to any audits required by Walmart's Responsible Sourcing team.[407]

930. Audit results containing "[i]tems showing non-conformance to standards will require submission of corrective measures acceptable to Health & Wellness Product Safety in order to receive approval" by Walmart.[408]

931. As part of its Equate OTC product line, Walmart sold ranitidine.

932. An example of an Equate label for Walmart's store-brand or private-label ranitidine follows:[409]

935. Walmart contracted with Perrigo, Dr. Reddy's Laboratories, Apotex, and Strides to manufacture its Equate ranitidine products.

936. Delegating manufacturing or testing operations for Equate ranitidine to other companies did not exonerate Walmart as the PLD from its regulatory requirements to establish a system of production and process controls to ensure its private-label products were not adulterated or misbranded prior to sale.

(ii) Walmart's Misrepresentations or Omissions of Material Fact on the Labels

937. 21 U.S.C. §352(a)(1) provides, in pertinent part,

> A drug or device shall be deemed to be misbranded –
>
> (a) FALSE OR MISLEADING LABEL
> (1) If its labeling is false or misleading in any particular.

938. 21 C.F.R. §210.1(a) states that the CGMPs establish "minimum current good manufacturing practice for methods to be used in, and the facilities or controls to be used for, the manufacture, processing, packing, or holding of a drug to assure that such drug meets the requirements of the act as to safety, and has the identity and strength and meets the quality and purity characteristics that it purports or is represented to possess." Entities at all phases of the design, manufacture, and distribution chain are bound by these requirements.

939. Pursuant to 21 C.F.R. §211.142(b), the warehousing of drug products shall provide for "[s]torage of drug products under appropriate conditions of temperature, humidity, and light so that the identity, strength, quality, and purity of the drug products are not affected." In other words, Walmart had a duty and was obligated to ensure that its ranitidine was properly stored, handled, and warehoused by Walmart or its suppliers.

940. Testing conducted by the FDA confirms that improper storage of ranitidine has resulted in extremely high levels of NDMA.[410] The FDA has also concluded that NDMA can increase in ranitidine even under storage conditions allowed by the labels, and NDMA has been found to increase significantly in samples stored at higher temperatures, including temperatures the product may be exposed to during normal distribution and handling. FDA's testing also showed that the level of NDMA in ranitidine-containing products increases with time. And while Emery's Citizen Petition sought to obtain a directive regarding temperature-controlled shipping of ranitidine, which was necessary given the time and temperature sensitivity of the drug, that request was deemed moot by the FDA because the agency sought to withdraw ranitidine-containing products altogether.

941. Nothing prevented Walmart from, on its own, taking actions to prevent accumulation of NDMA in ranitidine-containing products by ensuring storage and transport at the lower end of the temperature range contained on the labels. Nothing prevented Walmart from ensuring that ranitidine was not exposed to humidity or moisture.

942. At no time did Walmart attempt to change, or cause its suppliers to attempt to change, the Equate ranitidine label to delete a false or misleading expiration date, or to add a proper expiration date to ensure that Equate ranitidine products would not break down into NDMA prior to human consumption.

943. An example of an Equate label reflecting that expiration dates were included on the packaging follows:

944. Based on the public scientific information, Walmart knew or should have known that NDMA could form in ranitidine by exposure to heat, humidity, nitrites, the conditions of the human stomach, and/or over time in storage.

945. At no time did Walmart change its Equate ranitidine label to shorten the expiration date. Walmart had the ability to cause its suppliers to unilaterally make such label changes for Equate ranitidine without prior FDA approval pursuant to the CBE regulation. Had Walmart attempted such label changes, the FDA would not have rejected them.

946. Because Walmart failed to include appropriate expiration dates on its products, Walmart made false statements in the labeling of its products.

(iii) Walmart's Misrepresentations or Omissions of Material Fact in Packaging

947. 21 U.S.C. §352(i)(1) provides, in pertinent part,

> A drug or device shall be deemed to be misbranded –
> (i) DRUG; MISLEADING CONTAINER; IMITATION; OFFER FOR SALE UNDER ANOTHER NAME
> (1) If it is a drug and its container is so made, formed, or filled as to be misleading;….

948. As alleged above, each PLD was required to conduct, or cause its contract manufacturer to conduct, stability testing, which was required to take the container into account.

949. As previously alleged, ranitidine degrades into NDMA more quickly at higher temperatures, at higher humidity levels, and under other poor storage or handling conditions.

950. Walmart knew or should have known that ranitidine had an inherent risk of degrading into NDMA because it has both a nitroso (N) and dimethylamine (DMA), which are all the ingredients needed to form NDMA.

951. The ranitidine-containing products Plaintiffs consumed had excessive levels of NDMA in part because they were subjected to high levels of humidity and were stored for a long period of time (often in humid locations such as bathrooms).

952. A substantial factor in NDMA formation was the container system Walmart chose. Pill bottles with large numbers of units of ranitidine are likely to be stored for long periods by consumers after the seal is broken. This exposes the remaining units to humidity over time, which produces NDMA.

953. A different container would have reduced the amount of NDMA Plaintiffs consumed in several ways:

(a) Placing each unit of ranitidine in a blister pack or similar individually packaged container would ensure humidity control until the consumer used each unit.

(b) Reducing the number of units of ranitidine in each bottle to a low number would ensure the unused units were subject to humidity for only a shorter time period, since consumers would purchase new bottles more frequently.

(c) Reinforcing compliance with any labeling instructions to stop use after 14 days.

954. Walmart could have changed, or caused its contract manufacturers to change, the container system it sold. FDA guidance specifically allows changing the number of units in a non-sterile drug under its Changes-Being Effected regulation.[411] FDA guidance also would treat changing to a unit-dose container such as a blister-pack to be a moderate change that could be implemented through the Changes-Being Effected regulation.[412]

955. Walmart was not required to put its ranitidine in the same type of containers as the other OTC Zantac or OTC Ranitidine-Containing Products, because the duty of sameness does not apply to containers. It applies only to the drug label.[413]

[412] See id. at 20-21 (only requiring pre-approval for sterile drug products, when moving from unit dose containers to multiple dose containers, rather than non-sterile drug products moving to unit dose containers).

956. A reasonably prudent PLD would have changed the containers for ranitidine-containing products to protect the products from humidity and reduce the time between manufacture and consumption, both of which would reduce the amount of NDMA produced.

957. As reflected in the chart above, and as an example only, Walmart sold its Equate ranitidine product in bottles with as many as 220 tablets.

958. A copy of the label for the Equate ranitidine product with 220 tablets follows:

959. Further the demand for large quantity package sizes put Defendant on notice that purchases were made for regular and extended use, and not for a one-time occasion.

960. Because Walmart failed to package its products in appropriate container sizes, Walmart made false statements in the packaging of its products.

961. Walmart's conduct, as described above, was reckless. Defendant regularly risked the lives of consumers and users of their products, including Plaintiffs, with full knowledge of the dangers of its products. Walmart made conscious decisions not to change the containers for its ranitidine-containing products. Walmart's reckless conduct therefore warrants an award of punitive damages.

b. Walgreens' Misrepresentations or Omissions of Material Fact in the Labeling and Packaging of OTC Ranitidine-Containing Products

(i) Walgreens Is a Private Label Distributor for the Private-Label Product Wal-Zan Ranitidine

962. Walgreens offers store brands, which are low-priced alternatives to name-brand products. Walgreens has numerous store brands, each catering to a different consumer need.

963. Almost all products offered under Walgreens store-brands are private label products, meaning Walgreens produces them through subsidized contracts awarded to the lowest bidder.

964. Walgreens uses the pre-fix "Wal-" together with a portion of the brand-name of an OTC medication to name its private-label OTC products. For example, Wal-Flu is Walgreens' private-label product that competes with Theraflu, Wal-itin is Walgreens' private label product that competes with Claritin, and Wal-Dryl is Walgreens' private-label product that is comparable to Benadryl.

965. Walgreens contracts with third-party manufacturers to manufacture its "Wal-" OTC medications.

966. With respect to OTC medications, Walgreens is considered a PLD. As a PLD, Walgreens is responsible for ensuring that all of its products comply with cGMPs and are not adulterated for failure to comply with CGMPs and are not misbranded.

967. Walgreens states that it understands that consumers "want to feel confident the products they use are safe for their intended purposes."[414]

968. Walgreens claims it aims to do "business fairly and with integrity" which has led Walgreens to "drive responsible sourcing practices throughout our supply chain, protecting human rights and engaging with suppliers around ethical and environmental issues."[415]

969. According to Walgreens, "[p]atient safety lies at the heart of our management of pharmacy operations, and we strive to be the industry leader by continuously seeking ways to minimize risks to patients in our dispensing, pharmacy services and advance and pharmacy supply chain operations."[416]

970. Walgreens claims it engages in "ongoing supplier ethical compliance assessments" which includes "engaging with suppliers to improve when issues are detected."

971. Walgreens also claims to screen suppliers against a matrix which assesses the suppliers' management systems to discern whether they are operating in any way which violates Walgreens' ethical sourcing commitments.[417]

972. Walgreens' supplier requirements demonstrate its knowledge that it is ultimately responsible for ensuring that all of its products comply with cGMPs and are not adulterated for failure to comply with CGMPs and are not misbranded.

977. Walgreens contracted with Defendants Perrigo, Dr. Reddy's Laboratories, Apotex, Strides, as well as third-party Wockhardt to manufacture its Wal-Zan ranitidine products.

978. Delegating manufacturing or testing operations for Wal-Zan ranitidine to other companies did not exonerate Walgreens as the PLD from its regulatory requirements to establish a system of production and process controls to ensure its private-label products were not adulterated or misbranded prior to sale.

(ii) Walgreens' Misrepresentations or Omissions of Material Fact on the Labels

979. 21 U.S.C. §352(a)(1) provides, in pertinent part,

> A drug or device shall be deemed to be misbranded –
>
> (a) FALSE OR MISLEADING LABEL
> (1) If its labeling is false or misleading in any particular.

980. 21 C.F.R. §210.1(a) states that the CGMPs establish "minimum current good manufacturing practice for methods to be used in, and the facilities or controls to be used for, the manufacture, processing, packing, or holding of a drug to assure that such drug meets the requirements of the act as to safety, and has the identity and strength and meets the quality and purity characteristics that it purports or is represented to possess." Entities at all phases of the design, manufacture, and distribution chain are bound by these requirements.

981. Pursuant to 21 C.F.R. §211.142(b), the warehousing of drug products shall provide for "[s]torage of drug products under appropriate conditions of temperature, humidity, and light so that the identity, strength, quality, and purity of the drug products are not affected." In other words, Walgreens had a duty and was obligated to properly store, handle, and warehouse ranitidine.

982. Testing conducted by the FDA confirms that improper storage of ranitidine has resulted in extremely high levels of NDMA.[419] The FDA has also concluded that NDMA can increase in ranitidine even under storage conditions allowed by the labels, and NDMA has been found to increase significantly in samples stored at higher temperatures, including temperatures the product may be exposed to during normal distribution and handling. FDA's testing also showed that the level of NDMA in ranitidine-containing products increases with time. And while Emery's Citizen Petition sought to obtain a directive regarding temperature-controlled shipping of ranitidine, which was necessary given the time and temperature sensitivity of the drug, that request was deemed moot by the FDA because the agency sought to withdraw ranitidine-containing products altogether.

983. Nothing prevented Walgreens from, on its own, taking actions to prevent accumulation of NDMA in ranitidine-containing products by ensuring storage and transport at the lower end of the temperature range contained on the labels. Nothing prevented Walgreens from ensuring that ranitidine was not exposed to humidity or moisture.

984. At no time did Walgreens attempt to include, or cause its suppliers to attempt to include, a warning on the labels for Wal-Zan ranitidine that consumers were at elevated risk of developing cancer if the products were: (i) exposed to excessive heat; (ii) exposed to excessive moisture/humidity; (iii) consumed with high-nitrite foods; (iv) consumed daily for a period of greater than a few months. The FDA never rejected such cancer warnings.

985. At no time did Walgreens attempt to change, or cause its suppliers to attempt to change, the Wal-Zan ranitidine label to delete a false or misleading expiration date, or to add a proper expiration date to ensure that Wal-Zan ranitidine products would not break down into NDMA prior to human consumption.

986. An example of a Wal-Zan ranitidine label reflecting that expiration dates were included on the packaging follows:

987. Based on the public scientific information, Walgreens knew or should have known that NDMA could form in ranitidine by exposure to heat, humidity, nitrites, the conditions of the human stomach, and/or over time in storage.

988. At no time did Walgreens change its Wal-Zan ranitidine label to shorten the expiration date. Walgreens had the ability to cause its suppliers to unilaterally make such label changes for Wal-Zan ranitidine without prior FDA approval pursuant to the CBE regulation. Had Walgreens attempted such label changes, the FDA would not have rejected them.

989. Because Walgreens failed to include appropriate expiration dates on its products, Walgreens made false statements in the labeling of its products.

(iii) Walgreens' Misrepresentations or Omissions of Material Fact in Packaging

990. 21 U.S.C. §352(i)(1) provides, in pertinent part,

> A drug or device shall be deemed to be misbranded—
> (i) DRUG; MISLEADING CONTAINER; IMITATION; OFFER FOR SALE UNDER ANOTHER NAME
> (1) If it is a drug and its container is so made, formed, or filled as to be misleading;….

991. As alleged above, each PLD was required to conduct, or cause its contract manufacturer to conduct, stability testing, which was required to take the container into account.

992. As previously alleged, ranitidine degrades into NDMA more quickly at higher temperatures, at higher humidity levels, and under other poor storage or handling conditions.

993. Walgreens knew or should have known that ranitidine had an inherent risk of degrading into NDMA because it has both a nitroso (N) and dimethylamine (DMA), which are all the ingredients needed to form NDMA.

994. The ranitidine-containing products Plaintiffs consumed had excessive levels of NDMA in part because they were subjected to high levels of humidity and were stored for a long period of time (often in humid locations such as bathrooms).

995. A substantial factor in NDMA formation was the container system Walgreens chose. Pill bottles with large numbers of units of ranitidine are likely to be stored for long periods by consumers after the seal is broken. This exposes the remaining units to humidity over time, which produces NDMA.

996. A different container would have reduced the amount of NDMA Plaintiffs consumed in several ways:

(a) Placing each unit of ranitidine in a blister pack or similar individually packaged container would ensure humidity control until the consumer used each unit.

(b) Reducing the number of units of ranitidine in each bottle to a low number would ensure the unused units were subject to humidity for only a shorter time period, since consumers would purchase new bottles more frequently.

(c) Reinforcing compliance with any labeling instructions to stop use after 14 days.

997. Walgreens could have changed, or caused its contract manufacturers to change, the container system it sold. FDA guidance specifically allows changing the number of units in a non-sterile drug under its Changes-Being Effected regulation.[420] FDA guidance also would treat

[420] See FDA, Guidance for Industry, Changes to an Approved NDA or ANDA, Revision 1, at 21 (Apr. 2004), https://www.fda.gov/media/71846/download ("A change in the number of units (e.g., tablets, capsules) or labeled amount (e.g., grams, milliliters) of a nonsterile drug product in a unit-of-use container.").

changing to a unit-dose container such as a blister-pack to be a moderate change that could be implemented through the Changes-Being Effected regulation.[421]

998. Walgreens was not required to put its ranitidine in the same type of containers as the other OTC Zantac OTC Ranitidine-Containing Products, because the duty of sameness does not apply to containers. It applies only to the drug label.[422]

999. A reasonably prudent PLD would have changed the containers for ranitidine-containing products to protect the products from humidity and reduce the time between manufacture and consumption, both of which would reduce the amount of NDMA produced.

1001. A copy of the label for the Wal-Zan ranitidine product with 200 tablets follows:

[421] See id. at 20-21 (only requiring pre-approval for sterile drug products, when moving from unit dose containers to multiple dose containers, rather than non-sterile drug products moving to unit dose containers).

[422] See 21 C.F.R. §314.94(a)(8)(iv) ("Labeling (including the container label, package insert, and, if applicable, Medication Guide) proposed for the drug product must be the same as the labeling approved for the reference listed drug ….").

1002. Further the demand for large quantity package sizes put Defendant on notice that purchases were made for regular and extended use, and not for a one-time occasion.

1003. Because Walgreens failed to package its products in appropriate container sizes, Walgreens made false statements in the packaging of its products.

1004. Walgreens' conduct, as described above, was reckless. Defendant regularly risked the lives of consumers and users of their products, including Plaintiffs, with full knowledge of the dangers of its products. Walgreens made conscious decisions not to change the containers for its ranitidine-containing products. Walgreens' reckless conduct therefore warrants an award of punitive damages.

c. CVS's Misrepresentations or Omissions of Material Fact in the Labeling and Packaging of CVS Health Ranitidine

(i) CVS Is a Private Label Distributor for the Private-Label Product CVS Health Ranitidine

1005. CVS offers store brands, which are low-priced alternatives to name-brand products. CVS has numerous store brands, each catering to a different consumer need.

1006. Almost all products offered under CVS store-brands are private label products, meaning CVS produces them through subsidized contracts awarded to the lowest bidder.

1007. CVS Health is CVS's store brand, or private label, for healthcare needs, including OTC medications.

1008. CVS represents that "CVS Health® products meet the highest quality standards for your health, wellness and beauty needs."[423]

1009. CVS contracts with third-party manufacturers to manufacture its CVS Health OTC medications.

1010. With respect to OTC medications, CVS is considered a PLD. As a PLD, CVS is responsible for ensuring that all of its products comply with cGMPs and are not adulterated for failure to comply with CGMPs and are not misbranded.

1011. Since at least 1997, CVS has required all suppliers that provide pharmaceutical products to its to abide by its standards and submit to regular audits.

1012. CVS loftily claims that its "purpose" in helping people on a path to better health means ensuring "a safe working environment" for the "suppliers worldwide."[424]

1013. To achieve this goal CVS claims it was the first health care retailer to join the "Responsible Factory Initiative" which is dedicated to corporate social responsibility in global supply chains.

1014. This partnership includes training on what CVS purports to be the "most critical risks" in the manufacturing supply chain, including health and safety, chemical management, environmental sustainability, recognizing forced labor, and corrective action planning.

1015. CVS proclaims that it maintains the "highest level of performance" in the areas of supply chain responsibility.[425]

1016. CVS claims that this high level of performance extends to the "creation and production" of each of CVS's private-label products to ensure the "highest level of quality and environmental safety."[426]

1017. CVS touts that its suppliers play an "integral part in our success as a health care leader" and CVS purports to "engage them down to the factor level to better understand the source of our products' raw materials, how and where the products were manufactured, and under what conditions."[427]

1018. To this end, CVS audits all its suppliers, to ensure that "import suppliers and other store brand suppliers are in compliance with social, legal and trade security standards" in manufacturing OTC products for consumers.[428]

1019. CVS requires all suppliers to submit to "Intertek GMP quality audits" to "be performed on all factories producing Store Brand FDA regulated items."[429]

1020. In or about 2012, CVS launched "an enhanced factory audit program" with an aim "to help ensure our import suppliers and global supply chain partners" comply with "good manufacturing processes". As CVS explained in a training for suppliers:[430]

1021. To that end, CVS stated in its training that any supplier of a private-label product that was both a "CVS Store Brand Import Item" and "FDA Regulated Import Item" was required to submit to four types of audits: WCA, GSV, GMP, and SQP.[431] Likewise, any supplier of a private-label product that was both a "CVS Store Domestic Purchased Item" and "FDA Regulated Domestic Purchased Item" was required to submit to two types of audits: GMP and SQP.[432]

1026. CVS's ranitidine products can be identified by the unique labeler code assigned to CVS by the FDA: 69842. Any NDC number starting with 69842 is a CVS private-label product.

1028. CVS contracted with Perrigo, Dr. Reddy's Laboratories, and Strides to manufacture its CVS Health ranitidine products.

1029. Delegating manufacturing or testing operations for CVS Health ranitidine to other companies did not exonerate CVS as the PLD from its regulatory requirements to establish a system of production and process controls to ensure its private-label products were not adulterated or misbranded prior to sale.

(ii) CVS's Misrepresentations or Omissions of Material Fact on the Labels

1030. 21 U.S.C. §352(a)(1) provides, in pertinent part,

> A drug or device shall be deemed to be misbranded –
>
> (a) FALSE OR MISLEADING LABEL
> (1) If its labeling is false or misleading in any particular.

1031. 21 C.F.R. §210.1(a) states that the CGMPs establish "minimum current good manufacturing practice for methods to be used in, and the facilities or controls to be used for, the manufacture, processing, packing, or holding of a drug to assure that such drug meets the requirements of the act as to safety, and has the identity and strength and meets the quality and purity characteristics that it purports or is represented to possess." Entities at all phases of the design, manufacture, and distribution chain are bound by these requirements.

1032. Pursuant to 21 C.F.R. §211.142(b), the warehousing of drug products shall provide for "[s]torage of drug products under appropriate conditions of temperature, humidity, and light so that the identity, strength, quality, and purity of the drug products are not affected." In other words, CVS had a duty and was obligated to properly store, handle, and warehouse ranitidine.

1033. Testing conducted by the FDA confirms that improper storage of ranitidine has resulted in extremely high levels of NDMA.[435] The FDA has also concluded that NDMA can increase in ranitidine even under storage conditions allowed by the labels, and NDMA has been found to increase significantly in samples stored at higher temperatures, including temperatures the product may be exposed to during normal distribution and handling. FDA's testing also showed that the level of NDMA in ranitidine-containing products increases with time. And while Emery's Citizen Petition sought to obtain a directive regarding temperature-controlled shipping of ranitidine, which was necessary given the time and temperature sensitivity of the drug, that request was deemed moot by the FDA because the agency sought to withdraw ranitidine-containing products altogether.

1035. At no time did CVS attempt to include, or cause its suppliers to attempt to include, a warning on the labels for CVS Health ranitidine that consumers were at elevated risk of developing cancer if the products were: (i) exposed to excessive heat; (ii) exposed to excessive moisture/humidity; (iii) consumed with high-nitrite foods; (iv) consumed daily for a period of greater than a few months. The FDA never rejected such cancer warnings.

1036. At no time did CVS attempt to change, or cause its suppliers to attempt to change, the CVS Health ranitidine label to delete a false or misleading expiration date, or to add a proper expiration date to ensure that CVS Health ranitidine products would not break down into NDMA prior to human consumption.

1037. An example of a CVS Health ranitidine label reflecting that expiration dates were included on the packaging follows:

1038. Based on the public scientific information, CVS knew or should have known that NDMA could form in ranitidine by exposure to heat, humidity, nitrites, the conditions of the human stomach, and/or over time in storage.

1039. At no time did CVS change its CVS Health ranitidine label to shorten the expiration date. CVS had the ability to cause its suppliers to unilaterally make such label changes for CVS Health ranitidine without prior FDA approval pursuant to the CBE regulation. Had CVS attempted such label changes, the FDA would not have rejected them.

1040. Because CVS failed to include appropriate expiration dates on its products, CVS made false statements in the labeling of its products.

(iii) CVS's Misrepresentations or Omissions of Material Fact in Packaging

1041. 21 U.S.C. §352(i)(1) provides, in pertinent part,

> A drug or device shall be deemed to be misbranded –
> (i) DRUG; MISLEADING CONTAINER; IMITATION; OFFER FOR SALE UNDER ANOTHER NAME
> (1) If it is a drug and its container is so made, formed, or filled as to be misleading;….

1042. As alleged above, each PLD was required to conduct, or cause its contract manufacturer to conduct, stability testing, which was required to take the container into account.

1043. As previously alleged, ranitidine degrades into NDMA more quickly at higher temperatures, at higher humidity levels, and under other poor storage or handling conditions.

1044. CVS knew or should have known that ranitidine had an inherent risk of degrading into NDMA because it has both a nitroso (N) and dimethylamine (DMA), which are all the ingredients needed to form NDMA.

1045. The ranitidine-containing products Plaintiffs consumed had excessive levels of NDMA in part because they were subjected to high levels of humidity and were stored for a long period of time (often in humid locations such as bathrooms).

1046. A substantial factor in NDMA formation was the container system CVS chose. Pill bottles with large numbers of units of ranitidine are likely to be stored for long periods by consumers after the seal is broken. This exposes the remaining units to humidity over time, which produces NDMA.

1047. A different container would have reduced the amount of NDMA Plaintiffs consumed in several ways:

(a) Placing each unit of ranitidine in a blister pack or similar individually packaged container would ensure humidity control until the consumer used each unit.

(b) Reducing the number of units of ranitidine in each bottle to a low number would ensure the unused units were subject to humidity for only a shorter time period, since consumers would purchase new bottles more frequently.

(c) Reinforcing compliance with any labeling instructions to stop use after 14 days.

1048. CVS could have changed, or caused its contract manufacturers to change, the container system it sold. FDA guidance specifically allows changing the number of units in a non-sterile drug under its Changes-Being Effected regulation.[436] FDA guidance also would treat changing to a unit-dose container such as a blister-pack to be a moderate change that could be implemented through the Changes-Being Effected regulation.[437]

1049. CVS was not required to put its ranitidine in the same type of containers as the other OTC Zantac or OTC Ranitidine-Containing Products, because the duty of sameness does not apply to containers. It applies only to the drug label.[438]

1053. Further the demand for large quantity package sizes put Defendant on notice that purchases were made for regular and extended use, and not for a one-time occasion.

1054. Because CVS failed to package its products in appropriate container sizes, CVS made false statements in the packaging of its products.

1055. CVS's conduct, as described above, was reckless. Defendant regularly risked the lives of consumers and users of their products, including Plaintiffs, with full knowledge of the dangers of its products. CVS made conscious decisions not to change the containers for its ranitidine-containing products. CVS's reckless conduct therefore warrants an award of punitive damages.

d. Rite-Aid's Misrepresentations or Omissions of Material Fact in the Labeling and Packaging of Rite-Aid Acid Reducer Ranitidine

(i) Rite-Aid Is a Private Label Distributor for the Private-Label Product Rite-Aid Acid Reducer Ranitidine

1056. Rite-Aid offers store brands, which are low-priced alternatives to name-brand products. Rite-Aid has numerous store brands, each catering to a different consumer need.

1057. Almost all products offered under Rite-Aid store-brands are private label products, meaning Rite-Aid produces them through subsidized contracts awarded to the lowest bidder.

1058. Rite-Aid is Rite-Aid's store brand, or private label, for, inter alia, OTC medications.

1059. Rite-Aid contracts with third-party manufacturers to manufacture its Rite-Aid OTC medications.

1060. With respect to OTC medications, Rite-Aid is considered a PLD. As a PLD, Rite-Aid is responsible for ensuring that all of its products comply with cGMPs and are not adulterated for failure to comply with CGMPs and are not misbranded.

1061. As part of its Rite-Aid OTC product line, Rite Aid sold ranitidine.

1063. Rite-Aid's ranitidine products can be identified by the unique labeler code assigned to Rite-Aid by the FDA: 11822. Any NDC number starting with 11822 is a Rite-Aid private-label product.

1064. A list of the Rite-Aid ranitidine products sold by Rite-Aid as the PLD includes, inter alia:

1065. Rite-Aid contracted with Defendants Perrigo, Apotex, and Strides, as well as third-party Wockhardt, to manufacture its Rite-Aid ranitidine products.

1066. Delegating manufacturing or testing operations for Rite-Aid ranitidine products to other companies did not exonerate Rite-Aid as the PLD from its regulatory requirements to establish a system of production and process controls to ensure its private-label products were not adulterated or misbranded prior to sale.

(ii) Rite-Aid's Misrepresentations or Omissions of Material Fact on the Labels

1067. 21 U.S.C. §352(a)(1) provides, in pertinent part,

> A drug or device shall be deemed to be misbranded –
>
> (a) FALSE OR MISLEADING LABEL
> (1) If its labeling is false or misleading in any particular.

1068. 21 C.F.R. §210.1(a) states that the CGMPs establish "minimum current good manufacturing practice for methods to be used in, and the facilities or controls to be used for, the manufacture, processing, packing, or holding of a drug to assure that such drug meets the requirements of the act as to safety, and has the identity and strength and meets the quality and purity characteristics that it purports or is represented to possess." Entities at all phases of the design, manufacture, and distribution chain are bound by these requirements.

1069. Pursuant to 21 C.F.R. §211.142(b), the warehousing of drug products shall provide for "[s]torage of drug products under appropriate conditions of temperature, humidity, and light so that the identity, strength, quality, and purity of the drug products are not affected." In other words, Rite-Aid had a duty and was obligated to properly store, handle, and warehouse ranitidine.

1070. Testing conducted by the FDA confirms that improper storage of ranitidine has resulted in extremely high levels of NDMA.[439] The FDA has also concluded that NDMA can increase in ranitidine even under storage conditions allowed by the labels, and NDMA has been found to increase significantly in samples stored at higher temperatures, including temperatures the product may be exposed to during normal distribution and handling. FDA's testing also showed that the level of NDMA in ranitidine-containing products increases with time. And while Emery's Citizen Petition sought to obtain a directive regarding temperature-controlled shipping of ranitidine, which was necessary given the time and temperature sensitivity of the drug, that request was deemed moot by the FDA because the agency sought to withdraw ranitidine-containing products altogether.

1072. At no time did Rite-Aid attempt to include, or cause its suppliers to attempt to include, a warning on the labels for Rite-Aid ranitidine that consumers were at elevated risk of developing cancer if the products were: (i) exposed to excessive heat; (ii) exposed to excessive moisture/humidity; (iii) consumed with high-nitrite foods; (iv) consumed daily for a period of greater than a few months. The FDA never rejected such cancer warnings.

1073. At no time did Rite-Aid attempt to change, or cause its suppliers to attempt to change, the Rite-Aid ranitidine label to delete a false or misleading expiration date, or to add a proper expiration date to ensure that Rite-Aid ranitidine products would not break down into NDMA prior to human consumption.

1074. An example of a Rite-Aid ranitidine label reflecting that expiration dates were included on the packaging follows:[440]

1075. Based on the public scientific information, Rite-Aid knew or should have known that NDMA could form in ranitidine by exposure to heat, humidity, nitrites, the conditions of the human stomach, and/or over time in storage.

1076. At no time did Rite-Aid change its Rite-Aid ranitidine label to shorten the expiration date. Rite-Aid had the ability to cause its suppliers to unilaterally make such label changes for Rite-Aid ranitidine without prior FDA approval pursuant to the CBE regulation. Had Rite-Aid attempted such label changes, the FDA would not have rejected them.

1077. Because Rite-Aid failed to include appropriate expiration dates on its products, Rite-Aid made false statements in the labeling of its products.

(iii) Rite-Aid Misrepresentations of Omissions of Material Fact in Packaging

1078. 21 U.S.C. §352(i)(1) provides, in pertinent part,

> A drug or device shall be deemed to be misbranded –
> (i) DRUG; MISLEADING CONTAINER; IMITATION; OFFER FOR SALE UNDER ANOTHER NAME
> (1) If it is a drug and its container is so made, formed, or filled as to be misleading;….

1079. As alleged above, each PLD was required to conduct, or cause its contract manufacturer to conduct, stability testing, which was required to take the container into account.

1080. As previously alleged, ranitidine degrades into NDMA more quickly at higher temperatures, at higher humidity levels, and under other poor storage or handling conditions.

1081. Rite-Aid knew or should have known that ranitidine had an inherent risk of degrading into NDMA because it has both a nitroso (N) and dimethylamine (DMA), which are all the ingredients needed to form NDMA.

1082. The ranitidine-containing products Plaintiffs consumed had excessive levels of NDMA in part because they were subjected to high levels of humidity and were stored for a long period of time (often in humid locations such as bathrooms).

1083. A substantial factor in NDMA formation was the container system Rite-Aid chose. Pill bottles with large numbers of units of ranitidine are likely to be stored for long periods by consumers after the seal is broken. This exposes the remaining units to humidity over time, which produces NDMA.

1084. A different container would have reduced the amount of NDMA Plaintiffs consumed in several ways:

(a) Placing each unit of ranitidine in a blister pack or similar individually packaged container would ensure humidity control until the consumer used each unit.

(b) Reducing the number of units of ranitidine in each bottle to a low number would ensure the unused units were subject to humidity for only a shorter time period, since consumers would purchase new bottles more frequently.

(c) Reinforcing compliance with any labeling instructions to stop use after 14 days.

1085. Rite-Aid could have changed, or caused its contract manufacturers to change, the container system it sold. FDA guidance specifically allows changing the number of units in a non-sterile drug under its Changes-Being Effected regulation.[441] FDA guidance also would treat changing to a unit-dose container such as a blister-pack to be a moderate change that could be implemented through the Changes-Being Effected regulation.[442]

[441] See FDA, Guidance for Industry, Changes to an Approved NDA or ANDA, Revision 1, at 21 (Apr. 2004), https://www.fda.gov/media/71846/download ("A change in the number of units (e.g., tablets, capsules) or labeled amount (e.g., grams, milliliters) of a nonsterile drug product in a unit-of-use container.").

[442] See id. at 20-21 (only requiring pre-approval for sterile drug products, when moving from unit dose containers to multiple dose containers, rather than non-sterile drug products moving to unit dose containers).

1086. Rite-Aid was not required to put its ranitidine in the same type of containers as the other OTC Zantac or OTC Ranitidine-Containing Products, because the duty of sameness does not apply to containers. It applies only to the drug label.[443]

1089. A copy of the label for the Rite-Aid ranitidine product with 95 tablets follows:

1090. Further the demand for large quantity package sizes put Defendant on notice that purchases were made for regular and extended use, and not for a one-time occasion.

[443] See 21 C.F.R. §314.94(a)(8)(iv) ("Labeling (including the container label, package insert, and, if applicable, Medication Guide) proposed for the drug product must be the same as the labeling approved for the reference listed drug ….").

1091. Because Rite-Aid failed to package its products in appropriate container sizes, Rite-Aid made false statements in the packaging of its products.

1092. Rite-Aid's conduct, as described above, was reckless. Defendant regularly risked the lives of consumers and users of their products, including Plaintiffs, with full knowledge of the dangers of its products. Rite-Aid made conscious decisions not to change the containers for its ranitidine-containing products. Rite-Aid's reckless conduct therefore warrants an award of punitive damages.

5. Store-Brand Manufacturer Defendants' Misrepresentations or Omissions of Material Fact in the Labeling of Ranitidine-Containing Products

1093. The Store-Brand Manufacturer Defendants (or CMOs) are Perrigo, Apotex, Dr. Reddy's, and Strides.

1094. A PLD[444] contracts with a CMO to manufacture and process a drug.

1095. A CMO, or Store-Brand Manufacturer Defendant for purposes of this complaint, is typically required by contract or supplier agreement with the PLD to comply with cGMPs, ensure that the private-label drugs are not adulterated for failure to comply with CGMPs, and are not misbranded.

1096. Consumers of the private-label drug are third-party beneficiaries of the contract between the PLD and CMO, i.e., between the Store-Brand Retailer Defendant and Store-Brand Manufacturer Defendant.

1097. A manufacturer is required to give adequate directions for the use of a pharmaceutical drug such that a "layman can use a drug safely and for the purposes for which it is intended,"[445] and conform to requirements governing the appearance of the label.[446]

1098. "Labeling" encompasses all written, printed or graphic material accompanying the drug or device,[447] and therefore broadly encompasses nearly every form of promotional activity, including not only "package inserts" but also advertising.

1099. "Most, if not all, labeling is advertising. The term 'labeling' is defined in the FDCA as including all printed matter accompanying any article. Congress did not, and we cannot, exclude from the definition printed matter which constitutes advertising."[448]

1100. All Store-Brand Manufacturer Defendants are also responsible for conducting stability testing, by agreement with the PLDs and pursuant to federal law, which testing must be "designed to assess the stability characteristics of drug products."[449] Store-Brand Manufacturer Defendants must adopt a written testing program that includes: "(1) Sample size and test intervals based on statistical criteria for each attribute examined to assure valid estimates of stability; (2) Storage conditions for samples retained for testing; (3) Reliable, meaningful, and specific test methods; (4) Testing of the drug product in the same container-closure system as that in which the drug product is marketed; (5) Testing of drug products for reconstitution at the time of dispensing (as directed in the labeling) as well as after they are reconstituted."[450]

1101. The purpose of stability testing is, in part, to determine the "appropriate storage conditions and expiration dates."[451] And expiration dates, in turn, must be set to "assure that a drug product meets applicable standards of identity, strength, quality, and purity at the time of use."[452] An expiration date is "related to any storage conditions stated on the labeling, as determined by stability studies listed in § 211.166."[453]

1102. Notably, while generic medications must have the same active ingredients as their branded counterparts, the inactive ingredients, or excipients, may not necessarily be identical. For this reason, the stability of each generic drug may differ.

1103. Each manufacturer must therefore conduct its own tests to determine and set accurate retest or expiration dates.

1104. The FDA made clear when it first adopted the expiration-date provision that the regulation means what it says. The purpose of the expiration date is not merely to consider the "stability of a specific active ingredient." Instead, a compliant expiration date must account for multiple factors, including "the stability of the inactive ingredients, the interaction of active and inactive ingredients, the manufacturing process, the dosage form, the container closure system, the conditions under which the drug product is shipped, stored, and handled by wholesalers and retailers, and the length of time between initial manufacture and final use."[454]

1105. The FDA expressly recognizes that an initial expiration date may not be the final expiration date: "Where data from accelerated studies are used to project a tentative expiration date that is beyond a date supported by actual shelf life studies, there must be stability studies conducted . . . until the tentative expiration date is verified or the appropriate expiration date determined."[455]

1106. After a drug is approved, a manufacturer can make changes to its drug application. To do so, manufacturers must comply with the requirements of §§ 314.70 and 314.71.[456]

1107. Some of the requirements in those regulations require FDA approval before implementing a label change.[457]

1108. But the FDA has long recognized a CBE supplement that permits a manufacturer to make immediate changes, subject to the FDA's post-change review.[458]

1109. A manufacturer of an approved drug can use the CBE supplement to immediately make an "[a]ddition to a specification or changes in the methods or controls to provide increased assurance that the drug substance or drug product will have the characteristics of identity, strength quality, purity, or potency that it purports or is represented to possess."[459] "A specification is defined as a list of tests, references to analytical procedures, and appropriate acceptance criteria that are numerical limits, ranges, or other criteria for the tests described."[460]

1110. A manufacturer, therefore, need not seek FDA pre-approval to make changes to its stability studies to identify the appropriate expiration date – which must "assure that a drug product meets applicable standards of identity, strength, quality, and purity at the time of use"[461] – or to ensure that the drug is shipped and stored under appropriate conditions.

1111. A manufacturer of an approved drug can also use the CBE supplement to make changes "in the labeling to reflect newly acquired information" in order to "add or strengthen a contraindication, warning, precaution, or adverse reaction for which the evidence of a causal association satisfies the standard for inclusion in the labeling under § 201.57(c) of this chapter"; "add or strengthen an instruction about dosage and administration that is intended to increase the safe use of the drug product"; and "delete false, misleading, or unsupported indications for use or claims for effectiveness."[462]

1112. A manufacturer of an approved drug may make minor changes to a label with no approval or notice, so long as that change is described in an annual report. The illustrative but non-exhaustive list of minor changes includes "[a] change in the labeling concerning the description of the drug product or in the information about how the drug product is supplied, that does not involve a change in the dosage strength or dosage form."[463]

1113. A "minor change" further includes "[a]n extension of an expiration dating period based upon full shelf life data on production batches obtained from a protocol approved in the NDA."[464]

1114. At no time did any Store-Brand Manufacturer Defendant attempt to include a warning on the labels for ranitidine-containing products that consumers were at elevated risk of developing cancer if the products were: (i) exposed to excessive heat; (ii) exposed to excessive 1115. At no time did any Store-Brand Manufacturer Defendant attempt to change its label to delete a false or misleading expiration date, or to add a proper expiration date to ensure that ranitidine-containing products would not break down into NDMA prior to human consumption.

1116. Based on the public scientific information, the Store-Brand Manufacturer Defendants knew or should have known that NDMA could form in ranitidine by exposure to heat, humidity, nitrites, the conditions of the human stomach, and/or over time in storage.

1117. At no time did any Store-Brand Manufacturer Defendant change its label to shorten the expiration date. Store-Brand Manufacturer Defendants had the ability to unilaterally make such label changes (for both prescription and OTC) without prior FDA approval pursuant to the CBE regulation. Had any Store-Brand Manufacturer Defendant attempted such label changes, the FDA would not have rejected them.

1118. Because they failed to include appropriate expiration dates on their products, Store-Brand Manufacturer Defendants made false statements in the labeling of their products.

a. Perrigo's Misrepresentations or Omissions of Material Fact in the Labeling and Packaging of Store-Brand Ranitidine Products

(i) Perrigo is a Contract Manufacturing Organization for Private Label Distributors Walmart, Walgreens, CVS and Rite-Aid.

1119. Perrigo is a CMO that contracted with multiple PLDs, including Walmart, Walgreens, CVS, and Rite-Aid.

1120. According to Perrigo, its Consumer Self-Care Americas segment is the "Self-Care Private Label Leader," which "develops, manufactures, and markets over-the-counter (OTC) store brand products, primarily in the cough, cold, allergy, analgesics, gastrointestinal, smoking cessation, infant formula, and oral care."[465]

1121. Perrigo admits that store-brand products, or private label products, "must meet the same quality standards for manufacturing and packaging as their costlier brand name counterparts."[466]

1122. According to Perrigo, the purpose of private label products is to ensure "[c]onsumer confidence in buying OTC medications to prevent and treat acute and chronic conditions," while satisfying retailers for which "[s]tore brand self-care is a major contributor to retailer profits."[467]

1123. Perrigo explains that its expertise in mass customization for PLDs allows the company to take one SKU (or in this case ANDA) and translate it into hundreds of store-brand SKUs in multiple packaging and promotional configurations:[468]

1124. Perrigo maintains a Code of Conduct, which covers, inter alia, compliance with applicable laws and regulations. For example, the Code of Conduct provides: "It is critical that we follow all quality, safety and Good Manufacturing policies and procedures," explaining "As a pharmaceutical company, we are governed by Current Good Manufacturing Practices and other country-specific quality requirements for developing, manufacturing and packaging our products."[469]

1125. Perrigo's Code of Conduct further provides: "We follow rigorous laws, regulations and corporate policies to ensure that our packaging and promotional materials are accurate and adhere to appropriate marketing and advertising practices."[470]

1126. An excerpt of the Perrigo Code of Conduct follows:

1127. According to Perrigo, its customers "include major global, national, and regional retail drug, supermarket, and mass merchandise chains such as Walmart, CVS, Walgreens Boots Alliance, Rite Aid, Kroger, Target, Dollar General, Sam's Club, Costco, Petco, Petsmart, Aldi, Amazon, and major wholesalers, including McKesson, Cardinal Health, and Amerisource Bergen."[471]

1128. Within Perrigo's Consumer Self-Care Americas segment, one of Perrigo's focuses is on digestive health, with a range of private label products to relieve upset stomach, diarrhea, heartburn, and indigestion.

1129. Perrigo contracted with Walmart to manufacture several Equate ranitidine products, including the following:

1133. Each of the PLDs contracted with Perrigo, and Perrigo agreed, to ensure that each of the private-label ranitidine products it manufactured complied with cGMPs and were not adulterated for failure to comply with CGMPs and were not misbranded.

1134. Each of the PLDs contracted with Perrigo, and Perrigo agreed, to provide a third-party certification and submit to audits showing conformance with FDA CGMPs specific for the private label ranitidine products.

(ii) Despite Perrigo's agreements to comply with cGMPs, Perrigo was repeatedly cited by the FDA.

1135. Since 2000, Perrigo's manufacturing facilities have been inspected an astounding 31 times, and during each inspection, the FDA issued observations and findings of non-compliance with cGMPs.

1136. The FDA's observations related to not only issues with the manufacture and testing of the product (including issues related to data integrity and inadequate quality assurance units) but also related to the storage of the product.

1137. During a 2005 inspection, the FDA noted that Perrigo's Standard Operating Procedures related to the environmental circumstances of where materials were being held were inadequate because it did not "provide instructions for employees to follow in the event an out of specification result is obtained for temperature and/or humidity to ensure that an investigation" is initiated.[472]

1138. Over ten years later, the FDA noted more temperature related issues at this particular facility, finding that drug products were not being stored "under appropriate conditions of temperature so that their identity, strength, quality and purity are not affected."[473]

1139. The FDA found that Perrigo's temperature mapping studies in the raw material warehouse were not conducted in a manner that supported the identification of "worst case temperature locations."[474]

1140. In 2019, the FDA observed that Perrigo's investigations of an "unexplained discrepancy and failure of a batch or any of its components to meet any of its specifications did not extend to other batches of the same drug product."[475]

1141. As it relates to the ongoing stability of its drug products, the FDA found that Perrigo had not investigated whether the methods used in ongoing stability studies which were validated prior to 2017 "are stability indicating" and whether the method is able to "detect all potential impurities."[476]

1142. During a 2019 inspection of a facility in Holland, Michigan, the FDA noted that Perrigo lacked procedures and controls to keep and maintain documents containing data generated during GMP activities.[477]

1143. As an example of this deficiency, the FDA noted that discarded batch packaging records had been seen in "shred bins."[478]

(iii) Perrigo's Misrepresentations or Omissions of Material Fact on the Labels for the Private-Label Ranitidine Products

1144. 21 U.S.C. §352(a)(1) provides, in pertinent part,

> A drug or device shall be deemed to be misbranded –
>
> (a) FALSE OR MISLEADING LABEL
> (1) If its labeling is false or misleading in any particular.

1145. 21 C.F.R. §210.1(a) states that the CGMPs establish "minimum current good manufacturing practice for methods to be used in, and the facilities or controls to be used for, the manufacture, processing, packing, or holding of a drug to assure that such drug meets the requirements of the act as to safety, and has the identity and strength and meets the quality and purity characteristics that it purports or is represented to possess." Entities at all phases of the design, manufacture, and distribution chain are bound by these requirements.

1146. Pursuant to 21 C.F.R. §211.142(b), the warehousing of drug products shall provide for "[s]torage of drug products under appropriate conditions of temperature, humidity, and light so that the identity, strength, quality, and purity of the drug products are not affected." In other words, Defendant had a duty and was obligated to properly store, handle, and warehouse ranitidine.

1147. Testing conducted by the FDA confirms that improper storage of ranitidine has resulted in extremely high levels of NDMA.[479] The FDA has also concluded that NDMA can increase in ranitidine even under storage conditions allowed by the labels, and NDMA has been found to increase significantly in samples stored at higher temperatures, including temperatures the product may be exposed to during normal distribution and handling. FDA's testing also showed that the level of NDMA in ranitidine-containing products increases with time. And while Emery's Citizen Petition sought to obtain a directive regarding temperature-controlled shipping of ranitidine, which was necessary given the time and temperature sensitivity of the drug, that request was deemed moot by the FDA because the agency sought to withdraw ranitidine-containing products altogether.

1148. Nothing prevented Perrigo from, on its own, taking actions to prevent accumulation of NDMA in the private-label ranitidine-containing products by ensuring storage and transport at the lower end of the temperature range contained on the labels. Nothing prevented Perrigo from ensuring that ranitidine was not exposed to humidity or moisture.

1149. At no time did Perrigo attempt to include a warning on the labels for the private-label ranitidine-containing products that consumers were at elevated risk of developing cancer if the products were: (i) exposed to excessive heat; (ii) exposed to excessive moisture/humidity; (iii) consumed with high-nitrite foods; (iv) consumed daily for a period of greater than a few months. The FDA never rejected such cancer warnings.

1150. At no time did Perrigo attempt to change the private-label ranitidine labels to delete a false or misleading expiration date, or to add a proper expiration date to ensure that the private-label ranitidine products would not break down into NDMA prior to human consumption.

1151. The labels on the PLD products manufactured by Perrigo or lists referenced above also reflect that Perrigo packaged the store-branded ranitidine in large quantities. Because of the unstable nature of ranitidine, Perrigo knew or should have known that packages containing large quantities were less likely to be used completely and stored properly by the expiration date, particularly when the expiration date on the label was extended beyond a safe and appropriate date.

Further, the demand for large quantity packages caused Perrigo to know that the use of ranitidine was routine for most customers and not a one-time purchase or use.

1152. Based on the public scientific information, Perrigo knew or should have known that NDMA could form in ranitidine by exposure to heat, humidity, nitrites, the conditions of the human stomach, and/or over time in storage.

1153. At no time did Perrigo change the private-label ranitidine products to shorten the expiration date.

1154. Perrigo had the ability to unilaterally, or in conjunction with the PLDs, to make such label changes for the private-label ranitidine products without prior FDA approval pursuant to the CBE regulation. Had Perrigo attempted such label changes, the FDA would not have rejected them.

1155. Because it failed to include appropriate expiration dates on PLD ranitidine products, failed to provide proper storage instructions and failed to package the product in a manner that would lead to less risk of degradation and failed to warn of the inherent risks, Perrigo made false statements in the labeling of its private-label ranitidine products.

1156. Because Perrigo failed to include appropriate expiration dates on the private-label products it manufactured, Perrigo made false statements in the labeling of its products.

(iv) Perrigo Misrepresentations of Omissions of Material Fact in Packaging

1157. 21 U.S.C. §352(i)(1) provides, in pertinent part,

> A drug or device shall be deemed to be misbranded –

> (1) If it is a drug and its container is so made, formed, or filled as to be misleading;….

1158. As alleged above, each contract manufacturer was required pursuant to federal law and contract to conduct stability testing, which was required to take the container into account.

1159. As previously alleged, ranitidine degrades into NDMA more quickly at higher temperatures, at higher humidity levels, and under other poor storage or handling conditions.

1160. Perrigo knew or should have known that ranitidine had an inherent risk of degrading into NDMA because it has both a nitroso (N) and dimethylamine (DMA), which are all the ingredients needed to form NDMA.

1161. The ranitidine-containing products Plaintiffs consumed had excessive levels of NDMA in part because they were subjected to high levels of humidity and were stored for a long period of time (often in humid locations such as bathrooms).

1162. A substantial factor in NDMA formation was the container system Perrigo chose. Pill bottles with large numbers of units of ranitidine are likely to be stored for long periods by consumers after the seal is broken. This exposes the remaining units to humidity over time, which produces NDMA.

1163. A different container would have reduced the amount of NDMA Plaintiffs consumed in several ways:

(a) Placing each unit of ranitidine in a blister pack or similar individually packaged container would ensure humidity control until the consumer used each unit.

(b) Reducing the number of units of ranitidine in each bottle to a low number would ensure the unused units were subject to humidity for only a shorter time period, since consumers would purchase new bottles more frequently.

(c) Reinforcing compliance with any labeling instructions to stop use after 14 days.

1164. Perrigo could have changed, or consulted with its PLD to change, the container system it sold. FDA guidance specifically allows changing the number of units in a non-sterile drug under its Changes-Being Effected regulation.[480] FDA guidance also would treat changing to a unit-dose container such as a blister-pack to be a moderate change that could be implemented through the Changes-Being Effected regulation.[481]

1165. Perrigo was not required to put its ranitidine in the same type of containers as the other OTC Zantac or OTC Ranitidine-Containing Poducts, because the duty of sameness does not apply to containers. It applies only to the drug label.[482]

1166. A reasonably prudent contract manufacturer would have changed, or consulted with its PLDs to change, the containers for ranitidine-containing products to protect the products from humidity and reduce the time between manufacture and consumption, both of which would reduce the amount of NDMA produced.

1167. Further the demand for large quantity package sizes put Defendant on notice that purchases were made for regular and extended use, and not for a one-time occasion.

1168. Because Perrigo failed to package its products in appropriate container sizes, Perrigo made false statements in the packaging of its private-label products.

1169. Perrigo's conduct, as described above, was reckless. Defendant regularly risked the lives of consumers and users of their products, including Plaintiffs, with full knowledge of the dangers of its products. Perrigo made conscious decisions not to change the containers for its ranitidine-containing products. Perrigo's reckless conduct therefore warrants an award of punitive damages.

b. Apotex's Misrepresentations or Omissions of Material Fact in the Labeling and Packaging of Ranitidine Products

(i) Apotex is a Contract Manufacturing Organization for Private Label Distributors Walmart, Walgreens, and Rite-Aid.

1170. Apotex is a CMO that contracted with multiple PLDs, including Walmart, Walgreens, and Rite-Aid.

1171. Apotex launched its "Private Label Division" in 2004, and launched its first OTC private label in the U.S. retail market in 2012. At that time Apotex's Private Label Division renamed the division "Apotex Consumer Products (ACP)."[483]

1172. The Apotex Consumer Products division is focused on "supporting Private Label strategies to increase retail margins and drive [retail] client retention."[484]

1173. Apotex maintains a Code of Conduct, which covers, inter alia, compliance with applicable laws and regulations. For example, the Code of Conduct provides: "As part of our quality standards, we are fully committed to ensuring our products are in full compliance with our rigorous internal standards, all application regulations, and GxP[1]. This commitment applies equally to products produced in our facilities and those supplied by third-party manufacturers."[485]

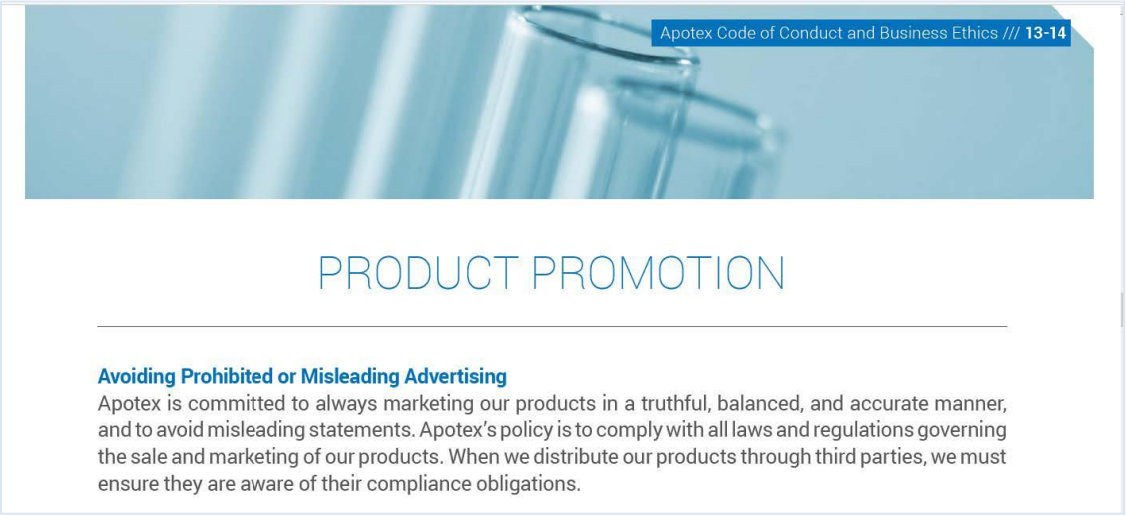
1174. The footnote to "GxP" explains that "GxP collectively denotes Good Manufacturing Practice (GMP), Good Distribution Practice (GDP), Good Clinical Practice (GCP), Good Laboratory Practice (GLP) and Good Pharmacovigilance Practice (GVP) regulations."

1175. Apotex's Code of Conduct further provides:



1176. Apotex contracted with Walmart to manufacture Equate ranitidine products, including the following:

1179. Each of the PLDs contracted with Apotex, and Apotex agreed, to ensure that each of the private-label ranitidine products it manufactured complied with cGMPs and were not adulterated for failure to comply with CGMPs and were not misbranded.

1180. Each of the PLDs contracted with Apotex, and Apotex agreed, to provide a third-party certification and submit to audits showing conformance with FDA CGMP specific for the private label ranitidine products.

(ii) Despite Apotex's agreements to comply with cGMPs, Apotex was repeatedly cited by the FDA.

1181. The issues with the facility Apotex used to manufacture ranitidine-containing products were documented in a pair of FDA warning letters in 2009 and 2010 regarding Apotex's compliance with cGMPs.[486]

1182. The FDA stated that its inspection noted a "documented" practice of "repackaging and assigning new batch numbers to products that failed the Acceptable Quality Level ("AQL") test.

1183. As an example of this practice, the FDA specifically identified ranitidine. The FDA wrote that:

> For example, desiccant batch #HK8805 was used in approximately 76 different products, 11 of which failed the AQL desiccant leaking test. These 11 lots of contaminated Ranitidine Film Coated tablets 150 mg were initially rejected. However, 10 of these 11 lots were repackaged into 500 count bottles using a new lot of desiccant, and assigned a new batch number. These lots were then released for distribution without assessing the potential impact the leaking desiccant could have on product quality. You stated in your response that examination of retain samples for the 11 lots did not confirm the presence of leaky desiccant. However, it is possible that the absence of defective desiccant may be related to the limited number of retain samples examined. In your response to this letter please include a justification for the sample size and the corrective actions you have implemented to prevent reoccurrence of these types of events.[487]

1184. This was not the only issue the FDA noted at that time regarding ranitidine. Indeed, the FDA stated that during a March 2008 inspection, "a yellow contaminant was found during the production of Ranitidine HCL batch #HV9588 that led to the rejection of the batch." However, the

FDA noted that the investigation into this yellow contaminant was not expanded to other lots manufactured by the same equipment prior to March 31, 2008.[488]

1185. Apotex continued to have issues with the FDA, and received an astounding four warning letters during the years it was manufacturing ranitidine-containing products.

1186. For example, in a 2012 Warning Letter, the FDA wrote that the "evidence suggests that Apotex has failed to implement adequate global and sustainable corrective and preventative actions" and that it "continues to manufacture and distribute pharmaceutical product without upholding its legal obligation to comply with CGMP."[489]

1187. A warning letter issued in 2015 called into question Apotex's stability program, necessary to ensure that drug remained stable and safe throughout the expiration date. Indeed, the FDA documented multiple incidents of performing "trial" testing of samples, disregarding test results and reporting only those results that were favorable.[490]

1188. The FDA also found that Apotex "failed to follow written procedures applicable to the quality control unit" and that the "quality control unit failed to review and approve all drug production and control records to determine compliance with all established, approved written procedures before a batch is released or distributed."[491]

1189. In 2018, Apotex received yet another warning letter, which simply repeated the same observations the FDA had made in its 2008 and 2009 warning letters, which had gone uncorrected for over a decade. The warning letter included observations that:

(a) Apotex failed to thoroughly investigate any unexplained discrepancy or failure of a batch or any of its components to meet any of its specifications, whether or not the batch had already been distributed; and

(b) Apotex failed to establish valid in-process specifications.[492]

1190. The FDA also found that the problems were more endemic to the overall corporate operation, finding that Apotex's quality unit did not "fully exercise authority such as ensuring that appropriate investigations are performed with sound conclusions, identifying root causes, and supporting scientific justification."[493]

1191. The FDA also noted that the company's overall quality systems were "inadequate."[494]

1192. In this letter, the FDA repeated the history of similar cGMP violations, and the fact that the FDA had previously communicated about the "need for appropriate and global quality oversight and control over the manufacture" of their products.[495]

(a) FALSE OR MISLEADING LABEL

(1) If its labeling is false or misleading in any particular.

1194. 21 C.F.R. §210.1(a) states that the CGMPs establish "minimum current good manufacturing practice for methods to be used in, and the facilities or controls to be used for, the manufacture, processing, packing, or holding of a drug to assure that such drug meets the requirements of the act as to safety, and has the identity and strength and meets the quality and purity characteristics that it purports or is represented to possess." Entities at all phases of the design, manufacture, and distribution chain are bound by these requirements.

1195. Pursuant to 21 C.F.R. §211.142(b), the warehousing of drug products shall provide for "[s]torage of drug products under appropriate conditions of temperature, humidity, and light so that the identity, strength, quality, and purity of the drug products are not affected." In other words, Defendant had a duty and was obligated to properly store, handle, and warehouse ranitidine.

1196. Testing conducted by the FDA confirms that improper storage of ranitidine has resulted in extremely high levels of NDMA.[496] The FDA has also concluded that NDMA can increase in ranitidine even under storage conditions allowed by the labels, and NDMA has been found to increase significantly in samples stored at higher temperatures, including temperatures the product may be exposed to during normal distribution and handling. FDA's testing also showed that the level of NDMA in ranitidine-containing products increases with time. And while Emery's Citizen Petition sought to obtain a directive regarding temperature-controlled shipping of ranitidine, which was necessary given the time and temperature sensitivity of the drug, that request was deemed moot by the FDA because the agency sought to withdraw ranitidine-containing products altogether.

1197. Nothing prevented Apotex from, on its own, taking actions to prevent accumulation of NDMA in the private-label ranitidine-containing products by ensuring storage and transport at the lower end of the temperature range contained on the labels. Nothing prevented Apotex from ensuring that ranitidine was not exposed to humidity or moisture.

1198. At no time did Apotex attempt to include a warning on the labels for the private-label ranitidine-containing products that consumers were at elevated risk of developing cancer if the products were: (i) exposed to excessive heat; (ii) exposed to excessive moisture/humidity; (iii) consumed with high-nitrite foods; (iv) consumed daily for a period of greater than a few months. The FDA never rejected such cancer warnings.

1199. At no time did Apotex attempt to change the private-label ranitidine labels to delete a false or misleading expiration date, or to add a proper expiration date to ensure that the private-label ranitidine products would not break down into NDMA prior to human consumption.

1200. The labels on the PLD products manufactured by Apotex or lists referenced above also reflect that Apotex packaged the store-branded ranitidine in large quantities. Because of the unstable nature of ranitidine, Apotex knew or should have known that packages containing large quantities were less likely to be used completely and stored properly by the expiration date, particularly when the expiration date on the label was extended beyond a safe and appropriate date. Further, the demand for large quantity packages caused Apotex to know that the use of ranitidine was routine for most customers and not a one-time purchase or use.

1201. Based on the public scientific information, Apotex knew or should have known that NDMA could form in ranitidine by exposure to heat, humidity, nitrites, the conditions of the human stomach, and/or over time in storage.

1202. At no time did Apotex change the private-label ranitidine products to shorten the expiration date.

1203. Apotex had the ability to unilaterally, or in conjunction with the PLDs, to make such label changes for the private-label ranitidine products without prior FDA approval pursuant to the CBE regulation. Had Apotex attempted such label changes, the FDA would not have rejected them.

1204. Because it failed to include appropriate expiration dates on PLD ranitidine products, failed to provide proper storage instructions and failed to package the product in a manner that would lead to less risk of degradation and failed to warn of the inherent risks, Apotex made false statements in the labeling of its private-label ranitidine products.

1205. Because Apotex failed to include appropriate expiration dates on the private-label products it manufactured, Apotex made false statements in the labeling of its products.

(iv) Apotex Misrepresentations of Omissions of Material Fact in Packaging

1206. 21 U.S.C. §352(i)(1) provides, in pertinent part,

> A drug or device shall be deemed to be misbranded –
> (i) DRUG; MISLEADING CONTAINER; IMITATION; OFFER FOR SALE UNDER ANOTHER NAME
> (1) If it is a drug and its container is so made, formed, or filled as to be misleading;….

1207. As alleged above, each contract manufacturer was required pursuant to federal law and contract to conduct stability testing, which was required to take the container into account.

1208. As previously alleged, ranitidine degrades into NDMA more quickly at higher temperatures, at higher humidity levels, and under other poor storage or handling conditions.

1209. Apotex knew or should have known that ranitidine had an inherent risk of degrading into NDMA because it has both a nitroso (N) and dimethylamine (DMA), which are all the ingredients needed to form NDMA.

1210. The ranitidine-containing products Plaintiffs consumed had excessive levels of NDMA in part because they were subjected to high levels of humidity and were stored for a long period of time (often in humid locations such as bathrooms).

1211. A substantial factor in NDMA formation was the container system Apotex chose. Pill bottles with large numbers of units of ranitidine are likely to be stored for long periods by consumers after the seal is broken. This exposes the remaining units to humidity over time, which produces NDMA.

1212. A different container would have reduced the amount of NDMA Plaintiffs consumed in several ways:

(a) Placing each unit of ranitidine in a blister pack or similar individually packaged container would ensure humidity control until the consumer used each unit.

(b) Reducing the number of units of ranitidine in each bottle to a low number would ensure the unused units were subject to humidity for only a shorter time period, since consumers would purchase new bottles more frequently.

(c) Reinforcing compliance with any labeling instructions to stop use after 14 days.

1213. Apotex could have changed, or consulted with its PLD to change, the container system it sold. FDA guidance specifically allows changing the number of units in a non-sterile drug under its Changes-Being Effected regulation.[497] FDA guidance also would treat changing to a unit-dose container such as a blister-pack to be a moderate change that could be implemented through the Changes-Being Effected regulation.[498]

1214. Apotex was not required to put its ranitidine in the same type of containers as the other OTC Zantac or OTC Ranitidine-Containing Products, because the duty of sameness does not apply to containers. It applies only to the drug label.[499]

1215. A reasonably prudent contract manufacturer would have changed, or consulted with its PLDs to change, the containers for ranitidine-containing products to protect the products from humidity and reduce the time between manufacture and consumption, both of which would reduce the amount of NDMA produced.

1216. Further the demand for large quantity package sizes put Defendant on notice that purchases were made for regular and extended use, and not for a one-time occasion.

1217. Because Apotex failed to package its products in appropriate container sizes, Apotex made false statements in the packaging of its private-label products.

1218. Apotex's conduct, as described above, was reckless. Defendant regularly risked the lives of consumers and users of their products, including Plaintiffs, with full knowledge of the dangers of its products. Apotex made conscious decisions not to change the containers for its 1229. Each of the PLDs contracted with Dr. Reddy's, and Dr. Reddy's agreed, to ensure that each of the private-label ranitidine products it manufactured complied with cGMPs and were not adulterated for failure to comply with CGMPs and were not misbranded.

1230. Each of the PLDs contracted with Dr. Reddy's, and Dr. Reddy's agreed, to provide a third party certification and submit to audits showing conformance with FDA CGMP specific for the private label ranitidine products.

(ii) Dr. Reddy's Misrepresentations or Omissions in the Labeling of Ranitidine Products

> A drug or device shall be deemed to be misbranded –
>
> (a) FALSE OR MISLEADING LABEL
> (1) If its labeling is false or misleading in any particular.

1232. 21 C.F.R. §210.1(a) states that the CGMPs establish "minimum current good manufacturing practice for methods to be used in, and the facilities or controls to be used for, the manufacture, processing, packing, or holding of a drug to assure that such drug meets the requirements of the act as to safety, and has the identity and strength and meets the quality and purity characteristics that it purports or is represented to possess." Entities at all phases of the design, manufacture, and distribution chain are bound by these requirements.

1233. Pursuant to 21 C.F.R. §211.142(b), the warehousing of drug products shall provide for "[s]torage of drug products under appropriate conditions of temperature, humidity, and light so that the identity, strength, quality, and purity of the drug products are not affected." In other words, Defendant had a duty and was obligated to properly store, handle, and warehouse ranitidine.

1234. Testing conducted by the FDA confirms that improper storage of ranitidine has resulted in extremely high levels of NDMA.[507] The FDA has also concluded that NDMA can increase in ranitidine even under storage conditions allowed by the labels, and NDMA has been found to increase significantly in samples stored at higher temperatures, including temperatures the product may be exposed to during normal distribution and handling. FDA's testing also showed that the level of NDMA in ranitidine-containing products increases with time. And while Emery's Citizen Petition sought to obtain a directive regarding temperature-controlled shipping of ranitidine, which was necessary given the time and temperature sensitivity of the drug, that request was deemed moot by the FDA because the agency sought to withdraw ranitidine-containing products altogether.

1235. Nothing prevented Dr. Reddy's from, on its own, taking actions to prevent accumulation of NDMA in the private-label ranitidine-containing products by ensuring storage and transport at the lower end of the temperature range contained on the labels. Nothing prevented Dr. Reddy's from ensuring that ranitidine was not exposed to humidity or moisture.

1236. At no time did Dr. Reddy's attempt to include a warning on the labels for the private-label ranitidine-containing products that consumers were at elevated risk of developing cancer if the products were: (i) exposed to excessive heat; (ii) exposed to excessive moisture/humidity; (iii) consumed with high-nitrite foods; (iv) consumed daily for a period of greater than a few months. The FDA never rejected such cancer warnings.

1237. At no time did Dr. Reddy's attempt to change the private-label ranitidine labels to delete a false or misleading expiration date, or to add a proper expiration date to ensure that the private-label ranitidine products would not break down into NDMA prior to human consumption.

1238. The labels on the PLD products manufactured by Dr. Reddy's or lists referenced above also reflect that Dr. Reddy's packaged the store-branded ranitidine in large quantities. Because of the unstable nature of ranitidine, Dr. Reddy's knew or should have known that packages containing large quantities were less likely to be used completely and stored properly by the expiration date, particularly when the expiration date on the label was extended beyond a safe 1239. Based on the public scientific information, Dr. Reddy's knew or should have known that NDMA could form in ranitidine by exposure to heat, humidity, nitrites, the conditions of the human stomach, and/or over time in storage.

1240. At no time did Dr. Reddy's change the private-label ranitidine products to shorten the expiration date.

1241. Dr. Reddy's had the ability to unilaterally, or in conjunction with the PLDs, to make such label changes for the private-label ranitidine products without prior FDA approval pursuant to the CBE regulation. Had Dr. Reddy's attempted such label changes, the FDA would not have rejected them.

1242. Because it failed to include appropriate expiration dates on PLD ranitidine products, failed to provide proper storage instructions and failed to package the product in a manner that would lead to less risk of degradation and failed to warn of the inherent risks, Dr. Reddy's made false statements in the labeling of its private-label ranitidine products.

1243. Because Dr. Reddy's failed to include appropriate expiration dates on the private-label products it manufactured, Dr. Reddy's made false statements in the labeling of its products.

(iii) Dr. Reddy's Misrepresentations of Omissions of Material Fact in Packaging

1244. 21 U.S.C. §352(i)(1) provides, in pertinent part,

> A drug or device shall be deemed to be misbranded –

1263. Each of the PLDs contracted with Strides, and Strides agreed, to ensure that each of the private-label ranitidine products it manufactured complied with cGMPs and were not adulterated for failure to comply with CGMPs and were not misbranded.

1264. Each of the PLDs contracted with Strides, and Strides agreed, to provide a third-party certification and submit to audits showing conformance with FDA CGMP specific for the private label ranitidine products.

(ii) Despite Strides' agreements to conform to cGMPs, Strides has repeatedly been cited by the FDA.

1265. The FDA has repeatedly noted a slew of violations of cGMPs at Strides' manufacturing facilities over the years leading up to a recall of ranitidine-containing products in 2019.

1266. For example, during a 2014 inspection of one of the facilities used by Strides to manufacture ranitidine-containing products in Bangalore, India, the FDA made four critical observations about issues with Strides' manufacturing practices and compliance with cGMPs.[512]

[512] FDA Form 483, Strides Arcolab Ltd (FEI: 3004554612), Aug. 26, 2014, released pursuant to FOIA request.

1267. The FDA noted that Strides had not established control procedures to monitor the output and validate the performance of its manufacturing processes, resulting in "variability in the characteristics of in-process material and the drug product."[513]

1268. The FDA also observed that written procedures were not being followed to conduct annual evaluations of "returned or salvaged drug products and investigations conducted for each drug product."[514]

1269. With respect to complaints made about the finished dose of its products, the FDA found that Strides' complaint records were "deficient" because they did not include the findings of the investigation and follow-up regarding those investigations.[515]

1270. The FDA noted that deficient complaint investigations appeared to be a "pattern" of problematic behavior at this Strides facility.[516]

1271. Upon a return inspection of this particular facility in 2016, the FDA noted that the equipment used in the "manufacture, processing, packing or holding of drug products is not of appropriate design to facilitate operations for its intended use."[517]

1272. An inspection of this same facility in 2017 yielded even more observations related to Strides' investigations into "unexplained discrepancies" about a drug product which was

"sticking" and "melting" together. The FDA noted that Strides' investigation "did not arrive at the actual root cause" of the problem which resulted in finished dose product "sticking" and "melting" together, and further that Strides had not taken "appropriate corrective actions."[518]

1273. Moreover, the FDA found that Strides lacked the "written procedures for production and process controls" designed to assure that the drug products Strides manufactured had the "identity, strength, quality and purity they purport or are represented to possess."[519]

1274. In 2019, Strides' issues with the FDA came to a head when the FDA issued the company a warning letter, its strongest rebuke.[520]

1275. In the warning letter, the FDA summarized the "significant" violations of cGMP regulations, which included:

(a) Failure to establish an adequate control unit with the responsibility and authority to approve or reject all components, drug product containers, closures, in-process materials, packaging materials, labeling and drug products;

(b) Failure to thoroughly investigate any unexplained discrepancies or failures of a batch or any of its components to meet any of its specifications, regardless of whether the batch has already been distributed; and

(c) Data integrity issues related to its quality system, which did not adequately ensure the "accuracy and integrity of data to support the safety, effectiveness and quality of the drugs" manufactured by Strides.

(iii) Strides' Misrepresentations or Omissions in the Labeling of Ranitidine Products

> A drug or device shall be deemed to be misbranded –
>
> (a) FALSE OR MISLEADING LABEL
> (1) If its labeling is false or misleading in any particular.

1277. 21 C.F.R. §210.1(a) states that the CGMPs establish "minimum current good manufacturing practice for methods to be used in, and the facilities or controls to be used for, the manufacture, processing, packing, or holding of a drug to assure that such drug meets the requirements of the act as to safety, and has the identity and strength and meets the quality and purity characteristics that it purports or is represented to possess." Entities at all phases of the design, manufacture, and distribution chain are bound by these requirements.

1278. Pursuant to 21 C.F.R. §211.142(b), the warehousing of drug products shall provide for "[s]torage of drug products under appropriate conditions of temperature, humidity, and light so that the identity, strength, quality, and purity of the drug products are not affected." In other words, Defendant had a duty and was obligated to properly store, handle, and warehouse ranitidine.

1279. Testing conducted by the FDA confirms that improper storage of ranitidine has resulted in extremely high levels of NDMA.[521] The FDA has also concluded that NDMA can increase in ranitidine even under storage conditions allowed by the labels, and NDMA has been found to increase significantly in samples stored at higher temperatures, including temperatures the product may be exposed to during normal distribution and handling. FDA's testing also showed that the level of NDMA in ranitidine-containing products increases with time. And while Emery's Citizen Petition sought to obtain a directive regarding temperature-controlled shipping of ranitidine, which was necessary given the time and temperature sensitivity of the drug, that request was deemed moot by the FDA because the agency sought to withdraw ranitidine-containing products altogether.

1280. Nothing prevented Strides from, on its own, taking actions to prevent accumulation of NDMA in the private-label ranitidine-containing products by ensuring storage and transport at the lower end of the temperature range contained on the labels. Nothing prevented Strides from ensuring that ranitidine was not exposed to humidity or moisture.

1281. At no time did Strides attempt to include a warning on the labels for the private-label ranitidine-containing products that consumers were at elevated risk of developing cancer if the products were: (i) exposed to excessive heat; (ii) exposed to excessive moisture/humidity; (iii) consumed with high-nitrite foods; (iv) consumed daily for a period of greater than a few months. The FDA never rejected such cancer warnings.

1282. At no time did Strides attempt to change the private-label ranitidine labels to delete a false or misleading expiration date, or to add a proper expiration date to ensure that the private-label ranitidine products would not break down into NDMA prior to human consumption.

1283. The labels on the PLD products manufactured by Strides or lists referenced above also reflect that Strides packaged the store-branded ranitidine in large quantities. Because of the unstable nature of ranitidine, Strides knew or should have known that packages containing large quantities were less likely to be used completely and stored properly by the expiration date, particularly when the expiration date on the label was extended beyond a safe and appropriate date. Further, the demand for large quantity packages caused Strides to know that the use of ranitidine was routine for most customers and not a one-time purchase or use.

1284. Based on the public scientific information, Strides knew or should have known that NDMA could form in ranitidine by exposure to heat, humidity, nitrites, the conditions of the human stomach, and/or over time in storage.

1285. At no time did Strides change the private-label ranitidine products to shorten the expiration date.

1286. Strides had the ability to unilaterally, or in conjunction with the PLDs, to make such label changes for the private-label ranitidine products without prior FDA approval pursuant to the CBE regulation. Had Strides attempted such label changes, the FDA would not have rejected them.

1287. Because it failed to include appropriate expiration dates on PLD ranitidine products, failed to provide proper storage instructions and failed to package the product in a manner that would lead to less risk of degradation and failed to warn of the inherent risks, Strides made false statements in the labeling of its private-label ranitidine products.

1288. Because Strides failed to include appropriate expiration dates on the private-label products it manufactured, Strides made false statements in the labeling of its products.

(iv) Strides' Misrepresentations or Omissions of Material Fact in Packaging

1289. 21 U.S.C. §352(i)(1) provides, in pertinent part,

> A drug or device shall be deemed to be misbranded –
> (i) DRUG; MISLEADING CONTAINER; IMITATION; OFFER FOR SALE UNDER ANOTHER NAME
> (1) If it is a drug and its container is so made, formed, or filled as to be misleading;….

1290. As alleged above, each contract manufacturer was required pursuant to federal law and contract to conduct stability testing, which was required to take the container into account.

1291. As previously alleged, ranitidine degrades into NDMA more quickly at higher temperatures, at higher humidity levels, and under other poor storage or handling conditions.

1292. Strides knew or should have known that ranitidine had an inherent risk of degrading into NDMA because it has both a nitroso (N) and dimethylamine (DMA), which are all the ingredients needed to form NDMA.

1293. The ranitidine-containing products Plaintiffs consumed had excessive levels of NDMA in part because they were subjected to high levels of humidity and were stored for a long period of time (often in humid locations such as bathrooms).

1294. A substantial factor in NDMA formation was the container system Strides chose. Pill bottles with large numbers of units of ranitidine are likely to be stored for long periods by consumers after the seal is broken. This exposes the remaining units to humidity over time, which produces NDMA.

1295. A different container would have reduced the amount of NDMA Plaintiffs consumed in several ways:

(a) Placing each unit of ranitidine in a blister pack or similar individually packaged container would ensure humidity control until the consumer used each unit.

(b) Reducing the number of units of ranitidine in each bottle to a low number would ensure the unused units were subject to humidity for only a shorter time period, since consumers would purchase new bottles more frequently.

(c) Reinforcing compliance with any labeling instructions to stop use after 14 days.

1296. Strides could have changed, or consulted with its PLD to change, the container system it sold. FDA guidance specifically allows changing the number of units in a non-sterile drug under its Changes-Being Effected regulation.[522] FDA guidance also would treat changing to a unit-dose container such as a blister-pack to be a moderate change that could be implemented through the Changes-Being Effected regulation.[523]

1297. Strides was not required to put its ranitidine in the same type of containers as the other OTC Zantac or OTC Ranitidine-Containing Products, because the duty of sameness does not apply to containers. It applies only to the drug label.[524]

1298. A reasonably prudent contract manufacturer would have changed, or consulted with its PLDs to change, the containers for ranitidine-containing products to protect the products from humidity and reduce the time between manufacture and consumption, both of which would reduce the amount of NDMA produced.

1299. Further the demand for large quantity package sizes put Defendant on notice that purchases were made for regular and extended use, and not for a one-time occasion.

1300. Because Strides failed to package its products in appropriate container sizes, Strides made false statements in the packaging of its private-label products.

1301. Strides' conduct, as described above, was reckless. Defendant regularly risked the lives of consumers and users of their products, including Plaintiffs, with full knowledge of the dangers of its products. Strides made conscious decisions not to change the containers for its

VIII. CAUSES OF ACTION AGAINST BRAND PRESCRIPTION MANUFACTURER DEFENDANT

A. Causes of Action Against GSK

1302. For the purposes of the subsequent causes of action against Defendant GSK, Plaintiffs are incorporating the following allegations by reference: paragraphs 9-13 (corporate information); 273-277 (jurisdiction and venue); 279-303 (development of brand Zantac); 317-361 (knowledge that NDMA is carcinogenic); 362-382 (discovery by regulatory agencies that ranitidine contained NDMA); 383-386 (transformation of ranitidine into NDMA); 387-415, 445-456 (knowledge that ranitidine had the potential to transform into NDMA); 416-422 (NDMA formation in organs of the human body); 423-435 (NDMA formation by exposure to heat, moisture and/or time); 436-442 (link between ranitidine exposure and cancer); 462-469 (requirement to notify the FDA of presence of NDMA in ranitidine); 470-474 (compliance with current Good Manufacturing Practices); 822-844 (misrepresentations or omissions of material fact in labeling); and 475-483 (equitable tolling).

1303. Plaintiffs identified in the table below bring claims against Defendant GSK on behalf of themselves and their respective State Classes under the laws of their respective states. Each Plaintiff incorporates by reference the allegations specific to them from Section II.B., supra, into their respective claims below:

1. Causes of Action on Behalf of the Arizona-GSK Classes

Violation of the Arizona Consumer Fraud Act
(Ariz. Rev. Stat. Ann. §44-1521, et esq.)
(Against GSK)

1304. Arizona Class Representative Tammy Smith incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 822-844 as though fully set forth herein.

1305. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Arizona-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

1307. The Ranitidine-Containing Products are "[m]erchandise" within the meaning of Ariz. Rev. Stat. Ann. §44-1521(5).

1308. The Arizona Consumer Fraud Act ("Arizona CFA") prohibits "[t]he act, use or employment by any person of any deception, deceptive or unfair act or practice, fraud, … misrepresentation, or concealment, suppression or omission of any material fact with intent that others rely on such concealment, suppression or omission, in connection with the sale … of any merchandise whether or not any person has in fact been misled, deceived or damaged thereby." Ariz. Rev. Stat. Ann. §44-1522(A).

1309. In the course of its business, Defendant, through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Arizona CFA by recklessly, wantonly, knowingly, and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

1310. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Arizona CFA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

1311. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Arizona CFA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

1316. The facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products that Defendant knowingly and intentionally misrepresented, omitted, concealed, and failed to disclose would be considered material by a reasonable consumer, and they were, in fact, material to Plaintiff and the Class members, who consider such facts to be important to their purchase decisions with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products.

1317. Plaintiff and the Class members relied on Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, and concealments with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products by purchasing and continuing to purchase Ranitidine-Containing Products after Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, and concealments were made.

1318. Plaintiff and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the Arizona CFA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

1319. Specifically, Plaintiff and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

1320. Defendant's violations present a continuing risk to Plaintiff and the Class members, as well as to the general public. Defendant's unlawful acts and practices complained of herein affect the public interest.

1321. As a result of Defendant's violations of the Arizona CFA, as alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the Arizona CFA.

COUNT 3
Unjust Enrichment
(Arizona Law)
(Against GSK)

1322. Arizona Class Representative Tammy Smith incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 822-844 as though fully set forth herein.

1323. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Arizona-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

1324. Plaintiff and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

1325. In exchange for their payment of the purchase price of Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products, Plaintiff and Class members received the Ranitidine-Containing Products, which Defendant did not disclose contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed. Accordingly, Plaintiff and Class members conferred a financial benefit on Defendant but did not receive their expected benefit therefrom.

1326. Defendant readily accepted and retained these benefits from Plaintiff and Class members and was knowingly enriched by its unjust conduct – at Plaintiff's and the Class members' expense – by selling worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products that contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

1327. It is unjustifiable for the Defendant to retain these benefits because they were attained by misrepresenting and fraudulently concealing the true facts concerning the Ranitidine-Containing Products from Plaintiff and Class members, who would not have purchased the medications at all, but for the Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions.

1329. Plaintiff and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law.

2. Causes of Action on Behalf of the Alaska-GSK Classes

COUNT 4
Violation of the Alaska Unfair Trade Practices and Consumer Protection Act
(Alaska Stat. Ann. §45.50.471, et esq.)
(Against GSK)

1330. Alaska Class Representative Tammy Smith incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 822-844 as though fully set forth herein.

1331. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Alaska-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

1332. Plaintiff and the Class members are "consumer[s]" within the meaning of Alaska Stat. Ann. §45.50.561(a)(4).

1333. The Alaska Unfair Trade Practices and Consumer Protection Act ("Alaska CPA") prohibits "[u]nfair methods of competition and unfair or deceptive acts or practices in the conduct of trade or commerce." Alaska Stat. Ann. §45.50.471(a).

1334. The Alaska CPA makes unlawful specific acts, including:

(a) "representing that goods or services have sponsorship, approval, characteristics, ingredients, uses, benefits, or quantities that they do not have" (Alaska Stat. Ann. §45.50.471(b)(4));

(b) "representing that goods or services are of a particular standard, quality, or grade, or that goods are of a particular style or model, if they are of another" (Alaska Stat. Ann. §45.50.471(b)(6));

(c) "advertising goods or services with intent not to sell them as advertised" (Alaska Stat. Ann. §45.50.471(b)(8));

(d) "engaging in any other conduct creating a likelihood of confusion or of misunderstanding and that misleads, deceives, or damages a buyer or a competitor in connection with the sale or advertisement of goods or services" (Alaska Stat. Ann. §45.50.471(b)(11)); and

(e) "using or employing deception, fraud, false pretense, false promise, misrepresentation, or knowingly concealing, suppressing, or omitting a material fact with intent that others rely upon the concealment, suppression,

> or omission in connection with the sale or advertisement of goods or services whether or not a person has in fact been misled, deceived, or damaged" (Alaska Stat. Ann. §45.50.471(b)(12)).

1335. In the course of its business, Defendant, through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Alaska CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

1336. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Alaska CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

1337. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Alaska CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

(a) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products have characteristics, uses, benefits, and qualities which they do not have;

(b) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products are of a particular standard, quality, and grade when they are not;

(c) advertising the Ranitidine-Containing Products with the intent not to sell them as advertised; and

(d) engaging in any other unconscionable, false, misleading, or deceptive act or practice in the conduct of trade or commerce.

1340. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding the expiration of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiff and the Class members in a uniform manner.

1343. Plaintiff and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the Alaska CPA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

1344. Specifically, Plaintiff and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

1347. As a result of Defendant's violations of the Alaska CPA, as alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the Alaska CPA.

COUNT 5
Unjust Enrichment or Quasi-Contract
(Alaska Law)
(Against GSK)

1348. Alaska Class Representatives Tammy Smith incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 822-844 as though fully set forth herein.

1349. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Alaska-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

1350. Plaintiff and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

1352. Defendant readily accepted and retained these benefits from Plaintiff and Class members and knowingly benefitted from its unjust conduct – at Plaintiff's and the Class members' expense – by selling worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products that contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

1355. Plaintiff and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law.

3. Causes of Action on Behalf of the Arkansas-GSK Classes

COUNT 6
Violation of the Arkansas Deceptive Trade Practices Act
(Ark. Code Ann. §4-88-101, et esq.)
(Against GSK)

1356. Arkansas Class Representative Andy Green Jr. incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 822-844 as though fully set forth herein.

1357. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Arkansas-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Brand Manufacturer Defendant GSK (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

1358. Defendant, Plaintiff, and the Class members are "[p]erson[s]" within the meaning of Ark. Code Ann. §4-88-102(5).

1359. The Ranitidine-Containing Products are "[g]oods" within the meaning of Ark. Code Ann. §4-88-102(4).

1360. The Arkansas Deceptive Trade Practices Act ("Arkansas DTPA") prohibits "[d]eceptive and unconscionable trade practices." Ark. Code Ann. §4-88-107(a).

1361. The Arkansas DTPA makes unlawful specific acts, including:

(a) "[k]nowingly making a false representation as to the characteristics, ingredients, uses, benefits, alterations, source, sponsorship, approval, or certification of goods or services or as to whether goods are original or new or of a particular standard, quality, grade, style, or model" (Ark. Code Ann. §4-88-107(a)(1));

(b) "[a]dvertising the goods or services with the intent not to sell them as advertised" (Ark. Code Ann. §4-88-107(a)(3)); and

(c) "[e]ngaging in any other unconscionable, false, or deceptive act or practice in business, commerce, or trade" (Ark. Code Ann. §4-88-107(a)(10)).

1362. The Arkansas DTPA also prohibits the following when utilized in connection with the sale or advertisement of any goods: "(1) The act, use, or employment by any person of any deception, fraud, or false pretense; [or] (2) [t]he concealment, suppression, or omission of any material fact with intent that others rely upon the concealment, suppression, or omission . . . ." Ark. Code Ann. §4-88-108(a).

1363. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Arkansas DTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

1364. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Arkansas DTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

1365. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Arkansas DTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

1366. Specifically, by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products, as detailed above, Defendant engaged in one or more unfair or deceptive acts or practices in the conduct of trade or commerce, in violation of the Arkansas DTPA, including:

(a) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products have characteristics, uses, benefits, and qualities which they do not have;

(b) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products are of a particular standard, quality, and grade when they are not;

(c) advertising the Ranitidine-Containing Products with the intent not to sell them as advertised; and

(d) engaging in any other unconscionable, false, misleading, or deceptive act or practice in the conduct of trade or commerce.

1371. Plaintiff and the Class members relied on Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, and concealments with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products by purchasing and continuing to purchase Ranitidine-Containing Products after Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, and concealments were made.

1372. Plaintiff and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of Arkansas DTPA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

1373. Specifically, Plaintiff and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

1374. Defendant's violations present a continuing risk to Plaintiff and the Class members, as well as to the general public. Defendant's unlawful acts and practices complained of herein affect the public interest.

1375. As a result of Defendant's violations of the Arkansas DTPA, as alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the Arkansas DTPA.

COUNT 7
Breach of Implied Warranty
(Ark. Code Ann. §4-2-314)
(Against GSK)

1376. Arkansas Class Representative Andy Green Jr. incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 822-844 as though fully set forth herein.

1377. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Arkansas-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

1378. At all relevant times, Defendant was a merchant with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products which were sold to Arkansas Class Representatives and members of the Arkansas Class and was in the business of selling such products.

1379. Each Ranitidine-Containing Product sold by Defendant comes with an implied warranty that it will be merchantable and fit for the ordinary purpose for which it would be used, including impliedly warrantying on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products that the products were safe and/or did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

1380. Defendant breached its implied warranty of merchantability because its products cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

1382. Defendant had reason to know Plaintiff and each member of the Class's particular purpose in buying Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products and knew that Plaintiff and each member of the Class relied on Defendant's skill or judgment in furnishing appropriate goods that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

1385. Further, Plaintiff and each member of the Class were the intended third-party beneficiaries of the implied warranties made by Defendant to purchasers of its Ranitidine-Containing Products.

1386. Plaintiff and the members of the Class were injured as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability. Plaintiff and the members of the Class were damaged as a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability because, had they been aware of the unmerchantable condition of Ranitidine-Containing Products, they would not have purchased such drugs.

1387. As a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability, as alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order awarding compensatory and punitive damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the law.

COUNT 8
Unjust Enrichment
(Arkansas Law)
(Against GSK)

1388. Arkansas Class Representative Andy Green Jr. incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 822-844 as though fully set forth herein.

1389. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Arkansas-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

1390. Plaintiff and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed. Accordingly, Plaintiff and Class members conferred a financial benefit on Defendants but did not receive their expected benefit therefrom.

1392. Defendant readily accepted and retained these benefits from Plaintiff and Class members and knowingly benefitted from its unjust conduct – at Plaintiff's and the Class members' expense – by selling worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products that contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

1395. There is no valid, legal, and binding contract governing this dispute.

1396. Plaintiff and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law.

4. Causes of Action on Behalf of the California-GSK Classes

COUNT 9
Violation of the California Unfair Competition Law
(Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code §17200, et esq.)
(Against GSK)

1397. California Class Representative Golbenaz Bakhtiar incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 822-844 as though fully set forth herein.

1398. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the California-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

1399. Defendant, Plaintiff, and the Class members are "persons" within the meaning of Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code §17201.

1400. Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code §17200 ("California UCL") prohibits acts of "unfair competition," including any "unlawful, unfair or fraudulent business act or practice" and "unfair, deceptive, untrue or misleading advertising."

1401. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the California UCL by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

1402. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the California UCL by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

1403. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the California UCL by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

1404. Specifically, by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products, as detailed above, Defendant engaged in one or more unfair or deceptive acts or practices in the conduct of trade or commerce, in violation of the California UCL. These acts also constitute "fraudulent" business acts and practices under the California UCL in that Defendant's conduct is false, misleading, and has a tendency to deceive the Class and the general public.

fact, did deceive reasonable consumers, including Plaintiff and the Class members, about: (i) the inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products; (ii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products if used within the expiration dates; and (iii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products when ingesting all doses contained within particular packaging.

1408. The facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products that Defendant knowingly and intentionally misrepresented, omitted, concealed, and failed to disclose would be considered material by a reasonable consumer, and they were, in fact, material to Plaintiff and the Class members, who consider such facts to be important to their purchase decisions with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products.

1409. Moreover, Defendant engaged in "unlawful" business acts or practices by violating both federal and California laws, including: the federal RICO statute, 18 U.S.C. §1962(c)-(d); adulteration and misbranding provisions under the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act, 21 U.S.C. §§331(a), (c), (g), 351(a)(2)(B), (b), (d), 352(a)(1), (c), (e)(1)(A)(ii), (f)-(g), (i)(2)-(3), (j), (n), (p); Good Manufacturing Practices, 21 C.F.R. 210.1(a), 211.142(b); adulteration and misbranding provisions under the Sherman Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Laws, Cal. Health & Safety Code §§111260, 111280, 111290, 111295, 111305, 111330, 111345, 111355(a)(3), 111360(b), 111375, 111380, 111395(a)-(b), 111400, 111440, 111445, 111450; the Consumer Legal Remedies Act, Cal. Civ. Code §1750; and the California FAL, Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code §17500, as alleged herein.

1410. Defendant's conduct also consitutes "unfair" business acts or practies. Under the balancing test, the determination of whether a business practice is "unfair" involves examining the practice's impact on its alleged victim, balanced against the reasons, justifications, and motives of the alleged wrongdoer.

1411. Additionally, Defendant's conduct was "unfair" under the tethering test, in that it violated the federal RICO statute, 18 U.S.C. §1962(c)-(d); adulteration and misbranding provisions under the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act, 21 U.S.C. §§331(a), (c), (g), 351(a)(2)(B), (b), (d), 352(a)(1), (c), (e)(1)(A)(ii), (f)-(g), (i)(2)-(3), (j), (n), (p); Good Manufacturing Practices, 21 C.F.R. 210.1(a), 211.142(b); adulteration and misbranding provisions under the Sherman Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Laws, Cal. Health & Safety Code §§111260, 111280, 111290, 111295, 111305, 111330, 111345, 111355(a)(3), 111360(b), 111375, 111380, 111395(a)-(b), 111400, 111440, 111445, 111450; the Consumer Legal Remedies Act, see Cal. Civ. Code §1760; and the California FAL, Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code §17500, which reflect the United States' and California's policy of protecting consumers against unfair and deceptive business practices and adulterated and misbranded drugs.

1412. Plaintiff and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the California UCL because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

1413. Specifically, Plaintiff and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

1414. Defendant's violations present a continuing risk to Plaintiff and the Class members, as well as to the general public. Defendant's unlawful acts and practices complained of herein affect the public interest.

1415. Pursuant to Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code §§17200 and 17203, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order providing restitution relating to the above-described unfair business acts or practices, and injunctive and declaratory relief as may be appropriate.

COUNT 10
Violation of the California False Advertising Law
(Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code §17500, et esq.)
(Against GSK)

1416. California Class Representative Golbenaz Bakhtiar incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 822-844 as though fully set forth herein.

1417. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the California-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

1418. Defendant, Plaintiff, and the Class members are "persons" within the meaning of Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code §17506.

1419. The California False Advertising Law ("California FAL") prohibits "any person, . . . corporation . . . or any employee thereof with intent directly or indirectly to dispose of real or personal property . . . or to induce the public to enter into any obligation relating thereto, to make or disseminate or cause to be made or disseminated . . . before the public in this state or from this state before the public in any state, in any newspaper or other publication, or any advertising device, . . . or in any other manner or means whatever, including over the internet, any statement . . . which is untrue or misleading, and which is known, or which by the exercise of reasonable care should be known, to be untrue or misleading." Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code §17500.

1420. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the California FAL by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

1421. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the California FAL by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

1422. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the California FAL by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

1423. Specifically, by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products, as detailed above, Defendant engaged in one or more unfair or deceptive acts or practices in the conduct of trade or commerce, in violation of the California FAL, including:

(a) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products have characteristics, uses, benefits, and qualities which they do not have;

(b) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products are of a particular standard, quality, and grade when they are not;

(c) advertising the Ranitidine-Containing Products with the intent not to sell them as advertised; and

(d) engaging in any other unconscionable, false, misleading, or deceptive act or practice in the conduct of trade or commerce.

1428. Plaintiff and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the California FAL because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

1429. Specifically, Plaintiff and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

1430. Defendant's violations present a continuing risk to Plaintiff and the Class members, as well as to the general public. Defendant's unlawful acts and practices complained of herein affect the public interest.

1431. As a result of Defendant's violations of the California FAL, as alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order providing restitution and disgorgement of all profits relating to the above-described business acts or practices, and other appropriate relief, including injunctive and declaratory relief as may be appropriate under the California FAL.

COUNT 11
Violation of the California Consumers Legal Remedies Act
(Cal. Civ. Code §1750, et esq.)
(Against GSK)

1432. California Class Representatives Golbenaz Bakhtiar incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 822-844 as though fully set forth herein.

1433. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the California-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

1434. Defendant, Plaintiff, and the Class members are "[p]erson[s]" within the meaning of Cal. Civ. Code §1761(c).

1435. Plaintiff and the Class members are "[c]onsumer[s]" within the meaning of Cal. Civ. Code §1761(d).

1436. The Ranitidine-Containing Products are "[g]oods" within the meaning of Cal. Civ. Code §1761(a).

1437. The California Consumers Legal Remedies Act ("California CLRA") prohibits "unfair methods of competition and unfair or deceptive acts or practices undertaken by any person in a transaction intended to result or that results in the sale or lease of goods or services to any consumer." Cal. Civ. Code §1770(a).

1438. The California CLRA makes unlawful specific acts, including:

(a) "[r]epresenting that goods or services have sponsorship, approval, characteristics, ingredients, uses, benefits, or quantities that they do not have" (Cal. Civ. Code §1770(a)(5));

(b) "[r]epresenting that goods or services are of a particular standard, quality, or grade, or that goods are of a particular style or model, if they are of another" (Cal. Civ. Code §1770(a)(7));

(c) "[a]dvertising goods or services with intent not to sell them as advertised" (Cal. Civ. Code §1770(a)(9)); and

(d) "[r]epresenting that the subject of a transaction has been supplied in accordance with a previous representation when it has not" (Cal. Civ. Code §1770(a)(16)).

1439. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the California CLRA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

1440. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the California CLRA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

1441. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the California CLRA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

1442. Specifically, by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products, as detailed above, Defendant engaged in one or more unfair or deceptive acts or practices in the conduct of trade or commerce, in violation of the California CLRA, including:

(a) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products have characteristics, uses, benefits, and qualities which they do not have;

(b) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products are of a particular standard, quality, and grade when they are not;

(c) advertising the Ranitidine-Containing Products with the intent not to sell them as advertised; and

(d) engaging in any other unconscionable, false, misleading, or deceptive act or practice in the conduct of trade or commerce.

1447. Plaintiff and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the California CLRA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products, as set forth above.

1448. Specifically, Plaintiff and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

1449. Defendant's violations present a continuing risk to Plaintiff and the Class members, as well as to the general public. Defendant's unlawful acts and practices complained of herein affect the public interest.

1450. Defendant was provided notice of the issues raised in this Count and this Complaint by the FDA investigations, the numerous complaints filed against it, and the many individual notice letters sent by various Plaintiff within a reasonable amount of time after the allegations of Ranitidine-Containing Products' defects became public. In addition, on May 21, 2020, Plaintiff in MDL 2924 sent a notice letter pursuant to Cal. Civ. Code §1782 to Defendant. Because Defendant failed to adequately remedy its unlawful conduct within the requisite time period, Plaintiff seeks all damages and relief to which Plaintiff and the Class members are entitled.

1451. Pursuant to Cal. Civ. Code §1780(a), Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding damages and any other just and proper relief available under the California CLRA. Under Cal. Civ. Code §1780(b), Plaintiff seek an additional award against Defendant of up to $5,000 for each Class member who qualifies as a "senior citizen" or "disabled person" under the California CLRA. Defendant knew or should have known that its conduct was directed to one or more Class members who are senior citizens or disabled persons. Defendant's conduct caused one or more of these senior citizens or disabled persons to suffer a substantial loss of property set aside for retirement or for personal or family care and maintenance, or assets essential to the health or welfare of the senior citizen or disabled person. One or more Class members who are senior citizens or disabled persons are substantially more vulnerable to Defendant's conduct because of age, poor health or infirmity, impaired understanding, restricted mobility, or disability, and each of them suffered substantial economic damage resulting from Defendant's conduct.

COUNT 12
Breach of Implied Warranty
(Cal. Com. Code §2314)
(Against GSK)

1452. California Class Representative Golbenaz Bakhtiar incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 822-844 as though fully set forth herein.

1453. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the California-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

1455. Each Ranitidine-Containing Product sold by Defendant comes with an implied warranty that it will be merchantable and fit for the ordinary purpose for which it would be used, including impliedly warrantying on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products that the products were safe and/or did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

1456. Defendant breached its implied warranty of merchantability because its products cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

1458. Defendant had reason to know Plaintiff and each member of the Class's particular purpose in buying Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products and knew that Plaintiff and each member of the Class relied on Defendant's skill or judgment in furnishing appropriate goods that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

1461. Further, Plaintiff and each member of the Class were the intended third-party beneficiaries of the implied warranties made by Defendant to purchasers of its Ranitidine-Containing Products.

1462. Plaintiff and the members of the Class were injured as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability. Plaintiff and the members of the Class were damaged as a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability because, had they been aware of the unmerchantable condition of Ranitidine-Containing Products, they would not have purchased such drugs.

1463. As a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability, as alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order awarding compensatory and punitive damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the law.

Unjust Enrichment or Quasi-Contract
(California Law)
(Against GSK)

1464. California Class Representative Golbenaz Bakhtiar incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 822-844 as though fully set forth herein.

1465. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the California-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

1466. Plaintiff and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

1471. Plaintiff and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law.

5. Causes of Action on Behalf of the Colorado-GSK Classes

COUNT 14
Violation of the Colorado Consumer Protection Act
(Colo. Rev. Stat. Ann. §6-1-101, et esq.)
(Against GSK)

1472. Colorado Class Representatives Jeffrey Pisano and Tammy Smith incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 822-844 as though fully set forth herein.

1473. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Colorado-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

1474. Defendant, Plaintiffs, and the Class members are "[p]erson[s]" within the meaning of Colo. Rev. Stat. Ann. §6-1-102(6).

1475. The Colorado Consumer Protection Act ("Colorado CPA") prohibits unfair, unconscionable, and deceptive acts or practices "in the course of the person's business, vocation, or occupation." Colo. Rev. Stat. Ann. §6-1-105(1).

1476. The Colorado CPA makes unlawful specific acts, including:

(a) "[e]ither knowingly or recklessly mak[ing] a false representation as to the source, sponsorship, approval, or certification of goods, services, or property" (Colo. Rev. Stat. Ann. §6-1-105(1)(b));

(b) "[r]epresent[ing] that goods, food, services, or property are of a particular standard, quality, or grade, or that goods are of a particular style or model, if he knows or should know that they are of another" (Colo. Rev. Stat. Ann. §6-1-105(1)(g));

(c) "[a]dvertis[ing] goods, services, or property with intent not to sell them as advertised" (Colo. Rev. Stat. Ann. §6-1-105(1)(i));

(d) "[f]ails to disclose material information concerning goods, services, or property which information was known at the time of an advertisement or sale if such failure to disclose such information was intended to induce the consumer to enter into a transaction" (Colo. Rev. Stat. Ann. §6-1-105(1)(u)); and

(e) "[e]ither knowingly or recklessly engage[ing] in any unfair, unconscionable, deceptive, deliberately misleading, false, or fraudulent act or practice" (Colo. Rev. Stat. Ann. §6-1-105(1)(kkk)).

1477. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Colorado CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer. Such conduct was bad faith conduct under the Colorado CPA.

1478. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Colorado CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

1479. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Colorado CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

1480. Specifically, by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products, as detailed above, Defendant engaged in one or more unfair or deceptive acts or practices in the conduct of trade or commerce, in violation of the Colorado CPA, including:

(a) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products have characteristics, uses, benefits, and qualities which they do not have;

(b) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products are of a particular standard, quality, and grade when they are not;

(c) advertising the Ranitidine-Containing Products with the intent not to sell them as advertised;

(d) engaging in any other unconscionable, false, misleading, or deceptive act or practice in the conduct of trade or commerce; and

(e) failing to disclose the defective Ranitidine-Containing Products in connection with their sale to the public.

1486. Plaintiffs and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the Colorado CPA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

1487. Specifically, Plaintiffs and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

1489. As a result of Defendant's violations of the Colorado CPA, as alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the Colorado CPA.

COUNT 15
Unjust Enrichment
(Colorado Law)
(Against GSK)

1490. Colorado Class Representatives Jeffrey Pisano and Tammy Smith incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 822-844 as though fully set forth herein.

1491. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Colorado-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

1492. Plaintiffs and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

1494. Defendant readily accepted and retained these benefits from Plaintiffs and Class members and knowingly benefitted from its unjust conduct – at Plaintiffs' and the Class members' expense – by selling worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products that contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

1495. It is unjust and inequitable for the Defendant to retain these benefits without commensurate compensation because they were attained by misrepresenting and fraudulently concealing the true facts concerning the Ranitidine-Containing Products from Plaintiffs and Class members, who would not have purchased the medications at all, but for the Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions.

1497. Plaintiffs and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law.

Violation of the Florida Deceptive and Unfair Trade Practices Act
(Fla. Stat. Ann. §501.201, et esq.)
(Against GSK)

1498. Florida Class Representatives Kristen Monger as parent of A.M. and L.M., Michael Tomlinson, Michael Galloway, and Kathy Jeffries incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 822-844 as though fully set forth herein.

1499. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Florida-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

1500. The Florida Deceptive and Unfair Trade Practices Act ("FDUTPA") prohibits "[u]nfair methods of competition, unconscionable acts or practices, and unfair or deceptive acts or practices in the conduct of any trade or commerce." Fla. Stat. Ann. §501.204(1).

1501. In construing the provisions of the FDUTPA, "due consideration and great weight shall be given to the interpretations of the Federal Trade Commission and the federal courts relating to s. 5(a)(1) of the Federal Trade Commission Act, 15 U.S.C. s. 45(a)(1) as of July 1, 2017." Fla. Stat. Ann. §501.204(2).

1502. Plaintiffs and the Class members are "[c]onsumer[s]" and "[i]nterested part[ies] or person[s]" as defined by the FDUTPA. See Fla. Stat. Ann. §501.203(6)-(7).

1503. Defendant engaged in "[t]rade or commerce" as defined by the FDUTPA. See Fla. Stat. Ann. §501.203(8).

1504. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the FDUTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

1505. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the FDUTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

1506. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the FDUTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

1512. Plaintiffs and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the FDUTPA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

1513. Specifically, Plaintiffs and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

1514. Defendant's violations present a continuing risk to Plaintiffs and the Class members, as well as to the general public. Defendant's unlawful acts and practices complained of herein affect the public interest.

1515. As a result of Defendant's violations of the FDUTPA, as alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the FDUTPA.

Unjust Enrichment
(Florida Law)
(Against GSK)

1516. Florida Class Representatives Kristen Monger as parent of A.M. and L.M., Michael Tomlinson, Michael Galloway, and Kathy Jeffries incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 822-844 as though fully set forth herein.

1517. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Florida-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

1518. Plaintiffs and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed. Accordingly, Plaintiffs and Class members suffered an impoverishment because they purchased worthless medications and did not receive the expected benefit therefrom.

1520. Defendant voluntarily accepted and retained these benefits from Plaintiffs and Class members and was knowingly enriched by its unjust conduct – at Plaintiffs' and the Class members' expense – by selling worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products that contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

1521. It is unjust and inequitable for the Defendant to retain these benefits without paying the value thereof because the benefits were attained by misrepresenting and fraudulently concealing the true facts concerning the Ranitidine-Containing Products from Plaintiffs and Class members, who would not have purchased the medications at all, but for the Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions.

1523. There is no express written contract governing this dispute.

1524. Plaintiffs and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law.

1539. Plaintiff and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

1542. It would be unjust for the Defendant to retain these benefits because they were attained by misrepresenting and fraudulently concealing the true facts concerning the Ranitidine-Containing Products from Plaintiff and Class members, who would not have purchased the medications at all, but for the Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions.

1544. Plaintiff and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law, nor is there an express contract governing the dispute.

8. Causes of Action on Behalf of the Iowa-GSK Classes

COUNT 20
Violation of the Iowa Private Right of Action for Consumer Frauds Act
(Iowa Code Ann. §714H.1, et esq.)
(Against GSK)

1545. Iowa Class Representative Brian Nervig incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 822-844 as though fully set forth herein.

1546. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Iowa-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

1547. Defendant, Plaintiff, and the Class members are "[p]erson[s]" within the meaning of Iowa Code Ann. §714H.2(7).

1548. Plaintiff and the Class members are "[c]onsumer[s]" within the meaning of Iowa Code Ann. §714H.2(3).

1549. The Iowa Private Right of Action for Consumer Frauds Act ("Iowa PRACFA") prohibits any "practice or act the person knows or reasonably should know is an unfair practice, deception, fraud, false pretense, or false promise, or the misrepresentation, concealment, suppression, or omission of a material fact, with the intent that others rely upon the unfair practice, deception, fraud, false pretense, false promise, misrepresentation, concealment, suppression, or omission in connection with the advertisement, sale, or lease of consumer merchandise." Iowa Code Ann. §714H.3(1).

1550. In the course of its business, Defendant, through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Iowa PRACFA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

1551. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Iowa PRACFA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

1552. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Iowa PRACFA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

1558. Plaintiff and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the Iowa PRACFA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

1559. Specifically, Plaintiff and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

1560. Defendant's violations present a continuing risk to Plaintiff and the Class members, as well as to the general public. Defendants' unlawful acts and practices complained of herein affect the public interest.

1561. As a result of Defendants' violations of the Iowa PRACFA, as alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendants' unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the Iowa PRACFA.

1562. Additionally, because Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices, including its misrepresentations, concealments, omissions, and suppressions of material facts, as alleged herein, were undertaken in willful and wanton disregard for the rights and safety of others, pursuant to Iowa Code Ann. §714H.5(4), Plaintiff and the Class members seek an additonal award of treble damages.

COUNT 21
Breach of Implied Warranty
(Iowa Code §554.2314)
(Against GSK)

1563. Iowa Class Representative Brian Nervig incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 822-844 as though fully set forth herein.

1564. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Iowa-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

1565. At all relevant times, Defendant was a merchant with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products which were sold to Plaintiff and members of the Iowa Class and was in the business of selling such products.

1566. Each Ranitidine-Containing Product sold by Defendant comes with an implied warranty that it will be merchantable and fit for the ordinary purpose for which it would be used, including impliedly warrantying on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products that the products were safe and/or did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

1567. Defendant breached its implied warranty of merchantability because its products cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

1569. Defendant had reason to know Plaintiff's and each member of the Class's particular purpose in buying Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products and knew that Plaintiff and each member of the Class relied on Defendant's skill or judgment in furnishing appropriate goods that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

1570. Plaintiff and the Class did, in fact, rely on Defendant's skill and judgment in manufacturing Ranitidine-Containing Products that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

1571. Plaintiff and each member of the Class has had sufficient direct dealings with either Defendant or its agents (including distributors, dealers, and authorized sellers) to establish privity of contract between Defendant, on the one hand, and Plaintiff and each member of the Class, on the other hand.

1572. Further, Plaintiff and each member of the Class were the intended third-party beneficiaries of the implied warranties made by Defendant to purchasers of its Ranitidine-Containing Products.

1574. As a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability, as alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order awarding compensatory and punitive damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the law.

COUNT 22
Unjust Enrichment
(Iowa Law)
(Against GSK)

1575. Iowa Class Representative Brian Nervig incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 822-844 as though fully set forth herein.

1576. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Iowa-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

1577. Plaintiff and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

expense – by selling worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products that contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

1580. It would be unjust for the Defendant to retain these benefits because they were attained by misrepresenting and fraudulently concealing the true facts concerning the Ranitidine-Containing Products from Plaintiff and Class members, who would not have purchased the medications at all, but for the Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions.

1582. Plaintiff and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law, nor is there an express contract governing the dispute.

9. Causes of Action on Behalf of the Louisiana-GSK Classes

COUNT 23
Violation of the Louisiana Unfair Trade Practices and Consumer Protection Law
(La. Stat. Ann. §51:1401, et esq.)
(Against GSK)

1583. Louisiana Class Representatives Randy Jones and Tammy Smith incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 822-844 as though fully set forth herein.

1584. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Louisiana-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

1585. Defendant, Plaintiffs, and the Class members are "[p]erson[s]" within the meaning of La. Stat. Ann. §51:1402(8).

1586. Plaintiffs and the Class members are "[c]onsumer[s]" within the meaning of La. Stat. Ann. §51:1402(1).

1587. Defendant was and is engaged in "[t]rade" or "commerce" within the meaning of La. Stat. Ann. §51:1402(10).

1588. The Louisiana Unfair Trade Practices and Consumer Protection Law ("Louisiana CPL") prohibits "[u]nfair methods of competition and unfair or deceptive acts or practices in the conduct of any trade or commerce." La. Stat. Ann. §51:1405(A).

1589. In the course of its business, Defendant, through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Louisiana CPL by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

1590. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Louisiana CPL by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

1591. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Louisiana CPL by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

1595. Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices, including its misrepresentations, concealments, omissions, and suppressions of material facts, as alleged herein, had a tendency or capacity to mislead and create a false impression in consumers' minds, and were likely to and, in fact, did deceive reasonable consumers, including Plaintiffs and the Class members, about: (i) the inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products; (ii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products if used within the expiration dates; and (iii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products when ingesting all doses contained within particular packaging.

material by a reasonable consumer, and they were, in fact, material to Plaintiffs and the Class members, who consider such facts to be important to their purchase decisions with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products.

1597. Plaintiffs and the Class members relied on Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, and concealments with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products by purchasing and continuing to purchase Ranitidine-Containing Products after Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, and concealments were made.

1598. Plaintiffs and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the Louisiana CPL because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

1599. Specifically, Plaintiffs and the Class were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

1600. Defendant's violations present a continuing risk to Plaintiffs and the Class members, as well as to the general public. Defendant's unlawful acts and practices complained of herein affect the public interest.

1601. As a result of Defendant's violations of the Louisiana CPL, as alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members seek an order awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the Louisiana CPL.

COUNT 24
Breach of Implied Warranty
(La. Civ. Code Ann. Art. §2520)
(Against GSK)

1602. Louisiana Class Representatives Randy Jones and Tammy Smith incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 822-844 as though fully set forth herein.

1603. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Louisiana-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

1604. At all relevant times, Defendant was a merchant with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products which were sold to Louisiana Class Representatives and members of the Louisiana Class and was in the business of selling such products.

1605. Each Ranitidine-Containing Product sold by Defendant comes with an implied warranty that it will be merchantable and fit for the ordinary purpose for which it would be used, including impliedly warrantying on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products that the products were safe and/or did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

1606. Defendant breached its implied warranty of merchantability because its products cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

1608. Defendant had reason to know Plaintiffs and each member of the Class's particular purpose in buying Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products and knew that Plaintiffs and each member of the Class relied on Defendant's skill or judgment in furnishing appropriate goods that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

1611. Further, Plaintiffs and each member of the Class were the intended third-party beneficiaries of the implied warranties made by Defendant to purchasers of its Ranitidine-Containing Products.

1612. Plaintiffs and the members of the Class were injured as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability. Plaintiffs and the members of the Class were damaged as a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability because, had they been aware of the unmerchantable condition of Ranitidine-Containing Products, they would not have purchased such drugs.

COUNT 25
Unjust Enrichment
(Louisiana Law)
(Against GSK)

1614. Louisiana Class Representatives Randy Jones and Tammy Smith incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 822-844 as though fully set forth herein.

1615. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Louisiana-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

1616. Plaintiffs and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

1618. Defendant readily accepted and retained these benefits from Plaintiffs and Class members and was knowingly enriched by its unjust conduct – at Plaintiffs' and the Class members' expense – by selling worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products that contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

1619. Defendant's enrichment – the monies obtained from Plaintiffs for the Ranitidine-Containing Products – was the result of Plaintiffs' impoverishment – the receipt by Plaintiffs of worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe and unfit for human consumption.

1620. It is unjustifiable for the Defendant to retain these benefits because they were attained by misrepresenting and fraudulently concealing the true facts concerning the Ranitidine-Containing Products from Plaintiffs and Class members, who would not have purchased the medications at all, but for the Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions.

1622. Plaintiffs and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law, nor is there an express contract governing this dispute.

10. Causes of Action on Behalf of the Maryland-GSK Classes

COUNT 26
Violation of the Maryland Consumer Protection Act
(Md. Code Ann., Com. Law §13-101, et esq.)
(Against GSK)

1623. Maryland Class Representatives Alberta Griffin and Nicholas Hazlett incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 822-844 as though fully set forth herein.

1624. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Maryland-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

1625. Defendant, Plaintiffs, and the Class members are "[p]erson[s]" within the meaning of Md. Code Ann., Com. Law §13-101(h).

1626. Plaintiffs and the Class members are "[c]onsumer[s]" within the meaning of Md. Code Ann., Com. Law §13-101(c)(1).

1627. The Ranitidine-Containing Products are "[m]erchandise" within the meaning of Md. Code Ann., Com. Law §13-101(f).

1628. The Maryland Consumer Protection Act ("Maryland CPA") prohibits "[u]nfair, abusive, or deceptive trade practices." Md. Code Ann., Com. Law §13-301.

1629. The Maryland CPA makes unlawful specific acts, including:

(a) "[f]alse, falsely disparaging, or misleading oral or written statement, visual description, or other representation of any kind which has the capacity, tendency, or effect of deceiving or misleading consumers" (Md. Code Ann., Com. Law §13-301(1));

(b) "[r]epresent[ing] that . . . [c]onsumer goods, consumer realty, or consumer services have a sponsorship, approval, accessory, characteristic, ingredient, use, benefit, or quantity which they do not have" (Md. Code Ann., Com. Law §13-301(2)(i));

(c) "[r]epresent[ing] that . . . [c]onsumer goods, consumer realty, or consumer services are of a particular standard, quality, grade, style, or model which they are not" (Md. Code Ann., Com. Law §13-301(2)(iv));

(d) "[f]ailure to state a material fact if the failure deceives or tends to deceive" (Md. Code Ann., Com. Law §13-301(3));

(e) "[a]dvertis[ing] or offer[ing] of consumer goods, consumer realty, or consumer services . . . [w]ithout intent to sell, lease, or rent them as advertised or offered" (Md. Code Ann., Com. Law §13-301(5)(i)); and

(f) "[d]eception, fraud, false pretense, false premise, misrepresentation, or knowing concealment, suppression, or omission of any material fact with the intent that a consumer rely on the same in connection with . . . [t]he promotion or sale of any consumer goods" (Md. Code Ann., Com. Law §13-301(9)(i)).

1630. In the course of its business, Defendant, through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Maryland CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

1631. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Maryland CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

1632. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Maryland CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

(a) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products have characteristics, uses, benefits, and qualities which they do not have;

(b) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products are of a particular standard, quality, and grade when they are not;

(c) advertising the Ranitidine-Containing Products with the intent not to sell them as advertised;

(d) failing to disclose that the Ranitidine-Containing Products are defective and inherently dangerous in the course of the sale of the Ranitidine-Containing Products; and

(e) engaging in any other unconscionable, false, misleading, or deceptive act or practice in the conduct of trade or commerce.

1634. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding the inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiffs and the Class members in a uniform manner.

1638. Plaintiffs and the Class members relied on Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, and concealments with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products by purchasing and continuing to purchase Ranitidine-Containing Products after Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, and concealments were made.

1639. Plaintiffs and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the Maryland CPA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

1640. Specifically, Plaintiffs and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

1642. As a result of Defendant's violations of the Maryland CPA, as alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the Maryland CPA.

COUNT 27
Breach of Implied Warranty
(Md. Code Ann. §2-314)
(Against GSK)

1643. Maryland Class Representatives Alberta Griffin and Nicholas Hazlett incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 822-844 as though fully set forth herein.

1644. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Maryland-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK(for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

1646. Each Ranitidine-Containing Product sold by Defendant comes with an implied warranty that it will be merchantable and fit for the ordinary purpose for which it would be used, including impliedly warrantying on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products that the products were safe and/or did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

1647. Defendant breached its implied warranty of merchantability because its products cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

1649. Defendant had reason to know Plaintiffs and each member of the Class's particular purpose in buying Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products and knew that Plaintiffs and each member of the Class relied on Defendant's skill or judgment in furnishing appropriate goods that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

1650. Plaintiffs and the Class did, in fact, rely on Defendant's skill and judgment in manufacturing Ranitidine-Containing Products that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

1651. Plaintiffs and each member of the Class have had sufficient direct dealings with either Defendant or its agents (including distributors, dealers, and authorized sellers) to establish privity of contract between Defendant, on the one hand, and Plaintiffs and each member of the Class, on the other hand.

1652. Further, Plaintiffs and each member of the Class were the intended third-party beneficiaries of the implied warranties made by Defendant to purchasers of its Ranitidine-Containing Products.

1654. As a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability, as alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members seek an order awarding compensatory and punitive damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the law.

COUNT 28
Unjust Enrichment
(Maryland Law)
(Against GSK)

1655. Maryland Class Representatives Alberta Griffin and Nicholas Hazlett incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 822-844 as though fully set forth herein.

1656. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Maryland-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

1657. Plaintiffs and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

1659. Defendant readily accepted and retained these benefits from Plaintiffs and Class members and knowingly benefitted from its unjust conduct – at Plaintiffs' and the Class members' expense – by selling worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products that contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

1660. It would be unjust and inequitable for the Defendant to retain these benefits because they were attained by misrepresenting and fraudulently concealing the true facts concerning the Ranitidine-Containing Products from Plaintiffs and Class members, who would not have purchased the medications at all, but for the Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions.

1662. Plaintiffs and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law.

11. Causes of Action on Behalf of the Massachusetts-GSK Classes

COUNT 29
Violation of the Deceptive Acts or Practices Prohibited by Massachusetts Law (Mass. Gen. Laws Ann. ch. 93a, §1, et esq.) (Against GSK)

1663. Massachusetts Class Representative Ana Guzman incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 822-844 as though fully set forth herein.

1664. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Massachusetts-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

1665. Defendant, Plaintiff, and the Class members are "[p]erson[s]" within the meaning of Mass. Gen. Laws Ann. ch. 93A, §1(a).

1666. Defendant was and is engaged in "[t]rade" or "commerce" within the meaning of Mass. Gen. Laws Ann. ch. 93A, §1(b).

1667. The Massachusetts consumer protection law ("Massachusetts Act") prohibits "[u]nfair methods of competition and unfair or deceptive acts or practices in the conduct of any trade or commerce." Mass. Gen. Laws Ann. ch. 93A, §2(a).

1668. In the course of its business, Defendant, through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Massachusetts Act by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

1669. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Massachusetts Act by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

1670. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Massachusetts Act by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

Defendant engaged in one or more unfair or deceptive business practices prohibited by the Massachusetts Act.

1676. Plaintiff and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the Massachusetts Act because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

1677. Specifically, Plaintiff and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

1680. As a result of Defendant's violations of the Massachusetts Act, as alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the Massachusetts Act.

COUNT 30
Breach of Implied Warranty
(Mass. Gen. Laws ch. 106 §2-314)
(Against GSK)

1681. Massachusetts Class Representative Ana Guzman incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 822-844 as though fully set forth herein.

1682. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Massachusetts-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

1683. At all relevant times, Defendant was a merchant with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products which were sold to Massachusetts Class Representatives and members of the Massachusetts Class and was in the business of selling such products.

1684. Each Ranitidine-Containing Product sold by Defendant comes with an implied warranty that it will be merchantable and fit for the ordinary purpose for which it would be used, including impliedly warrantying on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products that the products were safe and/or did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

1685. Defendant breached its implied warranty of merchantability because its products cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

1687. Defendant had reason to know Plaintiff and each member of the Class's particular purpose in buying Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products and knew that Plaintiff and each member of the Class relied on Defendant's skill or judgment in furnishing appropriate goods that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

1688. Plaintiff and the Class did, in fact, rely on Defendant's skill and judgment in manufacturing Ranitidine-Containing Products that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

1689. Plaintiff and each member of the Class has had sufficient direct dealings with either Defendant or its agents (including distributors, dealers, and authorized sellers) to establish privity of contract between Defendant, on the one hand, and Plaintiff and each member of the Class, on the other hand.

1690. Further, Plaintiff and each member of the Class were the intended third-party beneficiaries of the implied warranties made by Defendant to purchasers of its Ranitidine-Containing Products.

1691. Plaintiff and the members of the Class were injured as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability. Plaintiff and the members of the Class were damaged as a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability because, had they been aware of the unmerchantable condition of Ranitidine-Containing Products, they would not have purchased such drugs.

1692. As a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability, as alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order awarding compensatory and punitive damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the law.

COUNT 31
Unjust Enrichment
(Massachusetts Law)
(Against GSK)

1693. Massachusetts Class Representative Ana Guzman incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 822-844 as though fully set forth herein.

1694. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Massachusetts-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

1695. Plaintiff and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

1697. Defendant readily accepted and retained these benefits from Plaintiff and Class members and was knowingly enriched from its unjust conduct – at Plaintiff's and the Class members' expense – by selling worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products that contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

1698. Defendant's enrichment – the monies obtained from Plaintiff's and Class members' purchases of Ranitidine-Containing Products – was the result of Plaintiff's and Class members' impoverishment – i.e., Plaintiff's and Class members' receipt of worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe and unfit for human consumption.

1699. It is unjustifiable for the Defendant to retain these benefits because they were attained by misrepresenting and fraudulently concealing the true facts concerning the Ranitidine-Containing Products from Plaintiff and Class members, who would not have purchased the medications at all, but for the Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions.

1701. Plaintiff and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law.

12. Causes of Action on Behalf of the Michigan-GSK Classes

COUNT 32
Violation of the Michigan Consumer Protection Act
(Mich. Comp. Laws Ann. §445.901, et esq.)
(Against GSK)

1702. Michigan Class Representative Jerry Hunt incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 822-844 as though fully set forth herein.

1703. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Michigan-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

1704. Defendant, Plaintiff, and the Class members are "[p]erson[s]" within the meaning of Mich. Comp. Laws Ann. §445.902(1)(d).

1705. Defendant was and is engaged in "[t]rade" or "commerce" within the meaning of Mich. Comp. Laws Ann. §445.902(1)(g).

1706. The Michigan Consumer Protection Act ("Michigan CPA") prohibits "[u]nfair, unconscionable, or deceptive methods, acts, or practices in the conduct of trade or commerce." Mich. Comp. Laws Ann. §445.903(1).

1707. The Michigan CPA makes unlawful specific acts, including:

(a) "[r]epresenting that goods or services have sponsorship, approval, characteristics, ingredients, uses, benefits, or quantities that they do not have" (Mich. Comp. Laws Ann. §445.903(1)(c));

(b) "[r]epresenting that goods or services are of a particular standard, quality, or grade, or that goods are of a particular style or model, if they are of another" (Mich. Comp. Laws Ann. §445.903(1)(e)); and

(c) "[a]dvertising or representing goods or services with intent not to dispose of those goods or services as advertised or represented" (Mich. Comp. Laws Ann. §445.903(1)(g)).

1708. In the course of its business, Defendant, through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Michigan CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

1709. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Michigan CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

1710. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Michigan CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

(a) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products have characteristics, uses, benefits, and qualities which they do not have;

(b) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products are of a particular standard, quality, and grade when they are not;

(c) advertising the Ranitidine-Containing Products with the intent not to sell them as advertised; and

(d) engaging in any other unconscionable, false, misleading, or deceptive act or practice in the conduct of trade or commerce.

1716. Plaintiff and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the Michigan CPA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

1717. Specifically, Plaintiff and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

1718. Defendant's violations present a continuing risk to Plaintiff and the Class members, as well as to the general public. Defendant's unlawful acts and practices complained of herein affect the public interest.

1719. As a result of Defendant's violations of the Michigan CPA, as alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the Michigan CPA.

COUNT 33
Unjust Enrichment
(Michigan Law)
(Against GSK)

1720. Michigan Class Representative Jerry Hunt incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 822-844 as though fully set forth herein.

1721. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Michigan-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

1722. Plaintiff and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

Plaintiff and Class members conferred a financial benefit on Defendants but did not receive their expected benefit therefrom.

1724. Defendant readily accepted and retained these benefits from Plaintiff and Class members and knowingly benefitted from its unjust conduct – at Plaintiff's and the Class members' expense – by selling worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products that contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

1725. It is unjust and inequitable for the Defendant to retain these benefits because they were attained by misrepresenting and fraudulently concealing the true facts concerning the Ranitidine-Containing Products from Plaintiff and Class members, who would not have purchased the medications at all, but for the Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions.

1727. There is no express contract governing this dispute.

1728. Plaintiffs and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law.

13. Causes of Action on Behalf of the Minnesota-GSK Classes

COUNT 34
Violation of the Minnesota Prevention of Consumer Fraud Act
(Minn. Stat. Ann. §325F.68, et esq.)
(Against GSK)

1729. Minnesota Class Representatives Donald Northrup and Sandra Erickson-Brown incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 822-844 as though fully set forth herein.

1730. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Minnesota-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

1731. Defendant, Plaintiffs, and the Class members are "[p]erson[s]" within the meaning of Minn. Stat. Ann. §325F.68(3).

1732. The Ranitidine-Containing Products are "[m]erchandise" within the meaning of Minn. Stat. Ann. §325F.68(2).

1733. The Minnesota Prevention of Consumer Fraud Act ("Minnesota CFA") prohibits "act, use, or employment by any person of any fraud, false pretense, false promise, misrepresentation, misleading statement or deceptive practice, with the intent that others rely thereon in connection with the sale of any merchandise, whether or not any person has in fact been misled, deceived, or damaged." Minn. Stat. Ann. §325F.69(1). Prohibited practices include: (i) deceptive practices concerning the quality of goods or services pursuant to Minn. Stat. Ann. §325D.44; (ii) fraud in connection with the sale of any merchandise pursuant to Minn. Stat. Ann. §325F.69; and (iii) misrepresentation of product ingredients or quality pursuant to Minn. Stat. Ann. §325D.13.

1734. In the course of its business, Defendant, through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Minnesota CFA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

1735. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Minnesota CFA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

1736. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Minnesota CFA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

1742. Plaintiffs and the Class members relied on Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, and concealments with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products by purchasing and continuing to purchase Ranitidine-Containing Products after Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, and concealments were made.

1743. Plaintiffs and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the Minnesota CFA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

1744. Specifically, Plaintiffs and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

1745. Defendant's violations present a continuing risk to Plaintiff and the Class members, as well as to the general public. Defendant's unlawful acts and practices complained of herein affect the public interest.

1746. As a result of Defendant's violations of the Minnesota CFA, as alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the Minnesota CFA.

COUNT 35
Breach of Implied Warranty
(Minn. Stat. Ann. §336.2-314)
(Against GSK)

1747. Minnesota Class Representatives Donald Northrup and Sandra Erickson-Brown incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 822-844 as though fully set forth herein.

1748. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Minnesota-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

1750. Each Ranitidine-Containing Product sold by Defendant comes with an implied warranty that it will be merchantable and fit for the ordinary purpose for which it would be used, including impliedly warrantying on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products that the products were safe and/or did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

1751. Defendant breached its implied warranty of merchantability because its products cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

1753. Defendant had reason to know Plaintiffs and each member of the Class's particular purpose in buying Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products and knew that Plaintiffs and each member of the Class relied on Defendant's skill or judgment in furnishing appropriate goods that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

1754. Plaintiffs and the Class did, in fact, rely on Defendant's skill and judgment in manufacturing Ranitidine-Containing Products that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

1756. Further, Plaintiffs and each member of the Class were the intended third-party beneficiaries of the implied warranties made by Defendant to purchasers of its Ranitidine-Containing Products.

1757. Plaintiffs and the members of the Class were injured as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability. Plaintiffs and the members of the Class were damaged as a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability because, had they been aware of the unmerchantable condition of Ranitidine-Containing Products, they would not have purchased such drugs.

1758. As a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability, as alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members seek an order awarding compensatory and punitive damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the law.

COUNT 36
Unjust Enrichment
(Minnesota Law)
(Against GSK)

1759. Minnesota Class Representatives Donald Northrup and Sandra Erickson-Brown incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 822-844 as though fully set forth herein.

1760. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Minnesota-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

1761. Plaintiffs and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

1762. In exchange for their payment of the purchase price of Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products, Plaintiffs and Class members received the Ranitidine-Containing Products, which Defendant did not disclose contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed. Accordingly, Plaintiffs and Class members conferred a financial benefit on Defendants but did not receive their expected benefit therefrom.

1763. Defendant readily accepted and retained these benefits from Plaintiffs and Class members and knowingly benefitted from its unjust conduct – at Plaintiffs' and the Class members' expense – by selling worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products that contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

1764. It is unjust and inequitable for the Defendant to retain these benefits because they were attained by misrepresenting and fraudulently concealing the true facts concerning the Ranitidine-Containing Products from Plaintiffs and Class members, who would not have purchased the medications at all, but for the Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions.

1766. Plaintiffs and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law.

COUNT 37
Breach of Implied Warranty
(Miss. Code Ann. §75-2-314)
(Against GSK)

1767. Mississippi Class Representative Shirley Magee incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 822-844 as though fully set forth herein.

1768. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Mississippi-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

1769. At all relevant times, Defendant was a merchant with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products which were sold to Mississippi Class Representatives and members of the Mississippi Class and was in the business of selling such products.

1770. Each Ranitidine-Containing Product sold by Defendant comes with an implied warranty that it will be merchantable and fit for the ordinary purpose for which it would be used, including impliedly warrantying on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products that the products were safe and/or did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

1771. Defendant breached its implied warranty of merchantability because its products cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

1772. Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products are not fit for their intended use – or any use – because they have dangerous propensities when used as intended or within their expiration dates on the labels, and their use carries an increased risk of developing cancer.

1773. Defendant had reason to know Plaintiff and each member of the Class's particular purpose in buying Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products and knew that Plaintiff and each member of the Class relied on Defendant's skill or judgment in furnishing appropriate goods that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

1774. Plaintiff and the Class did, in fact, rely on Defendant's skill and judgment in manufacturing Ranitidine-Containing Products that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

1775. Plaintiff and each member of the Class has had sufficient direct dealings with either Defendant or its agents (including distributors, dealers, and authorized sellers) to establish privity of contract between Defendant, on the one hand, and Plaintiffs and each member of the Class, on the other hand.

1776. Further, Plaintiff and each member of the Class were the intended third-party beneficiaries of the implied warranties made by Defendant to purchasers of its Ranitidine-Containing Products.

1777. Plaintiff and the members of the Class were injured as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability. Plaintiff and the members of the Class were damaged as a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability because, had they been aware of the unmerchantable condition of Ranitidine-Containing Products, they would not have purchased such drugs.

1778. As a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability, as alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order awarding compensatory and punitive damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the law.

COUNT 38
Unjust Enrichment
(Mississippi Law)
(Against GSK)

1779. Mississippi Class Representative Shirley Magee incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 822-844 as though fully set forth herein.

1780. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Mississippi-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

1781. Plaintiff and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

1783. Defendant readily accepted and retained these benefits from Plaintiff and Class members and was knowingly enriched by its unjust conduct – at Plaintiff's and the Class members' expense – by selling worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products that contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

1784. It is unjust and inequitable for the Defendant to retain these benefits because they were attained by misrepresenting and fraudulently concealing the true facts concerning the Ranitidine-Containing Products from Plaintiffs and Class members, who would not have purchased the medications at all, but for the Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions.

1786. There is no express contract governing this dispute.

1787. Plaintiff and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law.

15. Causes of Action on Behalf of the Missouri-GSK Classes

COUNT 39
Violation of the Missouri Merchandising Practices Act
(Mo. Ann. Stat. §407.010, et esq.)
(Against GSK)

1788. Missouri Class Representatives Ronda Lockett and Tammy Smith incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 822-844 as though fully set forth herein.

1789. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Missouri-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

1790. Defendant, Plaintiffs, and the Class members are "[p]erson[s]" within the meaning of Mo. Ann. Stat. §407.010(5).

1791. Defendant was and is engaged in "[t]rade or commerce" within the meaning of Mo. Ann. Stat. §407.010(7).

1792. The Missouri Merchandising Practices Act ("Missouri MPA") prohibits "act, use or employment by any person of any deception, fraud, false pretense, false promise, misrepresentation, unfair practice or the concealment, suppression, or omission of any material fact in connection with the sale or advertisement of any merchandise in trade or commerce." Mo. Ann. Stat. §407.020(1).

1793. In the course of its business, Defendant, through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Missouri MPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

1794. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Missouri MPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

1795. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Missouri MPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

1801. Plaintiffs and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the Missouri MPA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

1802. Specifically, Plaintiffs and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

1803. Defendant's violations present a continuing risk to Plaintiffs and the Class members, as well as to the general public. Defendant's unlawful acts and practices complained of herein affect the public interest.

1804. As a result of Defendant's violations of the Missouri MPA, as alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the Missouri MPA.

COUNT 40
Breach of Implied Warranty
(Mo. Rev. Stat. §400.2-314)
(Against GSK)

1805. Missouri Class Representatives Ronda Lockett and Tammy Smith incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 822-844 as though fully set forth herein.

1806. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Missouri-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

1807. At all relevant times, Defendant was a merchant with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products which were sold to Missouri Class Representatives and members of the Missouri Class and was in the business of selling such products.

1808. Each Ranitidine-Containing Product sold by Defendant comes with an implied warranty that it will be merchantable and fit for the ordinary purpose for which it would be used, including impliedly warrantying on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products that the products were safe and/or did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

1809. Defendant breached its implied warranty of merchantability because its products cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

1810. Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products are not fit for their intended use – or any use – because they have dangerous propensities when used as intended or within their expiration dates on the labels, and their use carries an increased risk of developing cancer.

1811. Defendant had reason to know Plaintiffs and each member of the Class's particular purpose in buying Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products and knew that Plaintiffs and each member of the Class relied on Defendant's skill or judgment in furnishing appropriate goods that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

1812. Plaintiffs and the Class did, in fact, rely on Defendant's skill and judgment in manufacturing Ranitidine-Containing Products that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

1813. Plaintiffs and each member of the Class have had sufficient direct dealings with either Defendant or its agents (including distributors, dealers, and authorized sellers) to establish privity of contract between Defendant, on the one hand, and Plaintiffs and each member of the Class, on the other hand.

1814. Further, Plaintiffs and each member of the Class were the intended third-party beneficiaries of the implied warranties made by Defendant to purchasers of its Ranitidine-Containing Products.

1815. Plaintiffs and the members of the Class were injured as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability. Plaintiffs and the members of the Class were damaged as a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability because, had they been aware of the unmerchantable condition of Ranitidine-Containing Products, they would not have purchased such drugs.

1816. As a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability, as alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members seek an order awarding compensatory and punitive damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the law.

COUNT 41
Unjust Enrichment
(Missouri Law)
(Against GSK)

1817. Missouri Class Representatives Ronda Lockett and Tammy Smith incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 822-844 as though fully set forth herein.

1818. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Missouri-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

1819. Plaintiffs and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

1820. In exchange for their payment of the purchase price of Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products, Plaintiffs and Class members received the Ranitidine-Containing Products, which Defendant did not disclose contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed. Accordingly, Plaintiffs and Class members conferred a financial benefit on Defendants but did not receive their expected benefit therefrom.

1821. Defendant readily accepted and retained these benefits from Plaintiffs and Class members and knowingly benefitted from its unjust conduct – at Plaintiffs' and the Class members' expense – by selling worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products that contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

1822. It is unjust and inequitable for the Defendant to retain these benefits because they were attained by misrepresenting and fraudulently concealing the true facts concerning the Ranitidine-Containing Products from Plaintiffs and Class members, who would not have purchased the medications at all, but for the Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions.

1824. There is no express contract governing this dispute.

1825. Plaintiffs and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law.

COUNT 42
Violation of the New Jersey Consumer Fraud Act
(N.J. Stat. Ann. §56:8-1, et esq.)
(Against GSK)

1826. New Jersey Class Representative Lynn White incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 822-844 as though fully set forth herein.

1827. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the New Jersey-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

1828. Defendant, Plaintiff, and the Class members are "person[s]" within the meaning of N.J. Stat. Ann. §56:8-1(d).

1829. The Ranitidine-Containing Products are "merchandise" within the meaning of N.J. Stat. Ann. §56:8-1(c).

1830. In the course of its business, Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the New Jersey Consumer Fraud Act ("New Jersey CFA") by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer. N.J. Stat. Ann. §56:8-1, et esq.

1831. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the New Jersey CFA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

1832. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the New Jersey CFA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

1836. Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices, including its misrepresentations, concealments, omissions, and suppressions of material facts, as alleged herein, had a tendency or capacity to mislead and create a false impression in consumers' minds, and were likely to and, in fact, did deceive reasonable consumers, including Plaintiff and the Class members, about: (i) the inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products; (ii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products if used within the expiration dates; and (iii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products when ingesting all doses contained within particular packaging.

1838. Plaintiff and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the New Jersey CFA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

1839. Specifically, Plaintiff and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

1840. Defendant's violations present a continuing risk to Plaintiff and the Class members, as well as to the general public. Defendant's unlawful acts and practices complained of herein affect the public interest.

1841. As a result of Defendant's violations of the New Jersey CFA, as alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the New Jersey CFA.

COUNT 43
Breach of Implied Warranty
(N.J. Stat. Ann. §12A:2-314)
(Against GSK)

1842. New Jersey Class Representative Lynn White incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 822-844 as though fully set forth herein.

1843. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the New Jersey-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

1844. At all relevant times, Defendant was a merchant with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products which were sold to New Jersey Class Representatives and members of the New Jersey Class and was in the business of selling such products.

1845. Each Ranitidine-Containing Product sold by Defendant comes with an implied warranty that it will be merchantable and fit for the ordinary purpose for which it would be used, including impliedly warrantying on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products that the products were safe and/or did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

1846. Defendant breached its implied warranty of merchantability because its products cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

1848. Defendant had reason to know Plaintiff and each member of the Class's particular purpose in buying Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products and knew that Plaintiff and each member of the Class relied on Defendant's skill or judgment in furnishing appropriate goods that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

1849. Plaintiff and the Class did, in fact, rely on Defendant's skill and judgment in manufacturing Ranitidine-Containing Products that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

1850. Plaintiff and each member of the Class has had sufficient direct dealings with either Defendant or its agents (including distributors, dealers, and authorized sellers) to establish privity of contract between Defendant, on the one hand, and Plaintiff and each member of the Class, on the other hand.

1851. Further, Plaintiff and each member of the Class were the intended third-party beneficiaries of the implied warranties made by Defendant to purchasers of its Ranitidine-Containing Products.

1852. Plaintiff and the members of the Class were injured as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability. Plaintiff and the members of the Class were damaged as a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability because, had they been aware of the unmerchantable condition of Ranitidine-Containing Products, they would not have purchased such drugs.

1853. As a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability, as alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order awarding compensatory and punitive damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the law.

COUNT 44
Unjust Enrichment
(New Jersey Law)
(Against GSK)

1854. New Jersey Class Representative Lynn White incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 822-844 as though fully set forth herein.

1855. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the New Jersey-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

1856. Plaintiff and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed. Accordingly, Plaintiff and Class members conferred a financial benefit on Defendants but did not receive their expected benefit therefrom.

1858. Defendant readily accepted and retained these benefits from Plaintiff and Class members and knowingly benefitted from its unjust conduct – at Plaintiff's and the Class members' expense – by selling worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products that contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

1859. It is unjust for the Defendant to retain these benefits because they were attained by misrepresenting and fraudulently concealing the true facts concerning the Ranitidine-Containing Products from Plaintiff and Class members, who would not have purchased the medications at all, but for the Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions.

1861. Plaintiff and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law, nor is there an express contract governing this dispute.

17. Causes of Action on Behalf of the New York-GSK Classes

COUNT 45
Violation of New York Deceptive Acts and Practices Act
(N.Y. Gen. Bus. Law §349)
(Against GSK)

1862. New York Class Representative Benny Fazio incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 822-844 as though fully set forth herein.

1863. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the New York-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

1864. Plaintiff and the Class members are "person[s]" within the meaning of N.Y. Gen. Bus. Law §349(h). Defendant is a "person, firm, corporation or association" within the meaning of N.Y. Gen. Bus. Law §349(b).

1865. The New York Deceptive Acts and Practices Act ("New York DAPA") prohibits "[d]eceptive acts or practices in the conduct of any business, trade or commerce." N.Y. Gen. Bus. Law §349(a).

1866. In the course of its business, Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the New York DAPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

1867. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the New York DAPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

1868. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the New York DAPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products; (ii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products if used within the expiration dates; and (iii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products when ingesting all doses contained within particular packaging.

1873. The facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products that Defendant knowingly and intentionally misrepresented, omitted, concealed, and failed to disclose would be considered material by a reasonable consumer, and they were, in fact, material to Plaintiff and the Class members, who consider such facts to be important to their purchase decisions with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products.

1874. Plaintiff and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the New York DAPA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

1875. Specifically, Plaintiff and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

1876. Defendant's violations present a continuing risk to Plaintiff and the Class members, as well as to the general public. Defendant's unlawful acts and practices complained of herein affect the public interest.

1877. As a result of Defendant's violations of the New York DAPA, as alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the New York DAPA.

COUNT 46
Violation of the New York False Advertising Act
(N.Y. Gen. Bus. Law §350)
(Against GSK)

1878. New York Class Representative Benny Fazio incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 822-844 as though fully set forth herein.

1879. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the New York-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

1880. Defendant was and is engaged in "conduct of business, trade or commerce" within the meaning of N.Y. Gen. Bus. Law §350.

1881. The New York False Advertising Act ("New York FAA") prohibits "[f]alse advertising in the conduct of any business, trade or commerce." N.Y. Gen. Bus. Law §350. False advertising includes "advertising, including labeling, of a commodity . . . if such advertising is misleading in a material respect," taking into account "the extent to which the advertising fails to reveal facts material in the light of . . . representations [made] with respect to the commodity." N.Y. Gen. Bus. Law §350-a(1).

1882. Defendant caused to be made or disseminated through New York and the United States, through advertising, marketing, and other publications, statements that were untrue or misleading, and which were known, or which by exercise of reasonable care should have been known to Defendant, to be untrue and misleading to consumers, including Plaintiff and the Class members.

1883. In the course of its business, Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the New York FAA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

1884. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the New York FAA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

1885. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the New York FAA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

1891. Plaintiff and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the New York FAA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

1892. Specifically, Plaintiff and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

1893. Defendant's violations present a continuing risk to Plaintiff and the Class members, as well as to the general public. Defendant's unlawful acts and practices complained of herein affect the public interest.

1894. Defendant was provided notice of the issues raised in this Count and this Complaint by the FDA investigations, the numerous complaints filed against it, and the many individual notice letters sent by Plaintiff within a reasonable amount of time after the allegations of Ranitidine-Containing Products' defects became public. In addition, on May 21, 2020, Plaintiffs in MDL 2924 sent a notice letter to Defendant. Because Defendant failed to adequately remedy its unlawful conduct within the requisite time period, Plaintiff seek all damages and relief to which Plaintiff and the Class members are entitled.

1895. As a result of Defendant's violations of the New York FAA, as alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the New York FAA.

COUNT 47
Breach of Implied Warranty
(N.Y. U.C.C. Law §2-314)
(Against GSK)

1896. New York Class Representative Benny Fazio incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 822-844 as though fully set forth herein.

1897. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the New York-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

1898. At all relevant times, Defendant was a merchant with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products which were sold to New York Class Representative and members of the New York Class and was in the business of selling such products.

1899. Each Ranitidine-Containing Product sold by Defendant comes with an implied warranty that it will be merchantable and fit for the ordinary purpose for which it would be used, including impliedly warrantying on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products that the products were safe and/or did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

1900. Defendant breached its implied warranty of merchantability because its products cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

1902. Defendant had reason to know Plaintiff and each member of the Class's particular purpose in buying Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products and knew that Plaintiff and each member of the Class relied on Defendant's skill or judgment in furnishing appropriate goods that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

1903. Plaintiff and the Class did, in fact, rely on Defendant's skill and judgment in manufacturing Ranitidine-Containing Products that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

1904. Plaintiff and each member of the Class has had sufficient direct dealings with either Defendant or its agents (including distributors, dealers, and authorized sellers) to Defendant or its agents (including distributors, dealers, and authorized sellers) to establish privity of contract between Defendant, on the one hand, and Plaintiff and each member of the Class, on the other hand.

1905. Further, Plaintiff and each member of the Class were the intended third-party beneficiaries of the implied warranties made by Defendant to purchasers of its Ranitidine-Containing Products.

1906. Plaintiff and the members of the Class were injured as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability. Plaintiff and the members of the Class were damaged as a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability because, had they been aware of the unmerchantable condition of Ranitidine-Containing Products, they would not have purchased such drugs.

1907. As a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability, as alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order awarding compensatory and punitive damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the law.

COUNT 48
Unjust Enrichment
(New York Law)
(Against GSK)

1908. New York Class Representative Benny Fazio incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 822-844 as though fully set forth herein.

1909. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the New York-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

1910. Plaintiff and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

1912. Defendant readily accepted and retained these benefits from Plaintiff and Class members and knowingly benefitted from its unjust conduct – at Plaintiff's and the Class members' expense – by selling worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products that contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

1913. It is unjust and inequitable for the Defendant to retain these benefits because they were attained by misrepresenting and fraudulently concealing the true facts concerning the Ranitidine-Containing Products from Plaintiff and Class members, who would not have purchased the medications at all, but for the Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions.

1915. Plaintiff and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law, nor is there an express contract governing this dispute.

1916. Causes of Action Brought on Behalf of the North Carolina Class

COUNT 49
Violation of the North Carolina Unfair and Deceptive Trade Practices Act
(N.C. Gen. Stat. Ann. §75-1.1, et esq.)
(Against GSK)

1917. North Carolina Class Representatives Dennis Robbins and Julie Turner incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 822-844 as though fully set forth herein.

1918. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the North Carolina-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

1919. Defendant was and is engaged in "commerce" within the meaning of N.C. Gen. Stat. Ann. §75-1.1(b).

1920. The North Carolina Unfair and Deceptive Trade Practices Act ("North Carolina UDTPA") prohibits "[u]nfair methods of competition in or affecting commerce, and unfair or deceptive acts or practices in or affecting commerce," N.C. Gen. Stat. Ann. §75-1.1(a), and provides a private right of action for any person injured "by reason of any act or thing done by any other person, firm or corporation in violation of" the law. N.C. Gen. Stat. Ann. §75-16.

1921. In the course of its business, Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the North Carolina UDTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

1922. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the North Carolina UDTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

1923. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the North Carolina UDTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

Defendant engaged in one or more unfair or deceptive acts or practices in the conduct of trade or commerce, in violation of the North Carolina UDTPA.

1925. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding the inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiffs and the Class members in a uniform manner.

1927. Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices, including its misrepresentations, concealments, omissions, and suppressions of material facts, as alleged herein, had a tendency or capacity to mislead and create a false impression in consumers' minds, and were likely to and, in fact, did deceive reasonable consumers, including Plaintiffs and the Class members, about: (i) the inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products; (ii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products if used within the expiration dates; and (iii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products when ingesting all doses contained within particular packaging.

1929. Plaintiffs and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the North Carolina UDTPA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

1930. Specifically, Plaintiffs and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

1931. Defendant's violations present a continuing risk to Plaintiffs and the Class members, as well as to the general public. Defendant's unlawful acts and practices complained of herein affect the public interest.

1932. As a result of Defendant's violations of the North Carolina UDTPA, as alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the North Carolina UDTPA.

COUNT 50
Breach of Implied Warranty
(N.C. Gen. Stat. Ann. §25-2-314)
(Against GSK)

1933. North Carolina Class Representatives Dennis Robbins and Julie Turner incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 822-844 as though fully set forth herein.

1934. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the North Carolina-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

1936. Each Ranitidine-Containing Product sold by Defendant comes with an implied warranty that it will be merchantable and fit for the ordinary purpose for which it would be used, including impliedly warrantying on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products that the products were safe and/or did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

1937. Defendant breached its implied warranty of merchantability because its products cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

1938. Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products are not fit for their intended use – or any use – because they have dangerous propensities when used as intended or within their expiration dates on the labels, and their use carries an increased risk of developing cancer.

1939. Defendant had reason to know Plaintiffs and each member of the Class's particular purpose in buying Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products and knew that Plaintiffs and each member of the Class relied on Defendant's skill or judgment in furnishing appropriate goods that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

1940. Plaintiffs and the Class did, in fact, rely on Defendant's skill and judgment in manufacturing Ranitidine-Containing Products that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

1941. Plaintiffs and each member of the Class have had sufficient direct dealings with either Defendant or its agents (including distributors, dealers, and authorized sellers) to establish privity of contract between Defendant, on the one hand, and Plaintiffs and each member of the Class, on the other hand.

1942. Further, Plaintiffs and each member of the Class were the intended third-party beneficiaries of the implied warranties made by Defendant to purchasers of its Ranitidine-Containing Products.

1943. Plaintiffs and the members of the Class were injured as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability. Plaintiffs and the members of the Class were damaged as a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability because, had they been aware of the unmerchantable condition of Ranitidine-Containing Products, they would not have purchased such drugs.

1944. As a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability, as alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members seek an order awarding compensatory and punitive damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the law.

COUNT 51
Unjust Enrichment
(North Carolina Law)
(Against GSK)

1945. North Carolina Class Representatives Dennis Robbins and Julie Turner incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 822-844 as though fully set forth herein.

1946. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the North Carolina-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

1947. Plaintiff and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

1949. Defendant readily accepted and retained these benefits from Plaintiff and Class members and knowingly benefitted from its unjust conduct – at Plaintiff's and the Class members' expense – by selling worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products that contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

1950. It is unjust and inequitable for the Defendant to retain these benefits because they were attained by misrepresenting and fraudulently concealing the true facts concerning the Ranitidine-Containing Products from Plaintiff and Class members, who would not have purchased the medications at all, but for the Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions.

1952. Plaintiff and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law, nor is there an express contract governing this dispute.

18. Causes of Action on Behalf of the Ohio-GSK Classes

COUNT 52
Breach of Implied Warranty
(Ohio Rev. Code Ann. §1302.27)
(Against GSK)

1953. Ohio Class Representative Michael Galloway incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 822-844 as though fully set forth herein.

1954. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Ohio-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

1955. At all relevant times, Defendant was a merchant with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products which were sold to the Ohio Class Representative and members of the Ohio Class and was in the business of selling such products.

1956. Each Ranitidine-Containing Product sold by Defendant comes with an implied warranty that it will be merchantable and fit for the ordinary purpose for which it would be used, including impliedly warrantying on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products that the products were safe and/or did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

1957. Defendant breached its implied warranty of merchantability because its products cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

1959. Defendant had reason to know Plaintiff and each member of the Class's particular purpose in buying Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products and knew that Plaintiff and each member of the Class relied on Defendant's skill or judgment in furnishing appropriate goods that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

1960. Plaintiff and the Class did, in fact, rely on Defendant's skill and judgment in manufacturing Ranitidine-Containing Products that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

1961. Plaintiff and each member of the Class has had sufficient direct dealings with either Defendant or its agents (including distributors, dealers, and authorized sellers) to establish privity of contract between Defendant, on the one hand, and Plaintiff and each member of the Class, on the other hand.

1962. Further, Plaintiff and each member of the Class were the intended third-party beneficiaries of the implied warranties made by Defendant to purchasers of its Ranitidine-Containing Products.

1963. Plaintiff and the members of the Class were injured as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability. Plaintiff and the members of the Class were damaged as a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability because, had they been aware of the unmerchantable condition of Ranitidine-Containing Products, they would not have purchased such drugs.

1964. As a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability, as alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order awarding compensatory and punitive damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the law.

COUNT 53
Unjust Enrichment
(Ohio Law)
(Against GSK)

1965. Ohio Class Representative Michael Galloway incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 822-844 as though fully set forth herein.

1966. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Ohio-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

1967. Plaintiff and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

1968. In exchange for their payment of the purchase price of Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products, Plaintiff and Class members received the Ranitidine-Containing Products, which Defendant did not disclose contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed. Accordingly,

Plaintiff and Class members conferred a financial benefit on Defendants but did not receive their expected benefit therefrom.

1969. Defendant readily accepted and retained these benefits from Plaintiff and Class members and knowingly benefitted from its unjust conduct – at Plaintiff's and the Class members' expense – by selling worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products that contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

1970. It is unjust for the Defendant to retain these benefits because they were attained by misrepresenting and fraudulently concealing the true facts concerning the Ranitidine-Containing Products from Plaintiff and Class members, who would not have purchased the medications at all, but for the Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions.

1972. Plaintiffs and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law, nor is there an express contract governing this dispute.

19. Causes of Action on Behalf of the Oklahoma-GSK Classes

COUNT 54
Violation of the Oklahoma Consumer Protection Act
(Okla. Stat. tit. 15, §751, et esq.)
(Against GSK)

1973. Oklahoma Class Representative Ronda Lockett incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 822-844 as though fully set forth herein.

1974. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Oklahoma-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

1975. Defendant, Plaintiff, and the Class members are "[p]erson[s]" within the meaning of Okla. Stat. tit. 15, §752(1).

1976. Defendant was and is engaged in "[c]onsumer transaction[s]" within the meaning of Okla. Stat. tit. 15, §752(2).

1977. The Ranitidine-Containing Products are "[m]erchandise" within the meaning of Okla. Stat. tit. 15, §752(7).

1978. The Oklahoma Consumer Protection Act ("Oklahoma CPA") prohibits numerous unlawful acts, including misleading representations, false advertisements, and false statements. Okla. Stat. tit. 15, §753. The Oklahoma CPA defines "[d]eceptive trade practice" as "a misrepresentation, omission or other practice that has deceived or . . . mislead a person to the detriment of that person." Okla. Stat. tit. 15, §752(13). The Oklahoma CPA defines "[u]nfair trade practice" as "any practice which offends established public policy or if the practice is immoral, unethical, oppressive, unscrupulous, or substantially injurious to consumers." Okla. Stat. tit. 15, §752(14).

1979. The Oklahoma CPA makes unlawful specific acts, including:

(a) "[m]ak[ing] a false representation, knowingly or with reason to know, as to the characteristics, ingredients, uses, benefits, alterations, or quantities of the subject of a consumer transaction" (Okla. Stat. tit. 15, §753(5));

(b) "[r]epresent[ing], knowingly or with reason to know, that the subject of a consumer transaction is of a particular standard, style or model, if it is of another" (Okla. Stat. tit. 15, §753(7));

(c) "[a]dvertis[ing], knowingly or with reason to know, the subject of a consumer transaction with intent not to sell it as advertised" (Okla. Stat. tit. 15, §753(8)); and

(d) "[c]ommit[ing] an unfair or deceptive trade practice as defined in Section 752" (Okla. Stat. tit. 15, §753(20)).

1980. In the course of its business, Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Oklahoma CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

1981. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Oklahoma CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

1982. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Oklahoma CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

1983. Specifically, by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products, as detailed above, Defendant engaged in one or more unfair or deceptive acts or practices in the conduct of trade or commerce, in violation of the Oklahoma CPA, including:

(a) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products have characteristics, uses, benefits, and qualities which they do not have;

(b) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products are of a particular standard, quality, and grade when they are not;

(c) advertising the Ranitidine-Containing Products with the intent not to sell them as advertised; and

(d) engaging in any other unconscionable, false, misleading, or deceptive act or practice in the conduct of trade or commerce.

1986. Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices, including its misrepresentations, concealments, omissions, and suppressions of material facts, as alleged herein, had a tendency or capacity to mislead and create a false impression in consumers' minds, and were likely to and, in fact, did deceive reasonable consumers, including Plaintiff and the Class members, about: (i) the inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products; (ii)

the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products if used within the expiration dates; and (iii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products when ingesting all doses contained within particular packaging.

1987. The facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products that Defendant knowingly and intentionally misrepresented, omitted, concealed, and failed to disclose would be considered material by a reasonable consumer, and they were, in fact, material to Plaintiff and the Class members, who consider such facts to be important to their purchase decisions with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products.

1988. Plaintiff and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of Oklahoma CPA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

1989. Specifically, Plaintiff and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

1990. Defendant's violations present a continuing risk to Plaintiff and the Class members, as well as to the general public. Defendant's unlawful acts and practices complained of herein affect the public interest.

1991. As a result of Defendant's violations of the Oklahoma CPA, as alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the Oklahoma CPA.

COUNT 55
Breach of Implied Warranty
(Okla. Stat. tit. 12A §2-314)
(Against GSK)

1992. Oklahoma Class Representatives Ronda Lockett incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 822-844 as though fully set forth herein.

1993. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Oklahoma-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

1995. Each Ranitidine-Containing Product sold by Defendant comes with an implied warranty that it will be merchantable and fit for the ordinary purpose for which it would be used, including impliedly warrantying on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products that the products were safe and/or did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

1996. Defendant breached its implied warranty of merchantability because its products cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

1998. Defendant had reason to know Plaintiff and each member of the Class's particular purpose in buying Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products and knew that Plaintiff and each member of the Class relied on Defendant's skill or judgment in furnishing appropriate goods that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

1999. Plaintiff and the Class did, in fact, rely on Defendant's skill and judgment in manufacturing Ranitidine-Containing Products that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

2000. Plaintiff and each member of the Class have had sufficient direct dealings with either Defendant or its agents (including distributors, dealers, and authorized sellers) to establish privity of contract between Defendant, on the one hand, and Plaintiff and each member of the Class, on the other hand.

2001. Further, Plaintiff and each member of the Class were the intended third-party beneficiaries of the implied warranties made by Defendant to purchasers of its Ranitidine-Containing Products.

2002. Plaintiff and the members of the Class were injured as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability. Plaintiff and the members of the Class were damaged as a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability because, had they been aware of the unmerchantable condition of Ranitidine-Containing Products, they would not have purchased such drugs.

2003. As a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability, as alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order awarding compensatory and punitive damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the law.

COUNT 56
Unjust Enrichment
(Oklahoma Law)
(Against GSK)

2004. Oklahoma Class Representative Ronda Lockett incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 822-844 as though fully set forth herein.

2005. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Oklahoma-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

2006. Plaintiff and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

2008. Defendant readily accepted and retained these benefits from Plaintiff and Class members and was knowingly enriched by its unjust conduct – at Plaintiff's and the Class members' expense – by selling worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products that contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

2009. It is unjust for the Defendant to retain these benefits because they were attained by misrepresenting and fraudulently concealing the true facts concerning the Ranitidine-Containing Products from Plaintiff and Class members, who would not have purchased the medications at all, but for the Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions.

2011. Plaintiffs and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law.

20. Causes of Action on Behalf of the Pennsylvania-GSK Classes

COUNT 57
Violation of the Pennsylvania Unfair Trade Practices and Consumer Protection Law
(73 Pa. C.S. §201-1, et esq.)
(Against GSK)

2012. Pennsylvania Class Representatives Felicia Ball and Nicholas Hazlett incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 822-844 as though fully set forth herein.

2013. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Pennsylvania-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

2014. Defendant, Plaintiffs, and the Class members are "[p]erson[s]" within the meaning of 73 Pa. C.S. §201-2(2).

2015. Plaintiff and the Class members purchased the Ranitidine-Containing Products "primarily for personal, family or household purposes" within the meaning of 73 Pa. C.S. §201-9.2(a).

2016. Defendant was and is engaged in "[t]rade" or "commerce" within the meaning of 73 Pa. C.S. §201-2(3).

2017. The Pennsylvania Unfair Trade Practices and Consumer Protection Law ("Pennsylvania CPL") prohibits "unfair or deceptive acts or practices in the conduct of any trade or commerce." 73 Pa. C.S. §201-3.

2018. The Pennsylvania CPL makes unlawful specific acts, including:

(a) "[r]epresenting that goods or services have sponsorship, approval, characteristics, ingredients, uses, benefits or quantities that they do not have" (73 Pa. C.S. §201-2(4)(v));

(c) "[a]dvertising goods or services with intent not to sell them as advertised" (73 Pa. C.S. §201-2(4)(ix)); and

(d) "[e]ngaging in any other fraudulent or deceptive conduct which creates a likelihood of confusion or of misunderstanding" (73 Pa. C.S. §201-2(4)(xxi)).

2019. In the course of its business, Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Pennsylvania CPL by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

2020. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Pennsylvania CPL by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

2021. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Pennsylvania CPL by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

(a) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products have characteristics, uses, benefits, and qualities which they do not have;

(b) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products are of a particular standard, quality, and grade when they are not;

(c) advertising the Ranitidine-Containing Products with the intent not to sell them as advertised; and

(d) engaging in any other fraudulent or deceptive conduct which creates a likelihood of confusion or of misunderstanding.

2023. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding the inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiffs and the Class members in a uniform manner.

2025. Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices, including its misrepresentations, concealments, omissions, and suppressions of material facts, as alleged herein, had a tendency or capacity to mislead and create a false impression in consumers' minds, and were likely to and, in fact, did deceive reasonable consumers, including Plaintiffs and the Class members, about: (i) the inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products; (ii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products if used within the expiration dates; and (iii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products when ingesting all doses contained within particular packaging.

2027. Plaintiffs and the Class members relied on Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, and concealments with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products by purchasing and continuing to purchase Ranitidine-Containing Products after Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, and concealments were made.

2028. Plaintiffs and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the Pennsylvania CPL because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

2029. Specifically, Plaintiffs and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

2030. Defendant's violations present a continuing risk to Plaintiffs and the Class members, as well as to the general public. Defendant's unlawful acts and practices complained of herein affect the public interest.

2031. As a result of Defendant's violations of the Pennsylvania CPL, as alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the Pennsylvania CPL.

Breach of Implied Warranty
(13 Pa. Cons. Stat. §2314)
(Against GSK)

2032. Pennsylvania Class Representatives Felicia Ball and Nicholas Hazlett incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 822-844 as though fully set forth herein.

2033. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Pennsylvania-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

2035. Each Ranitidine-Containing Product sold by Defendant comes with an implied warranty that it will be merchantable and fit for the ordinary purpose for which it would be used, including impliedly warrantying on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products that the products were safe and/or did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

2040. Plaintiffs and each member of the Class have had sufficient direct dealings with either Defendant or its agents (including distributors, dealers, and authorized sellers) to Defendant or its agents (including distributors, dealers, and authorized sellers) to establish privity of contract between Defendant, on the one hand, and Plaintiffs and each member of the Class, on the other hand.

2041. Further, Plaintiffs and each member of the Class were the intended third-party beneficiaries of the implied warranties made by Defendant to purchasers of its Ranitidine-Containing Products.

COUNT 59
Unjust Enrichment
(Pennsylvania Law)
(Against GSK)

2044. Pennsylvania Class Representatives Felicia Ball and Nicholas Hazlett incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 822-844 as though fully set forth herein.

2045. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Pennsylvania-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

Ranitidine-Containing Products from Plaintiffs and Class members, who would not have purchased the medications at all, but for the Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions.

21. Causes of Action on Behalf of the South Carolina-GSK Classes

COUNT 60
Violation of the South Carolina Unfair Trade Practices Act
(S.C. Code Ann. §39-5-10, et esq.)
(Against GSK)

2053. South Carolina Class Representative Jeffery Gunwall incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 822-844 as though fully set forth herein.

2054. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the South Carolina-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

2055. Defendant, Plaintiff, and the Class members are "[p]erson[s]" within the meaning of S.C. Code Ann. §39-5-10(a).

2056. Defendant was and is engaged in "[t]rade" or "commerce" within the meaning of S.C. Code Ann. §39-5-10(b).

2060. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the South Carolina UTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

2066. Plaintiff and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the South Carolina UTPA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

2067. Specifically, Plaintiff and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

2069. As a result of Defendant's violations of the South Carolina UTPA, as alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the South Carolina UTPA.

COUNT 61
Breach of Implied Warranty
(S.C. Code Ann. §36-2-314)
(Against GSK)

2070. South Carolina Class Representative Jeffrey Gunwall incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 822-844 as though fully set forth herein.

2071. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the South Carolina-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

2073. Each Ranitidine-Containing Product sold by Defendant comes with an implied warranty that it will be merchantable and fit for the ordinary purpose for which it would be used, including impliedly warrantying on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products that the products were safe and/or did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

2076. Defendant had reason to know Plaintiff and each member of the Class's particular purpose in buying Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products and knew that Plaintiff and each member of the Class relied on Defendant's skill or judgment in furnishing appropriate goods that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

2079. Further, Plaintiff and each member of the Class were the intended third-party beneficiaries of the implied warranties made by Defendant to purchasers of its Ranitidine-Containing Products.

2080. Plaintiff and the members of the Class were injured as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability. Plaintiff and the members of the Class were damaged as a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability because, had they been aware of the unmerchantable condition of Ranitidine-Containing Products, they would not have purchased such drugs.

COUNT 62
Unjust Enrichment
(South Carolina Law)
(Against GSK)

2082. South Carolina Class Representative Jeffrey Gunwall incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 822-844 as though fully set forth herein.

2083. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the South Carolina-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

which Defendant did not disclose contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed. Accordingly, Plaintiff and Class members conferred a financial benefit on Defendants but did not receive their expected benefit therefrom.

2089. Plaintiff and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law.

22. Causes of Action on Behalf of the Tennessee-GSK Classes

COUNT 63
Violation of the Tennessee Consumer Protection Act of 1977
(Tenn. Code Ann. §47-18-101, et esq.)
(Against GSK)

2090. Tennessee Class Representatives Lisa Lyle, Rodriquze Hampton Jr., Dale Hunter, and Andy Green Jr. incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 822-844 as though fully set forth herein.

2091. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Tennessee-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

2092. Defendant, Plaintiffs, and the Class members are "[p]erson[s]" within the meaning of Tenn. Code Ann. §47-18-103(14).

2093. Plaintiffs and the Class members are "[c]onsumer[s]" within the meaning of Tenn. Code Ann. §47-18-103(3).

2094. The Ranitidine-Containing Products are "[g]oods" within the meaning of Tenn. Code Ann. §47-18-103(8).

2095. Defendant was and is engaged in "[t]rade" or "commerce" or "consumer transaction[s]" within the meaning of Tenn. Code Ann. §47-18-103(20).

2096. The Tennessee Consumer Protection Act of 1977 ("Tennessee CPA") prohibits "[u]nfair or deceptive acts or practices affecting the conduct of any trade or commerce." Tenn. Code Ann. §47-18-104(a).

2097. The Tennessee CPA makes unlawful specific acts, including:

(a) "[r]epresenting that goods or services have sponsorship, approval, characteristics, ingredients, uses, benefits, or quantities that they do not have" (Tenn. Code Ann. §47-18-104(b)(5));

(b) "[r]epresenting that goods or services are of a particular standard, quality or grade, or that goods are of a particular style or model, if they are of another" (Tenn. Code Ann. §47-18-104(b)(7)); and

(c) "[a]dvertising goods or services with intent not to sell them as advertised" (Tenn. Code Ann. §47-18-104(b)(9)).

2098. In the course of its business, Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Tennessee CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

2099. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Tennessee CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

2100. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Tennessee CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

Defendant engaged in one or more unfair or deceptive acts or practices in the conduct of trade or commerce, in violation of the Tennessee CPA, including:

(a) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products have characteristics, uses, benefits, and qualities which they do not have;

(b) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products are of a particular standard, quality, and grade when they are not; and

(c) advertising the Ranitidine-Containing Products with the intent not to sell them as advertised.

2102. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding the inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiffs and the Class members in a uniform manner.

members, who consider such facts to be important to their purchase decisions with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products.

2106. Plaintiffs and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the Tennessee CPA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

2107. Specifically, Plaintiffs and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

2109. As a result of Defendant's violations of the Tennessee CPA, as alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the Tennessee CPA.

COUNT 64
Breach of Implied Warranty
(Tenn. Code Ann. §47-2-314)
(Against GSK)

2110. Tennessee Class Representatives Lisa Lyle, Rodriquze Hampton Jr., Dale Hunter, and Andy Green Jr. incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 822-844 as though fully set forth herein.

2111. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Tennessee-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

2113. Each Ranitidine-Containing Product sold by Defendant comes with an implied warranty that it will be merchantable and fit for the ordinary purpose for which it would be used, including impliedly warrantying on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products that the products were safe and/or did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

2116. Defendant had reason to know Plaintiffs and each member of the Class's particular purpose in buying Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products and knew that Plaintiffs and each member of the Class relied on Defendant's skill or judgment in furnishing appropriate goods that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

2121. As a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability, as alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members seek an order awarding compensatory and punitive damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the law.

COUNT 65
Unjust Enrichment
(Tennessee Law)
(Against GSK)

2122. Tennessee Class Representatives Lisa Lyle, Rodriquze Hampton Jr., Dale Hunter, and Andy Green Jr. incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 822-844 as though fully set forth herein.

2123. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Tennessee-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

2124. Plaintiffs and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

2126. Defendant readily accepted and retained these benefits from Plaintiffs and Class members and knowingly benefitted from its unjust conduct – at Plaintiffs' and the Class members' expense – by selling worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products that contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

2129. There is no existing, enforceable contract governing this dispute.

2130. Plaintiffs and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law.

23. Causes of Action on Behalf of the Texas-GSK Classes

COUNT 66
Violation of the Texas Deceptive Trade Practices-Consumer Protection Act
(Tex. Bus. & Com. Code Ann. §17.41, et esq.)
(Against GSK)

2131. Texas Class Representatives Gregory Alan Wayland and Tammy Smith incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 822-844 as though fully set forth herein.

2132. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Texas-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

2134. Plaintiffs and the Class members are "[c]onsumer[s]" within the meaning of Tex. Bus. & Com. Code Ann. §17.45(4).

2135. The Ranitidine-Containing Products are "[g]oods" within the meaning of Tex. Bus. & Com. Code Ann. §17.45(1).

2136. Defendant was and is engaged in "[t]rade" or "commerce" within the meaning of Tex. Bus. & Com. Code Ann. §17.45(6).

2137. The Texas Deceptive Trade Practices-Consumer Protection Act ("Texas DTPA") prohibits "[f]alse, misleading, or deceptive acts or practices in the conduct of any trade or commerce," Tex. Bus. & Com. Code Ann. §17.46(a), and an "[u]nconscionable action or course of action," which means "an act or practice which, to a consumer's detriment, takes advantage of the lack of knowledge, ability, experience, or capacity of the consumer to a grossly unfair degree." Tex. Bus. & Com. Code Ann. §§17.45(5) and 17.50(a)(3).

2138. The Texas DTPA makes unlawful specific acts, including:

(a) "representing that goods or services have sponsorship, approval, characteristics, ingredients, uses, benefits, or quantities that they do not have" (Tex. Bus. & Com. Code Ann. §17.46(5));

(b) "representing that goods or services are of a particular standard, quality, or grade, or that goods are of a particular style or model, if they are of another" (Tex. Bus. & Com. Code Ann. §17.46(7)); and

(c) "advertising goods or services with intent not to sell them as advertised" (Tex. Bus. & Com. Code Ann. §17.46(9)).

2139. In the course of its business, Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Texas DTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

2140. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Texas DTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

2141. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Texas DTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

(a) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products have characteristics, uses, benefits, and qualities which they do not have;

(b) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products are of a particular standard, quality, and grade when they are not; and

(c) advertising the Ranitidine-Containing Products with the intent not to sell them as advertised.

2148. Plaintiffs and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the Texas DTPA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

2149. Specifically, Plaintiffs and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

2150. Defendant's violations present a continuing risk to Plaintiffs and the Class members, as well as to the general public. Defendant's unlawful acts and practices complained of herein affect the public interest.

2152. As a result of Defendant's violations of the Texas DTPA, as alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the Texas DTPA.

COUNT 67
Breach of Implied Warranty
(Tex. Bus. & Com. Code Ann. §2-314)
(Against GSK)

2153. Texas Class Representatives Gregory Alan Wayland and Tammy Smith incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 822-844 as though fully set forth herein.

2154. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Texas-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

2156. Each Ranitidine-Containing Product sold by Defendant comes with an implied warranty that it will be merchantable and fit for the ordinary purpose for which it would be used, including impliedly warrantying on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products that the products were safe and/or did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

2159. Defendant had reason to know Plaintiffs and each member of the Class's particular purpose in buying Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products and knew that Plaintiffs and each member of the Class relied on Defendant's skill or judgment in furnishing appropriate goods that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

2164. As a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability, as alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members seek an order awarding compensatory and punitive damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the law.

COUNT 68
Unjust Enrichment
(Texas Law)
(Against GSK)

2165. Texas Class Representatives Gregory Alan Wayland and Tammy Smith incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 822-844 as though fully set forth herein.

2166. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Texas-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

2167. Plaintiffs and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

2170. It is unjust and unconscionable for the Defendant to retain these wrongly secured benefits because they were attained by misrepresenting and fraudulently concealing the true facts concerning the Ranitidine-Containing Products from Plaintiffs and Class members, who would not have purchased the medications at all, but for the Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions.

2172. Plaintiffs and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law, nor is there an express contract governing this dispute.

24. Causes of Action on Behalf of the Wisconsin-GSK Classes

COUNT 69
Violation of the Wisconsin Deceptive Trade Practices Act
(Wis. Stat. Ann. §100.18, et esq.)
(Against GSK)

2173. Wisconsin Class Representative Wendy Quezaire incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 822-844 as though fully set forth herein.

2174. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Wisconsin-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

2175. Defendant is a "person, firm, corporation or association" within the meaning of Wis. Stat. Ann. §100.18(1).

2176. Plaintiff and the Class members are members of "the public" within the meaning of Wis. Stat. Ann. §100.18(1).

2177. The Ranitidine-Containing Products are "merchandise" within the meaning of Wis. Stat. Ann. §100.18(1).

2178. The Wisconsin Deceptive Trade Practices Act ("Wisconsin DTPA") prohibits any "assertion, representation or statement of fact which is untrue, deceptive or misleading." Wis. Stat. Ann. §100.18(1).

2179. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Wisconsin DTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

2180. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Wisconsin DTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

2181. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Wisconsin DTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

material by a reasonable consumer, and they were, in fact, material to Plaintiff and the Class members, who consider such facts to be important to their purchase decisions with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products.

2187. Plaintiff and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the Wisconsin DTPA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

2188. Specifically, Plaintiff and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

2190. As a result of Defendant's violations of the Wisconsin DTPA, as alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the Wisconsin DTPA.

COUNT 70
Breach of Implied Warranty
(Wis. Stat. Ann. §402.314)
(Against GSK)

2191. Wisconsin Class Representative Wendy Quezaire incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 822-844 as though fully set forth herein.

2192. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Wisconsin-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

2194. Each Ranitidine-Containing Product sold by Defendant comes with an implied warranty that it will be merchantable and fit for the ordinary purpose for which it would be used, including impliedly warrantying on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products that the products were safe and/or did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

2197. Defendant had reason to know Plaintiff and each member of the Class's particular purpose in buying Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products and knew that Plaintiff and each member of the Class relied on Defendant's skill or judgment in furnishing appropriate goods that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

2200. Further, Plaintiff and each member of the Class were the intended third-party beneficiaries of the implied warranties made by Defendant to purchasers of its Ranitidine-Containing Products.

2201. Plaintiff and the members of the Class were injured as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability. Plaintiff and the members of the Class were damaged as a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability because, had they been aware of the unmerchantable condition of Ranitidine-Containing Products, they would not have purchased such drugs.

2202. As a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability, as alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order awarding compensatory and punitive damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the law.

COUNT 71
Unjust Enrichment
(Wisconsin Law)
(Against GSK)

2203. Wisconsin Class Representative Wendy Quezaire incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 822-844 as though fully set forth herein.

2204. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Wisconsin-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

2205. Plaintiff and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

2207. Defendant readily accepted and retained these benefits from Plaintiff and Class members and knowingly benefitted from its unjust conduct – at Plaintiff's and the Class members' expense – by selling worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products that contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

2210. There is no express contract governing this dispute.

2211. Plaintiff and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law.

IX. CAUSES OF ACTION AGAINST BRAND OTC MANUFACTURER DEFENDANTS

A. Causes of Actions Against GSK

2212. For the purposes of the subsequent causes of action against Defendant GSK, Plaintiffs are incorporating the following allegations by reference: paragraphs 9-13 (corporate information); 273-277 (jurisdiction and venue); 279-303 (development of brand Zantac); 317-361 (knowledge that NDMA is carcinogenic); 362-382 (discovery by regulatory agencies that ranitidine contained NDMA); 383-386 (transformation of ranitidine into NDMA); 387-415, 445-456 (knowledge that ranitidine had the potential to transform into NDMA); 416-422 (NDMA formation in organs of the human body); 423-435 (NDMA formation by exposure to heat, moisture and/or time); 436-442 (link between ranitidine exposure and cancer); 462-469 (requirement to notify the FDA of presence of NDMA in ranitidine); 470-474 (compliance with current Good Manufacturing Practices); 868-894 (misrepresentations or omissions of material fact in labeling); 895-911 (misrepresentations or omissions of material fact in packaging); and 475-483 (equitable tolling).

1. Causes of Action on Behalf of the Arkansas-GSK Classes

COUNT 72
Violation of the Arkansas Deceptive Trade Practices Act
(Ark. Code Ann. §4-88-101, et seq.)
(Against GSK)

2214. Arkansas Class Representative Andy Green Jr. incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

2215. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Arkansas-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK with respect to OTC Zantac purchases (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

2216. Defendant, Plaintiff, and the Class members are "[p]erson[s]" within the meaning of Ark. Code Ann. §4-88-102(5).

2217. The Ranitidine-Containing Products are "[g]oods" within the meaning of Ark. Code Ann. §4-88-102(4).

2218. The Arkansas Deceptive Trade Practices Act ("Arkansas DTPA") prohibits "[d]eceptive and unconscionable trade practices." Ark. Code Ann. §4-88-107(a).

2219. The Arkansas DTPA makes unlawful specific acts, including:

(a) "[k]nowingly making a false representation as to the characteristics, ingredients, uses, benefits, alterations, source, sponsorship, approval, or certification of goods or services or as to whether goods are original or new or of a particular standard, quality, grade, style, or model" (Ark. Code Ann. §4-88-107(a)(1));

(b) "[a]dvertising the goods or services with the intent not to sell them as advertised" (Ark. Code Ann. §4-88-107(a)(3)); and

(c) "[e]ngaging in any other unconscionable, false, or deceptive act or practice in business, commerce, or trade" (Ark. Code Ann. §4-88-107(a)(10)).

2220. The Arkansas DTPA also prohibits the following when utilized in connection with the sale or advertisement of any goods: "(1) The act, use, or employment by any person of any deception, fraud, or false pretense; [or] (2) [t]he concealment, suppression, or omission of any material fact with intent that others rely upon the concealment, suppression, or omission . . . ." Ark. Code Ann. §4-88-108(a).

2221. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Arkansas DTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

2222. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Arkansas DTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

2223. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Arkansas DTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

(a) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products have characteristics, uses, benefits, and qualities which they do not have;

(b) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products are of a particular standard, quality, and grade when they are not;

(c) advertising the Ranitidine-Containing Products with the intent not to sell them as advertised; and

(d) engaging in any other unconscionable, false, misleading, or deceptive act or practice in the conduct of trade or commerce.

2225. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding the inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiffs and the Class members in a uniform manner.

2227. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding package size, and resulting misrepresentations and omissions concerning appropriate length of ingestion, of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiff and the Class members in a uniform manner.

about: (i) the inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products; (ii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products if used within the expiration dates; and (iii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products when ingesting all doses contained within particular packaging.

2230. Plaintiff and the Class members relied on Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, and concealments with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products by purchasing and continuing to purchase Ranitidine-Containing Products after Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, and concealments were made.

2231. Plaintiff and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of Arkansas DTPA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

2232. Specifically, Plaintiff and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

2234. As a result of Defendant's violations of the Arkansas DTPA, as alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the Arkansas DTPA.

COUNT 73
Breach of Implied Warranty
(Ark. Code Ann. §4-2-314)
(Against GSK)

2235. Arkansas Class Representative Andy Green Jr. incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

2236. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Arkansas-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK with respect to OTC Zantac purchases (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

2238. Each Ranitidine-Containing Product sold by Defendant comes with an implied warranty that it will be merchantable and fit for the ordinary purpose for which it would be used, including impliedly warrantying on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products that the products were safe and/or did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

2241. Defendant had reason to know Plaintiff and each member of the Class's particular purpose in buying Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products and knew that Plaintiff and each member of the Class relied on Defendant's skill or judgment in furnishing appropriate goods that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

2242. Plaintiff and the Class did, in fact, rely on Defendant's skill and judgment in manufacturing Ranitidine-Containing Products that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

2244. Further, Plaintiff and each member of the Class were the intended third-party beneficiaries of the implied warranties made by Defendant to purchasers of its Ranitidine-Containing Products.

2245. Plaintiff and the members of the Class were injured as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability. Plaintiff and the members of the Class were damaged as a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability because, had they been aware of the unmerchantable condition of Ranitidine-Containing Products, they would not have purchased such drugs.

COUNT 74
Unjust Enrichment
(Arkansas Law)
(Against GSK)

2247. Arkansas Class Representative Andy Green Jr. incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

2248. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Arkansas-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK with respect to OTC Zantac purchases (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

2249. Plaintiff and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

2250. In exchange for their payment of the purchase price of Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products, Plaintiff and Class members received the Ranitidine-Containing Products, which Defendant did not disclose contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed. Accordingly,

Plaintiff and Class members conferred a financial benefit on Defendants but did not receive their expected benefit therefrom.

2254. There is no valid, legal, and binding contract governing this dispute.

2255. Plaintiff and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law.

2. Causes of Action on Behalf of the California-GSK Classes

COUNT 75
Violation of the California Unfair Competition Law
(Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code §17200, et seq.)
(Against GSK)

2256. California Class Representative Richard O'Brien incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

2257. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the California-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK with respect to OTC Zantac purchases (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

2258. Defendant, Plaintiff, and the Class members are "persons" within the meaning of Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code §17201.

2259. Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code §17200 ("California UCL") prohibits acts of "unfair competition," including any "unlawful, unfair or fraudulent business act or practice" and "unfair, deceptive, untrue or misleading advertising."

2260. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the California UCL by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

2262. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the California UCL by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiff and the Class members in a uniform manner.

2269. Moreover, Defendant engaged in "unlawful" business acts or practices by violating both federal and California laws, including: the federal RICO statute, 18 U.S.C. §1962(c)-(d); adulteration and misbranding provisions under the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act, 21 U.S.C. §§331(a), (c), (g), 351(a)(2)(B), (b), (d), 352(a)(1), (c), (e)(1)(A)(ii), (f)-(g), (i)(2)-(3), (j), (n), (p); Good Manufacturing Practices, 21 C.F.R. 210.1(a), 211.142(b); adulteration and misbranding provisions under the Sherman Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Laws, Cal. Health & Safety Code §§111260, 111280, 111290, 111295, 111305, 111330, 111345, 111355(a)(3), 111360(b), 111375, 111380, 111395(a)-(b), 111400, 111440, 111445, 111450; the Consumer Legal Remedies

Act, Cal. Civ. Code §1750; and the California FAL, Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code §17500, as alleged herein.

2270. Defendant's conduct also consitutes "unfair" business acts or practies. Under the balancing test, the determination of whether a business practice is "unfair" involves examining the practice's impact on its alleged victim, balanced against the reasons, justifications, and motives of the alleged wrongdoer.

2271. Additionally, Defendant's conduct was "unfair" under the tethering test, in that it violated the federal RICO statute, 18 U.S.C. §1962(c)-(d); adulteration and misbranding provisions under the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act, 21 U.S.C. §§331(a), (c), (g), 351(a)(2)(B), (b), (d), 352(a)(1), (c), (e)(1)(A)(ii), (f)-(g), (i)(2)-(3), (j), (n), (p); Good Manufacturing Practices, 21 C.F.R. 210.1(a), 211.142(b); adulteration and misbranding provisions under the Sherman Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Laws, Cal. Health & Safety Code §§111260, 111280, 111290, 111295, 111305, 111330, 111345, 111355(a)(3), 111360(b), 111375, 111380, 111395(a)-(b), 111400, 111440, 111445, 111450; the Consumer Legal Remedies Act, see Cal. Civ. Code §1760; and the California FAL, Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code §17500, which reflect the United States' and California's policy of protecting consumers against unfair and deceptive business practices and adulterated and misbranded drugs.

2272. Plaintiff and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the California UCL because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

2273. Specifically, Plaintiff and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

2274. Defendant's violations present a continuing risk to Plaintiff and the Class members, as well as to the general public. Defendant's unlawful acts and practices complained of herein affect the public interest.

2275. Pursuant to Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code §§17200 and 17203, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order providing restitution relating to the above-described unfair business acts or practices, and injunctive and declaratory relief as may be appropriate.

COUNT 76
Violation of the California False Advertising Law
(Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code §17500, et seq.)
(Against GSK)

2276. California Class Representatives Richard O'Brien incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

2277. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the California-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK with respect to OTC Zantac purchases (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

2278. Defendant, Plaintiff, and the Class members are "persons" within the meaning of Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code §17506.

2279. The California False Advertising Law ("California FAL") prohibits "any person, . . . corporation . . . or any employee thereof with intent directly or indirectly to dispose of real or personal property . . . or to induce the public to enter into any obligation relating thereto, to make or disseminate or cause to be made or disseminated . . . before the public in this state or from this state before the public in any state, in any newspaper or other publication, or any advertising device, . . . or in any other manner or means whatever, including over the internet, any statement . . . which is untrue or misleading, and which is known, or which by the exercise of reasonable care should be known, to be untrue or misleading." Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code §17500.

2280. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the California FAL by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

2282. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the California FAL by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

(a) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products have characteristics, uses, benefits, and qualities which they do not have;

(b) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products are of a particular standard, quality, and grade when they are not;

(c) advertising the Ranitidine-Containing Products with the intent not to sell them as advertised; and

(d) engaging in any other unconscionable, false, misleading, or deceptive act or practice in the conduct of trade or commerce.

2286. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding package size, and resulting misrepresentations and omissions concerning appropriate length of ingestion, of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiff and the Class members in a uniform manner.

inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products; (ii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products if used within the expiration dates; and (iii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products when ingesting all doses contained within particular packaging.

2288. The facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products that Defendant knowingly and intentionally misrepresented, omitted, concealed, and failed to disclose would be considered material by a reasonable consumer, and they were, in fact, material to Plaintiff and the Class members, who consider such facts to be important to their purchase decisions with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products.

2289. Plaintiff and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the California FAL because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

2290. Specifically, Plaintiff and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

2292. As a result of Defendant's violations of the California FAL, as alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order providing restitution and disgorgement of all profits relating to the above-described business acts or practices, and other appropriate relief, including injunctive and declaratory relief as may be appropriate under the California FAL.

COUNT 77
Violation of the California Consumers Legal Remedies Act
(Cal. Civ. Code §1750, et seq.)
(Against GSK)

2293. California Class Representatives Richard O'Brien incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

2294. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the California-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK with respect to OTC Zantac purchases (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

2295. Defendant, Plaintiff, and the Class members are "[p]erson[s]" within the meaning of Cal. Civ. Code §1761(c).

2296. Plaintiff and the Class members are "[c]onsumer[s]" within the meaning of Cal. Civ. Code §1761(d).

2297. The Ranitidine-Containing Products are "[g]oods" within the meaning of Cal. Civ. Code §1761(a).

2298. The California Consumers Legal Remedies Act ("California CLRA") prohibits "unfair methods of competition and unfair or deceptive acts or practices undertaken by any person in a transaction intended to result or that results in the sale or lease of goods or services to any consumer." Cal. Civ. Code §1770(a).

2299. The California CLRA makes unlawful specific acts, including:

(a) "[r]epresenting that goods or services have sponsorship, approval, characteristics, ingredients, uses, benefits, or quantities that they do not have" (Cal. Civ. Code §1770(a)(5));

(b) "[r]epresenting that goods or services are of a particular standard, quality, or grade, or that goods are of a particular style or model, if they are of another" (Cal. Civ. Code §1770(a)(7));

(c) "[a]dvertising goods or services with intent not to sell them as advertised" (Cal. Civ. Code §1770(a)(9)); and

(d) "[r]epresenting that the subject of a transaction has been supplied in accordance with a previous representation when it has not" (Cal. Civ. Code §1770(a)(16)).

2300. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the California CLRA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

2301. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the California CLRA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

2302. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the California CLRA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

2303. Specifically, by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products, as detailed above, Defendant engaged in one or more unfair or deceptive acts or practices in the conduct of trade or commerce, in violation of the California CLRA, including:

(a) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products have characteristics, uses, benefits, and qualities which they do not have;

(b) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products are of a particular standard, quality, and grade when they are not;

(c) advertising the Ranitidine-Containing Products with the intent not to sell them as advertised; and

(d) engaging in any other unconscionable, false, misleading, or deceptive act or practice in the conduct of trade or commerce.

2306. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding package size, and resulting misrepresentations and omissions concerning appropriate length of ingestion, of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiff and the Class members in a uniform manner.

inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products; (ii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products if used within the expiration dates; and (iii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products when ingesting all doses contained within particular packaging.

2309. Plaintiff and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the California CLRA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products, as set forth above.

2310. Specifically, Plaintiff and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

2311. Defendant's violations present a continuing risk to Plaintiff and the Class members, as well as to the general public. Defendant's unlawful acts and practices complained of herein affect the public interest.

2312. Defendant was provided notice of the issues raised in this Count and this Complaint by the FDA investigations, the numerous complaints filed against it, and the many individual notice letters sent by various Plaintiff within a reasonable amount of time after the allegations of Ranitidine-Containing Products' defects became public. In addition, on May 21, 2020, Plaintiffs in MDL 2924 sent a notice letter pursuant to Cal. Civ. Code §1782 to Defendant. Because Defendant failed to adequately remedy its unlawful conduct within the requisite time period, Plaintiffs seek all damages and relief to which Plaintiff and the Class members are entitled.

2313. Pursuant to Cal. Civ. Code §1780(a), Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding damages and any other just and proper relief available under the California CLRA. Under Cal. Civ. Code §1780(b), Plaintiffs seek an additional award against Defendant of up to $5,000 for each Class member who qualifies as a "senior citizen" or "disabled person" under the California CLRA. Defendant knew or should have known that its conduct was directed to one or more Class members who are senior citizens or disabled persons. Defendant's conduct caused one or more of these senior citizens or disabled persons to suffer a substantial loss of property set aside for retirement or for personal or family care and maintenance, or assets essential to the health or welfare of the senior citizen or disabled person. One or more Class members who are senior citizens or disabled persons are substantially more vulnerable to Defendant's conduct because of age, poor health or infirmity, impaired understanding, restricted mobility, or disability, and each of them suffered substantial economic damage resulting from Defendant's conduct.

COUNT 78
Breach of Implied Warranty
(Cal. Com. Code §2314)
(Against GSK)

2314. California Class Representatives Richard O'Brien incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

2315. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the California-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK with respect to OTC Zantac purchases (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

2316. At all relevant times, Defendant was a merchant with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products which were sold to the California Class Representatives and members of the California Class and was in the business of selling such products.

2317. Each Ranitidine-Containing Product sold by Defendant comes with an implied warranty that it will be merchantable and fit for the ordinary purpose for which it would be used, including impliedly warrantying on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products that the products were safe and/or did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

2318. Defendant breached its implied warranty of merchantability because its products cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

2320. Defendant had reason to know Plaintiff and each member of the Class's particular purpose in buying Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products and knew that Plaintiff and each member of the Class relied on Defendant's skill or judgment in furnishing appropriate goods that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

2322. Plaintiff and each member of the Class have had sufficient direct dealings with either Defendant or its agents (including distributors, dealers, and authorized sellers) to establish privity of contract between Defendant, on the one hand, and Plaintiff and each member of the Class, on the other hand.

2323. Further, Plaintiff and each member of the Class were the intended third-party beneficiaries of the implied warranties made by Defendant to purchasers of its Ranitidine-Containing Products.

2325. As a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability, as alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order awarding compensatory and punitive damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the law.

Unjust Enrichment or Quasi-Contract
(California Law)
(Against GSK)

2326. California Class Representatives Richard O'Brien incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

2327. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the California-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK with respect to OTC Zantac purchases (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

2328. Plaintiff and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

2331. It is unjust and inequitable for the Defendant to retain these benefits because they were attained by misrepresenting and fraudulently concealing the true facts concerning the Ranitidine-Containing Products from Plaintiff and Class members, who would not have purchased the medications at all, but for the Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions.

2333. Plaintiff and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law.

3. Causes of Action on Behalf of the Colorado-GSK Classes

COUNT 80
Violation of the Colorado Consumer Protection Act
(Colo. Rev. Stat. Ann. §6-1-101, et seq.)
(Against GSK)

2334. Colorado Class Representative Jeffrey Pisano incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

2335. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Colorado -GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK with respect to OTC Zantac purchases (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

2336. Defendant, Plaintiff, and the Class members are "[p]erson[s]" within the meaning of Colo. Rev. Stat. Ann. §6-1-102(6).

2337. The Colorado Consumer Protection Act ("Colorado CPA") prohibits unfair, unconscionable, and deceptive acts or practices "in the course of the person's business, vocation, or occupation." Colo. Rev. Stat. Ann. §6-1-105(1).

2338. The Colorado CPA makes unlawful specific acts, including:

(a) "[e]ither knowingly or recklessly mak[ing] a false representation as to the source, sponsorship, approval, or certification of goods, services, or property" (Colo. Rev. Stat. Ann. §6-1-105(1)(b));

(b) "[r]epresent[ing] that goods, food, services, or property are of a particular standard, quality, or grade, or that goods are of a particular style or model, if he knows or should know that they are of another" (Colo. Rev. Stat. Ann. §6-1-105(1)(g));

(c) "[a]dvertis[ing] goods, services, or property with intent not to sell them as advertised" (Colo. Rev. Stat. Ann. §6-1-105(1)(i));

(d) "[f]ails to disclose material information concerning goods, services, or property which information was known at the time of an advertisement or sale if such failure to disclose such information was intended to induce the consumer to enter into a transaction" (Colo. Rev. Stat. Ann. §6-1-105(1)(u)); and

(e) "[e]ither knowingly or recklessly engage[ing] in any unfair, unconscionable, deceptive, deliberately misleading, false, or fraudulent act or practice" (Colo. Rev. Stat. Ann. §6-1-105(1)(kkk)).

2339. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Colorado CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer. Such conduct was bad faith conduct under the Colorado CPA.

2340. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Colorado CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

2341. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Colorado CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

2342. Specifically, by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products, as detailed above, Defendant engaged in one or more unfair or deceptive acts or practices in the conduct of trade or commerce, in violation of the Colorado CPA, including:

(a) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products have characteristics, uses, benefits, and qualities which they do not have;

(b) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products are of a particular standard, quality, and grade when they are not;

(c) advertising the Ranitidine-Containing Products with the intent not to sell them as advertised;

(d) engaging in any other unconscionable, false, misleading, or deceptive act or practice in the conduct of trade or commerce; and

(e) failing to disclose the defective Ranitidine-Containing Products in connection with their sale to the public.

Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiff and the Class members in a uniform manner.

2348. Plaintiff and the Class members relied on Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, and concealments with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products by purchasing and continuing to purchase Ranitidine-Containing Products after Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, and concealments were made.

2349. Plaintiff and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the Colorado CPA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

2350. Specifically, Plaintiff and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

2352. As a result of Defendant's violations of the Colorado CPA, as alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the Colorado CPA.

COUNT 81
Unjust Enrichment
(Colorado Law)
(Against GSK)

2353. Colorado Class Representative Jeffrey Pisano incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

2354. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Colorado-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK with respect to OTC Zantac purchases (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

2355. Plaintiff and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

2358. It is unjust and inequitable for the Defendant to retain these benefits without commensurate compensation because they were attained by misrepresenting and fraudulently concealing the true facts concerning the Ranitidine-Containing Products from Plaintiff and Class members, who would not have purchased the medications at all, but for the Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions.

2360. Plaintiff and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law.

4. Causes of Action Brought on Behalf of the Florida Class

COUNT 82
Violation of the Florida Deceptive and Unfair Trade Practices Act
(Fla. Stat. Ann. §501.201, et seq.)
(Against GSK)

2361. Florida Class Representatives Ricardo Moròn, Ronald Ragis, and Michael Galloway incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

2362. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Florida-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK with respect to OTC Zantac purchases (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

2363. The Florida Deceptive and Unfair Trade Practices Act ("FDUTPA") prohibits "[u]nfair methods of competition, unconscionable acts or practices, and unfair or deceptive acts or practices in the conduct of any trade or commerce." Fla. Stat. Ann. §501.204(1).

2364. In construing the provisions of the FDUTPA, "due consideration and great weight shall be given to the interpretations of the Federal Trade Commission and the federal courts relating to s. 5(a)(1) of the Federal Trade Commission Act, 15 U.S.C. s. 45(a)(1) as of July 1, 2017." Fla. Stat. Ann. §501.204(2).

2365. Plaintiffs and the Class members are "[c]onsumer[s]" and "[i]nterested part[ies] or person[s]" as defined by the FDUTPA. See Fla. Stat. Ann. §501.203(6)-(7).

2366. Defendant engaged in "[t]rade or commerce" as defined by the FDUTPA. See Fla. Stat. Ann. §501.203(8).

2367. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the FDUTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

2368. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the FDUTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

2369. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the FDUTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

2376. Plaintiffs and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the FDUTPA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

2377. Specifically, Plaintiffs and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

2379. As a result of Defendant's violations of the FDUTPA, as alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the FDUTPA.

COUNT 83
Unjust Enrichment
(Florida Law)
(Against GSK)

2380. Florida Class Representatives Ricardo Moròn, Ronald Ragis, and Michael Galloway incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

2381. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Florida-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK with respect to OTC Zantac purchases (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

2382. Plaintiffs and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

2384. Defendant voluntarily accepted and retained these benefits from Plaintiffs and Class members and was knowingly enriched by its unjust conduct – at Plaintiffs' and the Class members' expense – by selling worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products that contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

2385. It is unjust and inequitable for the Defendant to retain these benefits without paying the value thereof because the benefits were attained by misrepresenting and fraudulently concealing the true facts concerning the Ranitidine-Containing Products from Plaintiffs and Class members, who would not have purchased the medications at all, but for the Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions.

2387. There is no express written contract governing this dispute.

2388. Plaintiffs and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law.

5. Causes of Action on Behalf of the Louisiana-GSK Classes

Violation of the Louisiana Unfair Trade Practices and Consumer Protection Law
(La. Stat. Ann. §51:1401, et seq.)
(Against GSK)

2389. Louisiana Class Representatives Randy Jones and Tammy Smith incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

2390. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Louisiana-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK with respect to OTC Zantac purchases (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

2391. Defendant, Plaintiffs, and the Class members are "[p]erson[s]" within the meaning of La. Stat. Ann. §51:1402(8).

2392. Plaintiffs and the Class members are "[c]onsumer[s]" within the meaning of La. Stat. Ann. §51:1402(1).

2393. Defendant was and is engaged in "[t]rade" or "commerce" within the meaning of La. Stat. Ann. §51:1402(10).

2394. The Louisiana Unfair Trade Practices and Consumer Protection Law ("Louisiana CPL") prohibits "[u]nfair methods of competition and unfair or deceptive acts or practices in the conduct of any trade or commerce." La. Stat. Ann. §51:1405(A).

Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

2396. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Louisiana CPL by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

2397. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Louisiana CPL by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

2401. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding package size, and resulting misrepresentations and omissions concerning appropriate length of ingestion, of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiffs and the Class members in a uniform manner.

2405. Plaintiffs and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the Louisiana CPL because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

2406. Specifically, Plaintiffs and the Class were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

2407. Defendant's violations present a continuing risk to Plaintiffs and the Class members, as well as to the general public. Defendant's unlawful acts and practices complained of herein affect the public interest.

2408. As a result of Defendant's violations of the Louisiana CPL, as alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members seek an order awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the Louisiana CPL.

COUNT 85
Breach of Implied Warranty
(La. Civ. Code Ann. Art. §2520)
(Against GSK)

2409. Louisiana Class Representatives Randy Jones and Tammy Smith incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

2410. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Louisiana-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK with respect to OTC Zantac purchases (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

2411. At all relevant times, Defendant was a merchant with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products which were sold to Louisiana Class Representatives and members of the Louisiana Class and was in the business of selling such products.

2412. Each Ranitidine-Containing Product sold by Defendant comes with an implied warranty that it will be merchantable and fit for the ordinary purpose for which it would be used, including impliedly warrantying on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products that the products were safe and/or did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

2413. Defendant breached its implied warranty of merchantability because its products cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

2414. Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products are not fit for their intended use – or any use – because they have dangerous propensities when used as intended or within their expiration dates on the labels, and their use carries an increased risk of developing cancer.

2415. Defendant had reason to know Plaintiff and each member of the Class's particular purpose in buying Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products and knew that Plaintiff and each member of the Class relied on Defendant's skill or judgment in furnishing appropriate goods that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

2416. Plaintiff and the Class did, in fact, rely on Defendant's skill and judgment in manufacturing Ranitidine-Containing Products that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

2418. Further, Plaintiff and each member of the Class were the intended third-party beneficiaries of the implied warranties made by Defendant to purchasers of its Ranitidine-Containing Products.

2420. As a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability, as alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order awarding compensatory and punitive damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the law.

COUNT 86
Unjust Enrichment
(Louisiana Law)
(Against GSK)

2421. Louisiana Class Representatives Randy Jones and Tammy Smith incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

2422. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Louisiana-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK with respect to OTC Zantac purchases (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

2423. Plaintiff and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

2425. Defendant readily accepted and retained these benefits from Plaintiff and Class members and was knowingly enriched by its unjust conduct – at Plaintiff's and the Class members' expense – by selling worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products that contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

2426. Defendant's enrichment – the monies obtained from Plaintiff for the Ranitidine-Containing Products – was the result of Plaintiff's impoverishment – the receipt by Plaintiff of worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe and unfit for human consumption.

2427. It is unjustifiable for the Defendant to retain these benefits because they were attained by misrepresenting and fraudulently concealing the true facts concerning the Ranitidine-

Containing Products from Plaintiff and Class members, who would not have purchased the medications at all, but for the Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions.

2429. Plaintiffs and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law, nor is there an express contract governing this dispute.

6. Causes of Action on Behalf of the Maryland-GSK Classes

COUNT 87
Violation of the Maryland Consumer Protection Act
(Md. Code Ann., Com. Law §13-101, et seq.)
(Against GSK)

2430. Maryland Class Representative Charles Longfield incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

2431. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Maryland-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

2432. Defendant, Plaintiffs, and the Class members are "[p]erson[s]" within the meaning of Md. Code Ann., Com. Law §13-101(h).

2433. Plaintiffs and the Class members are "[c]onsumer[s]" within the meaning of Md. Code Ann., Com. Law §13-101(c)(1).

2434. The Ranitidine-Containing Products are "[m]erchandise" within the meaning of Md. Code Ann., Com. Law §13-101(f).

2435. The Maryland Consumer Protection Act ("Maryland CPA") prohibits "[u]nfair, abusive, or deceptive trade practices." Md. Code Ann., Com. Law §13-301.

2436. The Maryland CPA makes unlawful specific acts, including:

(a) "[f]alse, falsely disparaging, or misleading oral or written statement, visual description, or other representation of any kind which has the capacity, tendency, or effect of deceiving or misleading consumers" (Md. Code Ann., Com. Law §13-301(1));

(b) "[r]epresent[ing] that . . . [c]onsumer goods, consumer realty, or consumer services have a sponsorship, approval, accessory, characteristic, ingredient, use, benefit, or quantity which they do not have" (Md. Code Ann., Com. Law §13-301(2)(i));

(c) "[r]epresent[ing] that . . . [c]onsumer goods, consumer realty, or consumer services are of a particular standard, quality, grade, style, or model which they are not" (Md. Code Ann., Com. Law §13-301(2)(iv));

(d) "[f]ailure to state a material fact if the failure deceives or tends to deceive" (Md. Code Ann., Com. Law §13-301(3));

(e) "[a]dvertis[ing] or offer[ing] of consumer goods, consumer realty, or consumer services . . . [w]ithout intent to sell, lease, or rent them as advertised or offered" (Md. Code Ann., Com. Law §13-301(5)(i)); and

(f) "[d]eception, fraud, false pretense, false premise, misrepresentation, or knowing concealment, suppression, or omission of any material fact with the intent that a consumer rely on the same in connection with . . . [t]he promotion or sale of any consumer goods" (Md. Code Ann., Com. Law §13-301(9)(i)).

2437. In the course of its business, Defendant, through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Maryland CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

2438. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Maryland CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and thus resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

2439. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Maryland CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

(a) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products have characteristics, uses, benefits, and qualities which they do not have;

(b) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products are of a particular standard, quality, and grade when they are not;

(c) advertising the Ranitidine-Containing Products with the intent not to sell them as advertised;

(d) failing to disclose that the Ranitidine-Containing Products are defective and inherently dangerous in the course of the sale of the Ranitidine-Containing Products; and

(e) engaging in any other unconscionable, false, misleading, or deceptive act or practice in the conduct of trade or commerce.

2441. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding the inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiffs and the Class members in a uniform manner.

2442. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding the expiration dates of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiffs and the Class members in a uniform manner.

2443. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding package size, and resulting misrepresentations and omissions concerning appropriate length of ingestion, of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiffs and the Class members in a uniform manner.

2445. The facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products that Defendant knowingly and intentionally misrepresented, omitted, concealed, and failed to disclose would be considered material by a reasonable consumer, and they were, in fact, material to Plaintiffs and the Class members, who consider such facts to be important to their purchase decisions with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products.

2447. Plaintiffs and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the Maryland CPA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

2448. Specifically, Plaintiffs and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

2450. As a result of Defendant's violations of the Maryland CPA, as alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the Maryland CPA.

COUNT 88
Breach of Implied Warranty
(Md. Code Ann. §2-314)
(Against GSK)

2451. Maryland Class Representative Charles Longfield incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

2452. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Maryland-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

2454. Each Ranitidine-Containing Product sold by Defendant comes with an implied warranty that it will be merchantable and fit for the ordinary purpose for which it would be used, including impliedly warrantying on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products that the products were safe and/or did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

2455. Defendant breached its implied warranty of merchantability because its products cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

2457. Defendant had reason to know Plaintiffs and each member of the Class's particular purpose in buying Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products and knew that Plaintiffs and each member of the Class relied on Defendant's skill or judgment in furnishing appropriate goods that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

2458. Plaintiffs and the Class did, in fact, rely on Defendant's skill and judgment in manufacturing Ranitidine-Containing Products that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

2460. Further, Plaintiffs and each member of the Class were the intended third-party beneficiaries of the implied warranties made by Defendant to purchasers of its Ranitidine-Containing Products.

2462. As a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability, as alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members seek an order awarding compensatory and punitive damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the law.

COUNT 89
Unjust Enrichment
(Maryland Law)
(Against GSK)

2463. Maryland Class Representative Charles Longfield incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

2464. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Maryland-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

2465. Plaintiffs and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

2468. It would be unjust and inequitable for the Defendant to retain these benefits because they were attained by misrepresenting and fraudulently concealing the true facts concerning the Ranitidine-Containing Products from Plaintiffs and Class members, who would not have purchased the medications at all, but for the Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions.

2470. Plaintiffs and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law.

7. Causes of Action on Behalf of the Michigan-GSK Classes

COUNT 90
Violation of the Michigan Consumer Protection Act
(Mich. Comp. Laws Ann. §445.901, et seq.)
(Against GSK)

2471. Michigan Class Representatives Jerry Hunt and Lakisha Wilson incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

2472. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Michigan-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK with respect to OTC Zantac purchases (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

2473. Defendant, Plaintiffs, and the Class members are "[p]erson[s]" within the meaning of Mich. Comp. Laws Ann. §445.902(1)(d).

2474. Defendant was and is engaged in "[t]rade" or "commerce" within the meaning of Mich. Comp. Laws Ann. §445.902(1)(g).

2475. The Michigan Consumer Protection Act ("Michigan CPA") prohibits "[u]nfair, unconscionable, or deceptive methods, acts, or practices in the conduct of trade or commerce." Mich. Comp. Laws Ann. §445.903(1).

2476. The Michigan CPA makes unlawful specific acts, including:

(a) "[r]epresenting that goods or services have sponsorship, approval, characteristics, ingredients, uses, benefits, or quantities that they do not have" (Mich. Comp. Laws Ann. §445.903(1)(c));

(b) "[r]epresenting that goods or services are of a particular standard, quality, or grade, or that goods are of a particular style or model, if they are of another" (Mich. Comp. Laws Ann. §445.903(1)(e)); and

(c) "[a]dvertising or representing goods or services with intent not to dispose of those goods or services as advertised or represented" (Mich. Comp. Laws Ann. §445.903(1)(g)).

2477. In the course of its business, Defendant, through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Michigan CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

2478. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Michigan CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

2479. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Michigan CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

(a) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products have characteristics, uses, benefits, and qualities which they do not have;

(b) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products are of a particular standard, quality, and grade when they are not;

(c) advertising the Ranitidine-Containing Products with the intent not to sell them as advertised; and

(d) engaging in any other unconscionable, false, misleading, or deceptive act or practice in the conduct of trade or commerce.

2482. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding the expiration dates of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiffs and the Class members in a uniform manner.

2483. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding package size, and resulting misrepresentations and omissions concerning appropriate length of ingestion, of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiffs and the Class members in a uniform manner.

inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products; (ii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products if used within the expiration dates; and (iii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products when ingesting all doses contained within particular packaging.

2485. The facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products that Defendant knowingly and intentionally misrepresented, omitted, concealed, and failed to disclose would be considered material by a reasonable consumer, and they were, in fact, material to Plaintiffs and the Class members, who consider such facts to be important to their purchase decisions with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products.

2486. Plaintiffs and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the Michigan CPA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

2487. Specifically, Plaintiffs and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

2488. Defendant's violations present a continuing risk to Plaintiffs and the Class members, as well as to the general public. Defendant's unlawful acts and practices complained of herein affect the public interest.

2489. As a result of Defendant's violations of the Michigan CPA, as alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the Michigan CPA.

COUNT 91
Unjust Enrichment
(Michigan Law)
(Against GSK)

2490. Michigan Class Representatives Jerry Hunt and Lakisha Wilson incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

2491. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Michigan-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK with respect to OTC Zantac purchases (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

2492. Plaintiffs and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

expense – by selling worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products that contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

2497. There is no express contract governing this dispute.

2498. Plaintiffs and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law.

COUNT 92
Violation of the Missouri Merchandising Practices Act
(Mo. Ann. Stat. §407.010, et seq.)
(Against GSK)

2499. Missouri Class Representatives Ronda Lockett and Tammy Smith incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

2500. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Missouri-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK with respect to OTC Zantac purchases (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

2501. Defendant, Plaintiffs, and the Class members are "[p]erson[s]" within the meaning of Mo. Ann. Stat. §407.010(5).

2502. Defendant was and is engaged in "[t]rade or commerce" within the meaning of Mo. Ann. Stat. §407.010(7).

2503. The Missouri Merchandising Practices Act ("Missouri MPA") prohibits "act, use or employment by any person of any deception, fraud, false pretense, false promise, misrepresentation, unfair practice or the concealment, suppression, or omission of any material fact in connection with the sale or advertisement of any merchandise in trade or commerce." Mo. Ann. Stat. §407.020(1).

2504. In the course of its business, Defendant, through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Missouri MPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

2505. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Missouri MPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

2506. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Missouri MPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

2510. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding package size, and resulting misrepresentations and omissions concerning appropriate length of ingestion, of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiffs and the Class members in a uniform manner.

2511. Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices, including its misrepresentations, concealments, omissions, and suppressions of material facts, as alleged herein, had a tendency or capacity to mislead and create a false impression in consumers' minds, and were likely to and, in fact, did deceive reasonable consumers, including Plaintiffs and the Class members, about: (i) the inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products; (ii)

the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products if used within the expiration dates; and (iii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products when ingesting all doses contained within particular packaging.

2513. Plaintiffs and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the Missouri MPA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

2514. Specifically, Plaintiffs and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

2515. Defendant's violations present a continuing risk to Plaintiffs and the Class members, as well as to the general public. Defendant's unlawful acts and practices complained of herein affect the public interest.

2516. As a result of Defendant's violations of the Missouri MPA, as alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the Missouri MPA.

Breach of Implied Warranty
(Mo. Rev. Stat. §400.2-314)
(Against GSK)

2517. Missouri Class Representatives Ronda Lockett and Tammy Smith incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

2518. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Missouri Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK with respect to OTC Zantac purchases (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

2520. Each Ranitidine-Containing Product sold by Defendant comes with an implied warranty that it will be merchantable and fit for the ordinary purpose for which it would be used, including impliedly warrantying on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products that the products were safe and/or did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

2521. Defendant breached its implied warranty of merchantability because its products cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

2522. Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products are not fit for their intended use – or any use – because they have dangerous propensities when used as intended or within their expiration dates on the labels, and their use carries an increased risk of developing cancer.

2523. Defendant had reason to know Plaintiffs and each member of the Class's particular purpose in buying Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products and knew that Plaintiffs and each member of the Class relied on Defendant's skill or judgment in furnishing appropriate goods that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

2525. Plaintiffs and each member of the Class have had sufficient direct dealings with either Defendant or its agents (including distributors, dealers, and authorized sellers) to establish privity of contract between Defendant, on the one hand, and Plaintiffs and each member of the Class, on the other hand.

2526. Further, Plaintiffs and each member of the Class were the intended third-party beneficiaries of the implied warranties made by Defendant to purchasers of its Ranitidine-Containing Products.

2528. As a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability, as alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members seek an order awarding compensatory and punitive damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the law.

9. Causes of Action on Behalf of the Nebraska-GSK Classes

COUNT 95
Violation of the Nebraska Consumer Protection Act
(Neb. Rev. Stat. Ann. §59-1601, et seq.)
(Against GSK)

2538. Nebraska Class Representative Gaylord Stauffer incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

2539. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Nebraska-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK with respect to OTC Zantac purchases (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

2540. Defendant, Plaintiff, and the Class members are "[p]erson[s]" within the meaning of Neb. Rev. Stat. Ann. §59-1601(1).

2541. The Ranitidine-Containing Products are "[a]ssets" within the meaning of Neb. Rev. Stat. Ann. §59-1601(3).

2542. Defendant was and is engaged in "[t]rade" or "commerce" within the meaning of Neb. Rev. Stat. Ann. §59-1601(2).

2543. The Nebraska Consumer Protection Act ("Nebraska CPA") prohibits "[u]nfair methods of competition and unfair or deceptive acts or practices in the conduct of any trade or commerce." Neb. Rev. Stat. Ann. §59-1602.

2544. In the course of its business, Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Nebraska CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

2545. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Nebraska CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

2546. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Nebraska CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

2550. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding package size, and resulting misrepresentations and omissions concerning appropriate length of ingestion, of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiff and the Class members in a uniform manner.

2553. Plaintiff and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the Nebraska CPA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

2554. Specifically, Plaintiff and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

2556. As a result of Defendant's violations of the Nebraska CPA, as alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the Nebraska CPA.

COUNT 96
Breach of Implied Warranty
(Neb. U.C.C. §2-314)
(Against GSK)

2557. Nebraska Class Representative Gaylord Stauffer incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

2558. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Nebraska-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK with respect to OTC Zantac purchases (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

2560. Each Ranitidine-Containing Product sold by Defendant comes with an implied warranty that it will be merchantable and fit for the ordinary purpose for which it would be used, including impliedly warrantying on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products that the products were safe and/or did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

2561. Defendant breached its implied warranty of merchantability because its products cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

2563. Defendant had reason to know Plaintiff and each member of the Class's particular purpose in buying Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products, and knew that Plaintiffs and each member of the Class relied on Defendant's skill or judgment in furnishing appropriate goods that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

2566. Further, Plaintiff and each member of the Class were the intended third-party beneficiaries of the implied warranties made by Defendant to purchasers of its Ranitidine-Containing Products.

2567. Plaintiff and the members of the Class were injured as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability. Plaintiff and the members of the Class were damaged as a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability because, had they been aware of the unmerchantable condition of Ranitidine-Containing Products, they would not have purchased such drugs.

2568. As a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability, as alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order awarding compensatory and punitive damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the law.

COUNT 97
Unjust Enrichment
(Nebraska Law)
(Against GSK)

2569. Nebraska Class Representative Gaylord Stauffer incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

2570. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Nebraska-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK with respect to OTC Zantac purchases (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

2571. Plaintiff and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

Plaintiff and Class members conferred a financial benefit on Defendants but did not receive their expected benefit therefrom.

2573. Defendant readily accepted and retained these benefits from Plaintiff and Class members and knowingly benefitted from its unjust conduct – at Plaintiff's and the Class members' expense – by selling worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products that contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

2574. It is unjust and unfair for the Defendant to retain these benefits because they were attained by misrepresenting and fraudulently concealing the true facts concerning the Ranitidine-Containing Products from Plaintiff and Class members, who would not have purchased the medications at all, but for the Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions.

2576. There is no express contract governing this dispute.

2577. Plaintiff and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law.

10. Causes of Action on Behalf of the Nevada-GSK Classes

COUNT 98
Violation of the Nevada Deceptive Trade Practices Act
(Nev. Rev. Stat. Ann. §598.0903, et seq.)
(Against GSK)

2578. Nevada Class Representative Jonathan Ferguson incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

2579. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Nevada-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK with respect to OTC Zantac purchases (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

2580. The Nevada Deceptive Trade Practices Act ("Nevada DTPA"), prohibits the use of "'deceptive trade practices' . . . in the course of . . . business or occupation." Nev. Rev. Stat. Ann. §598.0915.

2581. The Nevada DTPA makes unlawful specific acts, including:

(a) "[k]nowingly mak[ing] a false representation as to the characteristics, ingredients, uses, benefits, alterations or quantities of goods or services for sale or lease or a false representation as to the sponsorship, approval, status, affiliation or connection of a person therewith" (Nev. Rev. Stat. Ann. §598.0915(5));

(b) "[r]epresent[ing] that goods or services for sale or lease are of a particular standard, quality or grade, or that such goods are of a particular style or model, if he or she knows or should know that they are of another standard, quality, grade, style or model" (Nev. Rev. Stat. Ann. §598.0915(7));

(c) "[a]dvertis[ing] goods or services with intent not to sell or lease them as advertised" (Nev. Rev. Stat. Ann. §598.0915(9));

(d) "[k]nowingly mak[ing] any other false representation in a transaction" (Nev. Rev. Stat. Ann. §598.0915(15)); and

(e) "[f]ail[ing] to disclose a material fact in connection with the sale or lease of goods or services" (Nev. Rev. Stat. Ann. §598.0923(2)).

2582. In the course of its business, Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Nevada DTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

2583. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Nevada DTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

2584. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Nevada DTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

(a) representing that Ranitidine-Containing Products have characteristics, uses, benefits, and qualities which they do not have;

(b) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products are of a particular standard, quality, and grade when they are not;

(c) advertising the Ranitidine-Containing Products with the intent not to sell them as advertised;

(d) failing to disclose the NDMA danger in connection with the sale of the Ranitidine-Containing Products; and

(e) engaging in any other unconscionable, false, misleading, or deceptive act or practice in the conduct of trade or commerce.

2586. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding the inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiff and the Class members in a uniform manner.

2587. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding the expiration dates of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiff and the Class members in a uniform manner.

2591. Plaintiff and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the Nevada DTPA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

2592. Specifically, Plaintiff and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

2594. As a result of Defendant's violations of the Nevada DTPA, as alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the Nevada DTPA.

COUNT 99
Unjust Enrichment
(Nevada Law)
(Against GSK)

2595. Nevada Class Representative Jonathan Ferguson incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911as though fully set forth herein.

2596. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Nevada-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Brand Manufacturer Defendant GSK with respect to Zantac OTC purchases (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

2597. Plaintiff and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

2600. It is unjust and inequitable for the Defendant to retain these benefits because they were attained by misrepresenting and fraudulently concealing the true facts concerning the Ranitidine-Containing Products from Plaintiff and Class members, who would not have purchased the medications at all, but for the Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions.

2602. There is no express contract governing this dispute.

2603. Plaintiff and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law.

COUNT 100
Violation of the North Carolina Unfair and Deceptive Trade Practices Act
(N.C. Gen. Stat. Ann. §75-1.1, et seq.)
(Against GSK)

2604. North Carolina Class Representative Dennis Robbins incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

2605. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the North Carolina-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK with respect to OTC Zantac purchases (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

2606. Defendant was and is engaged in "commerce" within the meaning of N.C. Gen. Stat. Ann. §75-1.1(b).

2607. The North Carolina Unfair and Deceptive Trade Practices Act ("North Carolina UDTPA") prohibits "[u]nfair methods of competition in or affecting commerce, and unfair or deceptive acts or practices in or affecting commerce," N.C. Gen. Stat. Ann. §75-1.1(a), and provides a private right of action for any person injured "by reason of any act or thing done by any other person, firm or corporation in violation of" the law. N.C. Gen. Stat. Ann. §75-16.

2608. In the course of its business, Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the North Carolina UDTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

2609. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the North Carolina UDTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

2610. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the North Carolina UDTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

material by a reasonable consumer, and they were, in fact, material to Plaintiff and the Class members, who consider such facts to be important to their purchase decisions with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products.

2617. Plaintiff and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the North Carolina UDTPA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

2618. Specifically, Plaintiff and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

2619. Defendant's violations present a continuing risk to Plaintiff and the Class members, as well as to the general public. Defendant's unlawful acts and practices complained of herein affect the public interest.

2620. As a result of Defendant's violations of the North Carolina UDTPA, as alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the North Carolina UDTPA.

2640. Plaintiff and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law, nor is there an express contract governing this dispute.

12. Causes of Action on Behalf of Oregon-GSK Classes

COUNT 103
Violation of the Oregon Unlawful Trade Practices Act
(Or. Rev. Stat. Ann. §646.605, et seq.)
(Against GSK)

2641. Oregon Class Representative Jonathan Ferguson incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

2642. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Oregon-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK with respect to OTC Zantac purchases (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

2643. Defendant, Plaintiff, and the Class members are "[p]erson[s]" within the meaning of Or. Rev. Stat. Ann. §646.605(4).

2644. The Ranitidine-Containing Products are "goods" within the meaning of Or. Rev. Stat. Ann. §646.605(6).

2645. Defendant was and is engaged in "[t]rade" or "commerce" within the meaning of Or. Rev. Stat. Ann. §646.605(8).

2646. The Oregon Unlawful Trade Practices Act ("Oregon UTPA") prohibits "unlawful practice . . . in the course of the person's business." Or. Rev. Stat. Ann. §646.608(1).

2647. The Oregon UTPA makes unlawful specific acts, including:

(a) "[r]epresent[ing] that real estate, goods or services have sponsorship, approval, characteristics, ingredients, uses, benefits, quantities or qualities that the real estate, goods or services do not have" (Or. Rev. Stat. Ann. §646.608(1)(e));

(b) "[r]epresent[ing] that real estate, goods or services are of a particular standard, quality, or grade, or that real estate or goods are of a particular style or model, if the real estate, goods or services are of another" (Or. Rev. Stat. Ann. §646.608(1)(g));

(c) "[a]dvertis[ing] real estate, goods or services with intent not to provide the real estate, goods or services as advertised" (Or. Rev. Stat. Ann. §646.608(1)(i)); and

(d) "[e]ngag[ing] in any other unfair or deceptive conduct in trade or commerce" (Or. Rev. Stat. Ann. §646.608(1)(u)).

2648. In the course of its business, Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Oregon UTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

2649. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Oregon UTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

2650. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Oregon UTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

2651. Specifically, by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products, as detailed above, Defendant engaged in one or more unfair or deceptive acts or practices in the conduct of trade or commerce, in violation of the Oregon UTPA, including:

(a) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products have characteristics, uses, benefits, and qualities which they do not have;

(b) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products are of a particular standard, quality, and grade when they are not;

(c) advertising the Ranitidine-Containing Products with the intent not to sell them as advertised; and

(d) engaging in any other unconscionable, false, misleading, or deceptive act or practice in the conduct of trade or commerce.

2654. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding package size, and resulting misrepresentations and omissions concerning appropriate length of ingestion, of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiff and the Class members in a uniform manner.

2655. Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices, including its misrepresentations, concealments, omissions, and suppressions of material facts, as alleged herein, had a tendency or capacity to mislead and create a false impression in consumers' minds, and were likely to and, in fact, did deceive reasonable consumers, including Plaintiff and the Class members, about: (i) the inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products; (ii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products if used within the expiration dates; and (iii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products when ingesting all doses contained within particular packaging.

2657. Plaintiff and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the Oregon UTPA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

2658. Specifically, Plaintiff and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

2660. As a result of Defendant's violations of the Oregon UTPA, as alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the Oregon UTPA.

COUNT 104
Breach of Implied Warranty
(Or. Rev. Stat. §72.3140)
(Against GSK)

2661. Oregon Class Representative Jonathan Ferguson incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

2662. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Oregon-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK with respect to OTC Zantac purchases (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

2663. At all relevant times, Defendant was a merchant with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products which were sold to Oregon Class Representatives and members of the Oregon Class and was in the business of selling such products.

2664. Each Ranitidine-Containing Product sold by Defendant comes with an implied warranty that it will be merchantable and fit for the ordinary purpose for which it would be used, including impliedly warrantying on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products that the products were safe and/or did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

2665. Defendant breached its implied warranty of merchantability because its products cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

2667. Defendant had reason to know Plaintiff and each member of the Class's particular purpose in buying Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products, and knew that Plaintiff and each member of the Class relied on Defendant's skill or judgment in furnishing appropriate goods that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

2669. Plaintiff and each member of the Class have had sufficient direct dealings with either Defendant or its agents (including distributors, dealers, and authorized sellers) to establish privity of contract between Defendant, on the one hand, and Plaintiff and each member of the Class, on the other hand.

2670. Further, Plaintiff and each member of the Class were the intended third-party beneficiaries of the implied warranties made by Defendant to purchasers of its Ranitidine-Containing Products.

2671. Plaintiff and the members of the Class were injured as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability. Plaintiff and the members of the Class were damaged as a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability because, had they been aware of the unmerchantable condition of Ranitidine-Containing Products, they would not have purchased such drugs.

2672. As a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability, as alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order awarding compensatory and punitive damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the law.

COUNT 105
Unjust Enrichment
(Oregon Law)
(Against GSK)

2673. Oregon Class Representative Jonathan Ferguson incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

2674. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Oregon-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK with respect to OTC Zantac purchases (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

2675. Plaintiff and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products, or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

2676. In exchange for their payment of the purchase price of Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products, Plaintiff and Class members received the Ranitidine-Containing Products, which Defendant did not disclose contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed. Accordingly, Plaintiff and Class members conferred a financial benefit on Defendants but did not receive their expected benefit therefrom.

2677. Defendant readily accepted and retained these benefits from Plaintiff and Class members and knowingly benefitted from its unjust conduct – at Plaintiff's and the Class members' expense – by selling worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products that contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

2678. It is unjust for the Defendant to retain these benefits because they were attained by misrepresenting and fraudulently concealing the true facts concerning the Ranitidine-Containing Products from Plaintiff and Class members, who would not have purchased the medications at all, but for the Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions.

2680. There is no express contract governing this dispute.

2681. Plaintiff and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law.

13. Causes of Action on Behalf of Puerto Rico-GSK Classes

COUNT 106
Breach of Implied Warranty
(P.R. Laws Ann. tit. 31, §3841)
(Against GSK)

2682. Puerto Rico Class Representative Gloria Colon incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

2683. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Puerto Rico-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK with respect to OTC Zantac purchases (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

2684. At all relevant times, Defendant was a merchant with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products which were sold to Puerto Rico Class Representatives and members of the Puerto Rico Class and was in the business of selling such products.

2685. Each Ranitidine-Containing Product sold by Defendant comes with an implied warranty that it will be merchantable and fit for the ordinary purpose for which it would be used, including impliedly warrantying on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products that the products were safe and/or did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

2686. Defendant breached its implied warranty of merchantability because its products cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

2688. Defendant had reason to know Plaintiff and each member of the Class's particular purpose in buying Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products, and knew that Plaintiff and each member of the Class relied on Defendant's skill or judgment in furnishing appropriate goods that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

2691. Further, Plaintiff and each member of the Class were the intended third-party beneficiaries of the implied warranties made by Defendant to purchasers of its Ranitidine-Containing Products.

2693. As a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability, as alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order awarding compensatory and punitive damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the law.

COUNT 107
Unjust Enrichment
(Puerto Rico Law)
(Against GSK)

2694. Puerto Rico Class Representative Gloria Colon incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

2695. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Puerto Rico-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK with respect to OTC Zantac purchases (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

2696. Plaintiff and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

2698. Defendant readily accepted and retained these benefits from Plaintiff and Class members and was knowingly enriched by its unjust conduct – at Plaintiff's and the Class members' expense – by selling worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products that contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

2699. Defendant's enrichment – the monies obtained from Plaintiff's and Class members' purchases of Ranitidine-Containing Products – was the result of Plaintiff's and Class members' impoverishment – i.e., Plaintiff's and Class members' receipt of worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe and unfit for human consumption.

2700. It is unjustifiable for the Defendant to retain these benefits because they were attained by misrepresenting and fraudulently concealing the true facts concerning the Ranitidine-Containing Products from Plaintiff and Class members, who would not have purchased the medications at all, but for the Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions.

2702. Plaintiff and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law.

14. Causes of Action on Behalf of the Texas-GSK Classes

COUNT 108
Violation of the Texas Deceptive Trade Practices-Consumer Protection Act
(Tex. Bus. & Com. Code Ann. §17.41, et seq.)
(Against GSK)

2703. Texas Class Representative Tammy Smith incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

2704. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Texas-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK with respect to OTC Zantac purchases (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

2705. Defendant, Plaintiff, and the Class members are "[p]erson[s]" within the meaning of Tex. Bus. & Com. Code Ann. §17.45(3).

2706. Plaintiff and the Class members are "[c]onsumer[s]" within the meaning of Tex. Bus. & Com. Code Ann. §17.45(4).

2707. The Ranitidine-Containing Products are "[g]oods" within the meaning of Tex. Bus. & Com. Code Ann. §17.45(1).

2708. Defendant was and is engaged in "[t]rade" or "commerce" within the meaning of Tex. Bus. & Com. Code Ann. §17.45(6).

2709. The Texas Deceptive Trade Practices-Consumer Protection Act ("Texas DTPA") prohibits "[f]alse, misleading, or deceptive acts or practices in the conduct of any trade or commerce," Tex. Bus. & Com. Code Ann. §17.46(a), and an "[u]nconscionable action or course of action," which means "an act or practice which, to a consumer's detriment, takes advantage of the lack of knowledge, ability, experience, or capacity of the consumer to a grossly unfair degree." Tex. Bus. & Com. Code Ann. §§17.45(5) and 17.50(a)(3).

2710. The Texas DTPA makes unlawful specific acts, including:

(a) "representing that goods or services have sponsorship, approval, characteristics, ingredients, uses, benefits, or quantities that they do not have" (Tex. Bus. & Com. Code Ann. §17.46(5));

(b) "representing that goods or services are of a particular standard, quality, or grade, or that goods are of a particular style or model, if they are of another" (Tex. Bus. & Com. Code Ann. §17.46(7)); and

(c) "advertising goods or services with intent not to sell them as advertised" (Tex. Bus. & Com. Code Ann. §17.46(9)).

2711. In the course of its business, Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Texas DTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

2712. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Texas DTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

2713. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Texas DTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

(a) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products have characteristics, uses, benefits, and qualities which they do not have;

(b) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products are of a particular standard, quality, and grade when they are not; and

(c) advertising the Ranitidine-Containing Products with the intent not to sell them as advertised.

2717. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding package size, and resulting misrepresentations and omissions concerning appropriate length of ingestion, of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiff and the Class members in a uniform manner.

2718. Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices, including its misrepresentations, concealments, omissions, and suppressions of material facts, as alleged herein, had a tendency or capacity to mislead and create a false impression in consumers' minds, and were likely to and, in fact, did deceive reasonable consumers, including Plaintiff and the Class members, about: (i) the inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products; (ii)

the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products if used within the expiration dates; and (iii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products when ingesting all doses contained within particular packaging.

2720. Plaintiff and the Class members relied on Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, and concealments with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products by purchasing and continuing to purchase Ranitidine-Containing Products after Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, and concealments were made.

2721. Plaintiff and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the Texas DTPA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

2722. Specifically, Plaintiff and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

2723. Defendant's violations present a continuing risk to Plaintiff and the Class members, as well as to the general public. Defendant's unlawful acts and practices complained of herein affect the public interest.

2724. Defendant was provided notice of the issues raised in this Count and this Complaint by the FDA investigations, the numerous complaints filed against it, and the many individual notice letters sent by Plaintiff within a reasonable amount of time after the allegations of Ranitidine-Containing Products' defects became public. In addition, on May 21, 2020, Plaintiffs in MDL 2924 sent a notice letter pursuant to Tex. Bus. & Com. Code Ann. §17.505(a) to Defendant. Because Defendant failed to adequately remedy its unlawful conduct within the requisite time period, Plaintiffs seek all damages and relief to which Plaintiff and the Class members are entitled.

2725. As a result of Defendant's violations of the Texas DTPA, as alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the Texas DTPA.

COUNT 109
Breach of Implied Warranty
(Tex. Bus. & Com. Code Ann. §2-314)
(Against GSK)

2726. Texas Class Representative Tammy Smith incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

2727. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Texas-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK with respect to OTC Zantac purchases (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

2729. Each Ranitidine-Containing Product sold by Defendant comes with an implied warranty that it will be merchantable and fit for the ordinary purpose for which it would be used, including impliedly warrantying on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products that the products were safe and/or did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

2730. Defendant breached its implied warranty of merchantability because its products cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

2731. Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products are not fit for their intended use – or any use – because they have dangerous propensities when used as intended or within their expiration dates on the labels, and their use carries an increased risk of developing cancer.

2732. Defendant had reason to know Plaintiff and each member of the Class's particular purpose in buying Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products and knew that Plaintiff and each member of the Class relied on Defendant's skill or judgment in furnishing appropriate goods that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

2735. Further, Plaintiff and each member of the Class were the intended third-party beneficiaries of the implied warranties made by Defendant to purchasers of its Ranitidine-Containing Products.

COUNT 110
Unjust Enrichment
(Texas Law)
(Against GSK)

2738. Texas Class Representative Tammy Smith incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

2739. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Texas-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK with respect to OTC Zantac purchases (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

2740. Plaintiff and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

2742. Defendant readily accepted and retained these benefits from Plaintiff and Class members and knowingly benefitted from its unjust conduct – at Plaintiff's and the Class members' expense – by selling worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products that contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

2743. It is unjust and unconscionable for the Defendant to retain these wrongly secured benefits because they were attained by misrepresenting and fraudulently concealing the true facts concerning the Ranitidine-Containing Products from Plaintiff and Class members, who would not have purchased the medications at all, but for the Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions.

2745. Plaintiff and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law, nor is there an express contract governing this dispute.

15. Causes of Action on Behalf of Vermont-GSK Classes

COUNT 111
Violation of the Vermont Consumer Fraud Act
(Vt. Stat. Ann. tit. 9, §2451, et seq.)
(Against GSK)

2746. Vermont Class Representative Ronald Ragis incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

2747. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Vermont-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK with respect to OTC Zantac purchases (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

2748. Defendant is a "[s]eller" within the meaning of Vt. Stat. Ann. tit. 9, §2451a(c).

2749. Plaintiff and the Class members are "[c]onsumer[s]" within the meaning of Vt. Stat. Ann. tit. 9, §2451a(a).

2750. The Ranitidine-Containing Products are "[g]oods" within the meaning of Vt. Stat. Ann. tit. 9, §2451a(b).

2751. The Vermont consumer fraud act ("Vermont CFA") prohibits "[u]nfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair or deceptive acts or practices in commerce." Vt. Stat. Ann. tit. 9, §2453(a).

2752. In the course of its business, Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Vermont CFA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

2753. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Vermont CFA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

2754. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Vermont CFA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

2758. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding package size, and resulting misrepresentations and omissions concerning appropriate length of ingestion, of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiff and the Class members in a uniform manner.

2759. Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices, including its misrepresentations, concealments, omissions, and suppressions of material facts, as alleged herein, had a tendency or capacity to mislead and create a false impression in consumers' minds, and were likely to and, in fact, did deceive reasonable consumers, including Plaintiffsand the Class members, about: (i) the inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products; (ii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products if used within the expiration dates; and (iii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products when ingesting all doses contained within particular packaging.

2761. Plaintiff and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the Vermont CFA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

2762. Specifically, Plaintiff and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

2763. Defendant's violations present a continuing risk to Plaintiff and the Class members, as well as to the general public. Defendant's unlawful acts and practices complained of herein affect the public interest.

2764. As a result of Defendant's violations of the Vermont CFA, as alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the Vermont CFA.

COUNT 112
Breach of Implied Warranty
(Vt. Stat. Ann. tit. 9A §2-314)
(Against GSK)

2765. Vermont Class Representative Ronald Ragis incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

2766. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Vermont-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK with respect to OTC Zantac purchases (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

2767. At all relevant times, Defendant was a merchant with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products which were sold to Vermont Class Representatives and members of the Vermont Class and was in the business of selling such products.

2768. Each Ranitidine-Containing Product sold by Defendant comes with an implied warranty that it will be merchantable and fit for the ordinary purpose for which it would be used, including impliedly warrantying on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products that the products were safe and/or did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

2769. Defendant breached its implied warranty of merchantability because its products cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

2770. Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products are not fit for their intended use – or any use – because they have dangerous propensities when used as intended or within their expiration dates on the labels, and their use carries an increased risk of developing cancer.

2771. Defendant had reason to know Plaintiff and each member of the Class's particular purpose in buying Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products and knew that Plaintiff and each member of the Class relied on Defendant's skill or judgment in furnishing appropriate goods that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

2772. Plaintiff and the Class did, in fact, rely on Defendant's skill and judgment in manufacturing Ranitidine-Containing Products that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

2774. Further, Plaintiff and each member of the Class were the intended third-party beneficiaries of the implied warranties made by Defendant to purchasers of its Ranitidine-Containing Products.

2776. As a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability, as alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order awarding compensatory and punitive damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the law.

16. Causes of Action on Behalf of the Washington-GSK Classes

COUNT 113
Violation of the Washington Consumer Protection Act
(Wash. Rev. Code Ann. §19.86.010, et seq.)
(Against GSK)

2777. Washington Class Representative Earlene Green incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

2778. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Washington-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK with respect to OTC Zantac purchases (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

2779. Defendant, Plaintiff, and the Class members are "[p]erson[s]" within the meaning of Wash. Rev. Code Ann. §19.86.010(1).

2780. The Ranitidine-Containing Products are "[a]ssets" within the meaning of Wash. Rev. Code Ann. §19.86.010(3).

2781. Defendant was and is engaged in "[t]rade" or "commerce" within the meaning of Wash. Rev. Code Ann. §19.86.010(2).

2782. The Washington Consumer Protection Act ("Washington CPA") prohibits "[u]nfair methods of competition and unfair or deceptive acts or practices in the conduct of any trade or commerce." Wash. Rev. Code Ann. §19.86.020.

2783. In the course of its business, Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Washington CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

2784. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Washington CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

2785. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Washington CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

2787. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding the inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiff and the Class members in a uniform manner.

2789. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding package size, and resulting misrepresentations and omissions concerning appropriate length of ingestion, of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiff and the Class members in a uniform manner.

2790. Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices, including its misrepresentations, concealments, omissions, and suppressions of material facts, as alleged herein, had a tendency or capacity to mislead and create a false impression in consumers' minds, and were likely to and, in fact, did deceive reasonable consumers, including Plaintiff and the Class members, about: (i) the inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products; (ii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products if used within the expiration dates; and (iii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products when ingesting all doses contained within particular packaging.

2792. Plaintiff and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the Washington CPA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

2793. Specifically, Plaintiff and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

2795. On June 22, 2020, Plaintiffs in MDL 2924 sent a notice letter pursuant to Wash. Rev. Code Ann. §19.86.095 to the Attorney General of the State of Washington.

2796. As a result of Defendant's violations of the Washington CPA, as alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the Washington CPA.

COUNT 114
Breach of Implied Warranty
(Wash. Rev. Code §62A.2-314)
(Against GSK)

2797. Washington Class Representative Earlene Green incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

2798. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Washington-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK with respect to OTC Zantac purchases (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

2799. At all relevant times, Defendant was a merchant with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products which were sold to Washington Class Representatives and members of the Washington Class and was in the business of selling such products.

2800. Each Ranitidine-Containing Product sold by Defendant comes with an implied warranty that it will be merchantable and fit for the ordinary purpose for which it would be used, including impliedly warrantying on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products that the products were safe and/or did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

2801. Defendant breached its implied warranty of merchantability because its products cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

2803. Defendant had reason to know Plaintiff and each member of the Class's particular purpose in buying Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products, and knew that Plaintiff and each member of the Class relied on Defendant's skill or judgment in furnishing appropriate goods that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

2804. Plaintiff and the Class did, in fact, rely on Defendant's skill and judgment in manufacturing Ranitidine-Containing Products that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

2805. Plaintiff and each member of the Class have had sufficient direct dealings with either Defendant or its agents (including distributors, dealers, and authorized sellers) to establish privity of contract between Defendant, on the one hand, and Plaintiff and each member of the Class, on the other hand.

2806. Further, Plaintiff and each member of the Class were the intended third-party beneficiaries of the implied warranties made by Defendant to purchasers of its Ranitidine-Containing Products.

2807. Plaintiff and the members of the Class were injured as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability. Plaintiff and the members of the Class were damaged as a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability because, had they been aware of the unmerchantable condition of Ranitidine-Containing Products, they would not have purchased such drugs.

2808. As a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability, as alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order awarding compensatory and punitive damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the law.

COUNT 115
Unjust Enrichment
(Washington Law)
(Against GSK)

2809. Washington Class Representatives Earlene Green incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

2810. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Washington-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK with respect to OTC Zantac purchases (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

2811. Plaintiff and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products, or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

2813. Defendant readily accepted and retained these benefits from Plaintiff and Class members and knowingly benefitted from its unjust conduct – at Plaintiffs' and the Class members' expense – by selling worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products that contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

2814. It is unjust for the Defendant to retain these benefits because they were attained by misrepresenting and fraudulently concealing the true facts concerning the Ranitidine-Containing Products from Plaintiff and Class members, who would not have purchased the medications at all, but for the Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions.

2816. There is no express contract governing this dispute.

2817. Plaintiff and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law.

17. Causes of Action on Behalf of the Wyoming-GSK Classes

COUNT 116
Breach of Implied Warranty
(Wyo. Stat. §34.1-2-314)
(Against GSK)

2818. Wyoming Class Representative Charles Longfield incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

2819. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Wyoming-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK with respect to OTC Zantac purchases (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

2820. At all relevant times, Defendant was a merchant with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products which were sold to Wyoming Class Representatives and members of the Wyoming Class and was in the business of selling such products.

2821. Each Ranitidine-Containing Product sold by Defendant comes with an implied warranty that it will be merchantable and fit for the ordinary purpose for which it would be used, including impliedly warrantying on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products that the products were safe and/or did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

2822. Defendant breached its implied warranty of merchantability because its products cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

2824. Defendant had reason to know Plaintiff and each member of the Class's particular purpose in buying Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products and knew that Plaintiff and each member of the Class relied on Defendant's skill or judgment in furnishing appropriate goods that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

2827. Further, Plaintiff and each member of the Class were the intended third-party beneficiaries of the implied warranties made by Defendant to purchasers of its Ranitidine-Containing Products.

2829. As a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability, as alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order awarding compensatory and punitive damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the law.

COUNT 117
Unjust Enrichment
(Wyoming Law)
(Against GSK)

2830. Wyoming Class Representative Charles Longfield incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 9-13, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

2831. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Wyoming-GSK Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against GSK with respect to OTC Zantac purchases (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

2832. Plaintiff and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

2833. In exchange for their payment of the purchase price of Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products, Plaintiff and Class members received the Ranitidine-Containing Products, which Defendant did not disclose contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed. ccordingly, Plaintiff and Class members conferred a financial benefit on Defendants but did not receive their expected benefit therefrom.

2834. Defendant readily accepted, retained, and enjoyed these benefits from Plaintiff and Class members and knowingly benefitted from its unjust conduct – at Plaintiff's and the Class members' expense – by selling worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products that contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

2835. Defendant knew that Plaintiff and Class members reasonably expected to receive safe and effective medications.

2836. It is unjust for the Defendant to retain these benefits because they were attained by misrepresenting and fraudulently concealing the true facts concerning the Ranitidine-Containing Products from Plaintiff and Class members, who would not have purchased the medications at all, but for the Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions.

2838. Plaintiff and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law, nor is there an express contract governing this dispute.

B. Causes of Action Against Pfizer

2839. For the purposes of the subsequent causes of action against Defendant Pfizer, Plaintiffs are incorporating the following allegations by reference: paragraphs 14-15 (corporate information); 273-277 (jurisdiction and venue); 279-303 (development of brand Zantac); 317-361 (knowledge that NDMA is carcinogenic); 362-382 (discovery by regulatory agencies that ranitidine contained NDMA); 383-386 (transformation of ranitidine into NDMA); 387-415, 445-456 (knowledge that ranitidine had the potential to transform into NDMA); 416-422 (NDMA formation in organs of the human body); 423-435 (NDMA formation by exposure to heat, moisture and/or time); 436-442 (link between ranitidine exposure and cancer); 462-469 (requirement to notify the FDA of presence of NDMA in ranitidine); 470-474 (compliance with current Good Manufacturing Practices); 868-894 (misrepresentations or omissions of material fact in labeling); 895-911 (misrepresentations or omissions of material fact in packaging); and 475-483 (equitable tolling).

2840. Plaintiff identified in the table below bring claims against Defendant Pfizer on behalf of themselves and their respective State Classes under the laws of their respective states.

1. Causes of Action on Behalf of the Arkansas-Pfizer Classes

COUNT 118
Violation of the Arkansas Deceptive Trade Practices Act
(Ark. Code Ann. §4-88-101, et seq.)
(Against Pfizer)

2841. Arkansas Class Representative Andy Green Jr. incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 14-15, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

2842. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Arkansas-Pfizer Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Pfizer (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

2843. Defendant, Plaintiff, and the Class members are "[p]erson[s]" within the meaning of Ark. Code Ann. §4-88-102(5).

2844. The Ranitidine-Containing Products are "[g]oods" within the meaning of Ark. Code Ann. §4-88-102(4).

2845. The Arkansas Deceptive Trade Practices Act ("Arkansas DTPA") prohibits "[d]eceptive and unconscionable trade practices." Ark. Code Ann. §4-88-107(a).

2846. The Arkansas DTPA makes unlawful specific acts, including:

(a) "[k]nowingly making a false representation as to the characteristics, ingredients, uses, benefits, alterations, source, sponsorship, approval, or certification of goods or services or as to whether goods are original or new or of a particular standard, quality, grade, style, or model" (Ark. Code Ann. §4-88-107(a)(1));

(b) "[a]dvertising the goods or services with the intent not to sell them as advertised" (Ark. Code Ann. §4-88-107(a)(3)); and

(c) "[e]ngaging in any other unconscionable, false, or deceptive act or practice in business, commerce, or trade" (Ark. Code Ann. §4-88-107(a)(10)).

2847. The Arkansas DTPA also prohibits the following when utilized in connection with the sale or advertisement of any goods: "(1) The act, use, or employment by any person of any deception, fraud, or false pretense; [or] (2) [t]he concealment, suppression, or omission of any material fact with intent that others rely upon the concealment, suppression, or omission . . . ." Ark. Code Ann. §4-88-108(a).

2848. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Arkansas DTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

2849. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Arkansas DTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

2850. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Arkansas DTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

2851. Specifically, by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products, as detailed above, Defendant engaged in one or more unfair or deceptive acts or practices in the conduct of trade or commerce, in violation of the Arkansas DTPA, including:

(a) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products have characteristics, uses, benefits, and qualities which they do not have;

(b) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products are of a particular standard, quality, and grade when they are not;

(c) advertising the Ranitidine-Containing Products with the intent not to sell them as advertised; and

(d) engaging in any other unconscionable, false, misleading, or deceptive act or practice in the conduct of trade or commerce.

2854. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding package size, and resulting misrepresentations and omissions concerning appropriate length of ingestion, of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiff and the Class members in a uniform manner.

2856. The facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products that Defendant knowingly and intentionally misrepresented, omitted, concealed, and failed to disclose would be considered material by a reasonable consumer, and they were, in fact, material to Plaintiff and the Class members, who consider such facts to be important to their purchase decisions with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products.

2857. Plaintiff and the Class members relied on Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, and concealments with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products by purchasing and continuing to purchase Ranitidine-Containing Products after Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, and concealments were made.

2858. Plaintiff and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of Arkansas DTPA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

2859. Specifically, Plaintiff and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

2860. Defendant's violations present a continuing risk to Plaintiff and the Class members, as well as to the general public. Defendant's unlawful acts and practices complained of herein affect the public interest.

2861. As a result of Defendant's violations of the Arkansas DTPA, as alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the Arkansas DTPA.

COUNT 119
Breach of Implied Warranty
(Ark. Code Ann. §4-2-314)
(Against Pfizer)

2862. Arkansas Class Representative Andy Green Jr. incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 14-15, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

2863. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Arkansas-Pfizer Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Pfizer (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

2864. At all relevant times, Defendant was a merchant with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products which were sold to Arkansas Class Representatives and members of the Arkansas Class and was in the business of selling such products.

2865. Each Ranitidine-Containing Product sold by Defendant comes with an implied warranty that it will be merchantable and fit for the ordinary purpose for which it would be used, including impliedly warrantying on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products that the products were safe and/or did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

2866. Defendant breached its implied warranty of merchantability because its products cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

2868. Defendant had reason to know Plaintiff and each member of the Class's particular purpose in buying Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products and knew that Plaintiff and each member of the Class relied on Defendant's skill or judgment in furnishing appropriate goods that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

2870. Plaintiff and each member of the Class have had sufficient direct dealings with either Defendant or its agents (including distributors, dealers, and authorized sellers) to establish privity of contract between Defendant, on the one hand, and Plaintiff and each member of the Class, on the other hand.

2871. Further, Plaintiff and each member of the Class were the intended third-party beneficiaries of the implied warranties made by Defendant to purchasers of its Ranitidine-Containing Products.

2873. As a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability, as alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order awarding compensatory and punitive damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the law.

COUNT 120
Unjust Enrichment
(Arkansas Law)
(Against Pfizer)

2874. Arkansas Class Representative Andy Green Jr. incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 14-15, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

2875. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Arkansas-Pfizer Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Pfizer (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

2876. Plaintiff and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

2878. Defendant readily accepted and retained these benefits from Plaintiff and Class members and knowingly benefitted from its unjust conduct – at Plaintiff's and the Class members' expense – by selling worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products that contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

2881. There is no valid, legal, and binding contract governing this dispute.

2882. Plaintiff and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law.

2. Causes of Action on Behalf of the California-Pfizer Classes

COUNT 121
Violation of the California Unfair Competition Law
(Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code §17200, et seq.)
(Against Pfizer)

2883. California Class Representatives Golbenaz Bakhtiar, Richard O'Brien, and Virginia Aragon incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 14-15, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

2884. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the California-Pfizer Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Pfizer (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

2885. Defendant, Plaintiffs, and the Class members are "persons" within the meaning of Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code §17201.

2886. Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code §17200 ("California UCL") prohibits acts of "unfair competition," including any "unlawful, unfair or fraudulent business act or practice" and "unfair, deceptive, untrue or misleading advertising."

2887. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the California UCL by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

2889. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the California UCL by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

Defendant engaged in one or more unfair or deceptive acts or practices in the conduct of trade or commerce, in violation of the California UCL. These acts also constitute "fraudulent" business acts and practices under the California UCL in that Defendant's conduct is false, misleading, and has a tendency to deceive the Class and the general public.

2891. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding the inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiffs and the Class members in a uniform manner.

2893. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding package size, and resulting misrepresentations and omissions concerning appropriate length of ingestion, of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiff and the Class members in a uniform manner.

2894. Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices, including its misrepresentations, concealments, omissions, and suppressions of material facts, as alleged herein, had a tendency or capacity to mislead and create a false impression in consumers' minds, and were likely to and, in fact, did deceive reasonable consumers, including Plaintiff and the Class members, about: (i) the inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products; (ii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products if used within the expiration dates; and (iii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products when ingesting all doses contained within particular packaging.

material by a reasonable consumer, and they were, in fact, material to Plaintiffs and the Class members, who consider such facts to be important to their purchase decisions with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products.

2896. Moreover, Defendant engaged in "unlawful" business acts or practices by violating both federal and California laws, including: the federal RICO statute, 18 U.S.C. §1962(c)-(d); adulteration and misbranding provisions under the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act, 21 U.S.C. §§331(a), (c), (g), 351(a)(2)(B), (b), (d), 352(a)(1), (c), (e)(1)(A)(ii), (f)-(g), (i)(2)-(3), (j), (n), (p); Good Manufacturing Practices, 21 C.F.R. 210.1(a), 211.142(b); adulteration and misbranding provisions under the Sherman Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Laws, Cal. Health & Safety Code §§111260, 111280, 111290, 111295, 111305, 111330, 111345, 111355(a)(3), 111360(b), 111375, 111380, 111395(a)-(b), 111400, 111440, 111445, 111450; the Consumer Legal Remedies Act, Cal. Civ. Code §1750; and the California FAL, Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code §17500, as alleged herein.

2897. Defendant's conduct also consitutes "unfair" business acts or practies. Under the balancing test, the determination of whether a business practice is "unfair" involves examining the practice's impact on its alleged victim, balanced against the reasons, justifications, and motives of the alleged wrongdoer.

2898. Additionally, Defendant's conduct was "unfair" under the tethering test, in that it violated the federal RICO statute, 18 U.S.C. §1962(c)-(d); adulteration and misbranding provisions under the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act, 21 U.S.C. §§331(a), (c), (g), 351(a)(2)(B), (b), (d), 352(a)(1), (c), (e)(1)(A)(ii), (f)-(g), (i)(2)-(3), (j), (n), (p); Good Manufacturing Practices, 21 C.F.R. 210.1(a), 211.142(b); adulteration and misbranding provisions under the Sherman Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Laws, Cal. Health & Safety Code §§111260, 111280, 111290, 111295, 111305, 111330, 111345, 111355(a)(3), 111360(b), 111375, 111380, 111395(a)-(b), 111400, 111440, 111445, 111450; the Consumer Legal Remedies Act, see Cal. Civ. Code §1760; and the California FAL, Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code §17500, which reflect the United States' and California's policy of protecting consumers against unfair and deceptive business practices and adulterated and misbranded drugs.

2899. Plaintiffs and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the California UCL because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

2900. Specifically, Plaintiffs and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

2902. Pursuant to Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code §§17200 and 17203, Plaintiffs and the Class members seek an order providing restitution relating to the above-described unfair business acts or practices, and injunctive and declaratory relief as may be appropriate.

COUNT 122
Violation of the California False Advertising Law
(Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code §17500, et seq.)
(Against Pfizer)

2903. California Class Representatives Golbenaz Bakhtiar, Richard O'Brien, and Virginia Aragon incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 14-15, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

2904. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the California-Pfizer Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Pfizer (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

2905. Defendant, Plaintiffs, and the Class members are "persons" within the meaning of Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code §17506.

2906. The California False Advertising Law ("California FAL") prohibits "any person, . . . corporation . . . or any employee thereof with intent directly or indirectly to dispose of real or personal property . . . or to induce the public to enter into any obligation relating thereto, to make or disseminate or cause to be made or disseminated . . . before the public in this state or from this state before the public in any state, in any newspaper or other publication, or any advertising device, . . . or in any other manner or means whatever, including over the internet, any statement . . . which is untrue or misleading, and which is known, or which by the exercise of reasonable care should be known, to be untrue or misleading." Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code §17500.

2907. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the California FAL by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

2908. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the California FAL by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

2909. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the California FAL by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

2910. Specifically, by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products, as detailed above, Defendant engaged in one or more unfair or deceptive acts or practices in the conduct of trade or commerce, in violation of the California FAL, including:

(a) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products have characteristics, uses, benefits, and qualities which they do not have;

(b) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products are of a particular standard, quality, and grade when they are not;

(c) advertising the Ranitidine-Containing Products with the intent not to sell them as advertised; and

(d) engaging in any other unconscionable, false, misleading, or deceptive act or practice in the conduct of trade or commerce.

2911. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding the inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiff and the Class members in a uniform manner.

2913. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding package size, and resulting misrepresentations and omissions concerning appropriate length of ingestion, of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiffs and the Class members in a uniform manner.

2914. Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices, including its misrepresentations, concealments, omissions, and suppressions of material facts, as alleged herein, had a tendency or capacity to mislead and create a false impression in consumers' minds, and were likely to and, in fact, did deceive reasonable consumers, including Plaintiffs and the Class members, about: (i) the inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products; (ii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products if used within the expiration dates; and (iii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products when ingesting all doses contained within particular packaging.

2915. The facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products that Defendant knowingly and intentionally misrepresented, omitted, concealed, and failed to disclose would be considered material by a reasonable consumer, and they were, in fact, material to Plaintiffs and the Class members, who consider such facts to be important to their purchase decisions with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products.

2916. Plaintiffs and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the California FAL because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

2917. Specifically, Plaintiffs and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

2919. As a result of Defendant's violations of the California FAL, as alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members seek an order providing restitution and disgorgement of all profits relating to the above-described business acts or practices, and other appropriate relief, including injunctive and declaratory relief as may be appropriate under the California FAL.

COUNT 123
Violation of the California Consumers Legal Remedies Act
(Cal. Civ. Code §1750, et seq.)
(Against Pfizer)

2920. California Class Representatives Golbenaz Bakhtiar, Richard O'Brien, and Virginia Aragon incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 14-15, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

2921. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the California-Pfizer Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Pfizer (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

2922. Defendant, Plaintiffs, and the Class members are "[p]erson[s]" within the meaning of Cal. Civ. Code §1761(c).

2923. Plaintiffs and the Class members are "[c]onsumer[s]" within the meaning of Cal. Civ. Code §1761(d).

2924. The Ranitidine-Containing Products are "[g]oods" within the meaning of Cal. Civ. Code §1761(a).

2925. The California Consumers Legal Remedies Act ("California CLRA") prohibits "unfair methods of competition and unfair or deceptive acts or practices undertaken by any person in a transaction intended to result or that results in the sale or lease of goods or services to any consumer." Cal. Civ. Code §1770(a).

2926. The California CLRA makes unlawful specific acts, including:

(a) "[r]epresenting that goods or services have sponsorship, approval, characteristics, ingredients, uses, benefits, or quantities that they do not have" (Cal. Civ. Code §1770(a)(5));

(b) "[r]epresenting that goods or services are of a particular standard, quality, or grade, or that goods are of a particular style or model, if they are of another" (Cal. Civ. Code §1770(a)(7));

(c) "[a]dvertising goods or services with intent not to sell them as advertised" (Cal. Civ. Code §1770(a)(9)); and

(d) "[r]epresenting that the subject of a transaction has been supplied in accordance with a previous representation when it has not" (Cal. Civ. Code §1770(a)(16)).

2927. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the California CLRA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

2928. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the California CLRA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

2929. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the California CLRA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

2930. Specifically, by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products, as detailed above, Defendant engaged in one or more unfair or deceptive acts or practices in the conduct of trade or commerce, in violation of the California CLRA, including:

(a) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products have characteristics, uses, benefits, and qualities which they do not have;

(b) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products are of a particular standard, quality, and grade when they are not;

(c) advertising the Ranitidine-Containing Products with the intent not to sell them as advertised; and

(d) engaging in any other unconscionable, false, misleading, or deceptive act or practice in the conduct of trade or commerce.

2933. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding package size, and resulting misrepresentations and omissions concerning appropriate length of ingestion, of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiffs and the Class members in a uniform manner.

2936. Plaintiffs and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the California CLRA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products, as set forth above.

2937. Specifically, Plaintiffs and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

2940. Pursuant to Cal. Civ. Code §1780(a), Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding damages and any other just and proper relief available under the California CLRA. Under Cal. Civ. Code §1780(b), Plaintiffs seek an additional award against Defendant of up to $5,000 for each Class member who qualifies as a "senior citizen" or "disabled person" under the California CLRA. Defendant knew or should have known that its conduct was directed to one or more Class members who are senior citizens or disabled persons. Defendant's conduct caused one or more of these senior citizens or disabled persons to suffer a substantial loss of property set aside for retirement or for personal or family care and maintenance, or assets essential to the health or welfare of the senior citizen or disabled person. One or more Class members who are senior citizens or disabled persons are substantially more vulnerable to Defendant's conduct because of age, poor health or infirmity, impaired understanding, restricted mobility, or disability, and each of them suffered substantial economic damage resulting from Defendant's conduct.

COUNT 124
Breach of Implied Warranty
(Cal. Com. Code §2314)
(Against Pfizer)

2941. California Class Representatives Golbenaz Bakhtiar, Richard O'Brien, and Virginia Aragon incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 14-15, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

2942. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the California-Pfizer Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Pfizer (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

2944. Each Ranitidine-Containing Product sold by Defendant comes with an implied warranty that it will be merchantable and fit for the ordinary purpose for which it would be used, including impliedly warrantying on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products that the products were safe and/or did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

2945. Defendant breached its implied warranty of merchantability because its products cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

2946. Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products are not fit for their intended use – or any use – because they have dangerous propensities when used as intended or within their expiration dates on the labels, and their use carries an increased risk of developing cancer.

2947. Defendant had reason to know Plaintiffs and each member of the Class's particular purpose in buying Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products and knew that Plaintiffs and each member of the Class relied on Defendant's skill or judgment in furnishing appropriate goods that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

2950. Further, Plaintiffs and each member of the Class were the intended third-party beneficiaries of the implied warranties made by Defendant to purchasers of its Ranitidine-Containing Products.

2952. As a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability, as alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members seek an order awarding compensatory and punitive damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the law.

COUNT 125
Unjust Enrichment or Quasi-Contract
(California Law)
(Against Pfizer)

2953. California Class Representatives Golbenaz Bakhtiar, Richard O'Brien, and Virginia Aragon incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 14-15, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

2954. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the California-Pfizer Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Pfizer (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

2955. Plaintiffs and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed. Accordingly, Plaintiffs and Class members conferred a financial benefit on Defendants but did not receive their expected benefit therefrom.

2958. It is unjust and inequitable for the Defendant to retain these benefits because they were attained by misrepresenting and fraudulently concealing the true facts concerning the Ranitidine-Containing Products from Plaintiffs and Class members, who would not have purchased the medications at all, but for the Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions.

2960. Plaintiffs and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law.

3. Causes of Action on Behalf of the Colorado-Pfizer Classes

COUNT 126
Violation of the Colorado Consumer Protection Act
(Colo. Rev. Stat. Ann. §6-1-101, et seq.)
(Against Pfizer)

2961. Colorado Class Representative Jeffrey Pisano incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 14-15, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

2962. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Colorado-Pfizer Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Pfizer (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

2963. Defendant, Plaintiff, and the Class members are "[p]erson[s]" within the meaning of Colo. Rev. Stat. Ann. §6-1-102(6).

2964. The Colorado Consumer Protection Act ("Colorado CPA") prohibits unfair, unconscionable, and deceptive acts or practices "in the course of the person's business, vocation, or occupation." Colo. Rev. Stat. Ann. §6-1-105(1).

2965. The Colorado CPA makes unlawful specific acts, including:

(a) "[e]ither knowingly or recklessly mak[ing] a false representation as to the source, sponsorship, approval, or certification of goods, services, or property" (Colo. Rev. Stat. Ann. §6-1-105(1)(b));

(b) "[r]epresent[ing] that goods, food, services, or property are of a particular standard, quality, or grade, or that goods are of a particular style or model, if he knows or should know that they are of another" (Colo. Rev. Stat. Ann. §6-1-105(1)(g));

(c) "[a]dvertis[ing] goods, services, or property with intent not to sell them as advertised" (Colo. Rev. Stat. Ann. §6-1-105(1)(i));

(d) "[f]ails to disclose material information concerning goods, services, or property which information was known at the time of an advertisement or sale if such failure to disclose such information was intended to induce the consumer to enter into a transaction" (Colo. Rev. Stat. Ann. §6-1-105(1)(u)); and

(e) "[e]ither knowingly or recklessly engage[ing] in any unfair, unconscionable, deceptive, deliberately misleading, false, or fraudulent act or practice" (Colo. Rev. Stat. Ann. §6-1-105(1)(kkk)).

2966. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Colorado CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer. Such conduct was bad faith conduct under the Colorado CPA.

2967. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Colorado CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

2968. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Colorado CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

Defendant engaged in one or more unfair or deceptive acts or practices in the conduct of trade or commerce, in violation of the Colorado CPA, including:

(a) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products have characteristics, uses, benefits, and qualities which they do not have;

(b) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products are of a particular standard, quality, and grade when they are not;

(c) advertising the Ranitidine-Containing Products with the intent not to sell them as advertised;

(d) engaging in any other unconscionable, false, misleading, or deceptive act or practice in the conduct of trade or commerce; and

(e) failing to disclose the defective Ranitidine-Containing Products in connection with their sale to the public.

2970. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding the inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiff and the Class members in a uniform manner.

2971. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding the expiration dates of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiff and the Class members in a uniform manner.

2972. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding package size, and resulting misrepresentations and omissions concerning appropriate length of ingestion, of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiff and the Class members in a uniform manner.

inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products; (ii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products if used within the expiration dates; and (iii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products when ingesting all doses contained within particular packaging.

2974. The facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products that Defendant knowingly and intentionally misrepresented, omitted, concealed, and failed to disclose would be considered material by a reasonable consumer, and they were, in fact, material to Plaintiff and the Class members, who consider such facts to be important to their purchase decisions with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products.

2975. Plaintiff and the Class members relied on Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, and concealments with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products by purchasing and continuing to purchase Ranitidine-Containing Products after Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, and concealments were made.

2976. Plaintiff and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the Colorado CPA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

2977. Specifically, Plaintiff and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

2978. Defendant's violations present a continuing risk to Plaintiff and the Class members, as well as to the general public. Defendant's unlawful acts and practices complained of herein affect the public interest.

2979. As a result of Defendant's violations of the Colorado CPA, as alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the Colorado CPA.

COUNT 127
Unjust Enrichment
(Colorado Law)
(Against Pfizer)

2980. Colorado Class Representatives Jeffrey Pisano and Tammy Smith incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 14-15, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

2981. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Colorado-Pfizer Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Pfizer (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

2982. Plaintiff and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

Plaintiff and Class members suffered a detriment because they purchased worthless medications and did not receive the expected benefit therefrom.

2985. It is unjust and inequitable for the Defendant to retain these benefits without commensurate compensation because they were attained by misrepresenting and fraudulently concealing the true facts concerning the Ranitidine-Containing Products from Plaintiff and Class members, who would not have purchased the medications at all, but for the Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions.

2987. Plaintiff and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law.

COUNT 128
Violation of the Connecticut Unfair Trade Practices Act
(Conn. Gen. Stat. Ann. §42-110a, et seq.)
(Against Pfizer)

2988. Connecticut Class Representative Angel Cordero incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 14-15, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

2989. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Connecticut-Pfizer Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Pfizer (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

2990. Defendant, Plaintiff, and the Class members are "[p]erson[s]" within the meaning of Conn. Gen. Stat. Ann. §42-110a(3).

2991. Defendant was and is engaged in "[t]rade" or "commerce" within the meaning of Conn. Gen. Stat. Ann. §42-110a(4).

2992. The Connecticut Unfair Trade Practices Act ("Connecticut UTPA") prohibits "unfair methods of competition and unfair or deceptive acts or practices in the conduct of any trade or commerce." Conn. Gen. Stat. Ann. §42-110b(a).

2993. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Connecticut UTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

2994. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Connecticut UTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

2995. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Connecticut UTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiff and the Class members in a uniform manner.

3000. Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices, including its misrepresentations, concealments, omissions, and suppressions of material facts, as alleged herein, had a tendency or capacity to mislead and create a false impression in consumers' minds, and were likely to and, in fact, did deceive reasonable consumers, including Plaintiff and the Class members, about: (i) the inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products; (ii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products if used within the expiration dates; and (iii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products when ingesting all doses contained within particular packaging.

3001. The facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products that Defendant knowingly and intentionally misrepresented, omitted, concealed, and failed to disclose would be considered material by a reasonable consumer, and they were, in fact, material to Plaintiff and the Class members, who consider such facts to be important to their purchase decisions with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products.

3002. Plaintiff and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the Connecticut UTPA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

3003. Specifically, Plaintiff and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

3005. As a result of Defendant's violations of the Connecticut UTPA, as alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the Connecticut UTPA.

COUNT 129
Breach of Implied Warranty
(Conn. Gen. Stat. Ann. §42a-2-314)
(Against Pfizer)

3006. Connecticut Class Representative Angel Cordero incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 14-15, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

3007. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Connecticut-Pfizer Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Pfizer (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

3008. At all relevant times, Defendant was a merchant with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products which were sold to the Connecticut Class Representative and members of the Connecticut Class and was in the business of selling such products.

3009. Each Ranitidine-Containing Product sold by Defendant comes with an implied warranty that it will be merchantable and fit for the ordinary purpose for which it would be used, including impliedly warrantying on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products that the products were safe and/or did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

3010. Defendant breached its implied warranty of merchantability because its products cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

3012. Defendant had reason to know Plaintiff and each member of the Class's particular purpose in buying Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products and knew that Plaintiff and each member of the Class relied on Defendant's skill or judgment in furnishing appropriate goods that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

3013. Plaintiff and the Class did, in fact, rely on Defendant's skill and judgment in manufacturing Ranitidine-Containing Products that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

3014. Plaintiff and each member of the Class have had sufficient direct dealings with either Defendant or its agents (including distributors, dealers, and authorized sellers) to establish privity of contract between Defendant, on the one hand, and Plaintiff and each member of the Class, on the other hand.

3015. Further, Plaintiff and each member of the Class were the intended third-party beneficiaries of the implied warranties made by Defendant to purchasers of its Ranitidine-Containing Products.

3016. Plaintiff and the members of the Class were injured as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability. Plaintiff and the members of the Class were damaged as a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability because, had they been aware of the unmerchantable condition of Ranitidine-Containing Products, they would not have purchased such drugs.

3017. As a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability, as alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order awarding compensatory and punitive damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the law.

COUNT 130
Unjust Enrichment
(Connecticut Law)
(Against Pfizer)

3018. Connecticut Class Representative Angel Cordero incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 14-15, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

3019. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Connecticut-Pfizer Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Pfizer (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

3020. Plaintiff and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

3021. In exchange for their payment of the purchase price of Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products, Plaintiff and Class members received the Ranitidine-Containing Products, which Defendant did not disclose contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed. Accordingly,

Plaintiff and Class members conferred a financial benefit on Defendants but did not receive their expected benefit therefrom.

3025. Plaintiff and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law.

3026. Florida Class Representatives Gustavo Velasquez, Joshua Winans, Michael Galloway, Ricardo Moròn, Ronald Ragis, and Kathy Jeffries incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 14-15, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

3027. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Florida-Pfizer Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Pfizer (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

3028. The Florida Deceptive and Unfair Trade Practices Act ("FDUTPA") prohibits "[u]nfair methods of competition, unconscionable acts or practices, and unfair or deceptive acts or practices in the conduct of any trade or commerce." Fla. Stat. Ann. §501.204(1).

3029. In construing the provisions of the FDUTPA, "due consideration and great weight shall be given to the interpretations of the Federal Trade Commission and the federal courts relating to s. 5(a)(1) of the Federal Trade Commission Act, 15 U.S.C. s. 45(a)(1) as of July 1, 2017." Fla. Stat. Ann. §501.204(2).

3030. Plaintiffs and the Class members are "[c]onsumer[s]" and "[i]nterested part[ies] or person[s]" as defined by the FDUTPA. See Fla. Stat. Ann. §501.203(6)-(7).

3031. Defendant engaged in "[t]rade or commerce" as defined by the FDUTPA. See Fla. Stat. Ann. §501.203(8).

3032. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the FDUTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

3033. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the FDUTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

3034. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the FDUTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

3038. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding package size, and resulting misrepresentations and omissions concerning appropriate length of ingestion, of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiffs and the Class members in a uniform manner.

3039. Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices, including its misrepresentations, concealments, omissions, and suppressions of material facts, as alleged herein, had a tendency or capacity to mislead and create a false impression in consumers' minds, and were likely to and, in fact, did deceive reasonable consumers, including Plaintiffs and the Class members, about: (i) the inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products; (ii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products if used within the expiration dates; and (iii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products when ingesting all doses contained within particular packaging.

3041. Plaintiffs and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the FDUTPA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

3042. Specifically, Plaintiffs and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

3043. Defendant's violations present a continuing risk to Plaintiffs and the Class members, as well as to the general public. Defendant's unlawful acts and practices complained of herein affect the public interest.

3044. As a result of Defendant's violations of the FDUTPA, as alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the FDUTPA.

thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed. Accordingly, Plaintiffs and Class members suffered an impoverishment because they purchased worthless medications and did not receive the expected benefit therefrom.

3049. Defendant voluntarily accepted and retained these benefits from Plaintiffs and Class members and was knowingly enriched by its unjust conduct – at Plaintiffs' and the Class members' expense – by selling worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products that contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

3050. It is unjust and inequitable for the Defendant to retain these benefits without paying the value thereof because the benefits were attained by misrepresenting and fraudulently concealing the true facts concerning the Ranitidine-Containing Products from Plaintiffs and Class members, who would not have purchased the medications at all, but for the Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions.

3052. There is no express written contract governing this dispute.

3053. Plaintiffs and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law.

6. Causes of Action on Behalf of the Georgia-Pfizer Classes

COUNT 133
Violation of the Georgia Fair Business Practices Act
(Ga. Code Ann. §10-1-390, et seq.)
(Against Pfizer)

3054. Georgia Class Representative Kathy Jeffries incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 14-15, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

3055. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Georgia-Pfizer Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Pfizer (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

3056. Defendant, Plaintiffs, and the Class members are "[p]erson[s]" within the meaning of Ga. Code Ann. §10-1-392(a)(24).

3057. Plaintiffs and the Class members are "[c]onsumer[s]" within the meaning of Ga. Code Ann. §10-1-392(a)(6).

3058. Defendant was and is engaged in "[t]rade" and "commerce" within the meaning of Ga. Code Ann. §10-1-392(a)(28).

3059. The Georgia Fair Business Practices Act ("Georgia FBPA") prohibits "[u]nfair or deceptive acts or practices in the conduct of consumer transactions and consumer acts or practices in trade or commerce." Ga. Code Ann. §10-1-393(a).

3060. The Georgia FBPA makes unlawful specific acts, including:

(a) "[r]epresenting that goods or services have sponsorship, approval, characteristics, ingredients, uses, benefits, or quantities that they do not have" (Ga. Code Ann. §10-1-393(b)(5));

(b) "[r]epresenting that goods or services are of a particular standard, quality, or grade or that goods are of a particular style or model, if they are of another" (Ga. Code Ann. §10-1-393(b)(7)); and

(c) "[a]dvertising goods or services with intent not to sell them as advertised" (Ga. Code Ann. §10-1-393(b)(9)).

3061. In the course of its business, Defendant, through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Georgia FBPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

3062. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Georgia FBPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

3063. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Georgia FBPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

3064. Specifically, by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products, as detailed above, Defendant engaged in one or more unfair or deceptive acts or practices in the conduct of trade or commerce, in violation of the Georgia FBPA, including:

(a) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products have characteristics, uses, benefits, and qualities which they do not have;

(b) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products are of a particular standard, quality, and grade when they are not;

(c) advertising the Ranitidine-Containing Products with the intent not to sell them as advertised; and

(d) engaging in any other unconscionable, false, misleading, or deceptive act or practice in the conduct of trade or commerce.

3065. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding the inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiffs and the Class members in a uniform manner.

3066. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding the expiration dates of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiffs and the Class members in a uniform manner.

3067. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding package size, and resulting misrepresentations and omissions concerning appropriate length of ingestion, of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiffs and the Class members in a uniform manner.

3068. Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices, including its misrepresentations, concealments, omissions, and suppressions of material facts, as alleged herein, had a tendency or capacity to mislead and create a false impression in consumers' minds, and were likely to and, in fact, did deceive reasonable consumers, including Plaintiffs and the Class members, about: (i) the inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products; (ii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products if used within the expiration dates; and (iii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products when ingesting all doses contained within particular packaging.

material by a reasonable consumer, and they were, in fact, material to Plaintiffs and the Class members, who consider such facts to be important to their purchase decisions with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products.

3070. Plaintiffs and the Class members reasonably relied on Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, and concealments with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products by purchasing and continuing to purchase Ranitidine-Containing Products after Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, and concealments were made.

3071. Plaintiffs and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the Georgia FBPA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

3072. Specifically, Plaintiffs and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

in MDL 2924 sent a notice letter pursuant to Ga. Code Ann. §10-1-399(b) to Defendant. Because Defendant failed to adequately remedy its unlawful conduct within the requisite time period, Plaintiffs seek all damages and relief to which Plaintiffs and the Class members are entitled.

3075. As a result of Defendant's violations of the Georgia FBPA, as alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the Georgia FBPA.

COUNT 134
Unjust Enrichment
(Georgia Law)
(Against Pfizer)

3076. Georgia Class Representative Kathy Jeffries and incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 14-15, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

3077. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Georgia-Pfizer Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Pfizer (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

3078. Plaintiffs and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products, or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

3079. In exchange for their payment of the purchase price of Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products, Plaintiffs and Class members received the Ranitidine-Containing Products, which Defendant did not disclose contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed. Accordingly,

Plaintiffs and Class members conferred a financial benefit on Defendants but did not receive their expected benefit therefrom.

3080. Defendant readily accepted and retained these benefits from Plaintiffs and Class members and knowingly benefitted from its unjust conduct – at Plaintiffs' and the Class members' expense – by selling worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products that contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

3081. It is inequitable and unconscionable for the Defendant to retain these benefits because they were attained by misrepresenting and fraudulently concealing the true facts concerning the Ranitidine-Containing Products from Plaintiffs and Class members, who would not have purchased the medications at all, but for the Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions.

3083. There is no express contract governing this dispute.

3084. Plaintiffs and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law.

7. Causes of Action on Behalf of the Illinois-Pfizer Classes

COUNT 135
Violation of the Illinois Consumer Fraud and Deceptive Business Practices Act
(815 Ill. Comp. Stat. Ann. 505/1, et seq.)
(Against Pfizer)

3085. Illinois Class Representative Carol Harkins incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 14-15, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

3086. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Illinois-Pfizer Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Pfizer (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

3087. Defendant, Plaintiff, and the Class members are "person[s]" within the meaning of 815 Ill. Comp. Stat. Ann. 505/1(c).

3088. Plaintiff and the Class members are "consumer[s]" within the meaning of 815 Ill. Comp. Stat. Ann. 505/1(e).

3089. The Ranitidine-Containing Products are "merchandise" within the meaning of 815 Ill. Comp. Stat. Ann. 505/1(b).

3090. Defendant was and is engaged in "trade" and "commerce" within the meaning of 815 Ill. Comp. Stat. Ann. 505/1(f).

3091. The Illinois Consumer Fraud and Deceptive Business Practices Act ("Illinois CFDBPA") prohibits "[u]nfair methods of competition and unfair or deceptive acts or practices, including, but not limited to, the use or employment of any deception fraud, false pretense, false promise, misrepresentation or the concealment, suppression or omission of any material fact, with intent that others rely upon the concealment, suppression or omission of such material fact, or the use or employment of any practice described in Section 2 of the 'Uniform Deceptive Trade Practices Act' [815 Ill. Comp. Stat. Ann. 510/2], approved August 5, 1965, in the conduct of any trade or commerce." 815 Ill. Comp. Stat. Ann. 505/2.

3092. In the course of its business, Defendant, through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Illinois CFDBPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

3093. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Illinois CFDBPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

3094. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Illinois CFDBPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

Defendant engaged in one or more unfair or deceptive business practices prohibited by the Illinois CFDBPA.

3096. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding the inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiff and the Class members in a uniform manner.

3097. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding the expiration dates of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiff and the Class members in a uniform manner.

3098. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding package size, and resulting misrepresentations and omissions concerning appropriate length of ingestion, of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiff and the Class members in a uniform manner.

3099. Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices, including its misrepresentations, concealments, omissions, and suppressions of material facts, as alleged herein, had a tendency or capacity to mislead and create a false impression in consumers' minds, and were likely to and, in fact, did deceive reasonable consumers, including Plaintiff and the Class members, about: (i) the inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products; (ii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products if used within the expiration dates; and (iii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products when ingesting all doses contained within particular packaging.

3100. The facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products that Defendant knowingly and intentionally misrepresented, omitted, concealed, and failed to disclose would be considered material by a reasonable consumer, and they were, in fact, material to Plaintiff and the Class members, who consider such facts to be important to their purchase decisions with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products.

3101. Plaintiff and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the Illinois CFDBPA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

3102. Specifically, Plaintiff and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

3104. As a result of Defendant's violations of the Illinois CFDBPA, as alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the Illinois CFDBPA.

COUNT 136
Unjust Enrichment
(Illinois Law)
(Against Pfizer)

3105. Illinois Class Representative Carol Harkins incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 14-15, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

3106. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Illinois-Pfizer Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Pfizer (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

3107. Plaintiff and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products, or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

3109. Defendant readily accepted and retained these benefits from Plaintiff and Class members and knowingly benefitted from its unjust conduct – at Plaintiff's and the Class members' expense – by selling worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products that contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

3110. It violates the principles of justice, equity, and good conscience for the Defendant to retain these benefits because they were attained by misrepresenting and fraudulently concealing the true facts concerning the Ranitidine-Containing Products from Plaintiff and Class members, who would not have purchased the medications at all, but for the Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions.

3112. Plaintiff and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law, nor is there an express contract governing the dispute.

8. Causes of Action on Behalf of the Kentucky-Pfizer Classes

COUNT 137
Violation of the Kentucky Consumer Protection Act
(Ky. Rev. Stat. Ann. §367.110, et seq.)
(Against Pfizer)

3113. Kentucky Class Representative Janet Asbury incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 14-15, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

3114. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Kentucky-Pfizer Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Pfizer (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

3115. Defendant, Plaintiff, and the Class members are "[p]erson[s]" within the meaning of Ky. Rev. Stat. Ann. §367.110(1).

3116. Defendant was and is engaged in "[t]rade" or "commerce" within the meaning of Ky. Rev. Stat. Ann. §367.110(2).

3117. The Kentucky Consumer Protection Act ("Kentucky CPA") prohibits "[u]nfair, [unconscionable], false, misleading, or deceptive acts or practices in the conduct of any trade or commerce." Ky. Rev. Stat. Ann. §367.170(1)-(2).

3118. In the course of its business, Defendant, through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Kentucky CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

3119. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Kentucky CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

3120. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Kentucky CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

3122. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding the inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiff and the Class members in a uniform manner.

3124. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding package size, and resulting misrepresentations and omissions concerning appropriate length of ingestion, of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiff and the Class members in a uniform manner.

3127. Plaintiff and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the Kentucky CPA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

3128. Specifically, Plaintiff and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

3129. Defendant's violations present a continuing risk to Plaintiff and the Class members, as well as to the general public. Defendant's unlawful acts and practices complained of herein affect the public interest.

3130. As a result of Defendant's violations of the Kentucky CPA, as alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the Kentucky CPA.

COUNT 138
Breach of Implied Warranty
(Ky. Rev. Stat. Ann. §355.2-314)
(Against Pfizer)

3131. Kentucky Class Representative Janet Asbury incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 14-15, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

3132. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Kentucky-Pfizer Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Pfizer (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

3133. At all relevant times, Defendant was a merchant with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products which were sold to Kentucky Class Representatives and members of the Kentucy Class and was in the business of selling such products.

3134. Each Ranitidine-Containing Product sold by Defendant comes with an implied warranty that it will be merchantable and fit for the ordinary purpose for which it would be used, including impliedly warrantying on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products that the products were safe and/or did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

3135. Defendant breached its implied warranty of merchantability because its products cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

3137. Defendant had reason to know Plaintiff and each member of the Class's particular purpose in buying Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products, and knew that Plaintiff and each member of the Class relied on Defendant's skill or judgment in furnishing appropriate goods that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

3138. Plaintiff and the Class did, in fact, rely on Defendant's skill and judgment in manufacturing Ranitidine-Containing Products that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

3140. Further, Plaintiff and each member of the Class were the intended third-party beneficiaries of the implied warranties made by Defendant to purchasers of its Ranitidine-Containing Products.

3141. Plaintiff and the members of the Class were injured as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability. Plaintiff and the members of the Class were damaged as a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability because, had they been aware of the unmerchantable condition of Ranitidine-Containing Products, they would not have purchased such drugs.

3142. As a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability, as alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order awarding compensatory and punitive damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the law.

COUNT 139
Unjust Enrichment
(Kentucky Law)
(Against Brand Manufacturer Defendant Pfizer)

3143. Kentucky Class Representative Janet Asbury incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 14-15, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

3144. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Kentucky-Pfizer Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Pfizer (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

3145. Plaintiff and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

3148. It would be inequitable for the Defendant to retain these benefits because they were attained by misrepresenting and fraudulently concealing the true facts concerning the Ranitidine-Containing Products from Plaintiff and Class members, who would not have purchased the medications at all, but for the Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions.

3150. Plaintiff and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law.

9. Causes of Action on Behalf of the Louisiana-Pfizer Classes

COUNT 140
Violation of the Louisiana Unfair Trade Practices and Consumer Protection Law
(La. Stat. Ann. §51:1401, et seq.)
(Against Pfizer)

3151. Louisiana Class Representatives, Tammy Smith and Randy Jones incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 14-15, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

3152. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Louisiana-Pfizer Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Pfizer (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

3153. Defendant, Plaintiffs, and the Class members are "[p]erson[s]" within the meaning of La. Stat. Ann. §51:1402(8).

3154. Plaintiffs and the Class members are "[c]onsumer[s]" within the meaning of La. Stat. Ann. §51:1402(1).

3155. Defendant was and is engaged in "[t]rade" or "commerce" within the meaning of La. Stat. Ann. §51:1402(10).

3156. The Louisiana Unfair Trade Practices and Consumer Protection Law ("Louisiana CPL") prohibits "[u]nfair methods of competition and unfair or deceptive acts or practices in the conduct of any trade or commerce." La. Stat. Ann. §51:1405(A).

3157. In the course of its business, Defendant, through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Louisiana CPL by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

3158. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Louisiana CPL by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

3159. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Louisiana CPL by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

3163. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding package size, and resulting misrepresentations and omissions concerning appropriate length of ingestion, of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiffs and the Class members in a uniform manner.

3164. Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices, including its misrepresentations, concealments, omissions, and suppressions of material facts, as alleged herein, had a tendency or capacity to mislead and create a false impression in consumers' minds, and were likely to and, in fact, did deceive reasonable consumers, including Plaintiffs and the Class members, about: (i) the inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products; (ii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products if used within the expiration dates; and (iii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products when ingesting all doses contained within particular packaging.

3167. Plaintiffs and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the Louisiana CPL because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

3168. Specifically, Plaintiffs and the Class were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

3169. Defendant's violations present a continuing risk to Plaintiffs and the Class members, as well as to the general public. Defendant's unlawful acts and practices complained of herein affect the public interest.

3170. As a result of Defendant's violations of the Louisiana CPL, as alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members seek an order awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the Louisiana CPL.

COUNT 141
Breach of Implied Warranty
(La. Civ. Code Ann. Art. §2520)
(Against Pfizer)

3171. Louisiana Class Representatives, Tammy Smith and Randy Jones incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 14-15, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

3172. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Louisiana-Pfizer Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Pfizer (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

3173. At all relevant times, Defendant was a merchant with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products which were sold to Louisiana Class Representatives and members of the Louisiana Class and was in the business of selling such products.

3174. Each Ranitidine-Containing Product sold by Defendant comes with an implied warranty that it will be merchantable and fit for the ordinary purpose for which it would be used, including impliedly warrantying on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products that the products were safe and/or did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

3177. Defendant had reason to know Plaintiffs and each member of the Class's particular purpose in buying Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products and knew that Plaintiffs and each member of the Class relied on Defendant's skill or judgment in furnishing appropriate goods that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

3178. Plaintiffs and the Class did, in fact, rely on Defendant's skill and judgment in manufacturing Ranitidine-Containing Products that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

3180. Further, Plaintiffs and each member of the Class were the intended third-party beneficiaries of the implied warranties made by Defendant to purchasers of its Ranitidine-Containing Products.

3182. As a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability, as alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members seek an order awarding compensatory and punitive damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the law.

COUNT 142
Unjust Enrichment
(Louisiana Law)
(Against Pfizer)

3183. Louisiana Class Representatives, Tammy Smith and Randy Jones incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 14-15, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

3184. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Louisiana-Pfizer Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Pfizer (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

3185. Plaintiffs and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

3187. Defendant readily accepted and retained these benefits from Plaintiffs and Class members and was knowingly enriched by its unjust conduct – at Plaintiffs' and the Class members' expense – by selling worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products that contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which

the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

3188. Defendant's enrichment – the monies obtained from Plaintiffs for the Ranitidine-Containing Products – was the result of Plaintiffs' impoverishment – the receipt by Plaintiffs of worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe and unfit for human consumption.

3189. It is unjustifiable for the Defendant to retain these benefits because they were attained by misrepresenting and fraudulently concealing the true facts concerning the Ranitidine-Containing Products from Plaintiffs and Class members, who would not have purchased the medications at all, but for the Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions.

3191. Plaintiffs and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law, nor is there an express contract governing this dispute.

10. Causes of Action on Behalf of the Maryland-Pfizer Classes

COUNT 143
Violation of the Maryland Consumer Protection Act
(Md. Code Ann., Com. Law §13-101, et seq.)
(Against Pfizer)

3192. Maryland Class Representatives Alberta Griffin, Charles Longfield, Ida Adams and Nicholas Hazlett incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 14-15, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

3193. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Maryland-Pfizer Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Pfizer (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

3194. Defendant, Plaintiffs, and the Class members are "[p]erson[s]" within the meaning of Md. Code Ann., Com. Law §13-101(h).

3195. Plaintiffs and the Class members are "[c]onsumer[s]" within the meaning of Md. Code Ann., Com. Law §13-101(c)(1).

3196. The Ranitidine-Containing Products are "[m]erchandise" within the meaning of Md. Code Ann., Com. Law §13-101(f).

3197. The Maryland Consumer Protection Act ("Maryland CPA") prohibits "[u]nfair, abusive, or deceptive trade practices." Md. Code Ann., Com. Law §13-301.

3198. The Maryland CPA makes unlawful specific acts, including:

(a) "[f]alse, falsely disparaging, or misleading oral or written statement, visual description, or other representation of any kind which has the capacity, tendency, or effect of deceiving or misleading consumers" (Md. Code Ann., Com. Law §13-301(1));

(b) "[r]epresent[ing] that . . . [c]onsumer goods, consumer realty, or consumer services have a sponsorship, approval, accessory, characteristic, ingredient, use, benefit, or quantity which they do not have" (Md. Code Ann., Com. Law §13-301(2)(i));

(c) "[r]epresent[ing] that . . . [c]onsumer goods, consumer realty, or consumer services are of a particular standard, quality, grade, style, or model which they are not" (Md. Code Ann., Com. Law §13-301(2)(iv));

(d) "[f]ailure to state a material fact if the failure deceives or tends to deceive" (Md. Code Ann., Com. Law §13-301(3));

(e) "[a]dvertis[ing] or offer[ing] of consumer goods, consumer realty, or consumer services . . . [w]ithout intent to sell, lease, or rent them as advertised or offered" (Md. Code Ann., Com. Law §13-301(5)(i)); and

(f) "[d]eception, fraud, false pretense, false premise, misrepresentation, or knowing concealment, suppression, or omission of any material fact with the intent that a consumer rely on the same in connection with . . . [t]he promotion or sale of any consumer goods" (Md. Code Ann., Com. Law §13-301(9)(i)).

3199. In the course of its business, Defendant, through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Maryland CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

3200. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Maryland CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and thus resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

3201. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Maryland CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

(a) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products have characteristics, uses, benefits, and qualities which they do not have;

(b) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products are of a particular standard, quality, and grade when they are not;

(c) advertising the Ranitidine-Containing Products with the intent not to sell them as advertised;

(d) failing to disclose that the Ranitidine-Containing Products are defective and inherently dangerous in the course of the sale of the Ranitidine-Containing Products; and

(e) engaging in any other unconscionable, false, misleading, or deceptive act or practice in the conduct of trade or commerce.

3203. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding the inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiffs and the Class members in a uniform manner.

3205. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding package size, and resulting misrepresentations and omissions concerning appropriate length of ingestion, of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiffs and the Class members in a uniform manner.

material by a reasonable consumer, and they were, in fact, material to Plaintiffs and the Class members, who consider such facts to be important to their purchase decisions with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products.

3208. Plaintiffs and the Class members relied on Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, and concealments with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products by purchasing and continuing to purchase Ranitidine-Containing Products after Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, and concealments were made.

3209. Plaintiffs and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the Maryland CPA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

3210. Specifically, Plaintiffs and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

3211. Defendant's violations present a continuing risk to Plaintiffs and the Class members, as well as to the general public. Defendant's unlawful acts and practices complained of herein affect the public interest.

3212. As a result of Defendant's violations of the Maryland CPA, as alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the Maryland CPA.

COUNT 144
Breach of Implied Warranty
(Md. Code Ann. §2-314)
(Against Pfizer)

3213. Maryland Class Representatives Alberta Griffin, Charles Longfield, Ida Adams and Nicholas Hazlett incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 14-15, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

3214. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Maryland-Pfizer Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Pfizer(for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

3215. At all relevant times, Defendant was a merchant with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products which were sold to Maryland Class Representatives and members of the Maryland Class and was in the business of selling such products.

3216. Each Ranitidine-Containing Product sold by Defendant comes with an implied warranty that it will be merchantable and fit for the ordinary purpose for which it would be used, including impliedly warrantying on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products that the products were safe and/or did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

3219. Defendant had reason to know Plaintiffs and each member of the Class's particular purpose in buying Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products and knew that Plaintiffs and each member of the Class relied on Defendant's skill or judgment in furnishing appropriate goods that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

3220. Plaintiffs and the Class did, in fact, rely on Defendant's skill and judgment in manufacturing Ranitidine-Containing Products that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

3222. Further, Plaintiffs and each member of the Class were the intended third-party beneficiaries of the implied warranties made by Defendant to purchasers of its Ranitidine-Containing Products.

3223. Plaintiffs and the members of the Class were injured as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability. Plaintiffs and the members of the Class were damaged as a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability because, had they been aware of the unmerchantable condition of Ranitidine-Containing Products, they would not have purchased such drugs.

3224. As a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability, as alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members seek an order awarding compensatory and punitive damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the law.

COUNT 145
Unjust Enrichment
(Maryland Law)
(Against Pfizer)

3225. Maryland Class Representatives Alberta Griffin, Charles Longfield, Ida Adams and Nicholas Hazlett incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 14-15, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

3226. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Maryland-Pfizer Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Pfizer (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

3227. Plaintiffs and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

3229. Defendant readily accepted and retained these benefits from Plaintiffs and Class members and knowingly benefitted from its unjust conduct – at Plaintiffs' and the Class members' expense – by selling worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products that contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and thus resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

3230. It would be unjust and inequitable for the Defendant to retain these benefits because they were attained by misrepresenting and fraudulently concealing the true facts concerning the Ranitidine-Containing Products from Plaintiffs and Class members, who would not have purchased the medications at all, but for the Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions.

3232. Plaintiffs and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law.

11. Causes of Action on Behalf of the Michigan-Pfizer Classes

COUNT 146
Violation of the Michigan Consumer Protection Act
(Mich. Comp. Laws Ann. §445.901, et seq.)
(Against Pfizer)

3233. Michigan Class Representatives Jerry Hunt, Kenneth Hix, and Lakisha Wilson incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 14-15, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

3234. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Michigan-Pfizer Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Pfizer (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

3235. Defendant, Plaintiffs, and the Class members are "[p]erson[s]" within the meaning of Mich. Comp. Laws Ann. §445.902(1)(d).

3236. Defendant was and is engaged in "[t]rade" or "commerce" within the meaning of Mich. Comp. Laws Ann. §445.902(1)(g).

3237. The Michigan Consumer Protection Act ("Michigan CPA") prohibits "[u]nfair, unconscionable, or deceptive methods, acts, or practices in the conduct of trade or commerce." Mich. Comp. Laws Ann. §445.903(1).

3238. The Michigan CPA makes unlawful specific acts, including:

(a) "[r]epresenting that goods or services have sponsorship, approval, characteristics, ingredients, uses, benefits, or quantities that they do not have" (Mich. Comp. Laws Ann. §445.903(1)(c));

(b) "[r]epresenting that goods or services are of a particular standard, quality, or grade, or that goods are of a particular style or model, if they are of another" (Mich. Comp. Laws Ann. §445.903(1)(e)); and

(c) "[a]dvertising or representing goods or services with intent not to dispose of those goods or services as advertised or represented" (Mich. Comp. Laws Ann. §445.903(1)(g)).

3239. In the course of its business, Defendant, through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Michigan CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

3240. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Michigan CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

3241. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Michigan CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

3242. Specifically, by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products, as detailed above, Defendant engaged in one or more unfair or deceptive business practices prohibited by the Michigan CPA, including:

(a) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products have characteristics, uses, benefits, and qualities which they do not have;

(b) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products are of a particular standard, quality, and grade when they are not;

(c) advertising the Ranitidine-Containing Products with the intent not to sell them as advertised; and

(d) engaging in any other unconscionable, false, misleading, or deceptive act or practice in the conduct of trade or commerce.

3244. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding the expiration dates of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiffs and the Class members in a uniform manner.

3245. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding package size, and resulting misrepresentations and omissions concerning appropriate length of ingestion, of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiffs and the Class members in a uniform manner.

3246. Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices, including its misrepresentations, concealments, omissions, and suppressions of material facts, as alleged herein, had a tendency or capacity to mislead and create a false impression in consumers' minds, and were likely to and, in fact, did deceive reasonable consumers, including Plaintiffs and the Class members, about: (i) the inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products; (ii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products if used within the expiration dates; and (iii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products when ingesting all doses contained within particular packaging.

3248. Plaintiffs and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the Michigan CPA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

3249. Specifically, Plaintiffs and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

3250. Defendant's violations present a continuing risk to Plaintiffs and the Class members, as well as to the general public. Defendant's unlawful acts and practices complained of herein affect the public interest.

3251. As a result of Defendant's violations of the Michigan CPA, as alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the Michigan CPA.

(Against Pfizer)

3252. Michigan Class Representatives Jerry Hunt, Kenneth Hix, and Lakisha Wilson incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 14-15, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

3253. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Michigan-Pfizer Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Pfizer (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

3254. Plaintiffs and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

3255. In exchange for their payment of the purchase price of Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products, Plaintiffs and Class members received the Ranitidine-Containing Products, which Defendant did not disclose contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed. Accordingly,

Plaintiffs and Class members conferred a financial benefit on Defendants but did not receive their expected benefit therefrom.

3259. There is no express contract governing this dispute.

3260. Plaintiffs and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law.

12. Causes of Action on Behalf of the Minnesota-Pfizer Classes

COUNT 148
Violation of the Minnesota Prevention of Consumer Fraud Act
(Minn. Stat. Ann. §325F.68, et seq.)
(Against Pfizer)

3261. Minnesota Class Representatives Donald Northrup, Roy Armstrong, and John Scholl incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 14-15, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

3262. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Minnesota-Pfizer Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Pfizer (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

3263. Defendant, Plaintiffs, and the Class members are "[p]erson[s]" within the meaning of Minn. Stat. Ann. §325F.68(3).

3264. The Ranitidine-Containing Products are "[m]erchandise" within the meaning of Minn. Stat. Ann. §325F.68(2).

3265. The Minnesota Prevention of Consumer Fraud Act ("Minnesota CFA") prohibits "act, use, or employment by any person of any fraud, false pretense, false promise, misrepresentation, misleading statement or deceptive practice, with the intent that others rely thereon in connection with the sale of any merchandise, whether or not any person has in fact been misled, deceived, or damaged." Minn. Stat. Ann. §325F.69(1). Prohibited practices include: (i) deceptive practices concerning the quality of goods or services pursuant to Minn. Stat. Ann. §325D.44; (ii) fraud in connection with the sale of any merchandise pursuant to Minn. Stat. Ann. §325F.69; and (iii) misrepresentation of product ingredients or quality pursuant to Minn. Stat. Ann. §325D.13.

3266. In the course of its business, Defendant, through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Minnesota CFA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

3267. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Minnesota CFA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

3268. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Minnesota CFA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

3272. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding package size, and resulting misrepresentations and omissions concerning appropriate length of ingestion, of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiffs and the Class members in a uniform manner.

3275. Plaintiffs and the Class members relied on Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, and concealments with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products by purchasing and continuing to purchase Ranitidine-Containing Products after Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, and concealments were made.

3276. Plaintiffs and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the Minnesota CFA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

3277. Specifically, Plaintiffs and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

3278. Defendant's violations present a continuing risk to Plaintiff and the Class members, as well as to the general public. Defendant's unlawful acts and practices complained of herein affect the public interest.

3279. As a result of Defendant's violations of the Minnesota CFA, as alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the Minnesota CFA.

COUNT 149
Breach of Implied Warranty
(Minn. Stat. Ann. §336.2-314)
(Against Pfizer)

3280. Minnesota Class Representatives Donald Northrup, Roy Armstrong, and John Scholl incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 14-15, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

3281. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Minnesota-Pfizer Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Pfizer (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

3282. At all relevant times, Defendant was a merchant with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products which were sold to Minnesota Class Representatives and members of the Minnesota Class and was in the business of selling such products.

3283. Each Ranitidine-Containing Product sold by Defendant comes with an implied warranty that it will be merchantable and fit for the ordinary purpose for which it would be used, including impliedly warrantying on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products that the products were safe and/or did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

3286. Defendant had reason to know Plaintiffs and each member of the Class's particular purpose in buying Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products and knew that Plaintiffs and each member of the Class relied on Defendant's skill or judgment in furnishing appropriate goods that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

3287. Plaintiffs and the Class did, in fact, rely on Defendant's skill and judgment in manufacturing Ranitidine-Containing Products that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

3288. Plaintiffs and each member of the Class have had sufficient direct dealings with either Defendant or its agents (including distributors, dealers, and authorized sellers) to establish privity of contract between Defendant, on the one hand, and Plaintiffs and each member of the Class, on the other hand.

3289. Further, Plaintiffs and each member of the Class were the intended third-party beneficiaries of the implied warranties made by Defendant to purchasers of its Ranitidine-Containing Products.

3290. Plaintiffs and the members of the Class were injured as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability. Plaintiffs and the members of the Class were damaged as a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability because, had they been aware of the unmerchantable condition of Ranitidine-Containing Products, they would not have purchased such drugs.

3291. As a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability, as alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members seek an order awarding compensatory and punitive damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the law.

COUNT 150
Unjust Enrichment
(Minnesota Law)
(Against Pfizer)

3292. Minnesota Class Representatives Donald Northrup, Roy Armstrong, and John Scholl incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 14-15, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

3293. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Minnesota-Pfizer Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Pfizer (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

3294. Plaintiffs and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

3295. In exchange for their payment of the purchase price of Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products, Plaintiffs and Class members received the Ranitidine-Containing Products, which Defendant did not disclose contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed. Accordingly, Plaintiffs and Class members conferred a financial benefit on Defendants but did not receive their expected benefit therefrom.

3296. Defendant readily accepted and retained these benefits from Plaintiffs and Class members and knowingly benefitted from its unjust conduct – at Plaintiffs' and the Class members' expense – by selling worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products that contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

3297. It is unjust and inequitable for the Defendant to retain these benefits because they were attained by misrepresenting and fraudulently concealing the true facts concerning the Ranitidine-Containing Products from Plaintiffs and Class members, who would not have purchased the medications at all, but for the Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions.

3299. Plaintiffs and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law.

13. Causes of Action Brought on Behalf of the Mississippi-Pfizer Classes

COUNT 151
Breach of Implied Warranty
(Miss. Code Ann. §75-2-314)
(Against Pfizer)

3300. Mississippi Class Representatives Beverly Crosby and John Rachal incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 14-15, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

3301. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Mississippi-Pfizer Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Pfizer (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

3302. At all relevant times, Defendant was a merchant with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products which were sold to the Mississippi Class Representative and members of the Mississippi Class and was in the business of selling such products.

3303. Each Ranitidine-Containing Product sold by Defendant comes with an implied warranty that it will be merchantable and fit for the ordinary purpose for which it would be used, including impliedly warrantying on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products that the products were safe and/or did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

3304. Defendant breached its implied warranty of merchantability because its products cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

3306. Defendant had reason to know Plaintiffs and each member of the Class's particular purpose in buying Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products and knew that Plaintiffs and each member of the Class relied on Defendant's skill or judgment in furnishing appropriate goods that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

3307. Plaintiffs and the Class did, in fact, rely on Defendant's skill and judgment in manufacturing Ranitidine-Containing Products that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

3308. Plaintiffs and each member of the Class has had sufficient direct dealings with either Defendant or its agents (including distributors, dealers, and authorized sellers) to establish privity of contract between Defendant, on the one hand, and Plaintiffs and each member of the Class, on the other hand.

3309. Further, Plaintiffs and each member of the Class were the intended third-party beneficiaries of the implied warranties made by Defendant to purchasers of its Ranitidine-Containing Products.

3310. Plaintiffs and the members of the Class were injured as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability. Plaintiffs and the members of the Class were damaged as a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability because, had they been aware of the unmerchantable condition of Ranitidine-Containing Products, they would not have purchased such drugs.

3311. As a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability, as alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members seek an order awarding compensatory and punitive damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the law.

COUNT 152
Unjust Enrichment
(Mississippi Law)
(Against Pfizer)

3312. Mississippi Class Representatives Beverly Crosby and John Rachal incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 14-15, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

3313. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Mississippi-Pfizer Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Pfizer (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

3314. Plaintiffs and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

3315. In exchange for their payment of the purchase price of Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products, Plaintiffs and Class members received the Ranitidine-Containing Products, which Defendant did not disclose contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed. Accordingly,

Plaintiffs and Class members suffered a detriment because they purchased worthless medications and did not receive the expected benefit therefrom.

3316. Defendant readily accepted and retained these benefits from Plaintiffs and Class members and was knowingly enriched by its unjust conduct – at Plaintiffs' and the Class members' expense – by selling worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products that contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

Violation of the Missouri Merchandising Practices Act
(Mo. Ann. Stat. §407.010, et seq.)
(Against Pfizer)

3321. Missouri Class Representatives Tammy Smith and Ronda Lockett incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 14-15, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

3322. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Missouri-Pfizer Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Pfizer (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

3323. Defendant, Plaintiffs, and the Class members are "[p]erson[s]" within the meaning of Mo. Ann. Stat. §407.010(5).

3324. Defendant was and is engaged in "[t]rade or commerce" within the meaning of Mo. Ann. Stat. §407.010(7).

3325. The Missouri Merchandising Practices Act ("Missouri MPA") prohibits "act, use or employment by any person of any deception, fraud, false pretense, false promise, misrepresentation, unfair practice or the concealment, suppression, or omission of any material fact in connection with the sale or advertisement of any merchandise in trade or commerce." Mo. Ann. Stat. §407.020(1).

3326. In the course of its business, Defendant, through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Missouri MPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

3327. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Missouri MPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

3328. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Missouri MPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

3332. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding package size, and resulting misrepresentations and omissions concerning appropriate length of ingestion, of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiffs and the Class members in a uniform manner.

3333. Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices, including its misrepresentations, concealments, omissions, and suppressions of material facts, as alleged herein, had a tendency or capacity to mislead and create a false impression in consumers' minds, and were likely to and, in fact, did deceive reasonable consumers, including Plaintiffs and the Class members, about: (i) the inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products; (ii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products if used within the expiration dates; and (iii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products when ingesting all doses contained within particular packaging.

3334. 3336. Specifically, Plaintiffs and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

3337. Defendant's violations present a continuing risk to Plaintiffs and the Class members, as well as to the general public. Defendant's unlawful acts and practices complained of herein affect the public interest.

3338. As a result of Defendant's violations of the Missouri MPA, as alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the Missouri MPA.

3361. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Nebraska-Pfizer Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Pfizer (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

3363. The Ranitidine-Containing Products are "[a]ssets" within the meaning of Neb. Rev. Stat. Ann. §59-1601(3).

3364. Defendant was and is engaged in "[t]rade" or "commerce" within the meaning of Neb. Rev. Stat. Ann. §59-1601(2).

3365. The Nebraska Consumer Protection Act ("Nebraska CPA") prohibits "[u]nfair methods of competition and unfair or deceptive acts or practices in the conduct of any trade or commerce." Neb. Rev. Stat. Ann. §59-1602.

3366. In the course of its business, Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Nebraska CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

3367. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Nebraska CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

3368. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Nebraska CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

3372. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding package size, and resulting misrepresentations and omissions concerning appropriate length of ingestion, of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiff and the Class members in a uniform manner.

3375. Plaintiff and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the Nebraska CPA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

3376. Specifically, Plaintiff and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

3377. Defendant's violations present a continuing risk to Plaintiff and the Class members, as well as to the general public. Defendant's unlawful acts and practices complained of herein affect the public interest.

3378. As a result of Defendant's violations of the Nebraska CPA, as alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the Nebraska CPA.

COUNT 157
Breach of Implied Warranty
(Neb. U.C.C. §2-314)
(Against Pfizer)

3379. Nebraska Class Representative Gaylord Stauffer incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 14-15, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

3380. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Nebraska-Pfizer Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Pfizer (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

3381. At all relevant times, Defendant was a merchant with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products which were sold to Nebraska Class Representatives and members of the Nebraska Class and was in the business of selling such products.

3382. Each Ranitidine-Containing Product sold by Defendant comes with an implied warranty that it will be merchantable and fit for the ordinary purpose for which it would be used, including impliedly warrantying on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products that the products were safe and/or did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

3383. Defendant breached its implied warranty of merchantability because its products cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

3385. Defendant had reason to know Plaintiff and each member of the Class's particular purpose in buying Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products, and knew that Plaintiffs and each member of the Class relied on Defendant's skill or judgment in furnishing appropriate goods that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

3386. Plaintiff and the Class did, in fact, rely on Defendant's skill and judgment in manufacturing Ranitidine-Containing Products that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

3387. Plaintiff and each member of the Class have had sufficient direct dealings with either Defendant or its agents (including distributors, dealers, and authorized sellers) to establish privity of contract between Defendant, on the one hand, and Plaintiff and each member of the Class, on the other hand.

3388. Further, Plaintiff and each member of the Class were the intended third-party beneficiaries of the implied warranties made by Defendant to purchasers of its Ranitidine-Containing Products.

3389. Plaintiff and the members of the Class were injured as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability. Plaintiff and the members of the Class were damaged as a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability because, had they been aware of the unmerchantable condition of Ranitidine-Containing Products, they would not have purchased such drugs.

3390. As a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability, as alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order awarding compensatory and punitive damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the law.

COUNT 158
Unjust Enrichment
(Nebraska Law)
(Against Brand Manufacturer Defendant Pfizer)

3391. Nebraska Class Representative Gaylord Stauffer incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 14-15, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

3392. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Nebraska-Pfizer Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Pfizer (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

3393. Plaintiff and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed. Accordingly, Plaintiff and Class members conferred a financial benefit on Defendants but did not receive their expected benefit therefrom.

3395. Defendant readily accepted and retained these benefits from Plaintiff and Class members and knowingly benefitted from its unjust conduct – at Plaintiff's and the Class members' expense – by selling worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products that contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

3396. It is unjust and unfair for the Defendant to retain these benefits because they were attained by misrepresenting and fraudulently concealing the true facts concerning the Ranitidine-Containing Products from Plaintiff and Class members, who would not have purchased the medications at all, but for the Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions.

3398. There is no express contract governing this dispute.

3399. Plaintiff and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law.

16. Causes of Action on Behalf of the Nevada-Pfizer Classes

COUNT 159
Violation of the Nevada Deceptive Trade Practices Act
(Nev. Rev. Stat. Ann. §598.0903, et seq.)
(Against Pfizer)

3400. Nevada Class Representative Jonathan Ferguson incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 14-15, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

3401. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Nevada-Pfizer Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Pfizer with respect to OTC Zantac purchases (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

3402. The Nevada Deceptive Trade Practices Act ("Nevada DTPA"), prohibits the use of "'deceptive trade practices' . . . in the course of . . . business or occupation." Nev. Rev. Stat. Ann. §598.0915.

3403. The Nevada DTPA makes unlawful specific acts, including:

(a) "[k]nowingly mak[ing] a false representation as to the characteristics, ingredients, uses, benefits, alterations or quantities of goods or services for sale or lease or a false representation as to the sponsorship, approval, status, affiliation or connection of a person therewith" (Nev. Rev. Stat. Ann. §598.0915(5));

(b) "[r]epresent[ing] that goods or services for sale or lease are of a particular standard, quality or grade, or that such goods are of a particular style or model, if he or she knows or should know that they are of another standard, quality, grade, style or model" (Nev. Rev. Stat. Ann. §598.0915(7));

(c) "[a]dvertis[ing] goods or services with intent not to sell or lease them as advertised" (Nev. Rev. Stat. Ann. §598.0915(9));

(d) "[k]nowingly mak[ing] any other false representation in a transaction" (Nev. Rev. Stat. Ann. §598.0915(15)); and

(e) "[f]ail[ing] to disclose a material fact in connection with the sale or lease of goods or services" (Nev. Rev. Stat. Ann. §598.0923(2)).

3404. In the course of its business, Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Nevada DTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

3405. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Nevada DTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and thus resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

3406. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Nevada DTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

(a) representing that Ranitidine-Containing Products have characteristics, uses, benefits, and qualities which they do not have;

(b) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products are of a particular standard, quality, and grade when they are not;

(c) advertising the Ranitidine-Containing Products with the intent not to sell them as advertised;

(d) failing to disclose the NDMA danger in connection with the sale of the Ranitidine-Containing Products; and

(e) engaging in any other unconscionable, false, misleading, or deceptive act or practice in the conduct of trade or commerce.

3408. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding the inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiff and the Class members in a uniform manner.

3409. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding the expiration dates of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiff and the Class members in a uniform manner.

3410. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding package size, and resulting misrepresentations and omissions concerning appropriate length of ingestion, of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiff and the Class members in a uniform manner.

3411. Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices, including its misrepresentations, concealments, omissions, and suppressions of material facts, as alleged herein, had a tendency or capacity to mislead and create a false impression in consumers' minds, and were likely to and, in fact, did deceive reasonable consumers, including Plaintiff and the Class members, about: (i) the inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products; (ii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products if used within the expiration dates; and (iii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products when ingesting all doses contained within particular packaging.

3413. Plaintiff and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the Nevada DTPA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

3414. Specifically, Plaintiff and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

3416. As a result of Defendant's violations of the Nevada DTPA, as alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the Nevada DTPA.

COUNT 160
Unjust Enrichment
(Nevada Law)
(Against Pfizer)

3417. Nevada Class Representative Jonathan Ferguson incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 14-15, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

3418. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Nevada-Pfizer Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Brand Manufacturer Defendant Pfizer with respect to Zantac OTC purchases (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

3419. Plaintiff and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

that included expiration dates on the products labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and thus resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

3424. There is no express contract governing this dispute.

3425. Plaintiff and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law.

17. Causes of Action on Behalf of the New York-Pfizer Classes

COUNT 161
Violation of New York Deceptive Acts and Practices Act
(N.Y. Gen. Bus. Law §349)
(Against Pfizer)

3426. New York Class Representatives Dan Zhovtis and Mary McCullen incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 14-15, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

3427. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the New York-Pfizer Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Pfizer (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

3428. Plaintiffs and the Class members are "person[s]" within the meaning of N.Y. Gen. Bus. Law §349(h). Defendant is a "person, firm, corporation or association" within the meaning of N.Y. Gen. Bus. Law §349(b).

3429. The New York Deceptive Acts and Practices Act ("New York DAPA") prohibits "[d]eceptive acts or practices in the conduct of any business, trade or commerce." N.Y. Gen. Bus. Law §349(a).

3430. In the course of its business, Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the New York DAPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

3431. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the New York DAPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

3432. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the New York DAPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

Defendant engaged in one or more unfair or deceptive acts or practices in the conduct of trade or commerce, in violation of the New York DAPA.

3436. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding package size, and resulting misrepresentations and omissions concerning appropriate length of ingestion, of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiffs and the Class members in a uniform manner.

3437. Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices, including its misrepresentations, concealments, omissions, and suppressions of material facts, as alleged herein, had a tendency or capacity to mislead and create a false impression in consumers' minds, and were likely to and, in fact, did deceive reasonable consumers, including Plaintiffs and the Class members, about: (i) the inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products; (ii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products if used within the expiration dates; and (iii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products when ingesting all doses contained within particular packaging.

members, who consider such facts to be important to their purchase decisions with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products.

3439. Plaintiffs and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the New York DAPA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

3440. Specifically, Plaintiffs and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

3442. As a result of Defendant's violations of the New York DAPA, as alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the New York DAPA.

COUNT 162
Violation of the New York False Advertising Act
(N.Y. Gen. Bus. Law §350)
(Against Pfizer)

3443. New York Class Representatives Dan Zhovtis and Mary McCullen incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 14-15, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911as though fully set forth herein.

3444. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the New York-Pfizer Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Pfizer (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

3445. Defendant was and is engaged in "conduct of business, trade or commerce" within the meaning of N.Y. Gen. Bus. Law §350.

3446. The New York False Advertising Act ("New York FAA") prohibits "[f]alse advertising in the conduct of any business, trade or commerce." N.Y. Gen. Bus. Law §350. False advertising includes "advertising, including labeling, of a commodity . . . if such advertising is misleading in a material respect," taking into account "the extent to which the advertising fails to reveal facts material in the light of . . . representations [made] with respect to the commodity." N.Y. Gen. Bus. Law §350-a(1).

3447. Defendant caused to be made or disseminated through New York and the United States, through advertising, marketing, and other publications, statements that were untrue or misleading, and which were known, or which by exercise of reasonable care should have been known to Defendant, to be untrue and misleading to consumers, including Plaintiffs and the Class members.

3448. In the course of its business, Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the New York FAA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

3449. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the New York FAA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

3450. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the New York FAA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiffs and the Class members in a uniform manner.

3457. Plaintiffs and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the New York FAA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

3458. Specifically, Plaintiffs and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

3459. Defendant's violations present a continuing risk to Plaintiffs and the Class members, as well as to the general public. Defendant's unlawful acts and practices complained of herein affect the public interest.

3461. As a result of Defendant's violations of the New York FAA, as alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the New York FAA.

COUNT 163
Breach of Implied Warranty
(N.Y. U.C.C. Law §2-314)
(Against Pfizer)

3462. New York Class Representatives Dan Zhovtis and Mary McCullen incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 14-15, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

3463. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the New York-Pfizer Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Pfizer (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

3465. Each Ranitidine-Containing Product sold by Defendant comes with an implied warranty that it will be merchantable and fit for the ordinary purpose for which it would be used, including impliedly warrantying on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products that the products were safe and/or did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

3466. Defendant breached its implied warranty of merchantability because its products cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

3468. Defendant had reason to know Plaintiffs and each member of the Class's particular purpose in buying Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products and knew that Plaintiffs and each member of the Class relied on Defendant's skill or judgment in furnishing appropriate goods that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

3469. Plaintiffs and the Class did, in fact, rely on Defendant's skill and judgment in manufacturing Ranitidine-Containing Products that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

3470. Plaintiffs and each member of the Class has had sufficient direct dealings with either Defendant or its agents (including distributors, dealers, and authorized sellers) to Defendant or its agents (including distributors, dealers, and authorized sellers) to establish privity of contract between Defendant, on the one hand, and Plaintiffs and each member of the Class, on the other hand.

3471. Further, Plaintiffs and each member of the Class were the intended third-party beneficiaries of the implied warranties made by Defendant to purchasers of its Ranitidine-Containing Products.

3472. Plaintiffs and the members of the Class were injured as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability. Plaintiffs and the members of the Class were damaged as a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability because, had they been aware of the unmerchantable condition of Ranitidine-Containing Products, they would not have purchased such drugs.

3473. As a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability, as alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members seek an order awarding compensatory and punitive damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the law.

COUNT 164
Unjust Enrichment
(New York Law)
(Against Pfizer)

3474. New York Class Representatives Dan Zhovtis and Mary McCullen incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 14-15, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

3475. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the New York-Pfizer Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Pfizer (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

3476. Plaintiffs and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

3479. It is unjust and inequitable for the Defendant to retain these benefits because they were attained by misrepresenting and fraudulently concealing the true facts concerning the Ranitidine-Containing Products from Plaintiffs and Class members, who would not have purchased the medications at all, but for the Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions.

3481. Plaintiffs and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law, nor is there an express contract governing this dispute.

18. Causes of Action on Behalf of the North Carolina-Pfizer Classes

COUNT 165
Violation of the North Carolina Unfair and Deceptive Trade Practices Act
(N.C. Gen. Stat. Ann. §75-1.1, et seq.)
(Against Pfizer)

3482. North Carolina Class Representative Dennis Robbins incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 14-15, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

3483. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the North Carolina-Pfizer Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Pfizer (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

3484. Defendant was and is engaged in "commerce" within the meaning of N.C. Gen. Stat. Ann. §75-1.1(b).

3485. The North Carolina Unfair and Deceptive Trade Practices Act ("North Carolina UDTPA") prohibits "[u]nfair methods of competition in or affecting commerce, and unfair or deceptive acts or practices in or affecting commerce," N.C. Gen. Stat. Ann. §75-1.1(a), and provides a private right of action for any person injured "by reason of any act or thing done by any other person, firm or corporation in violation of" the law. N.C. Gen. Stat. Ann. §75-16.

3486. In the course of its business, Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the North Carolina UDTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

3487. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the North Carolina UDTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

3488. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the North Carolina UDTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

3492. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding package size, and resulting misrepresentations and omissions concerning appropriate length of ingestion, of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiff and the Class members in a uniform manner.

3495. Plaintiff and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the North Carolina UDTPA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

3496. Specifically, Plaintiff and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

3498. As a result of Defendant's violations of the North Carolina UDTPA, as alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the North Carolina UDTPA.

COUNT 166
Breach of Implied Warranty
(N.C. Gen. Stat. Ann. §25-2-314)
(Against Pfizer)

3499. North Carolina Class Representative Dennis Robbins incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 14-15, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

3500. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the North Carolina-Pfizer Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Pfizer (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

3501. At all relevant times, Defendant was a merchant with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products which were sold to North Carolina Class Representatives and members of the North Carolina Class and was in the business of selling such products.

3502. Each Ranitidine-Containing Product sold by Defendant comes with an implied warranty that it will be merchantable and fit for the ordinary purpose for which it would be used, including impliedly warrantying on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products that the products were safe and/or did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

3503. Defendant breached its implied warranty of merchantability because its products cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

3505. Defendant had reason to know Plaintiff and each member of the Class's particular purpose in buying Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products and knew that Plaintiff and each member of the Class relied on Defendant's skill or judgment in furnishing appropriate goods that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

3507. Plaintiff and each member of the Class have had sufficient direct dealings with either Defendant or its agents (including distributors, dealers, and authorized sellers) to establish privity of contract between Defendant, on the one hand, and Plaintiff and each member of the Class, on the other hand.

3508. Further, Plaintiff and each member of the Class were the intended third-party beneficiaries of the implied warranties made by Defendant to purchasers of its Ranitidine-Containing Products.

3510. As a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability, as alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order awarding compensatory and punitive damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the law.

COUNT 167
Unjust Enrichment
(North Carolina Law)
(Against Pfizer)

3511. North Carolina Class Representatives Dennis Robbins incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 14-15, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

3512. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the North Carolina-Pfizer Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Pfizer (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

3513. Plaintiff and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

3514. In exchange for their payment of the purchase price of Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products, Plaintiff and Class members received the Ranitidine-Containing Products, which Defendant did not disclose contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed. 3515. Defendant readily accepted and retained these benefits from Plaintiff and Class members and knowingly benefitted from its unjust conduct – at Plaintiff's and the Class members' expense – by selling worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products that contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

3518. Plaintiff and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law, nor is there an express contract governing this dispute.

19. Causes of Action on Behalf of the North Dakota-Pfizer Classes

COUNT 168
Violation of the North Dakota Consumer Fraud Act
(N.D. Cent. Code Ann. §51-15-02)
(Against Pfizer)

3519. North Dakota Class Representative John Scholl incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 14-15, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

3520. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the North Dakota-Pfizer Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Pfizer (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

3521. Defendant, Plaintiff, and the Class members are "[p]erson[s]" within the meaning of N.D. Cent. Code Ann. §51-15-01(4).

3522. The Ranitidine-Containing Products are "[m]erchandise" within the meaning of N.D. Cent. Code Ann. §51-15-01(3).

3523. The North Dakota Consumer Fraud Act ("North Dakota CFA") prohibits "[t]he act, use, or employment by any person of any deceptive act or practice, fraud, false pretense, false promise, or misrepresentation, with the intent that others rely thereon in connection with the sale or advertisement of any merchandise, whether or not any person has in fact been misled, deceived, or damaged thereby." N.D. Cent. Code Ann. §51-15-02.

3524. In the course of its business, Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the North Dakota CFA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

3525. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the North Dakota CFA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

3526. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the North Dakota CFA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

3530. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding package size, and resulting misrepresentations and omissions concerning appropriate length of ingestion, of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiff and the Class members in a uniform manner.

3533. Plaintiff and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the North Dakota CFA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

3534. Specifically, Plaintiff and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

3535. Defendant's violations present a continuing risk to Plaintiff and the Class members, as well as to the general public. Defendant's unlawful acts and practices complained of herein affect the public interest.

3536. As a result of Defendant's violations of the North Dakota CFA, as alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the North Dakota CFA.

COUNT 169
Unjust Enrichment
(North Dakota Law)
(Against Pfizer)

3537. North Dakota Class Representative John Scholl incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 14-15, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

3538. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the North Dakota-Pfizer Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Brand Manufacturer Defendant Pfizer (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

3539. Plaintiff and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products, or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

3542. Defendant's enrichment – the monies obtained from Plaintiff's and Class members' purchases of Ranitidine-Containing Products – was the result of Plaintiff's and Class members' impoverishment – i.e., Plaintiff's and Class members' receipt of worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe and unfit for human consumption.

3543. It is unjustifiable for the Defendant to retain these benefits because they were attained by misrepresenting and fraudulently concealing the true facts concerning the Ranitidine-Containing Products from Plaintiff and Class members, who would not have purchased the medications at all, but for the Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions.

3545. Plaintiff and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law, nor is there an express contract governing this dispute.

20. Causes of Action on Behalf of the Ohio-Pfizer Classes

COUNT 170
Breach of Implied Warranty
(Ohio Rev. Code Ann. §1302.27)
(Against Pfizer)

3546. Ohio Class Representatives Michael Galloway and Chris Troyan incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 14-15, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

3547. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Ohio-Pfizer Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Pfizer (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

3549. Each Ranitidine-Containing Product sold by Defendant comes with an implied warranty that it will be merchantable and fit for the ordinary purpose for which it would be used, including impliedly warrantying on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products that the products were safe and/or did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

3550. Defendant breached its implied warranty of merchantability because its products cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

3552. Defendant had reason to know Plaintiffs and each member of the Class's particular purpose in buying Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products and knew that Plaintiffs and each member of the Class relied on Defendant's skill or judgment in furnishing appropriate goods that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

3554. Plaintiffs and each member of the Class has had sufficient direct dealings with either Defendant or its agents (including distributors, dealers, and authorized sellers) to establish privity of contract between Defendant, on the one hand, and Plaintiffs and each member of the Class, on the other hand.

3555. Further, Plaintiffs and each member of the Class were the intended third-party beneficiaries of the implied warranties made by Defendant to purchasers of its Ranitidine-Containing Products.

3556. Plaintiffs and the members of the Class were injured as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability. Plaintiffs and the members of the Class were damaged as a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability because, had they been aware of the unmerchantable condition of Ranitidine-Containing Products, they would not have purchased such drugs.

3557. As a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability, as alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members seek an order awarding compensatory and punitive damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the law.

COUNT 171
Unjust Enrichment
(Ohio Law)
(Against Pfizer)

3558. Ohio Class Representatives Michael Galloway and Chris Troyan incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 14-15, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

3559. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Ohio Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Pfizer (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

3560. Plaintiffs and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

3563. It is unjust for the Defendant to retain these benefits because they were attained by misrepresenting and fraudulently concealing the true facts concerning the Ranitidine-Containing Products from Plaintiffs and Class members, who would not have purchased the medications at all, but for the Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions.

3565. Plaintiffs and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law, nor is there an express contract governing this dispute.

COUNT 172
Violation of the Oklahoma Consumer Protection Act
(Okla. Stat. tit. 15, §751, et seq.)
(Against Pfizer)

3566. Oklahoma Class Representative Billy Naab incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 14-15, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

3567. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Oklahoma-Pfizer Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Pfizer (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

3568. Defendant, Plaintiff, and the Class members are "[p]erson[s]" within the meaning of Okla. Stat. tit. 15, §752(1).

3569. Defendant was and is engaged in "[c]onsumer transaction[s]" within the meaning of Okla. Stat. tit. 15, §752(2).

3570. The Ranitidine-Containing Products are "[m]erchandise" within the meaning of Okla. Stat. tit. 15, §752(7).

3571. The Oklahoma Consumer Protection Act ("Oklahoma CPA") prohibits numerous unlawful acts, including misleading representations, false advertisements, and false statements. Okla. Stat. tit. 15, §753. The Oklahoma CPA defines "[d]eceptive trade practice" as "a misrepresentation, omission or other practice that has deceived or . . . mislead a person to the detriment of that person." Okla. Stat. tit. 15, §752(13). The Oklahoma CPA defines "[u]nfair trade practice" as "any practice which offends established public policy or if the practice is immoral, unethical, oppressive, unscrupulous, or substantially injurious to consumers." Okla. Stat. tit. 15, §752(14).

3572. The Oklahoma CPA makes unlawful specific acts, including:

(a) "[m]ak[ing] a false representation, knowingly or with reason to know, as to the characteristics, ingredients, uses, benefits, alterations, or quantities of the subject of a consumer transaction" (Okla. Stat. tit. 15, §753(5));

(b) "[r]epresent[ing], knowingly or with reason to know, that the subject of a consumer transaction is of a particular standard, style or model, if it is of another" (Okla. Stat. tit. 15, §753(7));

(c) "[a]dvertis[ing], knowingly or with reason to know, the subject of a consumer transaction with intent not to sell it as advertised" (Okla. Stat. tit. 15, §753(8)); and

(d) "[c]ommit[ing] an unfair or deceptive trade practice as defined in Section 752" (Okla. Stat. tit. 15, §753(20)).

3573. In the course of its business, Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Oklahoma CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

3574. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Oklahoma CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

3575. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Oklahoma CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

3576. Specifically, by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products, as detailed above, Defendant engaged in one or more unfair or deceptive acts or practices in the conduct of trade or commerce, in violation of the Oklahoma CPA, including:

(a) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products have characteristics, uses, benefits, and qualities which they do not have;

(b) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products are of a particular standard, quality, and grade when they are not;

(c) advertising the Ranitidine-Containing Products with the intent not to sell them as advertised; and

(d) engaging in any other unconscionable, false, misleading, or deceptive act or practice in the conduct of trade or commerce.

Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiff and the Class members in a uniform manner.

3580. Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices, including its misrepresentations, concealments, omissions, and suppressions of material facts, as alleged herein, had a tendency or capacity to mislead and create a false impression in consumers' minds, and were likely to and, in fact, did deceive reasonable consumers, including Plaintiff and the Class members, about: (i) the inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products; (ii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products if used within the expiration dates; and (iii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products when ingesting all doses contained within particular packaging.

3582. Plaintiff and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of Oklahoma CPA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

3583. Specifically, Plaintiff and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

3585. As a result of Defendant's violations of the Oklahoma CPA, as alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the Oklahoma CPA.

COUNT 173
Breach of Implied Warranty
(Okla. Stat. tit. 12A §2-314)
(Against Pfizer)

3586. Oklahoma Class Representative Billy Naab incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 14-15, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

3587. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Oklahoma-Pfizer Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Pfizer (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

3589. Each Ranitidine-Containing Product sold by Defendant comes with an implied warranty that it will be merchantable and fit for the ordinary purpose for which it would be used, including impliedly warrantying on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products that the products were safe and/or did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

3590. Defendant breached its implied warranty of merchantability because its products cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

3592. Defendant had reason to know Plaintiff and each member of the Class's particular purpose in buying Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products and knew that Plaintiff and each member of the Class relied on Defendant's skill or judgment in furnishing appropriate goods that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

3595. Further, Plaintiff and each member of the Class were the intended third-party beneficiaries of the implied warranties made by Defendant to purchasers of its Ranitidine-Containing Products.

3596. Plaintiff and the members of the Class were injured as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability. Plaintiff and the members of the Class were damaged as a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability because, had they been aware of the unmerchantable condition of Ranitidine-Containing Products, they would not have purchased such drugs.

3597. As a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability, as alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order awarding compensatory and punitive damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the law.

COUNT 174
Unjust Enrichment
(Oklahoma Law)
(Against Pfizer)

3598. Oklahoma Class Representative Billy Naab incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 14-15, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

3599. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Oklahoma-Pfizer Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Pfizer (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

3600. Plaintiff and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

3601. In exchange for their payment of the purchase price of Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products, Plaintiff and Class members received the Ranitidine-Containing Products, which Defendant did not disclose contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed. Accordingly,

Plaintiff and Class members conferred a financial benefit on Defendants but did not receive their expected benefit therefrom.

3602. Defendant readily accepted and retained these benefits from Plaintiff and Class members and was knowingly enriched by its unjust conduct – at Plaintiff's and the Class members' expense – by selling worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products that contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

3603. It is unjust for the Defendant to retain these benefits because they were attained by misrepresenting and fraudulently concealing the true facts concerning the Ranitidine-Containing Products from Plaintiff and Class members, who would not have purchased the medications at all, but for the Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions.

3605. Plaintiffs and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law.

22. Causes of Action on Behalf of Oregon-Pfizer Classes

COUNT 175
Violation of the Oregon Unlawful Trade Practices Act
(Or. Rev. Stat. Ann. §646.605, et seq.)
(Against Pfizer)

3606. Oregon Class Representative Jonathan Ferguson incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 14-15, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

3607. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Oregon-Pfizer Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Pfizer (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

3608. Defendant, Plaintiff, and the Class members are "[p]erson[s]" within the meaning of Or. Rev. Stat. Ann. §646.605(4).

3609. The Ranitidine-Containing Products are "goods" within the meaning of Or. Rev. Stat. Ann. §646.605(6).

3610. Defendant was and is engaged in "[t]rade" or "commerce" within the meaning of Or. Rev. Stat. Ann. §646.605(8).

3611. The Oregon Unlawful Trade Practices Act ("Oregon UTPA") prohibits "unlawful practice . . . in the course of the person's business." Or. Rev. Stat. Ann. §646.608(1).

3612. The Oregon UTPA makes unlawful specific acts, including:

(a) "[r]epresent[ing] that real estate, goods or services have sponsorship, approval, characteristics, ingredients, uses, benefits, quantities or qualities that the real estate, goods or services do not have" (Or. Rev. Stat. Ann. §646.608(1)(e));

(b) "[r]epresent[ing] that real estate, goods or services are of a particular standard, quality, or grade, or that real estate or goods are of a particular style or model, if the real estate, goods or services are of another" (Or. Rev. Stat. Ann. §646.608(1)(g));

(c) "[a]dvertis[ing] real estate, goods or services with intent not to provide the real estate, goods or services as advertised" (Or. Rev. Stat. Ann. §646.608(1)(i)); and

(d) "[e]ngag[ing] in any other unfair or deceptive conduct in trade or commerce" (Or. Rev. Stat. Ann. §646.608(1)(u)).

3613. In the course of its business, Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Oregon UTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

3614. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Oregon UTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

3615. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Oregon UTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

Defendant engaged in one or more unfair or deceptive acts or practices in the conduct of trade or commerce, in violation of the Oregon UTPA, including:

(a) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products have characteristics, uses, benefits, and qualities which they do not have;

(b) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products are of a particular standard, quality, and grade when they are not;

(c) advertising the Ranitidine-Containing Products with the intent not to sell them as advertised; and

(d) engaging in any other unconscionable, false, misleading, or deceptive act or practice in the conduct of trade or commerce.

3619. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding package size, and resulting misrepresentations and omissions concerning appropriate length of ingestion, of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiff and the Class members in a uniform manner.

3620. Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices, including its misrepresentations, concealments, omissions, and suppressions of material facts, as alleged herein, had a tendency or capacity to mislead and create a false impression in consumers' minds, and were likely to and, in fact, did deceive reasonable consumers, including Plaintiff and the Class members, about: (i) the inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products; (ii)

the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products if used within the expiration dates; and (iii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products when ingesting all doses contained within particular packaging.

3622. Plaintiff and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the Oregon UTPA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

3623. Specifically, Plaintiff and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

3625. As a result of Defendant's violations of the Oregon UTPA, as alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the Oregon UTPA.

COUNT 176
Breach of Implied Warranty
(Or. Rev. Stat. §72.3140)
(Against Pfizer)

3626. Oregon Class Representative Jonathan Ferguson incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 14-15, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

3627. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Oregon-Pfizer Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Pfizer (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

3628. At all relevant times, Defendant was a merchant with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products which were sold to Oregon Class Representatives and members of the Oregon Class and was in the business of selling such products.

3629. Each Ranitidine-Containing Product sold by Defendant comes with an implied warranty that it will be merchantable and fit for the ordinary purpose for which it would be used, including impliedly warrantying on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products that the products were safe and/or did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

3630. Defendant breached its implied warranty of merchantability because its products cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

3631. Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products are not fit for their intended use – or any use – because they have dangerous propensities when used as intended or within their expiration dates on the labels, and their use carries an increased risk of developing cancer.

3632. Defendant had reason to know Plaintiff and each member of the Class's particular purpose in buying Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products, and knew that Plaintiff and each member of the Class relied on Defendant's skill or judgment in furnishing appropriate goods that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

3633. Plaintiff and the Class did, in fact, rely on Defendant's skill and judgment in manufacturing Ranitidine-Containing Products that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

3635. Further, Plaintiff and each member of the Class were the intended third-party beneficiaries of the implied warranties made by Defendant to purchasers of its Ranitidine-Containing Products.

3637. As a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability, as alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order awarding compensatory and punitive damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the law.

COUNT 177
Unjust Enrichment
(Oregon Law)
(Against Pfizer)

3638. Oregon Class Representative Jonathan Ferguson incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 14-15, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

3639. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Oregon-Pfizer Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Pfizer (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

3640. Plaintiff and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products, or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

3645. There is no express contract governing this dispute.

3646. Plaintiff and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law.

23. Causes of Action Brought on Behalf of Puerto Rico-Pfizer Classes

COUNT 178
Breach of Implied Warranty
(P.R. Laws Ann. tit. 31, §3841)
(Against Pfizer)

3647. Puerto Rico Class Representatives Gloria Colon and Sonia Diaz incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 14-15, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

3648. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Puerto Rico-Pfizer Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Pfizer (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

3649. At all relevant times, Defendant was a merchant with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products which were sold to Puerto Rico Class Representatives and members of the Puerto Rico Class and was in the business of selling such products.

3650. Each Ranitidine-Containing Product sold by Defendant comes with an implied warranty that it will be merchantable and fit for the ordinary purpose for which it would be used, including impliedly warrantying on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products that the products were safe and/or did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

3651. Defendant breached its implied warranty of merchantability because its products cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

3653. Defendant had reason to know Plaintiff and each member of the Class's particular purpose in buying Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products, and knew that Plaintiff and each member of the Class relied on Defendant's skill or judgment in furnishing appropriate goods that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

3656. Further, Plaintiff and each member of the Class were the intended third-party beneficiaries of the implied warranties made by Defendant to purchasers of its Ranitidine-Containing Products.

3658. As a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability, as alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order awarding compensatory and punitive damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the law.

COUNT 179
Unjust Enrichment
(Puerto Rico Law)
(Against Brand Manufacturer Defendant Pfizer)

3659. Puerto Rico Class Representatives Gloria Colon and Sonia Diaz incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 14-15, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

3660. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Puerto Rico-Pfizer Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Pfizer (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

3661. Plaintiffs and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

which Defendant did not disclose contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed. Accordingly, Plaintiffs and Class members conferred a financial benefit on Defendants but did not receive their expected benefit therefrom.

3663. Defendant readily accepted and retained these benefits from Plaintiffs and Class members and was knowingly enriched by its unjust conduct – at Plaintiff's and the Class members' expense – by selling worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products that contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

3664. Defendant's enrichment – the monies obtained from Plaintiffs' and Class members' purchases of Ranitidine-Containing Products – was the result of Plaintiffs' and Class members' impoverishment – i.e., Plaintiffs' and Class members' receipt of worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe and unfit for human consumption.

3665. It is unjustifiable for the Defendant to retain these benefits because they were attained by misrepresenting and fraudulently concealing the true facts concerning the Ranitidine-Containing Products from Plaintiffs and Class members, who would not have purchased the medications at all, but for the Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions.

3667. Plaintiffs and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law.

24. Causes of Action on Behalf of Tennessee-Pfizer Classes

COUNT 180
Violation of the Tennessee Consumer Protection Act of 1977
(Tenn. Code Ann. §47-18-101, et seq.)
(Against Pfizer)

3668. Tennessee Class Representatives Dale Hunter and Eva Broughton incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 14-15, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

3669. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Tennessee-Pfizer Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Pfizer (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

3670. Defendant, Plaintiffs, and the Class members are "[p]erson[s]" within the meaning of Tenn. Code Ann. §47-18-103(14).

3671. Plaintiffs and the Class members are "[c]onsumer[s]" within the meaning of Tenn. Code Ann. §47-18-103(3).

3672. The Ranitidine-Containing Products are "[g]oods" within the meaning of Tenn. Code Ann. §47-18-103(8).

3673. Defendant was and is engaged in "[t]rade" or "commerce" or "consumer transaction[s]" within the meaning of Tenn. Code Ann. §47-18-103(20).

3674. The Tennessee Consumer Protection Act of 1977 ("Tennessee CPA") prohibits "[u]nfair or deceptive acts or practices affecting the conduct of any trade or commerce." Tenn. Code Ann. §47-18-104(a).

3675. The Tennessee CPA makes unlawful specific acts, including:

(a) "[r]epresenting that goods or services have sponsorship, approval, characteristics, ingredients, uses, benefits, or quantities that they do not have" (Tenn. Code Ann. §47-18-104(b)(5));

(b) "[r]epresenting that goods or services are of a particular standard, quality or grade, or that goods are of a particular style or model, if they are of another" (Tenn. Code Ann. §47-18-104(b)(7)); and

(c) "[a]dvertising goods or services with intent not to sell them as advertised" (Tenn. Code Ann. §47-18-104(b)(9)).

3676. In the course of its business, Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Tennessee CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

3677. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Tennessee CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

3678. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Tennessee CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

3679. Specifically, by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products, as detailed above, Defendant engaged in one or more unfair or deceptive acts or practices in the conduct of trade or commerce, in violation of the Tennessee CPA, including:

(a) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products have characteristics, uses, benefits, and qualities which they do not have;

(b) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products are of a particular standard, quality, and grade when they are not; and

(c) advertising the Ranitidine-Containing Products with the intent not to sell them as advertised.

3682. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding package size, and resulting misrepresentations and omissions concerning appropriate length of ingestion, of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiffs and the Class members in a uniform manner.

fact, did deceive reasonable consumers, including Plaintiffs and the Class members, about: (i) the inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products; (ii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products if used within the expiration dates; and (iii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products when ingesting all doses contained within particular packaging.

3685. Plaintiffs and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the Tennessee CPA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

3686. Specifically, Plaintiffs and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

3687. Defendant's violations present a continuing risk to Plaintiffs and the Class members, as well as to the general public. Defendant's unlawful acts and practices complained of herein affect the public interest.

3688. As a result of Defendant's violations of the Tennessee CPA, as alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the Tennessee CPA.

COUNT 181
Breach of Implied Warranty
(Tenn. Code Ann. §47-2-314)
(Against Pfizer)

3689. Tennessee Class Representatives Dale Hunter and Eva Broughton incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 14-15, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

3690. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Tennessee-Pfizer Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Pfizer (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

3691. At all relevant times, Defendant was a merchant with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products which were sold to Tennessee Class Representatives and members of the Tennessee Class and was in the business of selling such products.

3692. Each Ranitidine-Containing Product sold by Defendant comes with an implied warranty that it will be merchantable and fit for the ordinary purpose for which it would be used, including impliedly warrantying on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products that the products were safe and/or did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

3693. Defendant breached its implied warranty of merchantability because its products cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

3695. Defendant had reason to know Plaintiffs and each member of the Class's particular purpose in buying Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products and knew that Plaintiffs and each member of the Class relied on Defendant's skill or judgment in furnishing appropriate goods that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

3698. Further, Plaintiffs and each member of the Class were the intended third-party beneficiaries of the implied warranties made by Defendant to purchasers of its Ranitidine-Containing Products.

3699. Plaintiffs and the members of the Class were injured as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability. Plaintiffs and the members of the Class were damaged as a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability because, had they been aware of the unmerchantable condition of Ranitidine-Containing Products, they would not have purchased such drugs.

3700. As a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability, as alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members seek an order awarding compensatory and punitive damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the law.

COUNT 182
Unjust Enrichment
(Tennessee Law)
(Against Pfizer)

3701. Tennessee Class Representatives Dale Hunter and Eva Broughton incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 14-15, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

3702. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Tennessee-Pfizer Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Pfizer (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

3703. Plaintiffs and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

3705. Defendant readily accepted and retained these benefits from Plaintiffs and Class members and knowingly benefitted from its unjust conduct – at Plaintiffs' and the Class members' expense – by selling worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products that contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

3708. There is no existing, enforceable contract governing this dispute.

3709. Plaintiffs and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law.

25. Causes of Action on Behalf of the Texas-Pfizer Classes

COUNT 183
Violation of the Texas Deceptive Trade Practices-Consumer Protection Act
(Tex. Bus. & Com. Code Ann. §17.41, et seq.)
(Against Pfizer)

3710. Texas Class Representatives Marianella Villanueva, Ronda Lockett, Sylvia Yoshida, and Tammy Smith incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 14-15, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

3711. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Texas-Pfizer Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Pfizer (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

3712. Defendant, Plaintiffs, and the Class members are "[p]erson[s]" within the meaning of Tex. Bus. & Com. Code Ann. §17.45(3).

3713. Plaintiffs and the Class members are "[c]onsumer[s]" within the meaning of Tex. Bus. & Com. Code Ann. §17.45(4).

3714. The Ranitidine-Containing Products are "[g]oods" within the meaning of Tex. Bus. & Com. Code Ann. §17.45(1).

3715. Defendant was and is engaged in "[t]rade" or "commerce" within the meaning of Tex. Bus. & Com. Code Ann. §17.45(6).

3716. The Texas Deceptive Trade Practices-Consumer Protection Act ("Texas DTPA") prohibits "[f]alse, misleading, or deceptive acts or practices in the conduct of any trade or commerce," Tex. Bus. & Com. Code Ann. §17.46(a), and an "[u]nconscionable action or course of action," which means "an act or practice which, to a consumer's detriment, takes advantage of the lack of knowledge, ability, experience, or capacity of the consumer to a grossly unfair degree." Tex. Bus. & Com. Code Ann. §§17.45(5) and 17.50(a)(3).

3717. The Texas DTPA makes unlawful specific acts, including:

(a) "representing that goods or services have sponsorship, approval, characteristics, ingredients, uses, benefits, or quantities that they do not have" (Tex. Bus. & Com. Code Ann. §17.46(5));

(b) "representing that goods or services are of a particular standard, quality, or grade, or that goods are of a particular style or model, if they are of another" (Tex. Bus. & Com. Code Ann. §17.46(7)); and

(c) "advertising goods or services with intent not to sell them as advertised" (Tex. Bus. & Com. Code Ann. §17.46(9)).

3718. In the course of its business, Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Texas DTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-

Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

3719. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Texas DTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

3720. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Texas DTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

3721. Specifically, by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products, as detailed above, Defendant engaged in one or more unfair or deceptive acts or practices in the conduct of trade or commerce, in violation of the Texas DTPA, including:

(a) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products have characteristics, uses, benefits, and qualities which they do not have;

(b) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products are of a particular standard, quality, and grade when they are not; and

(c) advertising the Ranitidine-Containing Products with the intent not to sell them as advertised.

3723. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding the expiration dates of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiffs and the Class members in a uniform manner.

3724. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding package size, and resulting misrepresentations and omissions concerning appropriate length of ingestion, of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiffs and the Class members in a uniform manner.

3728. Plaintiffs and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the Texas DTPA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

3729. Specifically, Plaintiffs and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

3730. Defendant's violations present a continuing risk to Plaintiffs and the Class members, as well as to the general public. Defendant's unlawful acts and practices complained of herein affect the public interest.

3731. Defendant was provided notice of the issues raised in this Count and this Complaint by the FDA investigations, the numerous complaints filed against it, and the many individual notice letters sent by Plaintiffs within a reasonable amount of time after the allegations of Ranitidine-Containing Products' defects became public. In addition, on May 21, 2020, Plaintiffs in MDL 2924 sent a notice letter pursuant to Tex. Bus. & Com. Code Ann. §17.505(a) to Defendant. Because Defendant failed to adequately remedy its unlawful conduct within the requisite time period, Plaintiffs seek all damages and relief to which Plaintiff and the Class members are entitled.

3732. As a result of Defendant's violations of the Texas DTPA, as alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the Texas DTPA.

COUNT 184
Breach of Implied Warranty
(Tex. Bus. & Com. Code Ann. §2-314)
(Against Pfizer)

3733. Texas Class Representatives Marianella Villanueva, Ronda Lockett, Sylvia Yoshida, and Tammy Smith incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 14-15, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

3734. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Texas-Pfizer Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Pfizer (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

3735. At all relevant times, Defendant was a merchant with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products which were sold to Texas Class Representatives and members of the Texas Class and was in the business of selling such products.

3736. Each Ranitidine-Containing Product sold by Defendant comes with an implied warranty that it will be merchantable and fit for the ordinary purpose for which it would be used, including impliedly warrantying on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products that the products were safe and/or did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

3737. Defendant breached its implied warranty of merchantability because its products cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

3738. Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products are not fit for their intended use – or any use – because they have dangerous propensities when used as intended or within their expiration dates on the labels, and their use carries an increased risk of developing cancer.

3739. Defendant had reason to know Plaintiffs and each member of the Class's particular purpose in buying Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products and knew that Plaintiffs and each member of the Class relied on Defendant's skill or judgment in furnishing appropriate goods that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

3740. Plaintiffs and the Class did, in fact, rely on Defendant's skill and judgment in manufacturing Ranitidine-Containing Products that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

3742. Further, Plaintiffs and each member of the Class were the intended third-party beneficiaries of the implied warranties made by Defendant to purchasers of its Ranitidine-Containing Products.

3743. Plaintiffs and the members of the Class were injured as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability. Plaintiffs and the members of the Class were damaged as a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability because, had they been aware of the unmerchantable condition of Ranitidine-Containing Products, they would not have purchased such drugs.

3744. As a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability, as alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members seek an order awarding compensatory and punitive damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the law.

COUNT 185
Unjust Enrichment
(Texas Law)
(Against Pfizer)

3745. Texas Class Representatives Marianella Villanueva, Ronda Lockett, Sylvia Yoshida, and Tammy Smith incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 14-15, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

3746. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Texas-Pfizer Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Pfizer (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

3747. Plaintiffs and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

Plaintiffs and Class members conferred a financial benefit on Defendants but did not receive their expected benefit therefrom.

3749. Defendant readily accepted and retained these benefits from Plaintiffs and Class members and knowingly benefitted from its unjust conduct – at Plaintiffs' and the Class members' expense – by selling worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products that contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

3750. It is unjust and unconscionable for the Defendant to retain these wrongly secured benefits because they were attained by misrepresenting and fraudulently concealing the true facts concerning the Ranitidine-Containing Products from Plaintiffs and Class members, who would not have purchased the medications at all, but for the Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions.

3752. Plaintiffs and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law, nor is there an express contract governing this dispute.

26. Causes of Action on Behalf of Vermont-Pfizer Classes

COUNT 186
Violation of the Vermont Consumer Fraud Act
(Vt. Stat. Ann. tit. 9, §2451, et seq.)
(Against Pfizer)

3753. Vermont Class Representative Ronald Ragis incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 14-15, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

3754. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Vermont-Pfizer Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Pfizer (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

3755. Defendant is a "[s]eller" within the meaning of Vt. Stat. Ann. tit. 9, §2451a(c).

3756. Plaintiff and the Class members are "[c]onsumer[s]" within the meaning of Vt. Stat. Ann. tit. 9, §2451a(a).

3757. The Ranitidine-Containing Products are "[g]oods" within the meaning of Vt. Stat. Ann. tit. 9, §2451a(b).

3758. The Vermont Consumer Fraud Act ("Vermont CFA") prohibits "[u]nfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair or deceptive acts or practices in commerce." Vt. Stat. Ann. tit. 9, §2453(a).

3759. In the course of its business, Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Vermont CFA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

3760. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Vermont CFA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

3761. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Vermont CFA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

3765. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding package size, and resulting misrepresentations and omissions concerning appropriate length of ingestion, of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiff and the Class members in a uniform manner.

3766. Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices, including its misrepresentations, concealments, omissions, and suppressions of material facts, as alleged herein, had a tendency or capacity to mislead and create a false impression in consumers' minds, and were likely to and, in fact, did deceive reasonable consumers, including Plaintiffsand the Class members, about: (i) the inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products; (ii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products if used within the expiration dates; and (iii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products when ingesting all doses contained within particular packaging.

3768. Plaintiff and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the Vermont CFA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

3769. Specifically, Plaintiff and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

3770. Defendant's violations present a continuing risk to Plaintiff and the Class members, as well as to the general public. Defendant's unlawful acts and practices complained of herein affect the public interest.

3771. As a result of Defendant's violations of the Vermont CFA, as alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the Vermont CFA.

COUNT 187
Breach of Implied Warranty
(Vt. Stat. Ann. tit. 9A §2-314)
(Against Pfizer)

3772. Vermont Class Representative Ronald Ragis incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 14-15, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

3773. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Vermont-Pfizer Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Pfizer (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

3774. At all relevant times, Defendant was a merchant with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products which were sold to Vermont Class Representatives and members of the Vermont Class and was in the business of selling such products.

3775. Each Ranitidine-Containing Product sold by Defendant comes with an implied warranty that it will be merchantable and fit for the ordinary purpose for which it would be used, including impliedly warrantying on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products that the products were safe and/or did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

3776. Defendant breached its implied warranty of merchantability because its products cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

3777. Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products are not fit for their intended use – or any use – because they have dangerous propensities when used as intended or within their expiration dates on the labels, and their use carries an increased risk of developing cancer.

3778. Defendant had reason to know Plaintiff and each member of the Class's particular purpose in buying Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products and knew that Plaintiff and each member of the Class relied on Defendant's skill or judgment in furnishing appropriate goods that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

3779. Plaintiff and the Class did, in fact, rely on Defendant's skill and judgment in manufacturing Ranitidine-Containing Products that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

3780. Plaintiff and each member of the Class have had sufficient direct dealings with either Defendant or its agents (including distributors, dealers, and authorized sellers) to establish privity of contract between Defendant, on the one hand, and Plaintiff and each member of the Class, on the other hand.

3781. Further, Plaintiff and each member of the Class were the intended third-party beneficiaries of the implied warranties made by Defendant to purchasers of its Ranitidine-Containing Products.

27. Causes of Action on Behalf of the Washington-Pfizer Classes

COUNT 188
Violation of the Washington Consumer Protection Act
(Wash. Rev. Code Ann. §19.86.010, et seq.)
(Against Pfizer)

3784. Washington Class Representatives Earlene Green, Robert Dewitt, Steve Fischer, and Jonathan Ferguson incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 14-15, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

3785. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Washington-Pfizer Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Pfizer (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

3786. Defendant, Plaintiffs, and the Class members are "[p]erson[s]" within the meaning of Wash. Rev. Code Ann. §19.86.010(1).

3787. The Ranitidine-Containing Products are "[a]ssets" within the meaning of Wash. Rev. Code Ann. §19.86.010(3).

3788. Defendant was and is engaged in "[t]rade" or "commerce" within the meaning of Wash. Rev. Code Ann. §19.86.010(2).

3789. The Washington Consumer Protection Act ("Washington CPA") prohibits "[u]nfair methods of competition and unfair or deceptive acts or practices in the conduct of any trade or commerce." Wash. Rev. Code Ann. §19.86.020.

3790. In the course of its business, Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Washington CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

3791. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Washington CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

3792. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Washington CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

Defendant engaged in one or more unfair or deceptive acts or practices in the conduct of trade or commerce, in violation of the Washington CPA.

3794. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding the inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiffs and the Class members in a uniform manner.

3796. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding package size, and resulting misrepresentations and omissions concerning appropriate length of ingestion, of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiffs and the Class members in a uniform manner.

members, who consider such facts to be important to their purchase decisions with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products.

3799. Plaintiffs and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the Washington CPA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

3800. Specifically, Plaintiffs and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

3801. Defendant's violations present a continuing risk to Plaintiffs and the Class members, as well as to the general public. Defendant's unlawful acts and practices complained of herein affect the public interest.

3802. On June 22, 2020, Plaintiffs in MDL 2924 sent a notice letter pursuant to Wash. Rev. Code Ann. §19.86.095 to the Attorney General of the State of Washington.

3803. As a result of Defendant's violations of the Washington CPA, as alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the Washington CPA.

COUNT 189
Breach of Implied Warrant
(Wash. Rev. Code §62A.2-314)
(Against Pfizer)

3804. Washington Class Representatives Earlene Green, Robert Dewitt, Steve Fischer, and Jonathan Ferguson incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 14-15, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

3805. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Washington-Pfizer Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Pfizer (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

3806. At all relevant times, Defendant was a merchant with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products which were sold to Washington Class Representatives and members of the Washington Class and was in the business of selling such products.

3807. Each Ranitidine-Containing Product sold by Defendant comes with an implied warranty that it will be merchantable and fit for the ordinary purpose for which it would be used, including impliedly warrantying on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products that the products were safe and/or did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

3810. Defendant had reason to know Plaintiffs and each member of the Class's particular purpose in buying Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products, and knew that Plaintiffs and each member of the Class relied on Defendant's skill or judgment in furnishing appropriate goods that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

3813. Further, Plaintiffs and each member of the Class were the intended third-party beneficiaries of the implied warranties made by Defendant to purchasers of its Ranitidine-Containing Products.

3815. As a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability, as alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members seek an order awarding compensatory and punitive damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the law.

COUNT 190
Unjust Enrichment
(Washington Law)
(Against Pfizer)

3816. Washington Class Representatives Earlene Green, Robert Dewitt, Steve Fischer, and Jonathan Ferguson incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 14-15, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

3817. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Washington-Pfizer Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Brand Manufacturer Defendant Pfizer (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

3818. Plaintiffs and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products, or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

3821. It is unjust for the Defendant to retain these benefits because they were attained by misrepresenting and fraudulently concealing the true facts concerning the Ranitidine-Containing Products from Plaintiffs and Class members, who would not have purchased the medications at all, but for the Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions.

3823. There is no express contract governing this dispute.

3824. Plaintiffs and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law.

Unjust Enrichment
(West Virginia Law)
(Against Pfizer)

3836. West Virginia Class Representative Ida Adams incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 14-15, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

3837. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the West Virginia-Pfizer Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Pfizer (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

3838. Plaintiff and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products, or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

29. Causes of Action on Behalf of the Wisconsin-Pfizer Classes

COUNT 193
Violation of the Wisconsin Deceptive Trade Practices Act
(Wis. Stat. Ann. §100.18, et seq.)
(Against Pfizer)

3845. Wisconsin Class Representative Wendy Quezaire incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 14-15, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

3846. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Wisconsin-Pfizer Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Pfizer (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

3847. Defendant is a "person, firm, corporation or association" within the meaning of Wis. Stat. Ann. §100.18(1).

3848. Plaintiff and the Class members are members of "the public" within the meaning of Wis. Stat. Ann. §100.18(1).

3849. The Ranitidine-Containing Products are "merchandise" within the meaning of Wis. Stat. Ann. §100.18(1).

3850. The Wisconsin Deceptive Trade Practices Act ("Wisconsin DTPA") prohibits any "assertion, representation or statement of fact which is untrue, deceptive or misleading." Wis. Stat. Ann. §100.18(1).

3851. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Wisconsin DTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

3852. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Wisconsin DTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

3853. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Wisconsin DTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

3857. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding package size, and resulting misrepresentations and omissions concerning appropriate length of ingestion, of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiff and the Class members in a uniform manner.

3859. 3860. Plaintiff and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the Wisconsin DTPA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

3861. Specifically, Plaintiff and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

3863. As a result of Defendant's violations of the Wisconsin DTPA, as alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the Wisconsin DTPA.

COUNT 196
Breach of Implied Warranty
(Wyo. Stat. §34.1-2-314)
(Against Pfizer)

3885. Wyoming Class Representative Charles Longfield incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 14-15, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

3886. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Wyoming-Pfizer Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Pfizer (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

3887. At all relevant times, Defendant was a merchant with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products which were sold to Wyoming Class Representatives and members of the Wyoming Class and was in the business of selling such products.

3888. Each Ranitidine-Containing Product sold by Defendant comes with an implied warranty that it will be merchantable and fit for the ordinary purpose for which it would be used, including impliedly warrantying on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products that the products were safe and/or did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

3889. Defendant breached its implied warranty of merchantability because its products cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

3890. Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products are not fit for their intended use – or any use – because they have dangerous propensities when used as intended or within their expiration dates on the labels, and their use carries an increased risk of developing cancer.

3891. Defendant had reason to know Plaintiff and each member of the Class's particular purpose in buying Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products and knew that Plaintiff and each member of the Class relied on Defendant's skill or judgment in furnishing appropriate goods that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

3892. Plaintiff and the Class did, in fact, rely on Defendant's skill and judgment in manufacturing Ranitidine-Containing Products that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

3894. Further, Plaintiff and each member of the Class were the intended third-party beneficiaries of the implied warranties made by Defendant to purchasers of its Ranitidine-Containing Products.

3895. Plaintiff and the members of the Class were injured as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability. Plaintiff and the members of the Class were damaged as a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability because, had they been aware of the unmerchantable condition of Ranitidine-Containing Products, they would not have purchased such drugs.

3896. As a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability, as alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order awarding compensatory and punitive damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the law.

COUNT 197
Unjust Enrichment
(Wyoming Law)
(Against Pfizer)

3897. Wyoming Class Representative Charles Longfield incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 14-15, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

3898. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Wyoming-Pfizer Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Pfizer (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

3899. Plaintiff and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

3900. In exchange for their payment of the purchase price of Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products, Plaintiff and Class members received the Ranitidine-Containing Products, which Defendant did not disclose contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed. ccordingly,

Plaintiff and Class members conferred a financial benefit on Defendants but did not receive their expected benefit therefrom.

3901. Defendant readily accepted, retained, and enjoyed these benefits from Plaintiff and Class members and knowingly benefitted from its unjust conduct – at Plaintiff's and the Class members' expense – by selling worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products that contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

3902. Defendant knew that Plaintiff and Class members reasonably expected to receive safe and effective medications.

3905. Plaintiff and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law, nor is there an express contract governing this dispute.

C. Causes of Action Against BI

3906. For the purposes of the subsequent causes of action against Defendant BI, Plaintiffs are incorporating the following allegations by reference: paragraphs 2-8 (corporate information);

273-277 (jurisdiction and venue); 279-303 (development of brand Zantac); 317-361 (knowledge that NDMA is carcinogenic); 362-382 (discovery by regulatory agencies that ranitidine contained NDMA); 383-386 (transformation of ranitidine into NDMA); 387-415, 445-456 (knowledge that ranitidine had the potential to transform into NDMA); 416-422 (NDMA formation in organs of the human body); 423-435 (NDMA formation by exposure to heat, moisture and/or time); 436-442 (link between ranitidine exposure and cancer); 462-469 (requirement to notify the FDA of presence of NDMA in ranitidine); 470-474 (compliance with current Good Manufacturing Practices); 868-894 (misrepresentations or omissions of material fact in labeling); 895-911 (misrepresentations or omissions of material fact in packaging); and 475-483 (equitable tolling).

3907. Plaintiff identified in the table below bring claims against Defendant BI on behalf of themselves and their respective State Classes under the laws of their respective states. 1. Causes of Action on Behalf of the Alabama-BI Classes

Violation of the Alabama Deceptive Trade Practices Act
(Ala. Code §8-19-1, et seq.)
(Against BI)

3908. Alabama Class Representative Anthony McGhee incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 2-8, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

3909. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Alabama-BI Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against BI (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

3910. Defendant, Plaintiff, and the Class members are "person[s]" within the meaning of Ala. Code §8-19-3(5).

3911. Plaintiff and the Class members are "consumer[s]" within the meaning of Ala. Code §8-19-3(2).

3912. The Ranitidine-Containing Products are "goods" within the meaning of Ala. Code §8-19-3(3).

3913. Defendant was and is engaged in "trade or commerce" within the meaning of Ala. Code §8-19-3(8).

3914. The Alabama Deceptive Trade Practices Act ("Alabama DTPA") prohibits "deceptive acts or practices in the conduct of any trade or commerce." Ala. Code §8-19-5.

3915. The Alabama DTPA makes unlawful specific acts, including:

(a) "[r]epresenting that goods or services have sponsorship, approval, characteristics, ingredients, uses, benefits, or qualities that they do not have" (Ala. Code §8-19-5(5));

(b) "[r]epresenting that goods or services are of a particular standard, quality, or grade, or that goods are of a particular style or model, if they are of another" (Ala. Code §8-19-5(7));

(c) "[a]dvertising goods or services with intent not to sell them as advertised" (Ala. Code §8-19-5(9)); and

(d) "[e]ngaging in any other unconscionable, false, misleading, or deceptive act or practice in the conduct of trade or commerce" (Ala. Code §8-19-5(27)).

3916. In the course of its business, Defendant, through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Alabama DTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

3917. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Alabama DTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

3918. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Alabama DTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

Defendant engaged in one or more unfair or deceptive business practices prohibited by the Alabama DTPA, including:

(a) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products have characteristics, uses, benefits, and qualities which they do not have;

(b) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products are of a particular standard, quality, and grade when they are not;

(c) advertising the Ranitidine-Containing Products with the intent not to sell them as advertised; and

(d) engaging in any other unconscionable, false, misleading, or deceptive act or practice in the conduct of trade or commerce.

3922. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding package size, and resulting misrepresentations and omissions concerning appropriate length of ingestion, of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiff and the Class members in a uniform manner.

3923. Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices, including its misrepresentations, concealments, omissions, and suppressions of material facts, as alleged herein, had a tendency or capacity to mislead and create a false impression in consumers' minds, and were likely to and, in fact, did deceive reasonable consumers, including Plaintiff and the Class members, about: (i) the inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products; (ii)

the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products if used within the expiration dates; and (iii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products when ingesting all doses contained within particular packaging.

3925. Plaintiff and the Class members relied on Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, and concealments with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products by purchasing and continuing to purchase Ranitidine-Containing Products after Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, and concealments were made.

3926. Plaintiff and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the Alabama DTPA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

3927. Specifically, Plaintiff and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

3928. Defendant's violations present a continuing risk to Plaintiffs and the Class members, as well as to the general public. Defendant's unlawful acts and practices complained of herein affect the public interest.

3929. Defendant was provided notice of the issues raised in this Count and this Complaint by the FDA investigations, the numerous complaints filed against it, and the many individual notice letters sent by Plaintiffs within a reasonable amount of time after the allegations of Ranitidine-Containing Products' defects became public. In addition, on May 21, 2020, Plaintiffs in In re Zantac (Ranitidine) Products Liability Litigation, No. 9:20-md-02924-RLR (S.D. Fla.) ("MDL 2924") sent a notice letter pursuant to Ala. Code §8-19-10(e) to Defendant. Because Defendant failed to adequately remedy its unlawful conduct within the requisite time period, Plaintiffs seek all damages and relief to which Plaintiffs and the Class members are entitled.

3930. As a result of Defendant's violations of the Alabama DTPA, as alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the Alabama DTPA.

COUNT 199
Unjust Enrichment
(Alabama Law)
(Against BI)

3931. Alabama Class Representative Anthony McGhee incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 2-8, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

3932. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Alabama-BI Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against BI (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

3933. Plaintiff and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

3936. It is inequitable and unconscionable for the Defendant to retain these benefits because they were attained by misrepresenting and fraudulently concealing the true facts concerning the Ranitidine-Containing Products from Plaintiff and Class members, who would not have purchased the medications at all, but for the Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions.

3938. Plaintiff and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law.

2. Causes of Action on Behalf of the Alaska-BI Classes

COUNT 200
Violation of the Alaska Unfair Trade Practices and Consumer Protection Act
(Alaska Stat. Ann. §45.50.471, et seq.)
(Against BI)

3939. Alaska Class Representative Roy Armstrong incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 2-8, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

3940. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Alaska-BI Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against BI (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

3941. Plaintiff and the Class members are "consumer[s]" within the meaning of Alaska Stat. Ann. §45.50.561(a)(4).

3942. The Alaska Unfair Trade Practices and Consumer Protection Act ("Alaska CPA") prohibits "[u]nfair methods of competition and unfair or deceptive acts or practices in the conduct of trade or commerce." Alaska Stat. Ann. §45.50.471(a).

3943. The Alaska CPA makes unlawful specific acts, including:

(a) "representing that goods or services have sponsorship, approval, characteristics, ingredients, uses, benefits, or quantities that they do not have" (Alaska Stat. Ann. §45.50.471(b)(4));

(b) "representing that goods or services are of a particular standard, quality, or grade, or that goods are of a particular style or model, if they are of another" (Alaska Stat. Ann. §45.50.471(b)(6));

(c) "advertising goods or services with intent not to sell them as advertised" (Alaska Stat. Ann. §45.50.471(b)(8));

(d) "engaging in any other conduct creating a likelihood of confusion or of misunderstanding and that misleads, deceives, or damages a buyer or a competitor in connection with the sale or advertisement of goods or services" (Alaska Stat. Ann. §45.50.471(b)(11)); and

> or omission in connection with the sale or advertisement of goods or services whether or not a person has in fact been misled, deceived, or damaged" (Alaska Stat. Ann. §45.50.471(b)(12)).

3944. In the course of its business, Defendant, through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Alaska CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

3945. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Alaska CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

3946. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Alaska CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

(a) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products have characteristics, uses, benefits, and qualities which they do not have;

(b) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products are of a particular standard, quality, and grade when they are not;

(c) advertising the Ranitidine-Containing Products with the intent not to sell them as advertised; and

(d) engaging in any other unconscionable, false, misleading, or deceptive act or practice in the conduct of trade or commerce.

3949. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding the expiration of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiff and the Class members in a uniform manner.

3950. Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices, including its misrepresentations, concealments, omissions, and suppressions of material facts, as alleged herein, had a tendency or capacity to mislead and create a false impression in consumers' minds, and were likely to and, in fact, did deceive reasonable consumers, including Plaintiff and the Class members, about: (i) the inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products; (ii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products if used within the expiration dates; and (iii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products when ingesting all doses contained within particular packaging.

3952. Plaintiff and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the Alaska CPA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

3953. Specifically, Plaintiff and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

3956. As a result of Defendant's violations of the Alaska CPA, as alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the Alaska CPA.

Unjust Enrichment or Quasi-Contract
(Alaska Law)
(Against BI)

3957. Alaska Class Representative Roy Armstrong incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 2-8, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

3958. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Alaska-BI Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against BI (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

3959. Plaintiff and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

3961. Defendant readily accepted and retained these benefits from Plaintiff and Class members and knowingly benefitted from its unjust conduct – at Plaintiff's and the Class members' expense – by selling worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products that contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

3962. It is inequitable and unconscionable for the Defendant to retain these benefits because they were attained by misrepresenting and fraudulently concealing the true facts concerning the Ranitidine-Containing Products from Plaintiff and Class members, who would not have purchased the medications at all, but for the Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions.

3964. Plaintiff and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law.

3. Causes of Action on Behalf of the Arizona-BI Classes

COUNT 202
Violation of the Arizona Consumer Fraud Act
(Ariz. Rev. Stat. Ann. §44-1521, et seq.)
(Against BI)

3965. Arizona Class Representative Tangie Sims incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 2-8, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

3966. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Arizona-BI Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against BI (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

3967. Defendant, Plaintiff, and the Class members are "[p]erson[s]" within the meaning of Ariz. Rev. Stat. Ann. §44-1521(6).

3968. The Ranitidine-Containing Products are "[m]erchandise" within the meaning of Ariz. Rev. Stat. Ann. §44-1521(5).

3969. The Arizona Consumer Fraud Act ("Arizona CFA") prohibits "[t]he act, use or employment by any person of any deception, deceptive or unfair act or practice, fraud, … misrepresentation, or concealment, suppression or omission of any material fact with intent that others rely on such concealment, suppression or omission, in connection with the sale … of any merchandise whether or not any person has in fact been misled, deceived or damaged thereby." Ariz. Rev. Stat. Ann. §44-1522(A).

3971. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Arizona CFA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

3972. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Arizona CFA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

3974. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding the inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiff and the Class members in a uniform manner.

3976. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding package size, and resulting misrepresentations and omissions concerning appropriate length of ingestion, of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiffs and the Class members in a uniform manner.

3979. Plaintiff and the Class members relied on Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, and concealments with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products by purchasing and continuing to purchase Ranitidine-Containing Products after Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, and concealments were made.

3980. Plaintiff and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the Arizona CFA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

3981. Specifically, Plaintiff and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

3983. As a result of Defendant's violations of the Arizona CFA, as alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the Arizona CFA.

COUNT 203
Unjust Enrichment (Arizona Law)
(Against BI)

3984. Arizona Class Representative Tangie Sims incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 2-8, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

3985. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Arizona-BI Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against BI (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

3986. Plaintiff and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

3988. Defendant readily accepted and retained these benefits from Plaintiff and Class members and was knowingly enriched by its unjust conduct – at Plaintiff's and the Class members' expense – by selling worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products that contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

3989. It is unjustifiable for the Defendant to retain these benefits because they were attained by misrepresenting and fraudulently concealing the true facts concerning the Ranitidine-Containing Products from Plaintiff and Class members, who would not have purchased the medications at all, but for the Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions.

3991. Plaintiff and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law.

4. Causes of Action on Behalf of the Arkansas-BI Classes

COUNT 204
Violation of the Arkansas Deceptive Trade Practices Act
(Ark. Code Ann. §4-88-101, et seq.)
(Against BI)

3992. Arkansas Class Representatives Andy Green Jr. and Tina Culclager incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 2-8, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

3993. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Arkansas-BI Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against BI (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

3994. Defendant, Plaintiffs, and the Class members are "[p]erson[s]" within the meaning of Ark. Code Ann. §4-88-102(5).

3995. The Ranitidine-Containing Products are "[g]oods" within the meaning of Ark. Code Ann. §4-88-102(4).

3996. The Arkansas Deceptive Trade Practices Act ("Arkansas DTPA") prohibits "[d]eceptive and unconscionable trade practices." Ark. Code Ann. §4-88-107(a).

3997. The Arkansas DTPA makes unlawful specific acts, including:

(a) "[k]nowingly making a false representation as to the characteristics, ingredients, uses, benefits, alterations, source, sponsorship, approval, or certification of goods or services or as to whether goods are original or new or of a particular standard, quality, grade, style, or model" (Ark. Code Ann. §4-88-107(a)(1));

(b) "[a]dvertising the goods or services with the intent not to sell them as advertised" (Ark. Code Ann. §4-88-107(a)(3)); and

(c) "[e]ngaging in any other unconscionable, false, or deceptive act or practice in business, commerce, or trade" (Ark. Code Ann. §4-88-107(a)(10)).

3998. The Arkansas DTPA also prohibits the following when utilized in connection with the sale or advertisement of any goods: "(1) The act, use, or employment by any person of any deception, fraud, or false pretense; [or] (2) [t]he concealment, suppression, or omission of any material fact with intent that others rely upon the concealment, suppression, or omission . . . ." Ark. Code Ann. §4-88-108(a).

3999. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Arkansas DTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

4000. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Arkansas DTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

4001. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Arkansas DTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

4002. Specifically, by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products, as detailed above, Defendant engaged in one or more unfair or deceptive acts or practices in the conduct of trade or commerce, in violation of the Arkansas DTPA, including:

(a) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products have characteristics, uses, benefits, and qualities which they do not have;

(b) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products are of a particular standard, quality, and grade when they are not;

(c) advertising the Ranitidine-Containing Products with the intent not to sell them as advertised; and

(d) engaging in any other unconscionable, false, misleading, or deceptive act or practice in the conduct of trade or commerce.

4003. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding the inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiffs and the Class members in a uniform manner.

4005. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding package size, and resulting misrepresentations and omissions concerning appropriate length of ingestion, of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiffs and the Class members in a uniform manner.

4009. Plaintiffs and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of Arkansas DTPA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

4010. Specifically, Plaintiffs and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

4012. As a result of Defendant's violations of the Arkansas DTPA, as alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the Arkansas DTPA.

COUNT 205
Breach of Implied Warranty
Ark. Code Ann. §4-2-314
(Against BI)

4013. Arkansas Class Representative Andy Green Jr. and Tina Culclager incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 2-8, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

4014. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Arkansas-BI Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against BI (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

4015. At all relevant times, Defendant was a merchant with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products which were sold to Arkansas Class Representatives and members of the Arkansas Class and was in the business of selling such products.

4016. Each Ranitidine-Containing Product sold by Defendant comes with an implied warranty that it will be merchantable and fit for the ordinary purpose for which it would be used, including impliedly warrantying on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products that the products were safe and/or did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

4017. Defendant breached its implied warranty of merchantability because its products cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

4018. Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products are not fit for their intended use – or any use – because they have dangerous propensities when used as intended or within their expiration dates on the labels, and their use carries an increased risk of developing cancer.

4019. Defendant had reason to know Plaintiffs and each member of the Class's particular purpose in buying Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products and knew that Plaintiffs and each member of the Class relied on Defendant's skill or judgment in furnishing appropriate goods that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

4022. Further, Plaintiffs and each member of the Class were the intended third-party beneficiaries of the implied warranties made by Defendant to purchasers of its Ranitidine-Containing Products.

4024. As a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability, as alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members seek an order awarding compensatory and punitive damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the law.

COUNT 206
Unjust Enrichment
(Arkansas Law)
(Against BI)

4025. Arkansas Class Representative Andy Green Jr. and Tina Culclager incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 2-8, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

4026. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Arkansas-BI Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against BI (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

4027. Plaintiffs and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

4030. It is unjust and inequitable for the Defendant to retain these benefits because they were attained by misrepresenting and fraudulently concealing the true facts concerning the Ranitidine-Containing Products from Plaintiffs and Class members, who would not have purchased the medications at all, but for the Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions.

4032. There is no valid, legal, and binding contract governing this dispute.

4033. Plaintiffs and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law.

5. Causes of Action on Behalf of the California-BI Classes

COUNT 207
Violation of the California Unfair Competition Law
(Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code §17200, et seq.)
(Against BI)

4034. California Class Representatives Golbenaz Bakhtiar, Richard O'Brien, and Virginia Aragon incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 2-8, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

4035. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the California-BI Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against BI (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

4036. Defendant, Plaintiffs, and the Class members are "persons" within the meaning of Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code §17201.

4037. Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code §17200 ("California UCL") prohibits acts of "unfair competition," including any "unlawful, unfair or fraudulent business act or practice" and "unfair, deceptive, untrue or misleading advertising."

4038. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the California UCL by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

4039. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the California UCL by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

4040. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the California UCL by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

4044. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding package size, and resulting misrepresentations and omissions concerning appropriate length of ingestion, of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiff and the Class members in a uniform manner.

4047. Moreover, Defendant engaged in "unlawful" business acts or practices by violating both federal and California laws, including: the federal RICO statute, 18 U.S.C. §1962(c)-(d); adulteration and misbranding provisions under the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act, 21 U.S.C. §§331(a), (c), (g), 351(a)(2)(B), (b), (d), 352(a)(1), (c), (e)(1)(A)(ii), (f)-(g), (i)(2)-(3), (j), (n), (p); Good Manufacturing Practices, 21 C.F.R. 210.1(a), 211.142(b); adulteration and misbranding provisions under the Sherman Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Laws, Cal. Health & Safety Code §§111260, 111280, 111290, 111295, 111305, 111330, 111345, 111355(a)(3), 111360(b), 111375, 111380, 111395(a)-(b), 111400, 111440, 111445, 111450; the Consumer Legal Remedies Act, Cal. Civ. Code §1750; and the California FAL, Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code §17500, as alleged herein.

4048. Defendant's conduct also consitutes "unfair" business acts or practies. Under the balancing test, the determination of whether a business practice is "unfair" involves examining the practice's impact on its alleged victim, balanced against the reasons, justifications, and motives of the alleged wrongdoer.

4049. Additionally, Defendant's conduct was "unfair" under the tethering test, in that it violated the federal RICO statute, 18 U.S.C. §1962(c)-(d); adulteration and misbranding provisions under the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act, 21 U.S.C. §§331(a), (c), (g), 351(a)(2)(B), (b), (d), 352(a)(1), (c), (e)(1)(A)(ii), (f)-(g), (i)(2)-(3), (j), (n), (p); Good Manufacturing Practices, 21 C.F.R. 210.1(a), 211.142(b); adulteration and misbranding provisions under the Sherman Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Laws, Cal. Health & Safety Code §§111260, 111280, 111290, 111295, 111305, 111330, 111345, 111355(a)(3), 111360(b), 111375, 111380, 111395(a)-(b), 111400, 111440, 111445, 111450; the Consumer Legal Remedies Act, see Cal. Civ. Code §1760; and the California FAL, Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code §17500, which reflect the United States' and California's policy of protecting consumers against unfair and deceptive business practices and adulterated and misbranded drugs.

4050. Plaintiffs and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the California UCL because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

4051. Specifically, Plaintiffs and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

4053. Pursuant to Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code §§17200 and 17203, Plaintiffs and the Class members seek an order providing restitution relating to the above-described unfair business acts or practices, and injunctive and declaratory relief as may be appropriate.

COUNT 208
Violation of the California False Advertising Law
(Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code §17500, et seq.)
(Against BI)

4054. California Class Representatives Golbenaz Bakhtiar, Richard O'Brien, and Virginia Aragon incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 2-8, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

4055. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the California-BI Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against BI (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

4056. Defendant, Plaintiffs, and the Class members are "persons" within the meaning of Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code §17506.

4057. The California False Advertising Law ("California FAL") prohibits "any person, . . . corporation . . . or any employee thereof with intent directly or indirectly to dispose of real or personal property . . . or to induce the public to enter into any obligation relating thereto, to make or disseminate or cause to be made or disseminated . . . before the public in this state or from this state before the public in any state, in any newspaper or other publication, or any advertising device, . . . or in any other manner or means whatever, including over the internet, any statement . . . which is untrue or misleading, and which is known, or which by the exercise of reasonable care should be known, to be untrue or misleading." Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code §17500.

4058. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the California FAL by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

4060. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the California FAL by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-

Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

4061. Specifically, by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products, as detailed above, Defendant engaged in one or more unfair or deceptive acts or practices in the conduct of trade or commerce, in violation of the California FAL, including:

(a) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products have characteristics, uses, benefits, and qualities which they do not have;

(b) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products are of a particular standard, quality, and grade when they are not;

(c) advertising the Ranitidine-Containing Products with the intent not to sell them as advertised; and

(d) engaging in any other unconscionable, false, misleading, or deceptive act or practice in the conduct of trade or commerce.

4062. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding the inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiff and the Class members in a uniform manner.

4064. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding package size, and resulting misrepresentations and omissions concerning appropriate length of ingestion, of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiffs and the Class members in a uniform manner.

4067. Plaintiffs and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the California FAL because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

4068. Specifically, Plaintiffs and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

4069. Defendant's violations present a continuing risk to Plaintiffs and the Class members, as well as to the general public. Defendant's unlawful acts and practices complained of herein affect the public interest.

4070. As a result of Defendant's violations of the California FAL, as alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members seek an order providing restitution and disgorgement of all profits relating to the above-described business acts or practices, and other appropriate relief, including injunctive and declaratory relief as may be appropriate under the California FAL.

COUNT 209
Violation of the California Consumers Legal Remedies Act
(Cal. Civ. Code §1750, et seq.)
(Against BI)

4071. California Class Representatives Golbenaz Bakhtiar, Richard O'Brien, and Virginia Aragon incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 2-8, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

4072. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the California-BI Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against BI (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

4073. Defendant, Plaintiffs, and the Class members are "[p]erson[s]" within the meaning of Cal. Civ. Code §1761(c).

4074. Plaintiffs and the Class members are "[c]onsumer[s]" within the meaning of Cal. Civ. Code §1761(d).

4075. The Ranitidine-Containing Products are "[g]oods" within the meaning of Cal. Civ. Code §1761(a).

4076. The California Consumers Legal Remedies Act ("California CLRA") prohibits "unfair methods of competition and unfair or deceptive acts or practices undertaken by any person in a transaction intended to result or that results in the sale or lease of goods or services to any consumer." Cal. Civ. Code §1770(a).

4077. The California CLRA makes unlawful specific acts, including:

(a) "[r]epresenting that goods or services have sponsorship, approval, characteristics, ingredients, uses, benefits, or quantities that they do not have" (Cal. Civ. Code §1770(a)(5));

(b) "[r]epresenting that goods or services are of a particular standard, quality, or grade, or that goods are of a particular style or model, if they are of another" (Cal. Civ. Code §1770(a)(7));

(c) "[a]dvertising goods or services with intent not to sell them as advertised" (Cal. Civ. Code §1770(a)(9)); and

(d) "[r]epresenting that the subject of a transaction has been supplied in accordance with a previous representation when it has not" (Cal. Civ. Code §1770(a)(16)).

4078. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the California CLRA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

4080. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the California CLRA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

4081. Specifically, by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products, as detailed above, Defendant engaged in one or more unfair or deceptive acts or practices in the conduct of trade or commerce, in violation of the California CLRA, including:

(a) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products have characteristics, uses, benefits, and qualities which they do not have;

(b) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products are of a particular standard, quality, and grade when they are not;

(c) advertising the Ranitidine-Containing Products with the intent not to sell them as advertised; and

(d) engaging in any other unconscionable, false, misleading, or deceptive act or practice in the conduct of trade or commerce.

Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiffs and the Class members in a uniform manner.

4085. Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices, including its misrepresentations, concealments, omissions, and suppressions of material facts, as alleged herein, had a tendency or capacity to mislead and create a false impression in consumers' minds, and were likely to and, in fact, did deceive reasonable consumers, including Plaintiffs and the Class members, about: (i) the inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products; (ii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products if used within the expiration dates; and (iii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products when ingesting all doses contained within particular packaging.

4087. Plaintiffs and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the California CLRA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products, as set forth above.

4088. Specifically, Plaintiffs and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

4089. Defendant's violations present a continuing risk to Plaintiffs and the Class members, as well as to the general public. Defendant's unlawful acts and practices complained of herein affect the public interest.

4090. Defendant was provided notice of the issues raised in this Count and this Complaint by the FDA investigations, the numerous complaints filed against it, and the many individual notice letters sent by various Plaintiff within a reasonable amount of time after the allegations of Ranitidine-Containing Products' defects became public. In addition, on May 21, 2020, Plaintiffs in MDL 2924 sent a notice letter pursuant to Cal. Civ. Code §1782 to Defendant. Because Defendant failed to adequately remedy its unlawful conduct within the requisite time period, Plaintiffs seek all damages and relief to which Plaintiff and the Class members are entitled.

4091. Pursuant to Cal. Civ. Code §1780(a), Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding damages and any other just and proper relief available under the California CLRA. Under Cal. Civ. Code §1780(b), Plaintiffs seek an additional award against Defendant of up to $5,000 for each Class member who qualifies as a "senior citizen" or "disabled person" under the California CLRA. Defendant knew or should have known that its conduct was directed to one or more Class members who are senior citizens or disabled persons. Defendant's conduct caused one or more of these senior citizens or disabled persons to suffer a substantial loss of property set aside for retirement or for personal or family care and maintenance, or assets essential to the health or welfare of the senior citizen or disabled person. One or more Class members who are senior citizens or disabled persons are substantially more vulnerable to Defendant's conduct because of age, poor health or infirmity, impaired understanding, restricted mobility, or disability, and each of them suffered substantial economic damage resulting from Defendant's conduct.

COUNT 210
Breach of Implied Warranty
Cal. Com. Code §2314
(Against BI)

4092. California Class Representatives Golbenaz Bakhtiar, Richard O'Brien, and Virginia Aragon incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 2-8, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

4093. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the California-BI Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against BI (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

4095. Each Ranitidine-Containing Product sold by Defendant comes with an implied warranty that it will be merchantable and fit for the ordinary purpose for which it would be used, including impliedly warrantying on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products that the products were safe and/or did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

4096. Defendant breached its implied warranty of merchantability because its products cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

4098. Defendant had reason to know Plaintiffs and each member of the Class's particular purpose in buying Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products and knew that Plaintiffs and each member of the Class relied on Defendant's skill or judgment in furnishing appropriate goods that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

4099. Plaintiffs and the Class did, in fact, rely on Defendant's skill and judgment in manufacturing Ranitidine-Containing Products that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

4100. Plaintiffs and each member of the Class have had sufficient direct dealings with either Defendant or its agents (including distributors, dealers, and authorized sellers) to establish privity of contract between Defendant, on the one hand, and Plaintiffs and each member of the Class, on the other hand.

4101. Further, Plaintiffs and each member of the Class were the intended third-party beneficiaries of the implied warranties made by Defendant to purchasers of its Ranitidine-Containing Products.

4102. Plaintiffs and the members of the Class were injured as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability. Plaintiffs and the members of the Class were damaged as a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability because, had they been aware of the unmerchantable condition of Ranitidine-Containing Products, they would not have purchased such drugs.

4103. As a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability, as alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members seek an order awarding compensatory and punitive damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the law.

COUNT 211
Unjust Enrichment or Quasi-Contract
(California Law)
(Against BI)

4104. California Class Representatives Golbenaz Bakhtiar, Richard O'Brien, and Virginia Aragon incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 2-8, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

4105. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the California-BI Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against BI (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

4106. Plaintiffs and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

4108. Defendant readily accepted and retained these benefits from Plaintiffs and Class members and knowingly benefitted from its unjust conduct – at Plaintiffs' and the Class members' expense – by selling worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products that contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

4111. Plaintiffs and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law.

6. Causes of Action on Behalf of the Colorado-BI Classes

COUNT 212
Violation of the Colorado Consumer Protection Act
(Colo. Rev. Stat. Ann. §6-1-101, et seq.)
(Against BI)

4112. Colorado Class Representatives Jeffrey Pisano and Ronald Ragan incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 2-8, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

4113. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Colorado-BI Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against BI (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

4114. Defendant, Plaintiffs, and the Class members are "[p]erson[s]" within the meaning of Colo. Rev. Stat. Ann. §6-1-102(6).

4115. The Colorado Consumer Protection Act ("Colorado CPA") prohibits unfair, unconscionable, and deceptive acts or practices "in the course of the person's business, vocation, or occupation." Colo. Rev. Stat. Ann. §6-1-105(1).

4116. The Colorado CPA makes unlawful specific acts, including:

(a) "[e]ither knowingly or recklessly mak[ing] a false representation as to the source, sponsorship, approval, or certification of goods, services, or property" (Colo. Rev. Stat. Ann. §6-1-105(1)(b));

(b) "[r]epresent[ing] that goods, food, services, or property are of a particular standard, quality, or grade, or that goods are of a particular style or model, if he knows or should know that they are of another" (Colo. Rev. Stat. Ann. §6-1-105(1)(g));

(c) "[a]dvertis[ing] goods, services, or property with intent not to sell them as advertised" (Colo. Rev. Stat. Ann. §6-1-105(1)(i));

(d) "[f]ails to disclose material information concerning goods, services, or property which information was known at the time of an advertisement or sale if such failure to disclose such information was intended to induce the consumer to enter into a transaction" (Colo. Rev. Stat. Ann. §6-1-105(1)(u)); and

(e) "[e]ither knowingly or recklessly engage[ing] in any unfair, unconscionable, deceptive, deliberately misleading, false, or fraudulent act or practice" (Colo. Rev. Stat. Ann. §6-1-105(1)(kkk)).

4117. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Colorado CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer. Such conduct was bad faith conduct under the Colorado CPA.

4118. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Colorado CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

4119. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Colorado CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

4120. Specifically, by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products, as detailed above, Defendant engaged in one or more unfair or deceptive acts or practices in the conduct of trade or commerce, in violation of the Colorado CPA, including:

(a) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products have characteristics, uses, benefits, and qualities which they do not have;

(b) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products are of a particular standard, quality, and grade when they are not;

(c) advertising the Ranitidine-Containing Products with the intent not to sell them as advertised;

(d) engaging in any other unconscionable, false, misleading, or deceptive act or practice in the conduct of trade or commerce; and

(e) failing to disclose the defective Ranitidine-Containing Products in connection with their sale to the public.

4121. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding the inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiff and the Class members in a uniform manner.

4123. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding package size, and resulting misrepresentations and omissions concerning appropriate length of ingestion, of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiff sand the Class members in a uniform manner.

4127. Plaintiffs and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the Colorado CPA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

4128. Specifically, Plaintiffs and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

4130. As a result of Defendant's violations of the Colorado CPA, as alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the Colorado CPA.

COUNT 213
Unjust Enrichment
(Colorado Law)
(Against BI)

4131. Colorado Class Representatives Jeffrey Pisano and Ronald Ragan incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 2-8, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

4132. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Colorado-BI Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against BI (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

4133. Plaintiffs and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

4135. Defendant readily accepted and retained these benefits from Plaintiffs and Class members and knowingly benefitted from its unjust conduct – at Plaintiff's and the Class members' expense – by selling worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products that contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

4136. It is unjust and inequitable for the Defendant to retain these benefits without commensurate compensation because they were attained by misrepresenting and fraudulently concealing the true facts concerning the Ranitidine-Containing Products from Plaintiffs and Class members, who would not have purchased the medications at all, but for the Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions.

4138. Plaintiffs and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law.

7. Causes of Action on Behalf of the Connecticut-BI Classes

COUNT 214
Violation of the Connecticut Unfair Trade Practices Act
(Conn. Gen. Stat. Ann. §42-110a, et seq.)
(Against BI)

4139. Connecticut Class Representatives Angel Cordero and Angel Vega incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 2-8, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

4140. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Connecticut-BI Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against BI (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

4141. Defendant, Plaintiffs, and the Class members are "[p]erson[s]" within the meaning of Conn. Gen. Stat. Ann. §42-110a(3).

4142. Defendant was and is engaged in "[t]rade" or "commerce" within the meaning of Conn. Gen. Stat. Ann. §42-110a(4).

4143. The Connecticut Unfair Trade Practices Act ("Connecticut UTPA") prohibits "unfair methods of competition and unfair or deceptive acts or practices in the conduct of any trade or commerce." Conn. Gen. Stat. Ann. §42-110b(a).

4144. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Connecticut UTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

4145. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Connecticut UTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

4146. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Connecticut UTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

Defendant engaged in one or more unfair or deceptive acts or practices in the conduct of trade or commerce, in violation of the Connecticut UTPA.

4148. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding the inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiffs and the Class members in a uniform manner.

4150. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding package size, and resulting misrepresentations and omissions concerning appropriate length of ingestion, of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiffs and the Class members in a uniform manner.

members, who consider such facts to be important to their purchase decisions with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products.

4153. Plaintiffs and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the Connecticut UTPA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

4154. Specifically, Plaintiffs and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

4156. As a result of Defendant's violations of the Connecticut UTPA, as alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the Connecticut UTPA.

Breach of Implied Warranty
Conn. Gen. Stat. Ann. §42a-2-314
(Against BI)

4157. Connecticut Class Representative Angel Cordero and Angel Vega incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 2-8, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

4158. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Connecticut-BI Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against BI (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

4160. Each Ranitidine-Containing Product sold by Defendant comes with an implied warranty that it will be merchantable and fit for the ordinary purpose for which it would be used, including impliedly warrantying on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products that the products were safe and/or did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

4161. Defendant breached its implied warranty of merchantability because its products cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

4163. Defendant had reason to know Plaintiffs and each member of the Class's particular purpose in buying Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products and knew that Plaintiffs and each member of the Class relied on Defendant's skill or judgment in furnishing appropriate goods that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

4164. Plaintiffs and the Class did, in fact, rely on Defendant's skill and judgment in manufacturing Ranitidine-Containing Products that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

4165. Plaintiffs and each member of the Class have had sufficient direct dealings with either Defendant or its agents (including distributors, dealers, and authorized sellers) to establish privity of contract between Defendant, on the one hand, and Plaintiffs and each member of the Class, on the other hand.

4166. Further, Plaintiffs and each member of the Class were the intended third-party beneficiaries of the implied warranties made by Defendant to purchasers of its Ranitidine-Containing Products.

4168. As a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability, as alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members seek an order awarding compensatory and punitive damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the law.

COUNT 216
Unjust Enrichment
(Connecticut Law)
(Against BI)

4169. Connecticut Class Representative Angel Cordero and Angel Vega incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 2-8, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

4170. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Connecticut-BI Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against BI (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

4171. Plaintiffs and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

4176. Plaintiffs and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law.

8. Causes of Action on Behalf of the Florida-BI Classes

COUNT 217
Violation of the Florida Deceptive and Unfair Trade Practices Act
(Fla. Stat. Ann. §501.201, et seq.)
(Against BI)

4177. Florida Class Representatives Clifton McKinnon, Gustavo Velasquez, Jeannie Black, Joshua Winans, Marva McCall, Michael Tomlinson, Ricardo Moròn, Sharon Tweg, Roy Armstrong, Ronald Ragis, and Karen Foster incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 2-8, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

4178. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Florida-BI Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against BI (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

4179. The Florida Deceptive and Unfair Trade Practices Act ("FDUTPA") prohibits "[u]nfair methods of competition, unconscionable acts or practices, and unfair or deceptive acts or practices in the conduct of any trade or commerce." Fla. Stat. Ann. §501.204(1).

4180. In construing the provisions of the FDUTPA, "due consideration and great weight shall be given to the interpretations of the Federal Trade Commission and the federal courts relating to s. 5(a)(1) of the Federal Trade Commission Act, 15 U.S.C. s. 45(a)(1) as of July 1, 2017." Fla. Stat. Ann. §501.204(2).

4181. Plaintiffs and the Class members are "[c]onsumer[s]" and "[i]nterested part[ies] or person[s]" as defined by the FDUTPA. See Fla. Stat. Ann. §501.203(6)-(7).

4182. Defendant engaged in "[t]rade or commerce" as defined by the FDUTPA. See Fla. Stat. Ann. §501.203(8).

4183. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the FDUTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

4184. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the FDUTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

4185. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the FDUTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

4187. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding the inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiffs and the Class members in a uniform manner.

4189. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding package size, and resulting misrepresentations and omissions concerning appropriate length of ingestion, of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiffs and the Class members in a uniform manner.

4192. Plaintiffs and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the FDUTPA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

4193. Specifically, Plaintiffs and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

4194. Defendant's violations present a continuing risk to Plaintiffs and the Class members, as well as to the general public. Defendant's unlawful acts and practices complained of herein affect the public interest.

4195. As a result of Defendant's violations of the FDUTPA, as alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the FDUTPA.

COUNT 218
Unjust Enrichment
(Florida Law)
(Against BI)

4196. Florida Class Representatives Clifton McKinnon, Gustavo Velasquez, Jeannie Black, Joshua Winans, Marva McCall, Michael Tomlinson, Ricardo Moròn, Sharon Tweg, Roy Armstrong, Ronald Ragis, and Karen Foster incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 2-8, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

4197. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Florida-BI Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against BI (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

4198. Plaintiffs and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

4200. Defendant voluntarily accepted and retained these benefits from Plaintiffs and Class members and was knowingly enriched by its unjust conduct – at Plaintiffs' and the Class members' expense – by selling worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products that contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

4201. It is unjust and inequitable for the Defendant to retain these benefits without paying the value thereof because the benefits were attained by misrepresenting and fraudulently concealing the true facts concerning the Ranitidine-Containing Products from Plaintiffs and Class members, who would not have purchased the medications at all, but for the Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions.

4203. There is no express written contract governing this dispute.

4204. Plaintiffs and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law.

9. Causes of Action on Behalf of the Idaho-BI Classes

COUNT 219
Violation of the Idaho Consumer Protection Act
(Idaho Code Ann. §48-601, et seq.)
(Against BI)

4205. Idaho Class Representative Billy Naab incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 2-8, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

4206. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Idaho-BI Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against BI (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

4207. Defendant, Plaintiffs, and the Class members are "[p]erson[s]" within the meaning of Idaho Code Ann. §48-602(1).

4208. The Ranitidine-Containing Products are "[g]oods" within the meaning of Idaho Code Ann. §48-602(6).

4209. Defendant was and is engaged in "[t]rade" and "commerce" within the meaning of Idaho Code Ann. §48-602(2).

4210. The Idaho Consumer Protection Act ("Idaho CPA") prohibits "unfair methods of competition and unfair or deceptive acts or practices in the conduct of any trade or commerce." Idaho Code Ann. §48-603.

4211. The Idaho CPA makes unlawful specific acts, including:

(a) "[r]epresenting that goods or services have sponsorship, approval, characteristics, ingredients, uses, benefits, or quantities that they do not have" (Idaho Code Ann. §48-603(5));

(b) "[r]epresenting that goods or services are of a particular standard, quality, or grade, or that goods are of a particular style or model, if they are of another" (Idaho Code Ann. §48-603(7));

(c) "[a]dvertising goods or services with intent not to sell them as advertised" (Idaho Code Ann. §48-603(9)); and

(d) "[e]ngaging in any act or practice which is otherwise misleading, false, or deceptive to the consumer" (Idaho Code Ann. §48-603(17)).

4212. Idaho law also prohibits "[a]ny unconscionable method, act or practice in the conduct of any trade or commerce." Idaho Code Ann. §48-603C(1).

4213. In the course of its business, Defendant, through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Idaho CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

4214. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Idaho CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

4215. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Idaho CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

(a) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products have characteristics, uses, benefits, and qualities which they do not have;

(b) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products are of a particular standard, quality, and grade when they are not;

(c) advertising the Ranitidine-Containing Products with the intent not to sell them as advertised; and

(d) engaging in any other unconscionable, false, misleading, or deceptive act or practice in the conduct of trade or commerce.

4217. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding the inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiffs and the Class members in a uniform manner.

4218. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding the expiration dates of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiffs and the Class members in a uniform manner.

4219. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding package size, and resulting misrepresentations and omissions concerning appropriate length of ingestion, of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiffs and the Class members in a uniform manner.

4220. Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices, including its misrepresentations, concealments, omissions, and suppressions of material facts, as alleged herein, had a tendency or capacity to mislead and create a false impression in consumers' minds, and were likely to and, in fact, did deceive reasonable consumers, including Plaintiffs and the Class members, about: (i) the inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products; (ii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products if used within the expiration dates; and (iii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products when ingesting all doses contained within particular packaging.

4222. Plaintiffs and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the Idaho CPA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

4223. Specifically, Plaintiffs and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

4225. As a result of Defendant's violations of the Idaho CPA, as alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the Idaho CPA.

4227. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Idaho-BI Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Brand Manufacturer Defendant GSK (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

4228. Plaintiffs and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products, or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

4229. In exchange for their payment of the purchase price of Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products, Plaintiffs and Class members received the Ranitidine-Containing Products, which Defendant did not disclose contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed. 4231. It is inequitable and unconscionable for the Defendant to retain these benefits because they were attained by misrepresenting and fraudulently concealing the true facts concerning the Ranitidine-Containing Products from Plaintiffs and Class members, who would not have purchased the medications at all, but for the Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions.

(Against BI)

4254. Georgia Class Representatives Roy Armstrong, Kathy Jeffries and Tyrone Houston incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 2-8, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

4255. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Georgia-BI Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against BI (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

4256. Defendant, Plaintiffs, and the Class members are "[p]erson[s]" within the meaning of Ga. Code Ann. §10-1-392(a)(24).

4257. Plaintiffs and the Class members are "[c]onsumer[s]" within the meaning of Ga. Code Ann. §10-1-392(a)(6).

4258. Defendant was and is engaged in "[t]rade" and "commerce" within the meaning of Ga. Code Ann. §10-1-392(a)(28).

4259. The Georgia Fair Business Practices Act ("Georgia FBPA") prohibits "[u]nfair or deceptive acts or practices in the conduct of consumer transactions and consumer acts or practices in trade or commerce." Ga. Code Ann. §10-1-393(a).

4260. The Georgia FBPA makes unlawful specific acts, including:

(a) "[r]epresenting that goods or services have sponsorship, approval, characteristics, ingredients, uses, benefits, or quantities that they do not have" (Ga. Code Ann. §10-1-393(b)(5));

(b) "[r]epresenting that goods or services are of a particular standard, quality, or grade or that goods are of a particular style or model, if they are of another" (Ga. Code Ann. §10-1-393(b)(7)); and

(c) "[a]dvertising goods or services with intent not to sell them as advertised" (Ga. Code Ann. §10-1-393(b)(9)).

4261. In the course of its business, Defendant, through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Georgia FBPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

4262. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Georgia FBPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

4263. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Georgia FBPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

4264. Specifically, by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products, as detailed above, Defendant engaged in one or more unfair or deceptive acts or practices in the conduct of trade or commerce, in violation of the Georgia FBPA, including:

(a) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products have characteristics, uses, benefits, and qualities which they do not have;

(b) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products are of a particular standard, quality, and grade when they are not;

(c) advertising the Ranitidine-Containing Products with the intent not to sell them as advertised; and

(d) engaging in any other unconscionable, false, misleading, or deceptive act or practice in the conduct of trade or commerce.

4265. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding the inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiffs and the Class members in a uniform manner.

4266. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding the expiration dates of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiffs and the Class members in a uniform manner.

4267. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding package size, and resulting misrepresentations and omissions concerning appropriate length of ingestion, of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiffs and the Class members in a uniform manner.

material by a reasonable consumer, and they were, in fact, material to Plaintiffs and the Class members, who consider such facts to be important to their purchase decisions with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products.

4270. Plaintiffs and the Class members reasonably relied on Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, and concealments with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products by purchasing and continuing to purchase Ranitidine-Containing Products after Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, and concealments were made.

4271. Plaintiffs and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the Georgia FBPA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

4272. Specifically, Plaintiffs and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

4274. Defendant was provided notice of the issues raised in this Count and this Complaint by the FDA investigations, the numerous complaints filed against it, and the many individual notice letters sent by Plaintiffs within a reasonable amount of time after the allegations of Ranitidine-Containing Products' defects became public. In addition, on May 21, 2020, Plaintiffs in MDL 2924 sent a notice letter pursuant to Ga. Code Ann. §10-1-399(b) to Defendant. Because Defendant failed to adequately remedy its unlawful conduct within the requisite time period, Plaintiffs seek all damages and relief to which Plaintiffs and the Class members are entitled.

4275. As a result of Defendant's violations of the Georgia FBPA, as alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the Georgia FBPA.

COUNT 224
Unjust Enrichment
(Georgia Law)
(Against BI)

4276. Georgia Class Representatives Roy Armstrong, Kathy Jeffries and Tyrone Houston incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 2-8, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

4277. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Georgia Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against BI (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

4278. Plaintiffs and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products, or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

Plaintiffs and Class members conferred a financial benefit on Defendants but did not receive their expected benefit therefrom.

4281. It is inequitable and unconscionable for the Defendant to retain these benefits because they were attained by misrepresenting and fraudulently concealing the true facts concerning the Ranitidine-Containing Products from Plaintiffs and Class members, who would not have purchased the medications at all, but for the Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions.

4283. There is no express contract governing this dispute.

4284. Plaintiffs and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law.

COUNT 225
Violation of the Illinois Consumer Fraud and Deceptive Business Practices Act
(815 Ill. Comp. Stat. Ann. 505/1, et seq.)
(Against BI)

4285. Illinois Class Representatives Denise Guy, Heather Re, Vickie Anderson, and Renee Chatman incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 2-8, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

4286. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Illinois-BI Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against BI (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

4287. Defendant, Plaintiffs, and the Class members are "person[s]" within the meaning of 815 Ill. Comp. Stat. Ann. 505/1(c).

4288. Plaintiffs and the Class members are "consumer[s]" within the meaning of 815 Ill. Comp. Stat. Ann. 505/1(e).

4289. The Ranitidine-Containing Products are "merchandise" within the meaning of 815 Ill. Comp. Stat. Ann. 505/1(b).

4290. Defendant was and is engaged in "trade" and "commerce" within the meaning of 815 Ill. Comp. Stat. Ann. 505/1(f).

4291. The Illinois Consumer Fraud and Deceptive Business Practices Act ("Illinois CFDBPA") prohibits "[u]nfair methods of competition and unfair or deceptive acts or practices, including, but not limited to, the use or employment of any deception fraud, false pretense, false promise, misrepresentation or the concealment, suppression or omission of any material fact, with intent that others rely upon the concealment, suppression or omission of such material fact, or the use or employment of any practice described in Section 2 of the 'Uniform Deceptive Trade Practices Act' [815 Ill. Comp. Stat. Ann. 510/2], approved August 5, 1965, in the conduct of any trade or commerce." 815 Ill. Comp. Stat. Ann. 505/2.

4292. In the course of its business, Defendant, through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Illinois CFDBPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

4293. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Illinois CFDBPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

4294. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Illinois CFDBPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

Defendant engaged in one or more unfair or deceptive business practices prohibited by the Illinois CFDBPA.

4297. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding the expiration dates of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiffs and the Class members in a uniform manner.

4298. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding package size, and resulting misrepresentations and omissions concerning appropriate length of ingestion, of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiffs and the Class members in a uniform manner.

4300. The facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products that Defendant knowingly and intentionally misrepresented, omitted, concealed, and failed to disclose would be considered material by a reasonable consumer, and they were, in fact, material to Plaintiffs and the Class members, who consider such facts to be important to their purchase decisions with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products.

4301. Plaintiffs and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the Illinois CFDBPA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

4302. Specifically, Plaintiffs and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

4303. Defendant's violations present a continuing risk to Plaintiff sand the Class members, as well as to the general public. Defendant's unlawful acts and practices complained of herein affect the public interest.

4304. As a result of Defendant's violations of the Illinois CFDBPA, as alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the Illinois CFDBPA.

COUNT 226

(Against BI)

4305. Illinois Class Representatives Denise Guy, Heather Re, Vickie Anderson, and Renee Chatman incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 2-8, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

4306. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Illinois -BI Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against BI (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

4307. Plaintiffs and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products, or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

4308. In exchange for their payment of the purchase price of Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products, Plaintiffs and Class members received the Ranitidine-Containing Products, which Defendant did not disclose contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed. Accordingly, Plaintiffs and Class members conferred a financial benefit on Defendants but did not receive their expected benefit therefrom.

4310. It violates the principles of justice, equity, and good conscience for the Defendant to retain these benefits because they were attained by misrepresenting and fraudulently concealing the true facts concerning the Ranitidine-Containing Products from Plaintiffs and Class members, who would not have purchased the medications at all, but for the Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions.

4312. Plaintiffs and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law, nor is there an express contract governing the dispute.

COUNT 227
Violation of the Iowa Private Right of Action for Consumer Frauds Act
(Iowa Code Ann. §714H.1, et seq.)
(Against BI)

4313. Iowa Class Representative Charles Longfield incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 2-8, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

4314. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Iowa-BI Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against BI (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

4315. Defendant, Plaintiff, and the Class members are "[p]erson[s]" within the meaning of Iowa Code Ann. §714H.2(7).

4316. Plaintiff and the Class members are "[c]onsumer[s]" within the meaning of Iowa Code Ann. §714H.2(3).

4317. The Iowa Private Right of Action for Consumer Frauds Act ("Iowa PRACFA") prohibits any "practice or act the person knows or reasonably should know is an unfair practice, deception, fraud, false pretense, or false promise, or the misrepresentation, concealment, suppression, or omission of a material fact, with the intent that others rely upon the unfair practice, deception, fraud, false pretense, false promise, misrepresentation, concealment, suppression, or omission in connection with the advertisement, sale, or lease of consumer merchandise." Iowa Code Ann. §714H.3(1).

4318. In the course of its business, Defendant, through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Iowa PRACFA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

4319. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Iowa PRACFA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

4320. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Iowa PRACFA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

4324. Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices, including its misrepresentations, concealments, omissions, and suppressions of material facts, as alleged herein, had a tendency or capacity to mislead and create a false impression in consumers' minds, and were likely to and, in fact, did deceive reasonable consumers, including Plaintiff and the Class members, about: (i) the inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products; (ii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products if used within the expiration dates; and (iii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products when ingesting all doses contained within particular packaging.

4326. Plaintiff and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the Iowa PRACFA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

4327. Specifically, Plaintiff and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

4329. As a result of Defendants' violations of the Iowa PRACFA, as alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendants' unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the Iowa PRACFA.

4330. Additionally, because Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices, including its misrepresentations, concealments, omissions, and suppressions of material facts, as alleged herein, were undertaken in willful and wanton disregard for the rights and safety of others, pursuant to Iowa Code Ann. §714H.5(4), Plaintiff and the Class members seek an additonal award of treble damages.

COUNT 228
Breach of Implied Warranty
Iowa Code §554.2314
(Against BI)

4331. Iowa Class Representative Charles Longfield incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 2-8, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

4332. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Iowa-BI Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against BI (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

4333. At all relevant times, Defendant was a merchant with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products which were sold to Plaintiff and members of the Iowa Class and was in the business of selling such products.

4334. Each Ranitidine-Containing Product sold by Defendant comes with an implied warranty that it will be merchantable and fit for the ordinary purpose for which it would be used, including impliedly warrantying on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products that the products were safe and/or did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

4335. Defendant breached its implied warranty of merchantability because its products cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

4337. Defendant had reason to know Plaintiff's and each member of the Class's particular purpose in buying Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products and knew that Plaintiff and each member of the Class relied on Defendant's skill or judgment in furnishing appropriate goods that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

4339. Plaintiff and each member of the Class has had sufficient direct dealings with either Defendant or its agents (including distributors, dealers, and authorized sellers) to establish privity of contract between Defendant, on the one hand, and Plaintiff and each member of the Class, on the other hand.

4340. Further, Plaintiff and each member of the Class were the intended third-party beneficiaries of the implied warranties made by Defendant to purchasers of its Ranitidine-Containing Products.

4342. As a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability, as alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order awarding compensatory and punitive damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the law.

COUNT 229
Unjust Enrichment
(Iowa Law)
(Against BI)

4343. Iowa Class Representative Charles Longfield incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 2-8, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

4344. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Iowa-BI Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against BI (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

4345. Plaintiff and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

4347. Defendant readily accepted and retained these benefits from Plaintiff and Class members and knowingly benefitted from its unjust conduct – at Plaintiff's and the Class members' expense – by selling worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products that contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

4348. It would be unjust for the Defendant to retain these benefits because they were attained by misrepresenting and fraudulently concealing the true facts concerning the Ranitidine-Containing Products from Plaintiff and Class members, who would not have purchased the medications at all, but for the Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions.

4350. Plaintiff and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law, nor is there an express contract governing the dispute.

14. Causes of Action on Behalf of the Kentucky-BI Classes

COUNT 230
Violation of the Kentucky Consumer Protection Act
(Ky. Rev. Stat. Ann. §367.110, et seq.)
(Against BI)

4351. Kentucky Class Representative Janet Asbury incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 2-8, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

4352. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Kentucky-BI Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against BI (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

4353. Defendant, Plaintiff, and the Class members are "[p]erson[s]" within the meaning of Ky. Rev. Stat. Ann. §367.110(1).

4354. Defendant was and is engaged in "[t]rade" or "commerce" within the meaning of Ky. Rev. Stat. Ann. §367.110(2).

4355. The Kentucky Consumer Protection Act ("Kentucky CPA") prohibits "[u]nfair, [unconscionable], false, misleading, or deceptive acts or practices in the conduct of any trade or commerce." Ky. Rev. Stat. Ann. §367.170(1)-(2).

4356. In the course of its business, Defendant, through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Kentucky CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

4357. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Kentucky CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

4358. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Kentucky CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

4360. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding the inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiff and the Class members in a uniform manner.

4362. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding package size, and resulting misrepresentations and omissions concerning appropriate length of ingestion, of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiff and the Class members in a uniform manner.

material by a reasonable consumer, and they were, in fact, material to Plaintiff and the Class members, who consider such facts to be important to their purchase decisions with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products.

4365. Plaintiff and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the Kentucky CPA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

4366. Specifically, Plaintiff and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

4368. As a result of Defendant's violations of the Kentucky CPA, as alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the Kentucky CPA.

COUNT 231
Breach of Implied Warranty
Ky. Rev. Stat. Ann. §355.2-314
(Against BI)

4369. Kentucky Class Representative Janet Asbury incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 2-8, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

4370. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Kentucky-BI Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against BI (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

4371. At all relevant times, Defendant was a merchant with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products which were sold to Kentucky Class Representatives and members of the Kentucy Class and was in the business of selling such products.

4372. Each Ranitidine-Containing Product sold by Defendant comes with an implied warranty that it will be merchantable and fit for the ordinary purpose for which it would be used, including impliedly warrantying on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products that the products were safe and/or did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

4375. Defendant had reason to know Plaintiff and each member of the Class's particular purpose in buying Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products, and knew that Plaintiff and each member of the Class relied on Defendant's skill or judgment in furnishing appropriate goods that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

4378. Further, Plaintiff and each member of the Class were the intended third-party beneficiaries of the implied warranties made by Defendant to purchasers of its Ranitidine-Containing Products.

4379. Plaintiff and the members of the Class were injured as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability. Plaintiff and the members of the Class were damaged as a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability because, had they been aware of the unmerchantable condition of Ranitidine-Containing Products, they would not have purchased such drugs.

4380. As a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability, as alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order awarding compensatory and punitive damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the law.

COUNT 232
Unjust Enrichment
(Kentucky Law)
(Against BI)

4381. Kentucky Class Representative Janet Asbury incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 2-8, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

4382. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Kentucky-BI Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against BI (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

4383. Plaintiff and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

4385. Defendant readily accepted and retained these benefits from Plaintiff and Class members and knowingly benefitted from its unjust conduct – at Plaintiff's and the Class members' expense – by selling worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products that contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

4386. It would be inequitable for the Defendant to retain these benefits because they were attained by misrepresenting and fraudulently concealing the true facts concerning the Ranitidine-Containing Products from Plaintiff and Class members, who would not have purchased the medications at all, but for the Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions.

4388. Plaintiff and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law.

15. Causes of Action on Behalf of the Louisiana-BI Classes

COUNT 233
Violation of the Louisiana Unfair Trade Practices and Consumer Protection Law
(La. Stat. Ann. §51:1401, et seq.)
(Against BI)

4389. Louisiana Class Representative Randy Jones incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 2-8, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

4390. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Louisiana-BI Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against BI (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

4391. Defendant, Plaintiff, and the Class members are "[p]erson[s]" within the meaning of La. Stat. Ann. §51:1402(8).

4392. Plaintiff and the Class members are "[c]onsumer[s]" within the meaning of La. Stat. Ann. §51:1402(1).

4393. Defendant was and is engaged in "[t]rade" or "commerce" within the meaning of La. Stat. Ann. §51:1402(10).

4394. The Louisiana Unfair Trade Practices and Consumer Protection Law ("Louisiana CPL") prohibits "[u]nfair methods of competition and unfair or deceptive acts or practices in the conduct of any trade or commerce." La. Stat. Ann. §51:1405(A).

4395. In the course of its business, Defendant, through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Louisiana CPL by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

4396. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Louisiana CPL by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

4397. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Louisiana CPL by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

4401. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding package size, and resulting misrepresentations and omissions concerning appropriate length of ingestion, of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiff and the Class members in a uniform manner.

4402. Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices, including its misrepresentations, concealments, omissions, and suppressions of material facts, as alleged herein, had a tendency or capacity to mislead and create a false impression in consumers' minds, and were likely to and, in fact, did deceive reasonable consumers, including Plaintiff and the Class members, about: (i) the inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products; (ii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products if used within the expiration dates; and (iii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products when ingesting all doses contained within particular packaging.

material by a reasonable consumer, and they were, in fact, material to Plaintiff and the Class members, who consider such facts to be important to their purchase decisions with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products.

4404. Plaintiff and the Class members relied on Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, and concealments with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products by purchasing and continuing to purchase Ranitidine-Containing Products after Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, and concealments were made.

4405. Plaintiff and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the Louisiana CPL because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

4406. Specifically, Plaintiff and the Class were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

4407. Defendant's violations present a continuing risk to Plaintiff and the Class members, as well as to the general public. Defendant's unlawful acts and practices complained of herein affect the public interest.

4408. As a result of Defendant's violations of the Louisiana CPL, as alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members seek an order awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the Louisiana CPL.

COUNT 234
Breach of Implied Warranty
(La. Civ. Code Ann. Art. §2520)
(Against BI)

4409. Louisiana Class Representative Randy Jones incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 2-8, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

4410. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Louisiana-BI Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against BI (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

4411. At all relevant times, Defendant was a merchant with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products which were sold to Louisiana Class Representatives and members of the Louisiana Class and was in the business of selling such products.

4412. Each Ranitidine-Containing Product sold by Defendant comes with an implied warranty that it will be merchantable and fit for the ordinary purpose for which it would be used, including impliedly warrantying on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products that the products were safe and/or did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

4413. Defendant breached its implied warranty of merchantability because its products cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

4415. Defendant had reason to know Plaintiff and each member of the Class's particular purpose in buying Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products and knew that Plaintiff and each member of the Class relied on Defendant's skill or judgment in furnishing appropriate goods that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

4418. Further, Plaintiff and each member of the Class were the intended third-party beneficiaries of the implied warranties made by Defendant to purchasers of its Ranitidine-Containing Products.

4420. As a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability, as alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order awarding compensatory and punitive damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the law.

COUNT 235
Unjust Enrichment
(Louisiana Law)
(Against BI)

4421. Louisiana Class Representative Randy Jones incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 2-8, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

4422. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Louisiana-BI Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against BI (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

4423. Plaintiff and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

4425. Defendant readily accepted and retained these benefits from Plaintiff and Class members and was knowingly enriched by its unjust conduct – at Plaintiff's and the Class members' expense – by selling worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products that contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

4426. Defendant's enrichment – the monies obtained from Plaintiffs for the Ranitidine-Containing Products – was the result of Plaintiff's impoverishment – the receipt by Plaintiff of worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe and unfit for human consumption.

4427. It is unjustifiable for the Defendant to retain these benefits because they were attained by misrepresenting and fraudulently concealing the true facts concerning the Ranitidine-Containing Products from Plaintiff and Class members, who would not have purchased the medications at all, but for the Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions.

4429. Plaintiff and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law, nor is there an express contract governing this dispute.

16. Causes of Action on Behalf of the Maryland-BI Classes

COUNT 236
Violation of the Maryland Consumer Protection Act
(Md. Code Ann., Com. Law §13-101, et seq.)
(Against BI)

4430. Maryland Class Representatives Alberta Griffin, Ida Adams, Nicholas Hazlett, and Charles Longfield incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 2-8, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein as though fully set forth herein.

4431. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Maryland-BI Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against BI (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

4432. Defendant, Plaintiffs, and the Class members are "[p]erson[s]" within the meaning of Md. Code Ann., Com. Law §13-101(h).

4433. Plaintiffs and the Class members are "[c]onsumer[s]" within the meaning of Md. Code Ann., Com. Law §13-101(c)(1).

4434. The Ranitidine-Containing Products are "[m]erchandise" within the meaning of Md. Code Ann., Com. Law §13-101(f).

4435. The Maryland Consumer Protection Act ("Maryland CPA") prohibits "[u]nfair, abusive, or deceptive trade practices." Md. Code Ann., Com. Law §13-301.

4436. The Maryland CPA makes unlawful specific acts, including:

(a) "[f]alse, falsely disparaging, or misleading oral or written statement, visual description, or other representation of any kind which has the capacity, tendency, or effect of deceiving or misleading consumers" (Md. Code Ann., Com. Law §13-301(1));

(b) "[r]epresent[ing] that . . . [c]onsumer goods, consumer realty, or consumer services have a sponsorship, approval, accessory, characteristic, ingredient, use, benefit, or quantity which they do not have" (Md. Code Ann., Com. Law §13-301(2)(i));

(c) "[r]epresent[ing] that . . . [c]onsumer goods, consumer realty, or consumer services are of a particular standard, quality, grade, style, or model which they are not" (Md. Code Ann., Com. Law §13-301(2)(iv));

(d) "[f]ailure to state a material fact if the failure deceives or tends to deceive" (Md. Code Ann., Com. Law §13-301(3));

(e) "[a]dvertis[ing] or offer[ing] of consumer goods, consumer realty, or consumer services . . . [w]ithout intent to sell, lease, or rent them as advertised or offered" (Md. Code Ann., Com. Law §13-301(5)(i)); and

(f) "[d]eception, fraud, false pretense, false premise, misrepresentation, or knowing concealment, suppression, or omission of any material fact with the intent that a consumer rely on the same in connection with . . . [t]he promotion or sale of any consumer goods" (Md. Code Ann., Com. Law §13-301(9)(i)).

4437. In the course of its business, Defendant, through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Maryland CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

4438. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Maryland CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

4439. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Maryland CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

(a) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products have characteristics, uses, benefits, and qualities which they do not have;

(b) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products are of a particular standard, quality, and grade when they are not;

(c) advertising the Ranitidine-Containing Products with the intent not to sell them as advertised;

(d) failing to disclose that the Ranitidine-Containing Products are defective and inherently dangerous in the course of the sale of the Ranitidine-Containing Products; and

(e) engaging in any other unconscionable, false, misleading, or deceptive act or practice in the conduct of trade or commerce.

4441. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding the inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiffs and the Class members in a uniform manner.

4442. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding the expiration dates of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiffs and the Class members in a uniform manner.

4443. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding package size, and resulting misrepresentations and omissions concerning appropriate length of ingestion, of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiffs and the Class members in a uniform manner.

4444. Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices, including its misrepresentations, concealments, omissions, and suppressions of material facts, as alleged herein, had a tendency or capacity to mislead and create a false impression in consumers' minds, and were likely to and, in fact, did deceive reasonable consumers, including Plaintiffs and the Class members, about: (i) the inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products; (ii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products if used within the expiration dates; and (iii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products when ingesting all doses contained within particular packaging.

material by a reasonable consumer, and they were, in fact, material to Plaintiffs and the Class members, who consider such facts to be important to their purchase decisions with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products.

4446. Plaintiffs and the Class members relied on Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, and concealments with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products by purchasing and continuing to purchase Ranitidine-Containing Products after Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, and concealments were made.

4447. Plaintiffs and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the Maryland CPA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

4448. Specifically, Plaintiffs and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

4449. Defendant's violations present a continuing risk to Plaintiffs and the Class members, as well as to the general public. Defendant's unlawful acts and practices complained of herein affect the public interest.

4450. As a result of Defendant's violations of the Maryland CPA, as alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the Maryland CPA.

COUNT 237
Breach of Implied Warranty
Md. Code Ann. §2-314
(Against BI)

4451. Maryland Class Representatives Alberta Griffin, Ida Adams, Nicholas Hazlett, and Charles Longfield incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 2-8, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

4452. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Maryland-BI Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against BI (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

4453. At all relevant times, Defendant was a merchant with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products which were sold to Maryland Class Representatives and members of the Maryland Class and was in the business of selling such products.

4454. Each Ranitidine-Containing Product sold by Defendant comes with an implied warranty that it will be merchantable and fit for the ordinary purpose for which it would be used, including impliedly warrantying on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products that the products were safe and/or did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

4455. Defendant breached its implied warranty of merchantability because its products cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

4457. Defendant had reason to know Plaintiffs and each member of the Class's particular purpose in buying Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products and knew that Plaintiffs and each member of the Class relied on Defendant's skill or judgment in furnishing appropriate goods that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

4459. Plaintiffs and each member of the Class have had sufficient direct dealings with either Defendant or its agents (including distributors, dealers, and authorized sellers) to establish privity of contract between Defendant, on the one hand, and Plaintiffs and each member of the Class, on the other hand.

4460. Further, Plaintiffs and each member of the Class were the intended third-party beneficiaries of the implied warranties made by Defendant to purchasers of its Ranitidine-Containing Products.

4462. As a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability, as alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members seek an order awarding compensatory and punitive damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the law.

COUNT 238
Unjust Enrichment
(Maryland Law)
(Against BI)

4463. Maryland Class Representatives Ida Adams, Nicholas Hazlett, and Charles Longfield incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 2-8, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

4464. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Maryland-BI Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against BI (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

4465. Plaintiffs and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

4467. Defendant readily accepted and retained these benefits from Plaintiffs and Class members and knowingly benefitted from its unjust conduct – at Plaintiffs' and the Class members' expense – by selling worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products that contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

4468. It would be unjust and inequitable for the Defendant to retain these benefits because they were attained by misrepresenting and fraudulently concealing the true facts concerning the Ranitidine-Containing Products from Plaintiffs and Class members, who would not have purchased the medications at all, but for the Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions.

4470. Plaintiffs and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law.

17. Causes of Action on Behalf of the Massachusetts-BI Classes

COUNT 239
Violation of the Deceptive Acts or Practices Prohibited by Massachusetts Law
(Mass. Gen. Laws Ann. ch. 93a, §1, et seq.)
(Against BI)

4471. Massachusetts Class Representatives Michelle Smith, Rafael Bermudez, and Jennifer Bond incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 2-8, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

4472. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Massachusetts-BI Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against BI (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

4473. Defendant, Plaintiffs, and the Class members are "[p]erson[s]" within the meaning of Mass. Gen. Laws Ann. ch. 93A, §1(a).

4474. Defendant was and is engaged in "[t]rade" or "commerce" within the meaning of Mass. Gen. Laws Ann. ch. 93A, §1(b).

4475. The Massachusetts consumer protection law ("Massachusetts Act") prohibits "[u]nfair methods of competition and unfair or deceptive acts or practices in the conduct of any trade or commerce." Mass. Gen. Laws Ann. ch. 93A, §2(a).

4476. In the course of its business, Defendant, through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Massachusetts Act by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

4477. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Massachusetts Act by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

4478. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Massachusetts Act by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

Defendant engaged in one or more unfair or deceptive business practices prohibited by the Massachusetts Act.

4480. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding the inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiffs and the Class members in a uniform manner.

4481. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding the expiration dates of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiffs and the Class members in a uniform manner.

4482. Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices, including its misrepresentations, concealments, omissions, and suppressions of material facts, as alleged herein, had a tendency or capacity to mislead and create a false impression in consumers' minds, and were likely to and, in fact, did deceive reasonable consumers, including Plaintiffs and the Class members, about: (i) the inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products; (ii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products if used within the expiration dates; and (iii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products when ingesting all doses contained within particular packaging.

4484. Plaintiffs and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the Massachusetts Act because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

4485. Specifically, Plaintiffs and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

4486. Defendant's violations present a continuing risk to Plaintiffs and the Class members, as well as to the general public. Defendant's unlawful acts and practices complained of herein affect the public interest.

4487. Defendant was provided notice of the issues raised in this Count and this Complaint by the FDA investigations, the numerous complaints filed against it, and the many individual notice letters sent by Plaintiffs within a reasonable amount of time after the allegations of Ranitidine-Containing Products' defects became public. In addition, on May 21, 2020, Plaintiffs in MDL 2924 sent a notice letter pursuant to Mass. Gen. Laws Ann. ch. 93A, §9(3) to Defendant. Because Defendant failed to adequately remedy its unlawful conduct within the requisite time period, Plaintiffs seek all damages and relief to which Plaintiff and the Class members are entitled.

4488. As a result of Defendant's violations of the Massachusetts Act, as alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the Massachusetts Act.

COUNT 240
Breach of Implied Warranty
Mass. Gen. Laws ch. 106 §2-314
(Against BI)

4489. Massachusetts Class Representatives Michelle Smith, Rafael Bermudez, and Jennifer Bond incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 2-8, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

4490. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Massachusetts-BI Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against BI (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

4491. At all relevant times, Defendant was a merchant with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products which were sold to Massachusetts Class Representatives and members of the Massachusetts Class and was in the business of selling such products.

4492. Each Ranitidine-Containing Product sold by Defendant comes with an implied warranty that it will be merchantable and fit for the ordinary purpose for which it would be used, including impliedly warrantying on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products that the products were safe and/or did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

4495. Defendant had reason to know Plaintiffs and each member of the Class's particular purpose in buying Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products and knew that Plaintiffs and each member of the Class relied on Defendant's skill or judgment in furnishing appropriate goods that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

4497. Plaintiffs and each member of the Class has had sufficient direct dealings with either Defendant or its agents (including distributors, dealers, and authorized sellers) to establish privity of contract between Defendant, on the one hand, and Plaintiffs and each member of the Class, on the other hand.

4498. Further, Plaintiffs and each member of the Class were the intended third-party beneficiaries of the implied warranties made by Defendant to purchasers of its Ranitidine-Containing Products.

4499. Plaintiffs and the members of the Class were injured as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability. Plaintiffs and the members of the Class were damaged as a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability because, had they been aware of the unmerchantable condition of Ranitidine-Containing Products, they would not have purchased such drugs.

4500. As a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability, as alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members seek an order awarding compensatory and punitive damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the law.

COUNT 241
Unjust Enrichment
(Massachusetts Law)
(Against BI)

4501. Massachusetts Class Representatives Michelle Smith, Rafael Bermudez, and Jennifer Bond incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 2-8, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

4502. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Massachusetts-BI Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against BI (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

4503. Plaintiffs and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

4504. In exchange for their payment of the purchase price of Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products, Plaintiffs and Class members received the Ranitidine-Containing Products, which Defendant did not disclose contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed. Accordingly, Plaintiffs and Class members conferred a financial benefit on Defendants but did not receive their expected benefit therefrom.

4505. Defendant readily accepted and retained these benefits from Plaintiffs and Class members and was knowingly enriched from its unjust conduct – at Plaintiffs' and the Class members' expense – by selling worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products that contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

4506. Defendant's enrichment – the monies obtained from Plaintiffs' and Class members' purchases of Ranitidine-Containing Products – was the result of Plaintiffs' and Class members' impoverishment – i.e., Plaintiffs' and Class members' receipt of worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products that were unsafe and unfit for human consumption.

4507. It is unjustifiable for the Defendant to retain these benefits because they were attained by misrepresenting and fraudulently concealing the true facts concerning the Ranitidine-Containing Products from Plaintiffs and Class members, who would not have purchased the medications at all, but for the Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions.

4509. Plaintiffs and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law.

18. Causes of Action on Behalf of the Michigan-BI Classes

COUNT 242
Violation of the Michigan Consumer Protection Act
(Mich. Comp. Laws Ann. §445.901, et seq.)
(Against BI)

4510. Michigan Class Representatives Jerry Hunt, Jody Beal, Kenneth Hix, and Lakisha Wilson incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 2-8, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

4511. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Michigan-BI Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against BI (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

4512. Defendant, Plaintiffs, and the Class members are "[p]erson[s]" within the meaning of Mich. Comp. Laws Ann. §445.902(1)(d).

4513. Defendant was and is engaged in "[t]rade" or "commerce" within the meaning of Mich. Comp. Laws Ann. §445.902(1)(g).

4514. The Michigan Consumer Protection Act ("Michigan CPA") prohibits "[u]nfair, unconscionable, or deceptive methods, acts, or practices in the conduct of trade or commerce." Mich. Comp. Laws Ann. §445.903(1).

4515. The Michigan CPA makes unlawful specific acts, including:

(a) "[r]epresenting that goods or services have sponsorship, approval, characteristics, ingredients, uses, benefits, or quantities that they do not have" (Mich. Comp. Laws Ann. §445.903(1)(c));

(b) "[r]epresenting that goods or services are of a particular standard, quality, or grade, or that goods are of a particular style or model, if they are of another" (Mich. Comp. Laws Ann. §445.903(1)(e)); and

(c) "[a]dvertising or representing goods or services with intent not to dispose of those goods or services as advertised or represented" (Mich. Comp. Laws Ann. §445.903(1)(g)).

4516. In the course of its business, Defendant, through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Michigan CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

4517. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Michigan CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

4518. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Michigan CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

(a) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products have characteristics, uses, benefits, and qualities which they do not have;

(b) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products are of a particular standard, quality, and grade when they are not;

(c) advertising the Ranitidine-Containing Products with the intent not to sell them as advertised; and

(d) engaging in any other unconscionable, false, misleading, or deceptive act or practice in the conduct of trade or commerce.

4520. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding the inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiffs and the Class members in a uniform manner.

4522. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding package size, and resulting misrepresentations and omissions concerning appropriate length of ingestion, of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiffs and the Class members in a uniform manner.

4524. The facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products that Defendant knowingly and intentionally misrepresented, omitted, concealed, and failed to disclose would be considered material by a reasonable consumer, and they were, in fact, material to Plaintiffs and the Class members, who consider such facts to be important to their purchase decisions with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products.

4525. Plaintiffs and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the Michigan CPA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

4526. Specifically, Plaintiffs and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

4527. Defendant's violations present a continuing risk to Plaintiffs and the Class members, as well as to the general public. Defendant's unlawful acts and practices complained of herein affect the public interest.

4528. As a result of Defendant's violations of the Michigan CPA, as alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the Michigan CPA.

COUNT 243
Unjust Enrichment
(Michigan Law)
(Against BI)

4529. Michigan Class Representatives Jerry Hunt, Jody Beal, Kenneth Hix, and Lakisha Wilson incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 2-8, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

4530. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Michigan-BI Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against BI (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

4531. Plaintiffs and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed. Accordingly, Plaintiffs and Class members conferred a financial benefit on Defendants but did not receive their expected benefit therefrom.

4533. Defendant readily accepted and retained these benefits from Plaintiffs and Class members and knowingly benefitted from its unjust conduct – at Plaintiffs' and the Class members' expense – by selling worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products that contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

4534. It is unjust and inequitable for the Defendant to retain these benefits because they were attained by misrepresenting and fraudulently concealing the true facts concerning the Ranitidine-Containing Products from Plaintiffs and Class members, who would not have purchased the medications at all, but for the Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions.

4536. There is no express contract governing this dispute.

4537. Plaintiffs and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law.

19. Causes of Action on Behalf of the Minnesota-BI Classes

COUNT 244
Violation of the Minnesota Prevention of Consumer Fraud Act
(Minn. Stat. Ann. §325F.68, et seq.)
(Against BI)

4538. Minnesota Class Representatives Donald Northrup, John Scholl, Roy Armstrong, and Brad Hoag incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 2-8, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

4539. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Minnesota-BI Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against BI (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

4540. Defendant, Plaintiffs, and the Class members are "[p]erson[s]" within the meaning of Minn. Stat. Ann. §325F.68(3).

4541. The Ranitidine-Containing Products are "[m]erchandise" within the meaning of Minn. Stat. Ann. §325F.68(2).

4542. The Minnesota Prevention of Consumer Fraud Act ("Minnesota CFA") prohibits "act, use, or employment by any person of any fraud, false pretense, false promise, misrepresentation, misleading statement or deceptive practice, with the intent that others rely thereon in connection with the sale of any merchandise, whether or not any person has in fact been misled, deceived, or damaged." Minn. Stat. Ann. §325F.69(1). Prohibited practices include: (i) deceptive practices concerning the quality of goods or services pursuant to Minn. Stat. Ann. §325D.44; (ii) fraud in connection with the sale of any merchandise pursuant to Minn. Stat. Ann. §325F.69; and (iii) misrepresentation of product ingredients or quality pursuant to Minn. Stat. Ann. §325D.13.

4543. In the course of its business, Defendant, through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Minnesota CFA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

4544. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Minnesota CFA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

4545. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Minnesota CFA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

4549. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding package size, and resulting misrepresentations and omissions concerning appropriate length of ingestion, of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiffs and the Class members in a uniform manner.

4550. Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices, including its misrepresentations, concealments, omissions, and suppressions of material facts, as alleged herein, had a tendency or capacity to mislead and create a false impression in consumers' minds, and were likely to and, in fact, did deceive reasonable consumers, including Plaintiffs and the Class members, about: (i) the inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products; (ii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products if used within the expiration dates; and (iii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products when ingesting all doses contained within particular packaging.

4552. Plaintiffs and the Class members relied on Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, and concealments with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products by purchasing and continuing to purchase Ranitidine-Containing Products after Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, and concealments were made.

4553. Plaintiffs and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the Minnesota CFA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

4554. Specifically, Plaintiffs and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

4556. As a result of Defendant's violations of the Minnesota CFA, as alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the Minnesota CFA.

COUNT 245
Breach of Implied Warranty
(Minn. Stat. Ann. §336.2-314)
(Against BI)

4557. Minnesota Class Representatives Donald Northrup, John Scholl, Roy Armstrong, and Brad Hoag incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 2-8, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

4558. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Minnesota-BI Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against BI (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

4559. At all relevant times, Defendant was a merchant with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products which were sold to Minnesota Class Representatives and members of the Minnesota Class and was in the business of selling such products.

4560. Each Ranitidine-Containing Product sold by Defendant comes with an implied warranty that it will be merchantable and fit for the ordinary purpose for which it would be used, including impliedly warrantying on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products that the products were safe and/or did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

4561. Defendant breached its implied warranty of merchantability because its products cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

4563. Defendant had reason to know Plaintiffs and each member of the Class's particular purpose in buying Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products and knew that Plaintiffs and each member of the Class relied on Defendant's skill or judgment in furnishing appropriate goods that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

4565. Plaintiffs and each member of the Class have had sufficient direct dealings with either Defendant or its agents (including distributors, dealers, and authorized sellers) to establish privity of contract between Defendant, on the one hand, and Plaintiffs and each member of the Class, on the other hand.

4566. Further, Plaintiffs and each member of the Class were the intended third-party beneficiaries of the implied warranties made by Defendant to purchasers of its Ranitidine-Containing Products.

4568. As a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability, as alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members seek an order awarding compensatory and punitive damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the law.

COUNT 246
Unjust Enrichment
(Minnesota Law)
(Against BI)

4569. Minnesota Class Representatives Donald Northrup, John Scholl, Roy Armstrong, and Brad Hoag incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 2-8, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

4570. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Minnesota-BI Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against BI (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

4571. Plaintiffs and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

4572. In exchange for their payment of the purchase price of Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products, Plaintiffs and Class members received the Ranitidine-Containing Products, which Defendant did not disclose contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed. Defendant readily accepted and retained these benefits from Plaintiffs and Class members and knowingly benefitted from its unjust conduct – at Plaintiffs' and the Class members' expense – by selling worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products that contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

4574. It is unjust and inequitable for the Defendant to retain these benefits because they were attained by misrepresenting and fraudulently concealing the true facts concerning the Ranitidine-Containing Products from Plaintiffs and Class members, who would not have purchased the medications at all, but for the Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions.

4576. Plaintiffs and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law.

20. Causes of Action on Behalf of the Mississippi-BI Classes

COUNT 247
Breach of Implied Warranty
(Miss. Code Ann. §75-2-314)
(Against BI)

4577. Mississippi Class Representatives Beverly Crosby and John Rachal incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 2-8, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

4578. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Mississippi-BI Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against BI (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

4580. Each Ranitidine-Containing Product sold by Defendant comes with an implied warranty that it will be merchantable and fit for the ordinary purpose for which it would be used, including impliedly warrantying on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products that the products were safe and/or did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

4581. Defendant breached its implied warranty of merchantability because its products cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

4582. Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products are not fit for their intended use – or any use – because they have dangerous propensities when used as intended or within their expiration dates on the labels, and their use carries an increased risk of developing cancer.

4583. Defendant had reason to know Plaintiffs and each member of the Class's particular purpose in buying Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products and knew that Plaintiffs and each member of the Class relied on Defendant's skill or judgment in furnishing appropriate goods that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

4585. Plaintiffs and each member of the Class has had sufficient direct dealings with either Defendant or its agents (including distributors, dealers, and authorized sellers) to establish privity of contract between Defendant, on the one hand, and Plaintiffs and each member of the Class, on the other hand.

4586. Further, Plaintiffs and each member of the Class were the intended third-party beneficiaries of the implied warranties made by Defendant to purchasers of its Ranitidine-Containing Products.

4587. Plaintiffs and the members of the Class were injured as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability. Plaintiffs and the members of the Class were damaged as a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability because, had they been aware of the unmerchantable condition of Ranitidine-Containing Products, they would not have purchased such drugs.

4588. As a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability, as alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members seek an order awarding compensatory and punitive damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the law.

COUNT 248
Unjust Enrichment
(Mississippi Law)
(Against BI)

4589. Mississippi Class Representative Beverly Crosby and John Rachal incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 2-8, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

4590. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Mississippi-BI Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against BI (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

4591. Plaintiffs and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

4592. In exchange for their payment of the purchase price of Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products, Plaintiffs and Class members received the Ranitidine-Containing Products, which Defendant did not disclose contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed. Accordingly,

Plaintiffs and Class members suffered a detriment because they purchased worthless medications and did not receive the expected benefit therefrom.

4596. There is no express contract governing this dispute.

4597. Plaintiffs and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law.

21. Causes of Action on Behalf of the Missouri-BI Classes

COUNT 249
Violation of the Missouri Merchandising Practices Act
(Mo. Ann. Stat. §407.010, et seq.)
(Against BI)

4598. Missouri Class Representatives Lorie Kendall-Singer and Antrenise Campbell incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 2-8, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

4599. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Missouri-BI Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against BI (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

4600. Defendant, Plaintiffs, and the Class members are "[p]erson[s]" within the meaning of Mo. Ann. Stat. §407.010(5).

4601. Defendant was and is engaged in "[t]rade or commerce" within the meaning of Mo. Ann. Stat. §407.010(7).

4602. The Missouri Merchandising Practices Act ("Missouri MPA") prohibits "act, use or employment by any person of any deception, fraud, false pretense, false promise, misrepresentation, unfair practice or the concealment, suppression, or omission of any material fact in connection with the sale or advertisement of any merchandise in trade or commerce." Mo. Ann. Stat. §407.020(1).

4603. In the course of its business, Defendant, through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Missouri MPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

4604. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Missouri MPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

4605. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Missouri MPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

4609. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding package size, and resulting misrepresentations and omissions concerning appropriate length of ingestion, of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiffs and the Class members in a uniform manner.

4612. Plaintiffs and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the Missouri MPA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

4613. Specifically, Plaintiffs and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

4614. Defendant's violations present a continuing risk to Plaintiffs and the Class members, as well as to the general public. Defendant's unlawful acts and practices complained of herein affect the public interest.

4615. As a result of Defendant's violations of the Missouri MPA, as alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the Missouri MPA.

COUNT 250
Breach of Implied Warranty
(Mo. Rev. Stat. §400.2-314)
(Against BI)

4616. Missouri Class Representatives Lorie Kendall-Singer and Antrenise Campbell incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 2-8, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

4617. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Missouri Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against BI (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

4619. Each Ranitidine-Containing Product sold by Defendant comes with an implied warranty that it will be merchantable and fit for the ordinary purpose for which it would be used, including impliedly warrantying on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products that the products were safe and/or did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

4620. Defendant breached its implied warranty of merchantability because its products cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

4621. Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products are not fit for their intended use – or any use – because they have dangerous propensities when used as intended or within their expiration dates on the labels, and their use carries an increased risk of developing cancer.

4622. 4628. Missouri Class Representatives Lorie Kendall-Singer and Antrenise Campbell incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 2-8, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

4629. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Missouri-BI Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against BI (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

4631. In exchange for their payment of the purchase price of Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products, Plaintiffs and Class members received the Ranitidine-Containing Products, which Defendant did not disclose contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed. Accordingly, Plaintiffs and Class members conferred a financial benefit on Defendants but did not receive their expected benefit therefrom.

4632. Defendant readily accepted and retained these benefits from Plaintiffs and Class members and knowingly benefitted from its unjust conduct – at Plaintiffs' and the Class members' expense – by selling worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products that contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

4633. It is unjust and inequitable for the Defendant to retain these benefits because they were attained by misrepresenting and fraudulently concealing the true facts concerning the Ranitidine-Containing Products from Plaintiffs and Class members, who would not have purchased the medications at all, but for the Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions.

COUNT 252
Violation of the Montana Unfair Trade Practices and Consumer Protection Act of 1973 (Mont. Code Ann. §30-14-101, et seq.) (Against BI) 4637. Montana Class Representative Angel Vega incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 2-8, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

4638. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Montana-BI Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against BI (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

4639. Defendant, Plaintiffs, and the Class members are "[p]erson[s]" within the meaning of Mont. Code Ann. §30-14-102(6).

4640. Plaintiffs and the Class members are "[c]onsumer[s]" within the meaning of Mont. Code Ann. §30-14-102(1).

4641. Defendant was and is engaged in "[t]rade" or "commerce" within the meaning of Mont. Code Ann. §30-14-102(8).

4642. The Montana Unfair Trade Practices and Consumer Protection Act of 1973 ("Montana CPA") prohibits "[u]nfair methods of competition and unfair or deceptive acts or practices in the conduct of any trade or commerce." Mont. Code Ann. §30-14-103.

4644. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Montana CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

4645. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Montana CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

4646. Specifically, by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products, as detailed above, Defendant engaged in one or more unfair or deceptive business practices prohibited by the Montana CPA.

4647. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding the inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiffs and the Class members in a uniform manner.

4649. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding package size, and resulting misrepresentations and omissions concerning appropriate length of ingestion, of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiffs and the Class members in a uniform manner.

4652. Plaintiffs and the Class members relied on Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, and concealments with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products by purchasing and continuing to purchase Ranitidine-Containing Products after Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, and concealments were made.

4653. Plaintiffs and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the Montana CPA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

4654. Specifically, Plaintiffs and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

4655. Defendant's violations present a continuing risk to Plaintiffs and the Class members, as well as to the general public. Defendant's unlawful acts and practices complained of herein affect the public interest.

4656. As a result of Defendant's violations of the Montana CPA, as alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, treble damages pursuant to Mont. Code Ann. §30-14-133(1)(3) and any other just and proper relief available under the Montana CPA.

COUNT 253
Unjust Enrichment
(Montana Law)
(Against BI)

4657. Montana Class Representative Angel Vega incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 2-8, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

4658. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Montana-BI Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against BI (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

4659. Plaintiffs and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products, or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

4660. In exchange for their payment of the purchase price of Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products, Plaintiffs and Class members received the Ranitidine-Containing Products, which Defendant did not disclose contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed. Accordingly, Plaintiffs and Class members suffered a detriment because they purchased worthless medications and did not receive the expected benefit therefrom.

4661. COUNT 254
Violation of the Nebraska Consumer Protection Act
(Neb. Rev. Stat. Ann. §59-1601, et seq.)
(Against BI)

4666. Nebraska Class Representative Gaylord Stauffer incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 2-8, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

4667. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Nebraska-BI Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against BI (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

4668. Defendant, Plaintiff, and the Class members are "[p]erson[s]" within the meaning of Neb. Rev. Stat. Ann. §59-1601(1).

4669. The Ranitidine-Containing Products are "[a]ssets" within the meaning of Neb. Rev. Stat. Ann. §59-1601(3).

4670. Defendant was and is engaged in "[t]rade" or "commerce" within the meaning of Neb. Rev. Stat. Ann. §59-1601(2).

4671. The Nebraska Consumer Protection Act ("Nebraska CPA") prohibits "[u]nfair methods of competition and unfair or deceptive acts or practices in the conduct of any trade or commerce." Neb. Rev. Stat. Ann. §59-1602.

4672. In the course of its business, Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Nebraska CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

4673. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Nebraska CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

4674. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Nebraska CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

4676. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding the inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiff and the Class members in a uniform manner.

4678. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding package size, and resulting misrepresentations and omissions concerning appropriate length of ingestion, of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiff and the Class members in a uniform manner.

4679. Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices, including its misrepresentations, concealments, omissions, and suppressions of material facts, as alleged herein, had a tendency or capacity to mislead and create a false impression in consumers' minds, and were likely to and, in fact, did deceive reasonable consumers, including Plaintiff and the Class members, about: (i) the inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products; (ii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products if used within the expiration dates; and (iii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products when ingesting all doses contained within particular packaging.

4680. The facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products that Defendant knowingly and intentionally misrepresented, omitted, concealed, and failed to disclose would be considered material by a reasonable consumer, and they were, in fact, material to Plaintiff and the Class members, who consider such facts to be important to their purchase decisions with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products.

4681. Plaintiff and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the Nebraska CPA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

4682. Specifically, Plaintiff and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

4683. Defendant's violations present a continuing risk to Plaintiff and the Class members, as well as to the general public. Defendant's unlawful acts and practices complained of herein affect the public interest.

4684. As a result of Defendant's violations of the Nebraska CPA, as alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the Nebraska CPA.

Neb. U.C.C. §2-314
(Against BI)

4685. Nebraska Class Representative Gaylord Stauffer incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 2-8, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

4686. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Nebraska-BI Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against BI (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

4687. At all relevant times, Defendant was a merchant with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products which were sold to Nebraska Class Representatives and members of the Nebraska Class and was in the business of selling such products.

4688. Each Ranitidine-Containing Product sold by Defendant comes with an implied warranty that it will be merchantable and fit for the ordinary purpose for which it would be used, including impliedly warrantying on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products that the products were safe and/or did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

4689. Defendant breached its implied warranty of merchantability because its products cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

4690. Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products are not fit for their intended use – or any use – because they have dangerous propensities when used as intended or within their expiration dates on the labels, and their use carries an increased risk of developing cancer.

4691. Defendant had reason to know Plaintiff and each member of the Class's particular purpose in buying Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products, and knew that Plaintiffs and each member of the Class relied on Defendant's skill or judgment in furnishing appropriate goods that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

4694. Further, Plaintiff and each member of the Class were the intended third-party beneficiaries of the implied warranties made by Defendant to purchasers of its Ranitidine-Containing Products.

4696. As a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability, as alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order awarding compensatory and punitive damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the law.

COUNT 256
Unjust Enrichment
(Nebraska Law)
(Against BI)

4697. Nebraska Class Representative Gaylord Stauffer incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 2-8, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

4698. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Nebraska-BI Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against BI (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

4699. Plaintiff and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

4702. It is unjust and unfair for the Defendant to retain these benefits because they were attained by misrepresenting and fraudulently concealing the true facts concerning the Ranitidine-Containing Products from Plaintiff and Class members, who would not have purchased the medications at all, but for the Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions.

4704. There is no express contract governing this dispute.

4705. Plaintiff and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law.

24. Causes of Action on Behalf of the Nevada-BI Classes

COUNT 257
Violation of the Nevada Deceptive Trade Practices Act
(Nev. Rev. Stat. Ann. §598.0903, et seq.)
(Against BI)

4706. Nevada Class Representative Cesar Pinon incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 2-8, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

4707. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Nevada-BI Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against BI (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

4708. The Nevada Deceptive Trade Practices Act ("Nevada DTPA"), prohibits the use of "'deceptive trade practices' . . . in the course of . . . business or occupation." Nev. Rev. Stat. Ann. §598.0915.

4709. The Nevada DTPA makes unlawful specific acts, including:

(a) "[k]nowingly mak[ing] a false representation as to the characteristics, ingredients, uses, benefits, alterations or quantities of goods or services for sale or lease or a false representation as to the sponsorship, approval, status, affiliation or connection of a person therewith" (Nev. Rev. Stat. Ann. §598.0915(5));

(b) "[r]epresent[ing] that goods or services for sale or lease are of a particular standard, quality or grade, or that such goods are of a particular style or model, if he or she knows or should know that they are of another standard, quality, grade, style or model" (Nev. Rev. Stat. Ann. §598.0915(7));

(c) "[a]dvertis[ing] goods or services with intent not to sell or lease them as advertised" (Nev. Rev. Stat. Ann. §598.0915(9));

(d) "[k]nowingly mak[ing] any other false representation in a transaction" (Nev. Rev. Stat. Ann. §598.0915(15)); and

(e) "[f]ail[ing] to disclose a material fact in connection with the sale or lease of goods or services" (Nev. Rev. Stat. Ann. §598.0923(2)).

4710. In the course of its business, Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Nevada DTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

4711. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Nevada DTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

4712. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the Nevada DTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

(a) representing that Ranitidine-Containing Products have characteristics, uses, benefits, and qualities which they do not have;

(b) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products are of a particular standard, quality, and grade when they are not;

(c) advertising the Ranitidine-Containing Products with the intent not to sell them as advertised;

(d) failing to disclose the NDMA danger in connection with the sale of the Ranitidine-Containing Products; and

(e) engaging in any other unconscionable, false, misleading, or deceptive act or practice in the conduct of trade or commerce.

4714. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding the inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiff and the Class members in a uniform manner.

4716. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding package size, and resulting misrepresentations and omissions concerning appropriate length of ingestion, of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiff and the Class members in a uniform manner.

capacity to mislead and create a false impression in consumers' minds, and were likely to and, in fact, did deceive reasonable consumers, including Plaintiff and the Class members, about: (i) the inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products; (ii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products if used within the expiration dates; and (iii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products when ingesting all doses contained within particular packaging.

4718. The facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products that Defendant knowingly and intentionally misrepresented, omitted, concealed, and failed to disclose would be considered material by a reasonable consumer, and they were, in fact, material to Plaintiff and the Class members, who consider such facts to be important to their purchase decisions with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products.

4719. Plaintiff and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the Nevada DTPA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

4720. Specifically, Plaintiff and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

4722. As a result of Defendant's violations of the Nevada DTPA, as alleged herein, Plaintiff and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the Nevada DTPA.

COUNT 258
Unjust Enrichment
(Nevada Law)
(Against BI)

4723. Nevada Class Representative Cesar Pinon incorporates the preceding allegations in paragraphs 2-8, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

4724. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the Nevada-BI Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against BI (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

4725. Plaintiff and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products, or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

4730. There is no express contract governing this dispute.

4731. Plaintiff and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law.

25. Causes of Action on Behalf of the New Hampshire-BI Classes

COUNT 259
Violation of the New Hampshire Consumer Protection Act
(N.H. Rev. Stat. Ann. §358-A:1, et seq.)
(Against BI)

4732. New Hampshire Class Representatives Rafael Bermudez and Jennifer Bond incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 2-8, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

4733. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the New Hampshire-BI Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against BI (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

4734. Defendant, Plaintiffs, and the Class members are "[p]erson[s]" within the meaning of N.H. Rev. Stat. Ann. §358-A:1(I).

4735. Defendant was and is engaged in "[t]rade" or "commerce" within the meaning of N.H. Rev. Stat. Ann. §358-A:1(II).

4736. The New Hampshire Consumer Protection Act ("New Hampshire CPA") prohibits "any unfair method of competition or any unfair or deceptive act or practice in the conduct of any trade or commerce." N.H. Rev. Stat. Ann. §358-A:2.

4737. The New Hampshire CPA makes unlawful specific acts, including:

(a) "[r]epresenting that goods or services have sponsorship, approval, characteristics, ingredients, uses, benefits, or quantities that they do not have" (N.H. Rev. Stat. Ann. §358-A:2(V));

(b) "[r]epresenting that goods or services are of a particular standard, quality, or grade, or that goods are of a particular style or model, if they are of another." (N.H. Rev. Stat. Ann. §358-A:2(VII)); and

(c) "[a]dvertising goods or services with intent not to sell them as advertised." (N.H. Rev. Stat. Ann. §358-A:2(IX)).

4738. In the course of its business, Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the New Hampshire CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

4739. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the New Hampshire CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

4740. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the New Hampshire CPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

4741. Specifically, by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products, as detailed above, Defendant engaged in one or more unfair or deceptive acts or practices in the conduct of trade or commerce, in violation of the New Hampshire CPA, including:

(a) representing that Ranitidine-Containing Products have characteristics, uses, benefits, and qualities which they do not have;

(b) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products are of a particular standard, quality, and grade when they are not; and

(c) advertising the Ranitidine-Containing Products with the intent not to sell them as advertised.

4742. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding the inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiffs and the Class members in a uniform manner.

4744. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding package size, and resulting misrepresentations and omissions concerning appropriate length of ingestion, of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiffs and the Class members in a uniform manner.

4747. Plaintiffs and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of New Hampshire CPA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

4748. Specifically, Plaintiffs and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

4750. As a result of Defendant's violations of the New Hampshire CPA, as alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the New Hampshire CPA.

COUNT 262
Violation of the New Jersey Consumer Fraud Act
(N.J. Stat. Ann. §56:8-1, et seq.)
(Against BI)

4772. New Jersey Class Representatives James Adamo, Mary McMillan, Lynn White, Sayed Eldomiaty, and Mary Moronski incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 2-8, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

4773. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the New Jersey-BI Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against BI (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

4774. Defendant, Plaintiffs, and the Class members are "person[s]" within the meaning of N.J. Stat. Ann. §56:8-1(d).

4775. The Ranitidine-Containing Products are "merchandise" within the meaning of N.J. Stat. Ann. §56:8-1(c).

4776. In the course of its business, Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the New Jersey Consumer Fraud Act ("New Jersey CFA") by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer. N.J. Stat. Ann. §56:8-1, et seq.

4777. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the New Jersey CFA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

4778. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the New Jersey CFA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

4780. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding the inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiffs and the Class members in a uniform manner.

fact, did deceive reasonable consumers, including Plaintiffs and the Class members, about: (i) the inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products; (ii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products if used within the expiration dates; and (iii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products when ingesting all doses contained within particular packaging.

4783. The facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products that Defendant knowingly and intentionally misrepresented, omitted, concealed, and failed to disclose would be considered material by a reasonable consumer, and they were, in fact, material to Plaintiffs and the Class members, who consider such facts to be important to their purchase decisions with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products.

4785. Specifically, Plaintiffs and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

4787. As a result of Defendant's violations of the New Jersey CFA, as alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the New Jersey CFA.

COUNT 263
Breach of Implied Warranty
(N.J. Stat. Ann. §12A:2-314)
(Against BI)

4788. New Jersey Class Representatives James Adamo, Mary McMillan, Lynn White, Sayed Eldomiaty, and Mary Moronski incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 2-8, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

4789. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the New Jersey-BI Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against BI (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

4790. At all relevant times, Defendant was a merchant with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products which were sold to New Jersey Class Representatives and members of the New Jersey Class and was in the business of selling such products.

4791. Each Ranitidine-Containing Product sold by Defendant comes with an implied warranty that it will be merchantable and fit for the ordinary purpose for which it would be used, including impliedly warrantying on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products that the products were safe and/or did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

4792. Defendant breached its implied warranty of merchantability because its products cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

4794. Defendant had reason to know Plaintiffs and each member of the Class's particular purpose in buying Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products and knew that Plaintiffs and each member of the Class relied on Defendant's skill or judgment in furnishing appropriate goods that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

4796. Plaintiffs and each member of the Class has had sufficient direct dealings with either Defendant or its agents (including distributors, dealers, and authorized sellers) to establish privity of contract between Defendant, on the one hand, and Plaintiffs and each member of the Class, on the other hand.

4797. Further, Plaintiffs and each member of the Class were the intended third-party beneficiaries of the implied warranties made by Defendant to purchasers of its Ranitidine-Containing Products.

4799. As a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability, as alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members seek an order awarding compensatory and punitive damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the law.

COUNT 264
Unjust Enrichment
(New Jersey Law)
(Against BI)

4800. New Jersey Class Representatives James Adamo, Mary McMillan, Lynn White, Sayed Eldomiaty, and Mary Moronski incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 2-8, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

4801. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the New Jersey-BI Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against BI (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

4802. Plaintiffs and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

4805. It is unjust for the Defendant to retain these benefits because they were attained by misrepresenting and fraudulently concealing the true facts concerning the Ranitidine-Containing Products from Plaintiffs and Class members, who would not have purchased the medications at all, but for the Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions.

4807. Plaintiff sand Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law, nor is there an express contract governing this dispute.

27. Causes of Action on Behalf of the New Mexico-BI Classes

COUNT 265
Violation of the New Mexico Unfair Trade Practices Act
(N.M. Stat. Ann. §57-12-1, et seq.)
(Against BI)

4808. New Mexico Class Representatives Ernesto Sanchez and George Tapia incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 2-8, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

4809. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the New Mexico-BI Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against BI (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

4810. Defendant, Plaintiffs, and the Class members are "person[s]" within the meaning of N.M. Stat. Ann. §57-12-2(A).

4811. Defendant was and is engaged in "trade" or "commerce" within the meaning of N.M. Stat. Ann. §57-12-2(C).

4812. The New Mexico Unfair Trade Practices Act ("New Mexico UTPA") makes unlawful "a false or misleading oral or written statement, visual description or other representation of any kind knowingly made in connection with the sale, lease, rental or loan of goods or services . . . by a person in the regular course of the person's trade or commerce, that may, tends to or does deceive or mislead any person." N.M. Stat. Ann. §57-12-2(D). The New Mexico UTPA also makes unlawful "an act or practice in connection with the sale, lease, rental, or loan, or in connection with the offering for sale, lease, rental or loan, of any goods or services, . . . that to a person's detriment: (1) takes advantage of the lack of knowledge, ability, experience or capacity of a person to a grossly unfair degree; or (2) results in a gross disparity between the value received by a person and the price paid." N.M. Stat. Ann. §57-12-2(E).

4813. The New Mexico UTPA makes unlawful specific acts, including:

(a) "representing that goods or services have sponsorship, approval, characteristics, ingredients, uses, benefits or quantities that they do not have" (N.M. Stat. Ann. §57-12-2(D)(5));

(b) "representing that goods or services are of a particular standard, quality or grade or that goods are of a particular style or model if they are of another" (N.M. Stat. Ann. §57-12-2(D)(7)); and

(c) "using exaggeration, innuendo or ambiguity as to a material fact . . . if doing so deceives or tends to deceive" (N.M. Stat. Ann. §57-12-2(D)(14)).

4814. In the course of its business, Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the New Mexico UTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

4815. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the New Mexico UTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including by printing expiration dates on its labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

4816. Defendant, directly or through its agents, employees, and/or subsidiaries, violated the New Mexico UTPA by knowingly and intentionally misrepresenting, omitting, concealing, and failing to disclose material facts in its marketing, advertising, and promotions for its Ranitidine-Containing Products, including that: such drugs were inherently defective, unreasonably dangerous, not fit to be used for their intended purpose, contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer.

(a) representing that Ranitidine-Containing Products have characteristics, uses, benefits, and qualities which they do not have;

(b) representing that the Ranitidine-Containing Products are of a particular standard, quality, and grade when they are not;

(c) using exaggeration and/or failing to state the material facts concerning the Ranitidine-Containing Products in a manner that tended to deceive; and

(d) acting in a manner that resulted in a gross disparity between the true value of the Ranitidine-Containing Products and the price paid.

4818. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding the inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiffs and the Class members in a uniform manner.

4820. Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions regarding package size, and resulting misrepresentations and omissions concerning appropriate length of ingestion, of Ranitidine-Containing Products were disseminated to Plaintiffs and the Class members in a uniform manner.

4821. Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices, including its misrepresentations, concealments, omissions, and suppressions of material facts, as alleged herein, had a tendency or capacity to mislead and create a false impression in consumers' minds, and were likely to and, in fact, did deceive reasonable consumers, including Plaintiffs and the Class members, about: (i) the inherently defective and unreasonably dangerous nature of Ranitidine-Containing Products; (ii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products if used within the expiration dates; and (iii) the safety of Ranitidine-Containing Products when ingesting all doses contained within particular packaging.

material by a reasonable consumer, and they were, in fact, material to Plaintiffs and the Class members, who consider such facts to be important to their purchase decisions with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products.

4823. Plaintiffs and the Class members were aggrieved by Defendant's violations of the New Mexico UTPA because they suffered ascertainable loss and actual damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's knowing and intentional misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts as set forth above.

4824. Specifically, Plaintiffs and the Class members were deceived by Defendant's misrepresentations, omissions, concealments, and failures to disclose material facts regarding Ranitidine-Containing Products. Had Defendant not engaged in the deceptive acts and practices alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members would not have purchased the drug, and, thus, they did not receive the benefit of the bargain and/or suffered out-of-pocket loss.

4826. As a result of Defendant's violations of the New Mexico UTPA, as alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members seek an order enjoining Defendant's unfair or deceptive acts or practices and awarding actual damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the New Mexico UTPA.

COUNT 266
Breach of Implied Warranty
(N.M. Stat. Ann. §55-2-314)
(Against BI)

4827. New Mexico Class Representatives Ernesto Sanchez and George Tapia incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 2-8, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

4828. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the New Mexico-BI Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against [Brand Manufacturer Defendant] (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

4829. At all relevant times, Defendant was a merchant with respect to Ranitidine-Containing Products which were sold to New Mexico Class Representatives and members of the New Mexico Class and was in the business of selling such products.

4830. Each Ranitidine-Containing Product sold by Defendant comes with an implied warranty that it will be merchantable and fit for the ordinary purpose for which it would be used, including impliedly warrantying on the labels for its Ranitidine-Containing Products that the products were safe and/or did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

4831. Defendant breached its implied warranty of merchantability because its products cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

4833. Defendant had reason to know Plaintiffs and each member of the Class's particular purpose in buying Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products, and knew that Plaintiffs and each member of the Class relied on Defendant's skill or judgment in furnishing appropriate goods that did not cause cancer or cause an unreasonable risk of cancer if used within the expiration dates on its labels.

4835. Plaintiffs and each member of the Class have had sufficient direct dealings with either Defendant or its agents (including distributors, dealers, and authorized sellers) to establish privity of contract between Defendant, on the one hand, and Plaintiffs and each member of the Class, on the other hand.

4836. Further, Plaintiffs and each member of the Class were the intended third-party beneficiaries of the implied warranties made by Defendant to purchasers of its Ranitidine-Containing Products.

4838. As a result of Defendant's breaches of implied warranties of merchantability, as alleged herein, Plaintiffs and the Class members seek an order awarding compensatory and punitive damages, costs, attorneys' fees, and any other just and proper relief available under the law.

COUNT 267
Unjust Enrichment
(New Mexico Law)
(Against BI)

4839. New Mexico Class Representatives Ernesto Sanchez and George Tapia incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 2-8, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

4840. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the New Mexico-BI Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against Brand Manufacturer Defendant BI (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

4841. Plaintiffs and Class members conferred a benefit on Defendant in the form of payment of monies to purchase worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products, or were otherwise in privity with Defendant through said transaction.

4842. In exchange for their payment of the purchase price of Defendant's Ranitidine-Containing Products, Plaintiffs and Class members received the Ranitidine-Containing Products, which Defendant did not disclose contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed. Accordingly, Plaintiffs and Class members conferred a financial benefit on Defendants but did not receive their expected benefit therefrom.

4843. Defendant readily accepted and retained these benefits from Plaintiffs and Class members and knowingly benefitted from its unjust conduct – at Plaintiffs' and the Class members' expense – by selling worthless Ranitidine-Containing Products that contained elevated levels of NDMA that rendered them unsafe and unfit for human consumption, and/or caused cancer, and that included expiration dates on the products' labels that exceeded the time period during which the products remained stable and, thus, resulting in higher, undisclosed, and unsafe levels of NDMA as time passed.

4844. It is unjust for the Defendant to retain these benefits because they were attained by misrepresenting and fraudulently concealing the true facts concerning the Ranitidine-Containing Products from Plaintiffs and Class members, who would not have purchased the medications at all, but for the Defendant's misrepresentations and omissions.

4846. There is no express contract governing this dispute.

4847. Plaintiffs and Class members do not have an adequate remedy at law.

28. Causes of Action on Behalf of the New York-BI Classes

COUNT 268
Violation of New York Deceptive Acts and Practices Act
(N.Y. Gen. Bus. Law §349)
(Against BI)

4848. New York Class Representatives Benny Fazio, Francis Neary, Glorimar Rodriguez, Mary McCullen, Migdalia Kinney, Richard Froehlich, Roy Armstrong, Dan Zhovtis, and Joseph McPheter incorporate the preceding allegations in paragraphs 2-8, 273-277, 279-303, 317-442, 445-456, 462-469, 470-483, and 868-911 as though fully set forth herein.

4849. This cause of action is brought on behalf of the New York-BI Class (for the purpose of this section, "Class") against BI (for purposes of this Count only, "Defendant").

4850. Plaintiffs and the Class members are "person[s]" within the meaning of N.Y. Gen. Bus. Law §349(h). Defendant is a "person, firm, corporation or association" within the meaning of N.Y. Gen. Bus. Law §349(b).

4851. The New York Deceptive Acts and Practices Act ("New York DAPA") prohibits "[d]eceptive acts or practices in the conduct of any business, trade or commerce." N.Y. Gen. Bus. Law §349(a).
